OBITUARIES

Elizabeth M. Leahy, 71

A funeral Mass for Elizabeth M. Leahy, age 71, a lifelong resident of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Mary's Church, Quincy.

Ms. Leahy died peacefully Feb. 16 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

She was born in Boston and raised in Quincy. She was a graduate of the former St. Mary's School in West Quincy and Cardinal Cushing High School. She received her Associate's Degree from Aquinas College in Milton. Ms. Leahy worked as a legal secretary for forty years for several law firms in Boston.

She was a lifelong active parishioner of St. Mary's Church in West Quincy. Ms. Leahy was an avid traveler and enjoyed special trips to Australia and New Zealand, as well as many cruises, with her sister, Kathleen.

She was dedicated to her family, supporting the accomplishments of her nieces and nephew, great nieces and great nephews.

Beloved daughter of the late John A. and Elizabeth T. (Doherty) Leahy. Devoted sister of Kathleen M. Leahy of Quincy and the late Dennis A. Leahy. Dear sister-in-law of Karen E. Leahy of South Weymouth. Loving aunt of Denise K. Bagley and her husband Steven, Jr. of Whitman, Debra M. Leahy of South Weymouth, and Dennis A. Leahy, Jr. and his wife Morgan of Fall City, Washington. Cherished great-aunt of Steven E. Bagley III, Katelyn D. Bagley, William D. Bagley, and Maeve Quincy Leahy.

Interment private.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations be made to Saint Mary's Church, Bell Tower Restoration Fund, c/o St. Mary's Rectory, 757 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02170 or to the South Shore Visiting Nurse Association, 30 Reservoir Park Drive, Rockland, MA 02370.

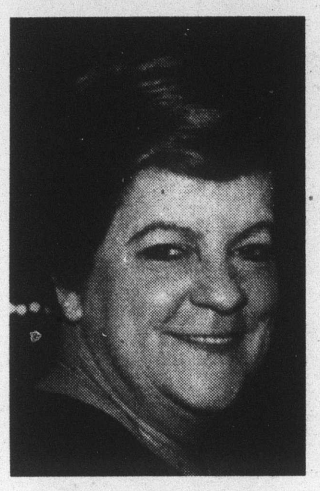
Bettyann Woods, 68



BETTYANN WOODS

A funeral Mass for Bettyann Woods, 68, of Weymouth, will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in St. Jerome Parish, Weymouth.

Mrs. Woods died Feb. 8 at South Shore Hospital following a brief illness.

Born in Cambridge and raised in Everett, she was a daughter of the late Robert & Emma (Flores) Constantine and a 1966 graduate of Everett High School. Mrs. Woods worked as an administrative assistant at the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, retiring in 2006.

Survived by Edward H. Woods of Quincy, she was the loving mother of Edward J. Woods and his wife Erin of Bridgewater, and Geoffrey M. Woods of Weymouth. Cherished grandmother of Ashley Woods of Weymouth and Liam, Breandan, Cullen and Devin Woods, all of Bridgewater.

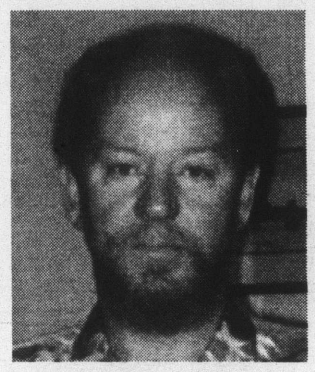
Dear sister of Robert Constantine and his wife Janice of Everett, Roberta Actor and her husband Michael of Peabody, and Paulette Gray of Everett. Also survived by many nieces, nephews, extended family and close friends.

Interment private. Visiting hours respectfully omitted.

Memorial donations may be made to the N.E. Home for Little Wanderers, 10 Guest St., Boston, MA 02135 or online at thehome.org.

Arrangements were made by Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Robert P. Swanson



ROBERT P. SWANSON

A funeral service for Robert P. "Swanny" Swanson of Quincy will be held at 8 p.m. Friday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mr. Swanson died Feb. 17.

He was most proud of his wife Patricia and their 45-year marriage. They traveled the world together. An adventurous soul, and he enjoyed meeting new people from around the world. His trips took him to Latin America, Spain and Fiji, just to name a few. Somewhat of a renaissance man, Mr. Swanson also enjoyed cooking for his family, photography, electronics, social events, and his Boston Red Sox and New England Patriots. He enjoyed bicycling, good conversation and was a member of the South Shore Camera Club.

Mr. Swanson was a U.S. Navy veteran and a 21-year employee from Information Services with the Boston Globe. He will be remembered for his intelligence, good nature, sense of humor, and helping his friends and family.

Beloved husband of Patricia (Gulizia) Swanson of Quincy. Cherished son of the late Henry L. Swanson and Mary W. (Neilson). Loving brother of Nancy Casinelli of Quincy and the late Anne Marinelli and John Swanson. Uncle of Stephen Marinelli of W. Bridgewater, Nicole, Michael and Eric Casinelli, all of Quincy. Son-in-law of John & Juanita Gulizia of Quincy. Brother-in-law of Anthony Gulizia of Quincy.

Visiting hours are 4 to 8 p.m. Friday at the funeral home.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 30 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701.

Doris M. Taylor, 97

A funeral for Doris M. (Weidman) Taylor, 97, of Quincy will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday in Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Mrs. Taylor died Feb. 15.

Born in Dorchester, she moved with her parents to Quincy when she was 6 months old. She graduated from Quincy High School in 1937 and attended night school for the next 2 years. A former secretary at Pneumatic Scales in North Quincy, Mrs. Taylor worked for Walter Baker's Chocolate Company in Dorchester for 14 years and also worked as secretary in doctors offices in Milton and Carney Hospital for 15 years until her retirement in 1983.

She belonged to the Quincy Emblem Club #22 and the Skandia Lodge in Braintree for many years. Mrs. Taylor belonged to bowling leagues in addition to enjoying bingo and trips to Foxwoods. She attended the Bethany Congregational Church in Quincy for 50 years with her husband.

The loving wife of 70 years to the late Charles A. Taylor. She is survived by her daughter Lois Mobouck and her husband Peter of Ft. Myers, Florida, and formerly of East Sandwich. Also survived by her daughter-in-law, Patricia Taylor of Plymouth, 4 grandchildren, 4 great-grandchildren and 1 great-great-grandchild. Mother of the late Charles G. Taylor, sister of the late Gordon A. Weidman and daughter to the late Alrick A. Weidman (former building inspector of Quincy) and Lillian H. (Hansen) Weidman.

Visiting hours were 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday in the funeral home.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Bethany Congregational Church, 18 Spear St., Quincy, MA 02169 or to the Alzheimer's Association, 480 Pleasant St., Watertown, MA 02472.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're correct to want to help someone who seems to need assistance. But be careful that he or she isn't pulling the wool over those gorgeous Sheep's eyes. You need more facts.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine optimism soon will dispel the gloom cast by those naysayers and pessimists who still hover close by. Also, that good news you recently received is part of a fuller message to come.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Feeling jealous over a colleague's success drains the energy you need to meet your own challenges. Wish him or her well, and focus on what you need to do. Results start to show in mid-March.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're likely to feel somewhat Crabby these days, so watch what you say, or you could find yourself making lots of apologies. Your mood starts to brighten by the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your pride might still be hurting from those unflattering remarks someone made about you. But cheer up, you're about to prove once again why you're the Top Cat in whatever you do.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A misunderstanding with a co-worker could become a real problem unless it's resolved soon. Allow a third party to come in and assess the situation without pressure or prejudice.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Call a family meeting to discuss the care of a loved one at this difficult time. Be careful not to let yourself be pushed into shouldering the full burden on your own.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An upcoming decision could open the way to an exciting venture. However, there are some risks you should know about. Ask more questions before making a commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Personal matters need your attention during the earlier part of the week. You can start to shift your focus to your workaday world by midweek. Friday brings news.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You've been going at a hectic pace for quite a while. It's time now for some much-needed rest and recreation to recharge those hardworking batteries.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This is a good time to upgrade your current skills or consider getting into an entirely different training program so that you can be prepared for new career opportunities.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Keep a low profile in order to avoid being lured away from the job at hand. Focus on what has to be done, and do it. There'll be time later to enjoy fun with family and friends.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can be a dreamer and a realist. You dream of what you would like to do, and then you face the reality of how to do it.

'Bob McGillicuddy Will Be In Our Thoughts Forever'

Director Patrick Lane announced that a Bob McGillicuddy Quincy/North Quincy Swim Book Award is being established.

"We are going to set up a fund to accept donations and we are going to, after this year, award a book award to a graduating male and female swimmer from North Quincy High and a male and female swimmer from Quincy High School to help defray the costs associated with attending a two or three year institution," said Lane.

Following the tribute ceremony, the gathering made its way to the Dr. Charles Djerf pool -where Mr. McGillicuddy's charges practiced and competed – to dedicate the timing board in his name.

Kusiak Carey, Forrester and dive coach Theresa Kerrigan spoke of how Mr. McGillicuddy took over and turned around a faltering high school swim program eight years ago that grew from a handful of students to more than 75 boys and girls this year.

Under his leadership, they noted how the high school teams set several records and qualified to compete in regional and state championships.

Mr. McGillicuddy also helmed the middle school swimming and diving program and set up a citywide learn-to-swim program.

The coaches spoke fondly of how Mr. McGillicuddy inspired them and the student swimmers and made the swim program the success it is today.

"Bob had a dream to grow this program and we can see that dream came true," said Forrester. "If you look around the school, Bob is everywhere - from the lanes, to the kick boards to the record books. Bob celebrated each accomplishment of each individual swimmer and now it's time to celebrate him."

A dedication sign was then unveiled by Mr. McGillicuddy's brother and sister. John McGillicuddy and Kara McGillicuddy.

Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said that Mr. McGillicuddy will truly be missed.

"When something like this happens, you don't realize how close someone is," said DeCristofaro. "He will be in our thoughts forever."

NQHS Men's Soccer Hall Of Fame Announces First Inductees

The North Quincy High School Men's Soccer Alumni group announces the first induction into the school's Men's Soccer Hall of Fame.

The first induction includes two "teams" of players, based upon extensive review of records and honors achieved by players dating back to 1960, when the first team was started as a varsity program at the school.

Over the 56-year history of the program, there was been a number of teams and players with outstanding accomplishments, including individual contributions to their teams, team appearances in the EMass State Tournaments, individual recognition as EMass team all-stars, Boston Globe All-Scholastics, Patriot Lebger All-Scholastics and league all-stars.

A formal induction event will be announced at a future date later in 2017.

The first two teams are:

TEAM 2:

Bruce Healy, 1969, forward; Steve Miller, 1974, forward; Vin Cameron, 1971, forward; Walter Melton, 1975, forward; Joe Flynn, 1980, midfield; Peter McGillicuddy, 1983, midfield; Tom O'Malley, 1971, defense; Greg DiBella, 1983, defense; Mike Cocce, 1984, defense; Rich Shultz, 1966, defense; Steve Kramer, 1965, goal; and Lou Ioanilli, coach.

Quincy Senior Captain Bailee Carey Earns 4th

Quincy senior captain Bailee Carey finished fourth on the one-meter board at the Massachusetts Division I State Swimming and Diving Championships last Saturday at Boston University Pool.

BAILEE CAREY

Carey accumulated 496.95 points in an 11-dive performance which featured four 10's on her ninth dive, an inward dive pike position.

For the third year, Carey has ranked in the top-eight at the Division I State meet, earning third a season ago and eighth in 2015. The multiple Patriot League All-Star earned third at Central/South Sectionals last week at M.I.T.

THANK YOU

for helping us deliver all Bob's wishes

The Quincy Sun
"Have you seen The Quincy Sun!" Despite these alerts, we were still overwhelmed by your February 9th issue with the unending display of love and gratitude for Bob. Beyond the sheer volume of articles, the sincerity in each shows that Bob's love and passion will live on through others.

Father Lou Palmieri and the Staff of Sacred Heart Parish "Emotionally uplifting!", "Motivational", "Understatedly lovely Church" This was some of the praise, but most important of all was Bob himself saying "I want Father Lou to say the Mass at Sacred Heart."

Honorary Pallbearers
For your Love and Friendship as you are a special part of Bob's multifaceted life.

QNQ Teams
Bob wanted to see you all one last time - now we all know why!

Louise Becamé, Kaila Jacques and the Sterling Middle School Singers
Bob loved Patriotic songs, loved your passion, and would have proudly sang along!

Stephanie MacFarland
Virtuoso performances! Brava! Brava!

Dr. Rick DeCristofaro
Belichick\Mr. Rogers. Patton\Gronk. You captured the great duality of Bob.

Bob McGillicuddy
"For however it was that you touched our lives - teacher, coach, colleague, mentor, friend - you made us all better versions of ourselves. For that, we thank you. We will continue to thank you and remember you by doing bits of good for you."
- Conclusion to Bob's Eulogy

Mayor Koch and the Quincy Police Dept., Sheriff Mike Bellotti and the Norfolk County Sheriff's Dept.
In the midst of a surprise snowstorm, you facilitated snow removal, parking, and safe travel for the several hundred mourners descending upon Sacred Heart.

Keohane Funeral Home
Your kindness, compassion and ability to take care of EVERY detail ensured a tremendous send-off. You managed quite a crowd in logistically challenging spaces!

The Merrymount Neighbors
The Room looked fit for a King! The programs were perfect, Karla!

The Tirrell Room
Thanks for providing a perfect venue! Your staff was fabulous!

Montillio's Bakery
Thank you for your creative cookies, desserts, and generosity!

To the Community of Quincy
Our loss is your loss. We are now Family. When Bob's Community Garden opens and the marigolds are in full bloom, please come to visit. Until then, look for signs that Bob continues to teach as a Spiritual Connection never ends.

"Promise me you'll always remember that you're braver than you believe, stronger than you seem, and smarter than you think."

City Seeks New Public Buildings HQ

By SCOTT JACKSON

City officials hope to acquire a historic home in Quincy Center to serve as the new headquarters for the Public Buildings Department.

Mayor Thomas Koch submitted a request to the City Council Feb. 21 to purchase the home at 74 Greenleaf St. for $775,000 from an account funded by the sale of other city properties. He also submitted a request to make 50 Saville Ave. available for disposition; the building there, as well as one at 58 Saville Ave., house the Public Building Department's administrative offices.

Both matters were referred to finance committee for further consideration.

Chris Walker, Koch's spokesman, said the current buildings on Saville Avenue are no longer fit to serve as

Harris Objects 'Sanctuary City' Here Resolution

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris invoked parliamentary procedure to block discussion of his colleague's resolution asking city officials to prepare a presentation on what becoming a "sanctuary city" would entail and if the city should take steps to become one.

Harris said he objected to the resolution introduced by Councillor Nina Liang at the Feb. 21 council meeting because he wanted to do his due diligence before considering it.

"I felt I don't have all of the information that I know is needed to be honest to both sides of this issue," he told reporters following the meeting. "My objection was simply that this wouldn't start in motion until the following meeting where I would have two weeks to be able to dig in and try to differentiate what's fact and what's fiction."

27 New Firefighters Sworn In, Start Training

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Fire Department added one if its largest classes in recent memory when 27 new firefighters were sworn in during a City Hall ceremony that drew a standing-room-only crowd of more than 100 family members, friends and local elected officials.

The 27 new members were sworn in by Assistant City Clerk Joseph Newton during the ceremony the afternoon of Feb. 24 in the Great Hall of the James R. McIntyre Government Center.

Sworn in that day were Matthew Tobin, Douglas Trude, Brendan Gibbons, Joseph Callahan, Benjamin Berlo, Martin Rigby, Brian MacDonald, William Meade, Grover Hensley, Wendell Cosgrove, Kristian Palushi, Michael Toran, Cody Daniels, Bryan Donelin, Evan Harrington, Garry Helm, Brian LaPorte, Joseph McGhee, Christopher O'Hare, Michael Stanton, Cameron Wolf, Paul Cunniff, Jeffrey D'Angelo, Michael Martorano, Carlos Ochoa, Daniel Scribi and Joseph Scribi.

Twenty-six of the firefighters began 12 weeks of training Monday at the Fore River Shipyard. The other new firefighter, Hensley, is a transfer from the Marshfield Fire Department and began Monday on a temporary assignment to department headquarters on Quincy Avenue.

The new hires bring the number of firefighters in the department to 217 across all ranks. The number had dipped as low as 188 in fiscal year 2011 during the midst of the Great Recession.

Mayor Thomas Koch said the Fire Department is like a family, said it was appropriate so many family members were present to witness the swearing in.

"I think it's rather appropriate today we come together and celebrate. Each of your families is very hap-

First Step Taken To Build New Squantum School

By TOM GORMAN

Officials have taken the first step in a plan to build a new Squantum Elementary School.

The school committee on Feb. 8 unanimously voted to authorize School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro to submit a Core Program Statement of Interest to the Massachusetts School Building Authority (MSBA) that outlines the need to replace the existing, nearly 100 year-old school on Huckins Avenue. The submission is the first of a multi-phase process to have a new school building plan approved by the state authority.

If ultimately approved, the state would award the city a grant that would pay at least part of the construction cost of the new school. There is no timeline or cost estimate at this time and it could be at least a few years before a shovel hits the ground if all goes well.

According to the Statement of Interest, the Squantum Elementary School was built in 1919 and an addition constructed in 1971. The statement indicated that the building has not been upgraded in decades.

"In forty-five years, it has not received any substantial

City Still Negotiating Purchase Of St. Mary's School

By TOM GORMAN

City officials are still negotiating with the Boston Archdiocese to purchase the closed St. Mary's School in West Quincy where a new public elementary school is being eyed by the district.

Mayor Thomas Koch told the school committee on Feb. 8 that the archdiocese and parish officials are trying to determine the school's property lines in relation to the adjacent cemetery. He explained that the state has square footage requirements for a public school.

"Part of the negotiations right now is over the size of the land we would purchase," said Koch.

He explained that if the school property was purchased, the existing building would be demolished to make way for Quincy's 12th public elementary school.

St. Mary's School was closed by the Boston Archdiocese nearly seven years ago along with St. Ann's and Sacred Heart schools due to declining enrollment. In their place, the Quincy Academy was opened at the former Sacred Heart School in North Quincy that combines students from all three schools.

Last year, Koch proposed buying St. Mary's School, located off of Crescent Street, as part of his capital improvement plan to provide more classroom space for the city's crowded schools. There is no cost estimate at this time for the purchase of the site and constructing a new public school there.

"It's still preliminary," he said. "We will keep everybody informed on the process."

ITS COLOR IS ITS NAME

Aquamarine, which means "water of the sea," is both the name and the color of March's birthstone. This characteristically transparent member of the beryl family, which also includes emerald, gets its sparkling ocean-like color from iron oxides within the chemical makeup of the stone. While most aquamarine is a light greenish blue, it can be blue, very slightly greenish blue, greenish blue, very strongly greenish blue, or green-blue. The preferred color for aquamarine is a dark blue to slightly greenish blue with moderately strong intensity. In addition, nearly flawless aquamarine in the lighter colors so closely resembles diamond in the eyes of many that it is often referred to as the "poor man's diamond."

Aquamarine complements almost any skin or eye color, which makes it an all-time favorite for women the world over. It is a popular gem, universal to wear, readily available and moderately priced, but growing in popularity. Music And The Vinyl Pursuit

Berthold Auerbach, the late 19th century German-Jewish poet and author, once said, "Music washes away from the soul the dust of everyday life."

Lately, for me, dusting off everyday life has come from listening to vinyl records. A "back to the future" pursuit so to speak.

For those of us in the "Baby Boomer" generation – and I just make the last year of it with a birthday in late 1964 – we grew up with vinyl records. We also experienced 8-tracks and later music cassettes before most of the music industry morphed into CDs and digital music thanks to online downloads in recent decades.

But for most of my youth, vinyl ruled the day.

I can remember waiting for albums to be released and then heading to a record store the first day they were available. Then scurry back home and spin that vinyl on a small turntable. With any luck, the artist included the lyrics on the album sleeve inside the jacket. A few listens and you could now sing along to any and all of the tracks.

But the vinyl age seemed to die down with the advent of CDs. The upside of a CD was it was portable. You could take your music outside to the beach or backyard with a "boom box." Cars soon added CD players to their radios. So a CD could be played in the home, outside and in the car. The most music bang – and versatility – for your buck.

And soon the vinyl collection gathered dust and became obsolete. I have zero albums left from my youth. They made it up to my college dorm at UNH in the mid 1980s but I think they were tossed soon after I returned home after graduating in 1987.

Fast forward to a few months ago.

I took possession of an RCA stereo console that was my parents. It hadn't worked in years but thanks to the fine folks at Atlantic Systems Electronics in Hanover, it now spins records like a top. New tubes and a new needle and it sounds as good as the day my father brought it home nearly 50 years ago.

The model came out in 1968 – the same year Henry founded this newspaper. He purchased the console from South Shore Television in Quincy Center as a family gift for Christmas that December. Henry liked to reciprocate with folks who did business with the Sun and Remo and Pete DeNicola were two of the strongest supporters of this newspaper during the early years.

I also have a few of my dad's albums. He was a big fan of the Glenn Miller Orchestra and Big Band era. The first song we played after the console was refurbished was "Moonlight Serenade" in Henry's honor. And we still play his records mostly on Sunday mornings when those songs used to fill our house as youngsters.

Funny thing about vinyl. Once you start listening to it again, it grabs you. Music the way it was meant to be played – and heard.

And soon, the pursuit for more vinyl was on.

I thought back to some of those albums I had as a teen and that I didn't have on CD.

No need to replace every CD with its vinyl counterpart. This was all about racking my brain and rediscovering old albums that I hadn't heard in years.

After some careful consideration, I purchased a few albums online. But you know what? The internet is not the same as a record store.

And there are some stores in the area that are really worth the look.

The best part: many of these albums are used and the prices are discounted. If the records have skips, the stores I've frequented will accept the return without hesitation. Unless of course the album is being sold as is and all sales are final. Generally these cost a dollar or less. So why not take a chance? So far the bargains are batting nearly 1.000 – only one has been sent to that "big vinyl collection in the sky."

One record store in the area has a huge selection of albums priced at 99 cents. I've scored some major finds including – yes – a double album collection of Glenn Miller favorites.

You never know what you'll find rummaging through used records. A few days ago, I came across an album from Bruce Springsteen (one of my favorite performers). The album features songs recorded from two concerts in Worcester during his "Born in the USA" tour in 1984. I attended one of those concerts with some friends from UNH – driving from Durham to the show in Worcester. I think we got back to campus around 2 a.m. but it was well worth the sleep deprivation.

I am not sure what's triggered this renewed passion with vinyl.

Certainly having my parents' old stereo console is a big reason.

And music purists will argue that music sounds better on a turntable.

Those are valid reasons.

But I also think vinyl can transport you back to a time when life was simpler.

Music can be an escape from the stress and anxiety that seems to overwhelm our lives today. Shut off the TV, put down the computer and cell phone and just listen to the music. Relax and unwind as songs from the sound track of our lives play over and over again.

Let the turntable spin and then turn the record over. Enjoy the beat and the lyrics. Carve out some downtime from the hectic pace of everyday life.

Vinyl also appears to be making a comeback and not just with me.

Last year, vinyl revenues hit an astounding $422.3 million in the U.S. alone, according to the Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA). That's a vinyl comeback that was unthinkable ten years ago, especially after nearly 15 years of near-constant decline.

And for vinyl aficionados, there's better news. It appears production will continue to rise. According to news reports, the United Record Pressing plant, which has produced vinyl since 1949, is expanding operations to a new 142,000-square-foot facility in South Nashville, TN. The new facility could measure the size of two football fields doubling the plant's production capacity. It's all designed to keep pace with strong market demand.

I was a record store not too long ago when a mother and two teenage sons ventured in. The store sells more than vinyl records and one son had his eyes on a new skateboard.

Suddenly, the other boy noticed a turntable spinning behind the front counter. "What's that," he asked his mom.

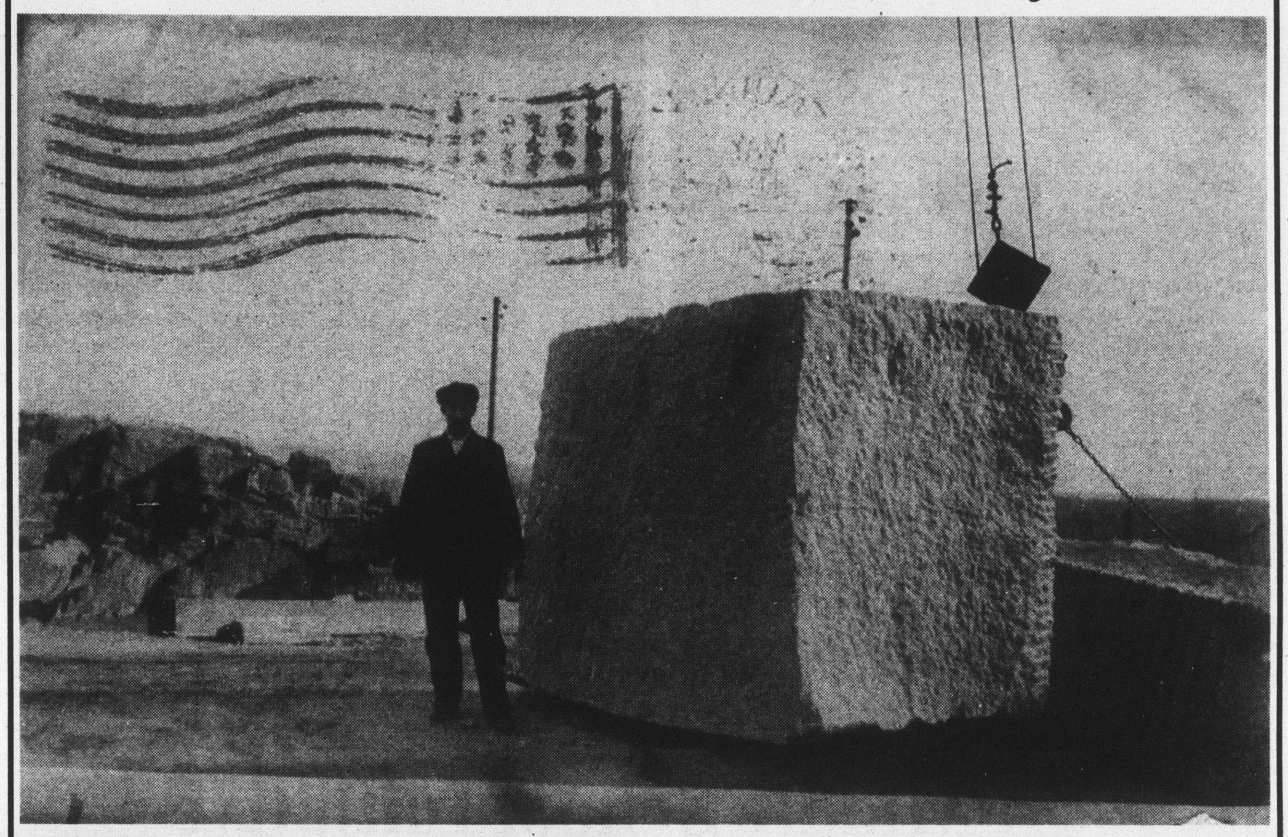
She laughed and replied, "That's a turntable. That's how they played music years ago."

Years ago is here again.

And, for me, this time to stay.

RCA STEREO CONSOLE purchased at South Shore Television in 1968 is again playing vinyl records after being refurbished.

Scenes From Yesterday



THIS 1909 real photo postcard was mailed to Hilga Nilson in Providence by her father who was working in the Quincy quarries at the time. One of the hundreds of immigrant craftsmen who brought their skills from Western Europe to Quincy, this quarryman proudly stands next to an example of our famous granite that was extracted in blocks like this from the hills of West Quincy. The best grades of dark and blue granite found its way into monuments, building façades and memorial structures. Lesser grades and scraps were used for all types of stonework from breakwaters to house foundations, curbing and cobblestones. One can only wonder what beautiful Quincy Granite memorial standing today was fashioned from this block by one of Quincy's artisan stonecutters. The motto of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association was "Quincy Granite – Lasting Till Everlasting." To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

$3M Bond Issue For Early Childhood Center, Bernazzani Addition

To the delight of School Committee members, teachers, parents and children, the City Council Finance Committee approved a bond issue in excess of $3 million for an Early Childhood Center to be built on the site of the former Lincoln School in southwest Quincy.

The unanimous decision also cleared the way for a four-classroom addition to the Bernazzani School.

A total of $2,172,540 from the bond issue will be put towards the Early Childhood Center while $905,000 will fund the building of the Bernazzani addition. An additional $127,540 from private donations will complete the funding for the E.C.C. project.

LaRAIA RETURNS TO THE CITY COUNCIL

Joseph LaRaia was back on the city political scene after a six-year hiatus.

LaRaia was unanimously elected by the City Council to fill the councillor at-large seat vacated by Patricia Toland who left the council to seek the city's assistant city clerk's position.

"I feel like a newcomer," LaRaia said, after being sworn in by City Clerk Joseph Shea. "This is the first time in 5 ½ years I've been in the City Council Chambers as a councillor."

LaRaia, who had been in and out of political office since 1960, said that for now he is simply happy to be back on the council.

Sanctuary City Question Belongs On The Ballot

At the risk of being labeled as a xenophobic, racist bigot, I wanted to express my sentiment on the matter of sanctuary cities.

First, I am tired of people crying out that "We are a country of immigrants." What those on the political left neglect to mention is, that it was LEGAL immigrants for the most part that built this country and not ILLEGAL immigrants. The United States takes in just over a million immigrants per year who have patiently waited for their turn to become American citizens. Nobody is standing up for them while they are being bypassed.

As far as sanctuary cities are concerned, I see two problems. First it is illegal and we face the loss of federal funding for our schools, fire and police. Secondly and of more importance to me, is that the pro sanctuary people have turned this into a moral issue. We who are opposed to sanctuary are labeled as I stated above.

I don't believe that any government body has the right to impose any moral standard on their constituents. It should be a ballot question settled by the registered voters of this city and not nine city councillors.

GOP's Hughes Has A Right To Her Own Opinion

As I read Jake Fennessy's tongue-lashing of Kirsten Hughes in her capacity as chairperson of the Massachusetts Republican Party, I felt compelled to respond. I am not a great supporter of Hughes heading the state GOP because I felt new leadership was needed.

When I first moved to Quincy back in 1984 to Wollaston, I joined the Quincy Republican Party. In the late '70s and early '80s, I was registered as a Republican but that period was short-lived. Most of my adult life I have been a registered Democrat and still to this day refer to myself as a Reagan Democrat.

I too read that Boston Globe piece which quoted Kirsten as opining that U.S. Sen. Elizabeth Warren was "shrieking" at the podium. I thought that word captured exactly what I heard, too. Warren is allowed to act like a bully on stage and do all sorts of name-calling. That's okay?

Warren is now already running for president in 2020 as the voice of the progressive Never Trump Democrat Party. Her strategy obviously is to make headlines wherever she goes and whatever she says on stage. She will continue to act this way as she prepares for her 2018 re-election bid. She's now replaced John Kerry as the new Photo Op expert.

However, Warren supporters really need to get a grip on themselves. Stop using gender politics to make your political talking points. The word "shrieking" is not solely an anti-woman word. I still remember well when Dr. Howard Dean had his meltdown on live TV and shrieked all over the place. He never lived that bad moment down.

If any apology is owed, it would be from the letter writer to Kristen Hughes. She has a right to her opinion not just as a Republican leader but as an American citizen and is backed up by the Bill of Rights last I heard.

As President John Adams once stated, "Facts are stubborn things." Free speech is a real fact.

Kudos To Chairperson Hughes

Kudos to (GOP Committee) chairperson and Quincy city councillor Kirsten Hughes, for exercising her First Amendment right in criticizing Senator Warren on her constant demeanor of President Trump and the Republican Party in general.

It took President Trump's victory for this great country to finally wake up and smell the coffee. How they have been bamboozled and lied to for the past eight years!

Fake news and phony MSM has finally been exposed and we owe this President a great deal of praise and gratitude.

As for Senator Warren who ever thought Donald J. Trump would have been elected a year ago ?

A Matter Of Heart . . . A Middle School Initiative

690 Eighth Grade Students Receive CPR Training, Some Certified

During the week of Jan. 30 through Feb. 2, Brewster Ambulance, in partnership with the Quincy Public Schools, provided CPR (Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation) training to approximately 690 eighth grade students across the city.

Training was provided in each of Quincy's five Middle Schools by licensed Brewster Ambulance Service staff. In preparation of this life-saving initiative, eighth grade students learned about heart health, heart disease, cardiac arrest, etc. in their middle school Health classes.

At the conclusion of the week, all parents and students were invited to participate in a CPR/AED full certification class, free of charge. This event was held at Central Middle School Feb. 3. In total, 118 participants were certified.

Rita Bailey, MEd, BSN, RN, Coordinator of Health Services for Quincy Public Schools worked closely with program staff to make this program a huge success.

'Getting to Know QCS' Concert Sunday

Continuing its 2016-2017 season, Quincy Choral Society performs much loved musical numbers chosen by the chorus.

The program includes "Uma Familia" (We Are One Family), with words and music by Jay Althouse; "How Can I Keep from Singing," arranged by Gwyneth Walker; "This Is My Song" based on "Finlandia" with lyrics by Lloyd Stone; and "Coming Home," with words and music by Jay Althouse.

The concert will be held on Sunday, March 5th, at Quincy Catholic Academy Auditorium. The afternoon includes a silent auction, bake sale, and some surprises to benefit the chorus.

A highlight of the auction is the opportunity to conduct the chorus performing "The Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah. Auction bidding begins at 1:15 p.m. with the concert following at 2 p.m.

Quincy Catholic Academy is located at 370 Hancock St., North Quincy. Tickets are $5 and will be available at the door. This popular event will be sold out, so come early to buy your ticket and bid.

Quincy Choral Society performs locally and has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., in Europe, and, most recently, at Carnegie Hall in 2015 as part of the Masterworks Series. In December 2015, the Quincy City Council recognized Quincy Choral Society for bringing music and joy to the City of Quincy for 35 years.

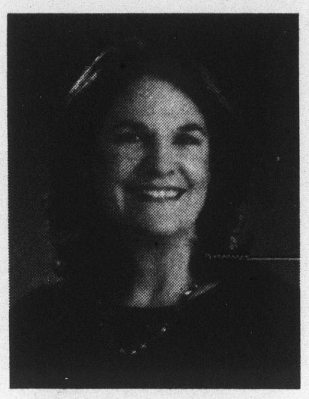
Woodward School To Honor Wendy Simmons, Beth Ann Strollo April 6

The Woodward School will honor Wendy Simmons and Beth Ann Strollo at its 11th annual Woodward Women of Distinction Award Celebration Thursday, April 6 at 6 p.m. at Granite Links Golf Club.

This award was created to celebrate the achievements and contributions of women who are role models for Woodward students. A Woodward Woman of Distinction is authentic, successful in her profession, a model community servant, actively engaged in the community and/or has strong Quincy roots.

Wendy Simmons has been the president and founder of Prism Energy Services since 1998, a state and federally certified Woman-Owned Business. With her spouse, Pat, she is the proud mother of two Woodward graduates, LilliAnn '12 and Abby Rose '16.

WENDY SIMMONS



BETH ANN STROLLO

Simmons recently concluded 12 years on the Board of Directors of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, serving on the executive committee for four. She has been an active member of the Quincy Rotary Club for 10 years, having also served on the Board. Simmons will become Rotary president-elect on July 1. Through Rotary, she supports the work of Salvation Army, Interfaith Social Services, Kennedy Senior Center, Germantown Program of the South Shore YMCA and Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP). She will soon be joining the Board of the South Shore Economic Development Corporation.

Beth Ann Strollo has been working in the anti-poverty field for over 30 years. She has been the CEO of Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) since 1999, previously serving as associate director and fiscal director, spanning 33 years with the organization. She is a member of the Community Economic Development Assistance Corporation (CEDAC) Board of Directors, the state's Department of Early Education & Care Advisory Council and the South Shore Workforce Investment Board.

Strollo is also a current member and past president of the Massachusetts Association for Community Action (MASSCAP), a founding and past Board member of Quincy Asian Resources Inc. and a past member of the Quincy Fair Housing Committee.

For over 120 years, The Woodward School has provided girls with a college preparatory program that fosters a love of learning while providing serious instruction in academic disciplines, the arts, technology and athletics. The Woodward Women of Distinction serve as influential role models to all of the dedicated students at the School.

Cardinal Cushings Center Benefit Dinner March 16

The 2017 St. Patrick's Day Dinner and Auction to benefit students with special needs at Cardinal Cushing Centers in Hanover and Braintree will be held on Thursday, March 16, at the Granite Links Golf Club in Quincy.

Sponsored by South Shore Bank, the event will raise money for the annual "Trip of a Lifetime" to Disney World for the schools' graduating classes, a tradition that began in 1996.

"The annual St. Patrick's Day Dinner and Auction makes it possible to reward the Cardinal Cushing Centers' graduating students for their accomplishments," said James Dunphy, president and CEO of South Shore Bank. "We invite the South Shore community to come enjoy a great evening and help support these wonderful kids."

"We are honored that South Shore Bank has been helping us change the lives of individuals with intellectual disabilities and making dreams come true with this event since 2007," says Peter O'Meara, president and CEO of Cardinal Cushing Centers. "The 'Trip of a Lifetime' provides our graduating students with not only a fun vacation but also the opportunity to practice the skills and experiences that come along with traveling – a first for many of our students. None of this would be possible without the generosity of South Shore Bank, and we are deeply appreciative."

The 2017 St. Patrick's Day Dinner and Auction begins with a reception at 5:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets are $100 each, and sponsorships are available.

For information on tickets and sponsorships, contact Sheila Smolak at Cardinal Cushing Centers at 781-829-1201 or ssmolak@cushingcenters.org; to donate an item for the auction, contact Ricky DeSisto at Cardinal Cushing Centers at 781-829-1289 or rdesisto@cushingcenters.org.

Quick, Easy Macaroon Cookies

By MARIE

How about baking a cookie that has only 3 ingredients? Today's recipe for a chewy coconut macaroon is just that. From start to finish it takes about 15 minutes to bake this delicious treat.

2 8 ounces packages of shredded coconut - unsweetened

1 15 ounce can of sweetened condensed milk

2 teaspoons of vanilla

Mix all ingredients together until well blended. Drop from teaspoons onto a well -greased cookie sheet, bake in moderate 350 degree oven for 8 minutes. Place on wire rack to cool. This recipe makes about 4 and ½ cookies. If you use a tablespoon the yield won't be as many.

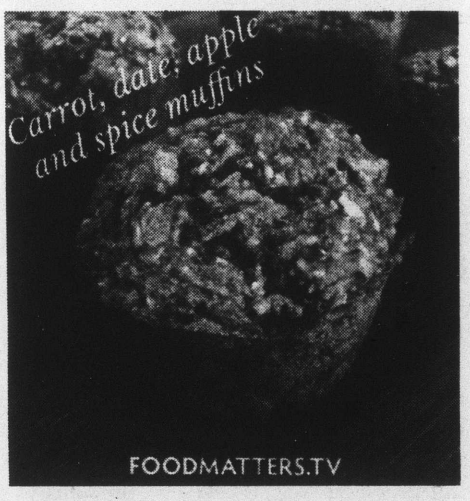
Carrot, Date, Apple Spice Muffins

By SUSIE

This recipe is taken from the "Food Matters" website, which they are always sharing delicious and healthy upgraded recipes.

These carrot, date, apple and spice muffins are incredible. So make them and grab one for an on the go healthy breakfast.

This delicious muffin recipe is free from refined sugar and is a much healthier alternative than standard sweet muffins. The apple and dates offer a hint of sweetness and the almond meal gives texture and nuttiness.



Ingredients (use organic where possible)

- 1/2 cup whole oats
- 1/2 cup almond meal
- 1/4 cup rice flour
- 2 free-range eggs
- 1/4 cup milk (or dairy alternative)
- 1 tsp baking powder
- 1/2 tsp cinnamon
- Pinch of nutmeg
- 1 carrot, grated
- 1 apple, grated
- 1/4 tsp fresh ginger, grated
- 5 medjool dates, chopped

Method:

Makes around 6 muffins. You can double the ingredients for a bigger batch if you like.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Process oats in a food processor until a flour-like consistency is reached. Place the oat flour in a mixing bowl with the almond meal, rice flour, baking powder and spices.

In another bowl, whisk the eggs and milk until fluffy. Stir in the grated carrot, apple, ginger and dates.

Add the wet ingredients to the dry ingredients and mix well.

Spoon into a lined or greased muffin tray and bake for around 25-30 minutes or until golden.

3 Ingredient Butter Muffins

By MARIE

Like the quick and easy macaroon cookies recipe above, this is a recipe for a muffin that has only three ingredients. I am getting so spoiled with these easy recipes – but I am not complaining!

Recipe

Preheat oven to 350 degrees and grease muffin tin

2 cups self-rising flour

1 8 ounce container sour cream

1 cup of butter melted.

Stir all ingredients together until well blended and spoon batter into a lightly greased muffin pan filling each to the top.

Bake at 350 for 25 minutes or until lightly browned.

This recipe makes about 2 dozen muffins.

Quincy Chamber Of Commerce Small Business Launch Program

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce announces a new program called "Small Business Launch."

The four-week program will take place March 8, 15, 22 and 29 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, third floor, 180 Old Colony Ave., Quincy.

Registration to attend is free. To register, visit the Chamber's website: http://thequincychamber.com/

Starting a new business can be an exciting and rewarding venture. To help those considering starting a new business, this program is being offered through the Quincy Chamber of Commerce as a result of a Massachusetts Growth Capital Corporation Grant. The program will be run by Key 360 Advisors.

Key 360 Advisors is a strategic consulting firm with expertise in start up to mid-market companies. Founded by a team of experienced entrepreneurs who have successfully started and built several new businesses as well as managed them through growth. Key 360 Advisors specializes in business planning, sales strategy, marketing, financial planning, funding for small businesses and more.

The Small Business Launch Program will include four sessions over a four week period.

The topics and content for the sessions include:

• Wednesday, March 8th: Business Plan 101 (2 hours). This session will focus on business plan basics.

• Wednesday, March 15: Legal and Insurance (1.5 hours). This will be a panel discussion focusing on important decisions required before starting a new business.

• Wednesday, March 22: Marketing and Sales Strategies (2 hours). Learn important strategies key to growing a business. Discuss best practices from experienced entrepreneurs.

• Wednesday, March 29. Business Financials (2 hours). Learn key financial terms and understand how to create financials and projections that will allow you to better understand and grow your business. Discuss financing/capital raising options.

MGCC works to create and preserve jobs at Massachusetts small businesses, women and minority owned businesses, and promotes economic development in underserved, Gateway Cities and low and moderate income communities. MGCC is a central state resource that offers working capital, loan guarantees, and targeted technical assistance to solve specific financial and operational problems for local businesses.

MGCC works with traditional financial institutions to make challenging loans bankable, working with community development corporations and other non-profits to provide financing for job-producing projects, and assisting a wide range of small businesses find the growth capital they require. MGCC specifically targets manufacturers that are expanding, other growth sectors, and small businesses in our older Gateway Cities. Since inception, MGCC has assisted more than 263 companies with over 9,100 employees with customized working capital financing commitments totaling over $83,800,000. More information available at www.massgcc.com.

MGCC's Small Business Technical Assistance Grant program is a state-funded program designed to complement and enhance the traditional public and private small business assistance network. Small Business Technical Assistance Grant Program builds operational capacity and skills of organizations that are providing technical assistance, education, and access to capital to small businesses with 20 employees or fewer, and businesses owned by women, minorities, and to veterans businesses located in low and moderate income and underserved communities across the state.

The grant recipients, selected in a competitive process, are as diverse as the businesses they serve. They include community development corporations, micro-lenders and chambers of commerce that are committed to helping small business flourish and improving their regional economy with locally driven solutions.

Osteopenia Vs. Osteoporosis

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Osteopenia is a bone condition distinguished by a decreased density of bone, which leads to bone weakening and an increased risk of fractures.

Osteopenia and osteoporosis are interrelated disorders. The distinction between osteopenia and osteoporosis is that in osteopenia the bone loss less severe than in osteoporosis. Consequently, someone with osteopenia is more likely to fracture a bone than someone with a normal bone density but is less likely to fracture a bone than someone with osteoporosis.

Common causes of and risk factors of osteopenia include: genetics, hormonal causes, including decreased estrogen or testosterone; smoking; excess alcohol; thin frame; immobility; particular medications (such as corticosteroids) and anti-seizure medications; malabsorption due to conditions such as celiac sprue; and chronic inflammation due to medical conditions like rheumatoid arthritis.

Osteopenia does not cause pain unless a bone is fractured. Remarkably, fractures in patients with osteopenia do not always result in pain. Many bone fractures such as a hip fracture can cause excruciating pain. However, some fractures, especially vertebral fracture (fracture of a bone in the spine), can be painless and therefore osteopenia or osteoporosis may go undiagnosed for years. Since there are many more people with osteopenia than osteoporosis, patients with osteopenia account for a sizeable number of patients who fracture a bone.

In addition to the pain, hip fractures are a critical problem because they necessitate surgical repair and numerous patients require long-term nursing-home care after the fracture. Fractures, especially in the elderly, are correlated with an increase in overall mortality.

A significant percentage of people die in the year following hip fracture, as the result of complications including blood clots related to inactivity, pneumonia, and many other various causes.

Osteopenia is diagnosed using measures of bone mineral density (BMD). The test recommended by the National Osteoporosis Foundation to measure BMD is the dual energy X-ray absorptiometry scan or DXA scan (formerly known as DEXA scan). A DXA scan measures BMD in the hip, spine, and sometimes the wrist. These locations are selected because these are frequent locations of bone fracture. The DXA is a very precise predictor of impending fracture risk.

The DXA scan gives two results: a "T score" and a "Z score." The Z score compares the patient's BMD to the average of a person of the same age and sex. The T score compares the BMD to a healthy 30-year-old of the same sex. T scores are utilized to diagnose osteopenia and osteoporosis, but it is imperative to recognize that T scores are not the sole indication of osteoporosis; if a person experiences a bone fracture without trauma, then they have osteoporosis by definition, regardless of T score.

Other tests used to measure bone density include the peripheral dual-energy X-ray absorptiometry, quantitative computed tomography, peripheral computed tomography and quantitative ultrasound densitometry. Occasionally, diffuse osteopenia or osteopenia of a particular location, can be revealed by a routine X-ray.

Not everyone needs to be tested for a decreased bone mineral density. Your health care provider can assist you in determining if you should be assessed. The National Osteoporosis Foundation recommends the following groups of people be evaluated for osteopenia or osteoporosis:

- Women 65 years and older and men 70 years and older
- Postmenopausal women and men 50-69 years of age at increased risk for osteoporosis
- Adults who have a bone fracture after age 50
- Adults with a medical condition associated with bone loss (such as rheumatoid arthritis) or who take a medication that can cause bone loss (such as prednisone or other steroids)
- Anyone being considered for prescription treatment for osteopenia or osteoporosis
- Anyone being treated for osteoporosis to monitor treatment

People with osteopenia should consider making certain important lifestyle modifications and ensuring that their dietary intake of calcium and vitamin D (vitamin D2, vitamin D3, and cholecalciferol) are adequate. Management of any underlying condition causing malabsorption, such as celiac sprue, can also improve bone density. If you have osteopenia, your doctor can determine if you need treatment with prescription medication. Keep in mind that not everyone with osteopenia requires treatment with prescription bone-building medication. This is because while 34 million people are affected by osteopenia, and the condition accounts for a large number of bone fractures, the absolute risk for fracture in any individual is extremely low. So, bone-building medications are prescribed to those with the greatest risk factors in order to avoid exposing those with low fracture risk to unnecessary expense and potential side effects.

Factors other than bone mineral density can escalate the risk of fracture, and these risk factors can be used to determine if a certain individual requires treatment for osteopenia. These include a parent who fractured their hip, previous or current treatment with corticosteroids (such as prednisone), thin and small-framed individuals, rheumatoid arthritis, smoking, and drinking more than two alcoholic beverages daily.

Your health care provider may use this data to calculate your risk of a bone fracture in the next 10 years. This risk can then be used to determine what course of management is necessary.

Lifestyle modifications are an imperative part of the prevention and treatment of osteopenia and osteoporosis. These lifestyle changes include weight-bearing exercise, smoking cessation, not drinking excessively, and ensuring an adequate daily intake of calcium and vitamin D. If dietary intake is not adequate, then supplements may be prescribed.

For most people, prescription medications are not necessary to prevent osteopenia. However, some people taking certain medications (such as prednisone or other steroids) for more than a few months may need to take prescription medication to prevent bone loss.

Frequently, bone loss can be slowed or stabilized with lifestyle changes or medication if necessary. In some situations, bone loss may continue due to hormonal factors, medical conditions, or medications.

Houghs Neck Garden Club Student Award Guidelines

The Houghs Neck Garden Club (HNGC) is granting awards to graduating high school seniors who have been residents of Quincy for the last two years and who have been accepted to a school of higher learning. Additionally, applicants must plan to concentrate in one of the following the fields: conservation, horticulture, botany, oceanography, forestry, city planning, landscape design, land management, environmental studies, or an allied field.

Applications are available from local high school counselors or by contacting a member of the HNGC. Completed, signed applications must be delivered to Carol Johnston, 46 Bay View Ave., Quincy, MA, 02169. The deadline for submitting applications is May 1, 2017.

Upon timely receipt of completed applications, accompanied by a written statement of each student's educational goals (students should not write their names on the essay page), the HNGC Student Awards Committee will review and consider materials. Student(s) granted an award will be notified by phone or mail by May 15, 2017.

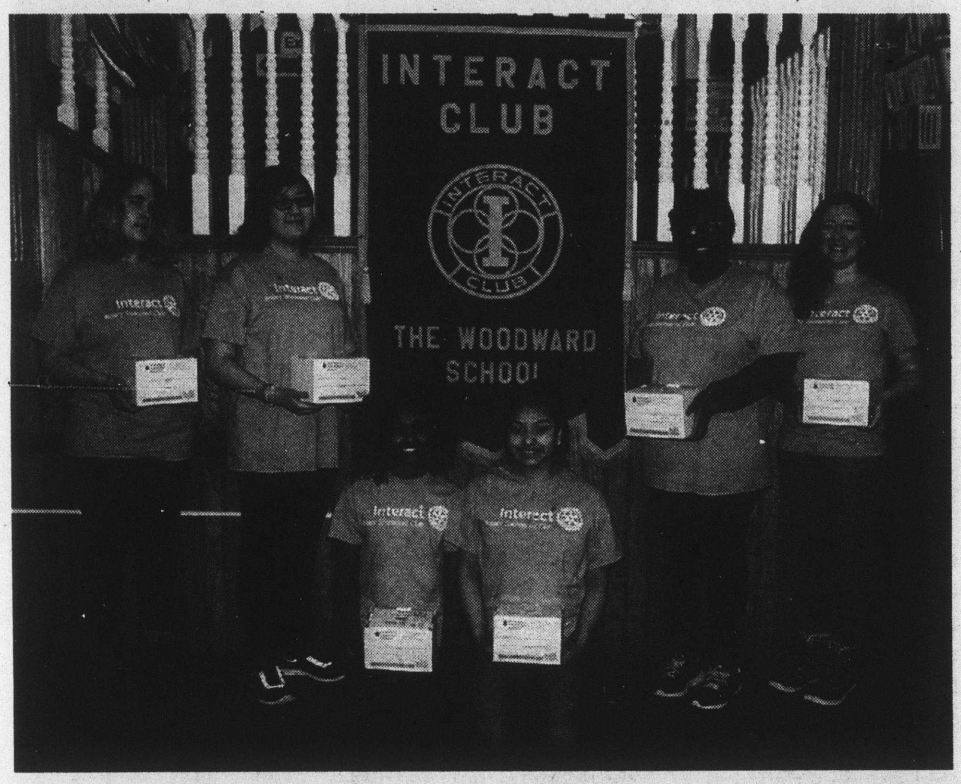
Woodward Students Raise Funds For Leukemia, Lymphoma Society



THE WOODWARD SCHOOL'S Interact Club, which is in its first year and is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Quincy, hosted Pennies for Patients, a fundraiser for the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society in January and February. The Society supports research for the treatment and cure of blood cancers. Family and friends of the Woodward community have been affected by blood cancers, so it a cause dear to many. Collecting loose change and bills over a four-week period, students and staff raised $415.65, with the 8th grade topping the other classes with a total of $204.36. One middle school student was so moved by last year's fundraiser that she started collecting change for this year's drive at the conclusion of Pennies for Patients 2016. The Woodward School and the Rotary Club of Quincy are proud of Woodward's Interact Club and its students, who are generous and service-minded in their dedication to a worthy cause. 'Mutiny On The Bounty Revisited' Topic March 9 At Historical Society

The Quincy Historical Society will offer a new look at the most famous case of mutiny at sea in history at a program entitled "The Mutiny on the Bounty Revisted" Thursday, March 9 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

Guest speaker will be Robert Begin.

By the late 1700's Great Britain had emerged as the world's great power. The Royal Navy was instrumental in her goal of expansion. Its fleets roamed the world in search of territory, knowledge and commerce. No other navy would claim to have the recognition and supremacy that the Royal Navy possessed.

In 1787, William Bligh, a dedicated but nondescript officer, was charged with bringing a ship to Tahiti to gather and bring back to England, samples of the breadfruit plant. His ship, HMS Bounty was not exceptional: actually it was insignificant in stature. The Bounty's voyage to Tahiti went smoothly. The return was another story. On April 28, 1789, mutineers took the ship, and after placing Bligh and 18 of his men in a 23' open boat, the Bounty sailed off seeking a safe haven.

Ever since, the actions, motivations, and justifications and ultimate fates of both the mutineers and Bligh and his loyalists and the response by the Royal Navy have been the subject of discussion and debate and speculation. They have also been represented and misrepresented in several movie versions. Speaker Robert Begin will present the facts and explain what actually happened and why.

Mr. Begin has previously presented several programs at the Historical Society on the USS Quincy, John Paul Jones, and the Barbary Pirates.

Everyone is welcome. There is no charge for admission.

To: Quincy City Council
Date: February 21, 2017
RE: Sanctuary Cities Are For Citizens!

To The Quincy City Council,

I read about the motion calling for a vote in the Quincy City Council to make Quincy a Sanctuary City; but, what is the proper definition (and I'm not just going to spew opinion)? First, you have to understand The 10th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. It basically says that states are sovereign entities under a loose federal confederation; because, if a law is not in The Constitution, the ultimate authority is up to the "states or the people". Based on this then, what is the true definition of a Sanctuary City? It is a city of refuge where citizens can go to escape an oppressive federal law that the states or the people do not agree upon. Under this definition, for Quincy to vote to become a Sanctuary City, is perfectly within their rights.

But hold on a huge second, the definition says "citizens", because when The Constitution says that it is up to the "states or the people", the "people" it is referring to are "citizens", not foreigners. In other words, The 10th Amendment was written to give citizens a refuge from an oppressive federal government, not to give non-citizens a refuge from the rest of the world. If the Quincy City Council were therefore to vote to make Quincy a Sanctuary City for people other than citizens, it will then be voting in violation of The United States Constitution; and, any city in America that has voted this way is also in violation of The Constitution (whether they misquoted The 10th Amendment to do so or not). Not only this, but when The 10th Amendment says, "the states or the people", the "states" must agree, or the "people" must agree, which means to make a law in Quincy contrary to the federal government requires a ballot referendum for it to be a valid decision by "the people", not by a vote of the Quincy City Council.

What would be an example of a proper application of the 10th Amendment, you ask? One day soon, the federal government may convert our right to buy and sell into a privilege by requiring a license (a biometric "Mark"), doing away with cash completely. There will be such an uproar to this un-Constitutional Anti-American globalist action, whether for religious reasons or not, that the people will vote by referendum to create Sanctuary Cities, in order to make it known that they will not obey this tyrannical federal government mandate. There may even be states that will also hopefully vote via their state legislatures to become Sanctuary States.

John Adams, a native of Quincy, said that, "Facts are stubborn things", just as The Constitution is; and, I would have it no other way, because it was our freedom and liberty that the framers had in mind when they wrote it. I urge the Quincy City Council not to vote for Quincy to become a Sanctuary City for non-citizens.

Harris, DiBona Come Out Against Sanctuary City

Quincy a sanctuary city, but instead filed the resolution to start a proper dialogue.

"My resolution was to call for a fact-finding conversation," Liang said after the meeting. "As we could see from the turnout tonight, there are residents in the city concerned about the issue on both ends of it. It's an issue they're sensitive about and they're passionate about."

"I don't think we should say one way or another before we have that conversation," she added.

Liang said she was disappointed by Harris' objection, but the respected his right to do so under the council's rules.

Chris Walker, a spokesman for Koch, said the mayor would not support any change to the Quincy Police Department's current policy but would make city officials available for any council hearing on the matter.

"The mayor doesn't support any change to current policy," Walker said. "That being said, he is certainly open to providing any assistance that the council asks regarding the participation of department heads and anyone the council feels necessary should be part of a discussion."

Quincy police, Walker added, only deal with immigration status once someone has been arrested and charged with a crime.

"The current policy is that the Quincy Police Department is not a de facto immigration force. It's been the Quincy Police Department policy for a long time and it's going to remain that way," he said. "The Quincy Police Department does not pull someone over and check their immigration status. The Quincy Police Department does not seek out people for their immigration status.

"When someone is arrested and booked and entered into the system…if there is an issue with the federal government that issue will ping back to the department and the department will ask if they want them to be held. Again, these are people that are charged with a crime.

"That's been the way the city has operated for quite some time and both the police chief and the mayor are in agreement that they would not support any change to it."

Harris, in a statement issued the day after the Feb. 21 meeting, said he would oppose designating Quincy as a sanctuary city. In the statement, the councillor echoed comments made by Koch's administration about the role the Quincy Police Department currently plays in immigration enforcement.

"I objected to the discussion on becoming a so-called sanctuary city because the atmosphere in which the proposed discussion was not one based on fact. I would oppose any legislation that changes the city's current policies to include a formal designation as a sanctuary city, but a discussion tainted with so much rumor, rhetoric, and confusion doesn't make sense," he said.

"The city of Quincy's wonderful police department has not and does not enforce federal immigration law – and it never has. It does not run immigration status at traffic stops. It does not track immigrants. It does not ask witnesses about their status. However, if someone is arrested for a crime and are booked and fingerprinted, that information is relayed to the federal government, which will report back any outstanding warrants or in some cases a deportation order from Immigration and Customs Enforcement. At that point, police will ask ICE if they would like the criminal suspect held.

"This has been the policy for many years, and the police chief has said it is a rare occurrence in any event. Slapping a label on our city just seems to be a solution in search of a problem, and one that seems based on people's prejudged positions and not the facts on the ground."

Councillor at-Large Noel DiBona told The Sun Monday he too is against Quincy becoming a sanctuary city.

In a statement, DiBona wrote:

"I 'Noel DiBona' took an oath last January to obey the Constitution and laws of the land. As a councillor at-large my concerns are for the taxpayers and citizens of Quincy.

"The Quincy Public Schools would lose $7.8 million of federal funding. The City of Quincy over the last 8 years has received $20 million in federal transportation funding for Adams Hancock Green, Hannon Parkway and MBTA station improvements. Quincy needs federal funding or the taxpayers will have to foot the bill.

"I am against Quincy as a Sanctuary City," DiBona added.

City Seeks New Public Buildings HQ

the department's offices.

"Those buildings are not sufficient. They don't have space for record or the staff between both buildings," he said.

The current owner of 74 Greenleaf St. – Work Inc., a non-profit agency – plans to put the property on the market and has given the city the first chance to purchase it, Walker said. If the city did purchase the property, it would be used as the new offices for the Public Buildings Department.

The house at 74 Greenleaf St. was built in 1880, according to the city assessor's records, and sits on a 16,335 square foot parcel of land. The two-and-half-story home has more than 3,900 square feet of living space inside. Walker said the home is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The house is in a Residential B zoning district.

"If it does hit the open market, there is a very good chance there will be a pretty substantial housing development on that site," Walker said.

To acquire the property, the city would utilize a capital asset account funded by the proceeds of the sale of municipal property. Walker said the account currently has $800,000 in it from the sale of properties on Chapman Street and Quincy Shore Drive; that money must be used for the purchase of land and cannot be transferred to the city's general fund.

"Essentially what the mayor is proposing to do is replace two properties which the city sold that weren't utilized by the city and weren't useful to the city with property we think has both a useful purpose and one that serves a preservation purpose as well," Walker said.

upgrades or improvements to the infrastructure or to the interior, exterior structures," the statement read. "Although the custodial and maintenance staffs are attentive to this building's operational needs, a large portion of Squantum's mechanical, electrical and plumbing systems were installed during the original construction of the facility."

Calling the existing school "obsolete," the statement explained that it cannot provide the basis for today's educational requirements and that a new school would provide the academic needs for a new generation of learners.

"Aside from the improvements needed to the physical plant, educational components crucial for 21st century elementary schools are lacking, specifically classrooms equipped for the integration of educational technology and STEM (Science Technology Engineering Math) concepts integral for standards-based instruction for regular education, special education and English Language Learners," read the statement. "Squantum's nurse's office, student support staff offices, cafeteria/gymnasium and media center are all undersized and under-equipped by modern educational standards."

The submission of the Statement of Interest does not guarantee the state authority will back the plan for a new school. The MSBA receives about 100 to 125 new school building requests each year and not all are approved.

The Statement of Interest submission starts the process where the MSBA will review the data and determine the need and urgency of a new school. The process involves a study of projected enrollment, the existing building's condition and program deficiencies.

Should the MSBA determine there is a need for a new school, the proposal would then go into the Eligibility Period where a further review would be conducted during a 270-day period. During this process, the state will determine if the district can fund its district its share of the cost.

If approved for this phase, the proposal then goes into a feasibility study where a project team is formed by the district to work with the MSBA to set the scope and budget for the project. After this, a design plan is drawn up and submitted for review and approval. Finally, a funding agreement is then inked between the state and the city that clears the way for construction to begin.

The MSBA has approved three school building projects for the city over the past several years. The new Quincy High School was built in 2010 and three years later, the new central Middle School opened.

Last summer, the state approved a new Sterling Middle School. Construction is scheduled to begin later this spring. The new school is expected to be ready for students in the fall of 2019.

The MSBA has also approved several upgrade projects for the district's schools this summer. These include the installation of new boilers and roofs.

• Tuesday, May 2 at 2 p.m. - "Disability Plates and Placards" will focus on how to optain them and laws governing them.

The talks will be given by Michele Ellicks, the RMV Community Outreach Coordinator.

McCarthy Seeks Ward 1 Council Seat

Dave McCarthy, a past three-term member of the Quincy School Committee, announces he is running for the Ward 1 city council seat this fall.

The seat is presently occupied by Margaret Laforest who will be a candidate for re-election this fall.

McCarthy was elected three times to serve on the Quincy School Committee, totaling over 12 years of service to the education of the children of Quincy. He said he feels it is a critical time in the future of Ward 1 and it is time to make a change in the Ward to provide representation for all the residents of Ward 1 and that he can be the steady hand required to insure that the families of Ward 1 have a voice in shaping the homes and neighborhoods they love.

"Ward 1 is where I grew up, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore and Germantown have always been my backyard," McCarthy said. "I currently live in Merrymount /Quincy Center and feel that my diverse community involvement will help all the sections of Ward 1.

"I'm excited about getting going and looking forward to a busy summer. The 12 years I spent on the school committee were very busy and very productive. I've enjoyed helping the Quincy Public Schools immensely. We have accomplished a tremendous amount of educational progress, making our Quincy school system one of the best overall systems in the Commonwealth," he said.

McCarthy was elected in 2004 and re-elected in 2008 and 2012. He served as vice chairman from 2008-2010. He also is a past member of the Quincy Park/ Recreation Board during his tenure on the committee.

Upon being elected in 2004 Mr. McCarthy was appointed as the chairman of the Health, Safety, and Security subcommittee. He helped institute citywide security policies and procedures, lobbied for additional security personnel to be added to the system, and implemented the popular "School Messenger" system now Honeywell Instant Alert, which broadens communication announcements with high school, middle school and elementary parents.

"We are a leading city and school system in regards to safety and security," McCarthy said.

He championed the creation of the High School level Health/Life Intervention program that works closely with the Mayor's Drug Task force and has led the push through outside assistance for Alcohol/Drug addiction awareness in the system.

"The drug problem is here and we can't just hope it goes away," McCarthy said.

"It's a horrific problem that is evident throughout the commonwealth and the nation. It will require immediate attention all the time. We must continue to try to find ways to assist those that need help and guidance.

"I have been to too many wakes/situations where someone who is 25 years old or younger is gone or on a collision course to that ending. That should never happen. If elected to serve as the Ward 1 councillor, this issue will be given priority. I will marshall all city and state resources to help the individual and their families, do battle with this disease-a disease that is killing our children."

McCarthy said the main reason he is running for Ward 1 councillor is "getting involved, deliberating the issues in Ward 1, making folks feel they are a piece of the decision and getting them the information they need to understand the issues.

"The issues facing most municipalities of our size are similar. I think the current and past administrations during my years in public service have moved the ball well, but numerous current issues need attention and closure and we have our fair share. It's no secret that the downtown which borders and contains part of Ward 1 needs attention. If elected it no doubt will be the biggest issue to solve both financially and the execution must be accomplished correctly to protect the taxpayer."

McCarthy said another issue of importance is communicating with the administration.

"Making sure Ward 1 matters get significant review time on large and small projects, addressing the issues in a timely fashion and making sure the correct approach is met." he said. "Ward 1 has its share of confusing issues, the maritime center/Louis parking lot, the traffic issues/layout of an updated Sea Street, the flood maps that most folks are still struggling with, streets and sidewalk repairs throughout the ward, over aggressive building plans and ongoing drug issues.

"There are many other day-to-day issues that can't be ignored as we usually focus on big issues in the ward. All issues and all concerns need to be heard and addressed - ward wide, not just one section.

"The next few years are critical to the City of Quincy. I promise to work very hard on all matters within the Ward and capitalize on every opportunity available.

"I ask for your support this summer and at the polls this fall as I work to represent you in a run for Ward 1 Quincy City Council. There is a need for change in the ward. This change will bring a new set of eyes to Ward 1 issues. These eyes that were born and raised here and understand what the residents of each unique Ward 1 neighborhood needs, wants and hopes for, as we go forward together as a city with a very bright future."

McCarthy currently sits on the Board of Directors for South Shore Mental Health, the Board of Trustees for the Carroll School for the Blind as well as The Board of Governors for Quincy College.

He is the Director of Industrial Security at General Dynamics in Westwood, MA, where he has been for 34 years.

Dave is married to Rosanne (Johnson) McCarthy for 32 years. They have 8 children, ages ranging from 25 to 11 and are proud to call Quincy their home.

"I am honored to represent Quincy and look forward to speaking with many constituents over the summer as I work towards election to the Quincy City Council. Thank you," McCarthy said.

McCarthy will kick off his campaign for Ward 1 councillor Thursday, March 9 at 6 p.m. at Alba's Restaurant in Quincy Center.

School committee member Anne Mahoney said that, in addition to square footage requirements, the state also has requirements for a certain amount of green space for schools.

"I believe at St. Mary's, there is not a lot of green space," she said, questioning if there has been an assessment about the size of the land.

Koch said once the property lines are determined, the city can then crunch the square footage numbers.

"Once we understand where the boundaries are and the square footage, we will do calculations in-house before a final decision is made," he said.

Koch went on to say if the property is found to be suitable for a new school, the proposal would go before the city council for funding to buy the property. The proposed new school project would then go through the required local and state process.

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said that West Quincy would benefit "considerably" from a new elementary school.

"That whole area of the city would benefit from a new school there," he said.

The superintendent noted the Willard and Gridley Bryant elementary schools, closed decades ago, once served the West Quincy area.

He explained the new school would siphon off some students from the Lincoln-Hancock, Bernazzani, and Montclair elementary schools, reducing overcrowding in those neighborhood schools. He also said that, with the new school in place, Lincoln-Hancock could take some of Marshall Elementary School's students and free up some space there.

"Those are the neighborhoods that would be helped," he said.

Koch said West Quincy has limited space for a new school.

"One challenge we have is there is not a lot of opportunity in that part of the city for such a potential school site," he said.

Koch noted that should a new school be built on the St. Mary's site, district lines would have to be redrawn.

READERS FORUM

Be Part Of The Solution, Not The Problem

Browse through Facebook...tune in to any news program...even try skimming through the Readers Forum section of The Quincy Sun, and you're constantly bombarded by an avalanche of political posts, political rants, political posturing, lies, attacks, finger-pointing, insults, misleading statistics, shouting, arguing, complaining, and so on, and so on, and so on.

Could we all pause for a breather?

How is this an effective use of time?

Try to name one thing that has been accomplished from any of the above.

If everyone were to just put partisanship aside, and focus on finding solutions, then our city, our state, and our nation, could be a better place. It can be easy to argue; it can be easy to complain; it's not so easy to solve one of the challenges facing our society today. If everyone were to take the easy way out, where would we be?

Be part of the solution, not the problem.

No Charges Filed In Fatal Accident

By SCOTT JACKSON

A 78-year-old man was struck and killed on Friday night in Quincy Center as he attempted to cross the street.

Quincy Police Capt. John Dougan on Tuesday said the driver of the vehicle, a 30-year-old Weymouth woman, would not be charged or cited for the accident following an investigation by the department's accident reconstruction unit.

The Quincy Police Department said the pedestrian was struck shortly after 9 p.m. on Feb. 24 at the intersection of Burgin Parkway and Granite Street. The man, identified as 78-year-old Rungen Chen of Quincy, was rushed to Quincy Medical Center where he succumbed to his injuries, police said.

The driver of the vehicle involved in the accident remained on scene and spoke to officers, as did several witnesses. The witnesses told police the driver was traveling northbound on Burgin Parkway and had a green light. The driver was approaching the intersection when Chen darted into the street and the vehicle struck him, according to witnesses.

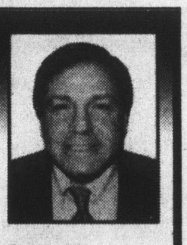
DENTISTRY for the 21st Century



by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

BRIDGING THE GAP

When one or more missing teeth must be replaced, the dentist will likely recommend a "bridge." This prosthetic device is made of artificial teeth that are fused to a metal frame. This is held in place on either side by virtue of attachment to implants or healthy teeth that are outfitted with crowns. The anchoring teeth are called "abutments," while the replacement crowns between them are known as "pontics," which can be made of gold, alloys, porcelain, or a combination of materials. In some cases, a "Maryland bridge" may be used to replace a single tooth. This type of bridge attaches to teeth on either side with metal strips that are bonded to the back of adjacent teeth.

Dental bridges restore your smile and your ability to properly chew and speak. They also maintain the shape of your face. To schedule an appointment, please call 617-479-6220. If you are looking for a cosmetic dentist, we would love to welcome you to our office as a new patient. Should you need a bridge or a filling, your concerns are important to us! We can provide comprehensive and preventative dental care designed to fit your individual requirements. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf St. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained staff and a qualified anesthesiologist.

P.S. An alternative to the Maryland bridge is an Encore bridge, which is made entirely of tooth-colored materials.

partment is very much like a family. I think it is probably more than any other I see in other areas of service," Koch said. "The fire service truly is a camaraderie and a family if you will – a family of firefighters."

Koch continued, saying the service delivered by Quincy's firefighters is second to none.

"As mayor of the city I am so proud of our fire service. The service delivered by our professionals is second to none," he said. "No matter what the call is – it's not just house fires, it is medicals, it is car accidents, chemical spills, hazmat and I could go on and on – it is the fire service on the front line all the time serving residents of the city. You are joining a very good fire department and a very professional department."

Fire Chief Joseph Barron thanked Koch and the City Council for their efforts funding the department, and drew applause from the audience when he said the rescue truck is now able to remain in service around the clock.

"I think this group of men here are going to ensure – with the council's support and the mayor's support – that that truck stays in service every day and every evening and it's there for our citizens, and I think that's what our citizens would expect," he said.

The department began looking to hire new firefighters in May 2016, Barron said, and the 26 going through training should be assigned to fire stations in June.

"Be prepared to work Monday morning – you have an awful lot to learn," the chief said of the training the new firefighters will undergo.

"We have a great group of instructors that are going to be there for you and coach you along the way, and I expect that every one of you will be in full uniform when we have our graduation."

Barron, a 39-year veteran of the department, said he could not describe how rewarding it is to serve as a firefighter.

"We see people in the most difficult hours of their lives. People that are doing all the right things and they are faced with some tragedy. From the moment we get on scene, we do everything that we can to lessen their burden. I will tell you it is an honor to do that," the chief said.

"This is the best department in the country and you guys are going to be an integral part of it. Congratulations and welcome on board."

13 NQHS Students To Compete In Regional Science Fair

By TOM GORMAN

Nearly 80 North Quincy High School students presented the findings of their experiments and studies during the 59th annual science fair on Feb. 4.

Thirteen students will be going to the regional competition at Bridgewater State University Saturday, March 11. Two projects will be selected from the regional fair to go on to the state competition at MIT in May.

"We have 78 good projects and the students are gung-ho about them," said Kenneth Panaro, North Quincy High School science department chairman, as he looked at the cafeteria full of students with their projects.

Panaro explained that the students began their projects in September.

"They are given a manual about the science fair protocol," he said. "They do a research project, a research paper and keep a daily log, tracking their experimental data after it's approved by the Regional 5 science fair coordinators."

Panaro said the students then present the projects to their classes. At the science fair, the projects are judged by professors, PHDs and North Quincy High alumni.

In past years, Panaro said there were typically about 150 students participating in the science fair. This year, he explained, the numbers are down because a new Advanced Placement (AP) physics class was implemented with 40 students enrolled.

"AP kids don't do science fairs as a rule," he said.

That, combined with the loss of a chemistry class due to low enrollment, is why the science fair has about 70 less students this year.

Tamara Liang won first place in the science fair for her project on the "Effects of Wi-Fi Radiation on Drosophila Melanogaster." Finishing second was Grace Kelliher and her project about "Do Different Amounts of Trypan Blue in Pond Water Cause a Detectable Shift in Fluorescence of an Instrument?" and third place was awarded to Luke Molloy's project, "Sound-Be-Gene: Determining the Best Material for Sound Absorption."

Joining Liang at the March 11 regional competition at Bridgewater State University are: Grace Kelliher and her project about "Do Different Amounts of Trypan Blue in Pond Water Cause a Detectable Shift in Fluorescence of an Instrument?" Ilan Valencius' study on the "Floating Water: The Leidenfrost Effect;" and Zhou Lun Guan's experiment on the "Effects of Different Demulsifers on Crude Oil Emulsions."

Cora Cluett's, "It's Crowded in Here!" and Veronica Byrne's project on "Salt Water Germination: Does it Work?"

Rounding out the regional competitors are: Sarah Glozheni's study about "Mass Percent of Acetic Acid in Five Different Vinegars;" Elisa Dylja's "Can Juicy What I C?;" Ina Hoti's project on "Cricket! Cricket!: The Effects of Isolation on Gryllide (crickets);" and Samuel Brenner's experiment on the "Effects of Acoustic Design and Distance Intervals on Frequencies from an Acoustic Guitar."

Retired North Quincy High science department head Mary Young, who served as one of the judges, said that high school science fairs have sparked many a career in the science field.

"There are about 3,000 students who got into a science career through science fairs," she said. "I was talking to one MIT student who told me he decided to go into the science field after he competed in a (high school) science fair."

Valencius, Hunter, Wong, Qi Chen, Guan, Cluett, Dylja, Byrne and Hoti, received honorable mention along with Kevin Chen for his project, "The Effects of Phosphorus on Yeast Growth;" Ashley Jee's study on "The Effect of pH on Carnation Pigmentation;" and Sarah Glozhen's "Mass Percent of Acetic Acid in Five Different Vinegars."

FOR HER SCIENCE fair project, North Quincy High student Isabel Altaf tried using foil and various wraps as a way to prevent Ostwald ripening, or ice crystals, from forming in ice cream over time.

NQHS Hockey Hall Of Fame Welcomes Fifth Class

By KEVIN JAGO

On Friday night, Feb. 17th, the North Quincy High School Hockey Hall of Fame inducted its fifth class at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. Twelve former stars and two friends of the program were placed in the HOF.

Jim Fatseas, as so eloquently done in the past, outlined the process of how these candidates were finalized. He followed with a brief history of the program, from outdoor practices at Sailors Home pond to the building of the Quincy Youth Arena.

The first inductee was Jim McNiece, posthumously from the class of 1948. His son Mike, a former player at NQHS, and presently coaching at rival Quincy High School, accepted his award on behalf of the family.

Hall of Famer Fred Cobban welcomed John Stimberis "62", into the HOF. Stimberis was the hit of the evening with tales of the old days. In those days eight and ninth graders were not eligible to play varsity hockey. Stimberis and five of his underclassmen teammates played under assumed names for a couple of years until they were sophomores. Imagine trying to get away with that today. The story drew quite a response from the large crowd in attendance. Stimberis also lauded Coach Lainge for keeping him focused on his academics to stay eligible.

Next up was Ron Erikson, Class of 1962, inducted by Fatseas, his former coach. Erikson gave an emotional speech thanking his hero, his 94 year-old-dad, Russ, who was in attendance.

Bob Frizzell "71", introduced by former teammate Vinnie Cameron, Brian MacIsaac "74", introduced by Fatseas and defenseman Paul O'Donnell "75" introduced by friend and high school teammate Kevin Jago, were next in.

Two of Jago's players from the 1980s went up to accept their plaques. David DiCarlo "83" was Coach Jago's first co-captain and complimented for his toughness and leadership. David Fasano "86" was a productive three-year starter and a member of the first NQ team to break a 30 plus year Tournament absence.

Bailee Carey

Swimming and Diving - Quincy H.S.

"Bailee is the type of athlete every teammate and coach wants to be around. She leads by example in all she does. Her tremendous work ethic will lead her to accomplish greatness."

- Marisa Forrester & Theresa Kerrigan

Bailee is a 4-year Varsity Swimmer and Diver for Quincy High School and a 2-year team captain. She is a 4-time Patriot League All-Star in Diving. She placed 3rd at both the MIAA Girls' Central/ South Diving Sectionals and at MIAA Girls' Division I State Diving Championships. She ranks 15th in her class with a G.P.A. of 4.45. In the fall, Bailee will be diving at either Springfield College or Nazareth College (NY), majoring in Physical Therapy.

Daniel Wong

Swimming - North Quincy H.S.

"Daniel is instrumental to the success of our team. He is always quick to assist coaches and fellow teammates and is an impressive role model to younger swimmer."

- Julia Kusiak-Carey

Daniel volunteers with the Central Middle School swim program, and serves as captain of the Quincy/North Quincy combined swim team since his sophomore year. He often steps up to swim the longer distance races and is a great presence for the team. This past season, the team had to deal with the passing of long-time swim coach Bob McGillicuddy, Daniel stepped up as a true leader to comfort and support his teammates. He holds a 3.56 G.P.A. and plans to attend a 4-year college.

Another former Raider Coach Tom Benson brought in his star goalie Mike Manganaro "95" joining his brother, Sal. Benson and his assistant Paul Noonan took in the next two members, twins Eric and Timmy Wood equating them to a high school version of the Hanson Brothers, obviously tongue in cheek. Both coaches had amusing stories of the twin's physical style of play and their leadership by example.

Coach Bob Doyle had many kind words to say about one of his former kids, Charlie Sorrento "2002."

Hall of fame Committee member Al Grazioso had the honor of bringing in the two Friends of NQHS hockey, Michelle Stenberg, QYHA rink manger, and Bruce Wood (posthumously). Stenberg has been and continues to be the "mother" of both North and Quincy hockey. Her speech was riveting, outlining her many years working the boys and girls of both programs, watching them grow up to become successful, fathers, mothers and parents in their own right. Stenberg is a special person and as deserving an inductee as we have had.

The same holds true for Bruce Wood who passed away last year way before his time. Timmy and Eric, inductees earlier in the evening, accepted his plaque. Bruce did so many things behind the scenes to help teams and individual players, never seeking recognition, to help. Bruce was truly, "one of the good guys."

This brought an end to a great, emotional at times evening.

Q/NQ Boys Swim Team Competes At States

The Quincy/North Quincy boys swim team competed at the Division I State Championships, Sunday, February 19, 2017 at Boston University.

The dynamic duo of senior captains Jiankun Zhang (North Quincy) and Thomas Tran (Quincy) who each earned Patriot League All-Star accolades all four years of their high school career competed in their last States Championship. They joined freshman Stanley Chen (North Quincy) and sophomore Kenny Ng (NQ) for 38th in the 200-yard medley relay with a season-low time of 1:52.06.

Zhang placed 24th in the 100 butterfly (56.42) after earning 28th a season ago at the same meet. He swam 1:04.11 for 19th in the 100 breaststroke improving upon his 22nd finish last year. Zhang is the North Quincy record holder for both the 100 butterfly (55.55) and 100 breaststroke (1:03.24). Zhang's record of 1:03.24 is nine seconds better than his best time performed as a freshman.

Thomas Tran was 24th in the 100 breaststroke swimming 1:04.69. Tran previously finished 25th and 18th in the same race at the State Championships in 2016 and 2015, respectively. He is the Quincy 100 breaststroke record holder (1:03.60); and over the course of his career, he dropped close to nine seconds in the 100-yard race.

NUMBNESS IN THE OUTER THIGH

When individuals experience numbness or a burning sensation in the mid to upper and outer thigh, it may be due to a relatively common nerve-related problem called "meralgia paresthetica." These feelings result from compression of the main sensory nerve serving the outer thigh (the lateral femoral cutaneous nerve). Pregnant women, as well as overweight individuals with excess weight in their abdominal areas, often experience this condition. Left untreated, meralgia paresthetica can persist intermittently for weeks. Treatment involves the elimination of whatever is pressing on the nerve. This can be determined with a thorough examination. Meralgia paresthetica is often confused with other, more serious issues, including nerve-related conditions that can cause intermittent pain (peripheral neuropathies).

Chiropractic treatment for patients with meralgia paresthetica is vital to speed up the healing process, ensure an optimal outcome and decrease the likelihood of injury recurrence.

To schedule an appointment with FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC please call 617-472-4220. We accept most major insurance plans. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Symptoms of meralgia paresthetica are often confused with pain related to poor blood circulation (claudication) as well as spine problems.

Q/NQ Girls Bow To Masconomet

Team Earned Tournament Berth For Second Straight Year

By JOE REARDON

The old adage that records go right out the window come tournament time rang true when Quincy/North Quincy took on Masconomet in the preliminary round of the Div. 1 tournament Monday night at Quincy.

Jeff Craig's squad held the No. 15 seed at 10-7-3 while the Chieftains were a couple of rungs lower at No. 18 with a 9-8-3 record. The seeds wound up not mattering one iota as Masconomet rolled to a 6-1 victory.

Q/NQ headed into the tourney battle tested and having garnered a game on home ice, but skating just nine kids on a depleted squad. "We basically skated nine kids," said Q/NQ head coach Jeff Craig. "We lost our two best defensemen and had two of our forwards playing back. We don't have a lot of depth. We were where we wanted to be. It was 3-1 with a minute and a half left. We needed two (goals). We were waiting to get our right unit out there to pull the goalie."

Q/NQ had two great bids to open the game with Kay O'Connor blasting a wrist shot and Julie Whalen putting a wrist shot on Chieftain goaltender Molly Elmore on the short side. Whalen was around the net all evening and finished with eight shots on net.

Q/NQ goaltender Karissa Beal (24 saves) came up big in the opening 15 minutes. The plucky senior made a blocker save on Chieftain scoring machine Isabelle Sarra when she broke across the goal mouth and rifled a shot on Beal.

Masconomet got on the board with 3:01 left then Sarra made it 2-0 less than a minute later when she rushed the length of the ice and whistled a wrist shot past Beal.

Craig commented to an assistant coach prior to the game how big the Masconomet team looked and the squad wound up playing a physical game at both ends of the ice against Q/NQ.

"We basically just do our thing," said Craig. "We have two lines. One line plays differently defensively in our end, because they're not as strong offensively as the other line. We skate nine kids and it's tough to game plan. I knew they didn't have any kids with huge numbers you had to keep an eye on. They were all good. It was close in the end."

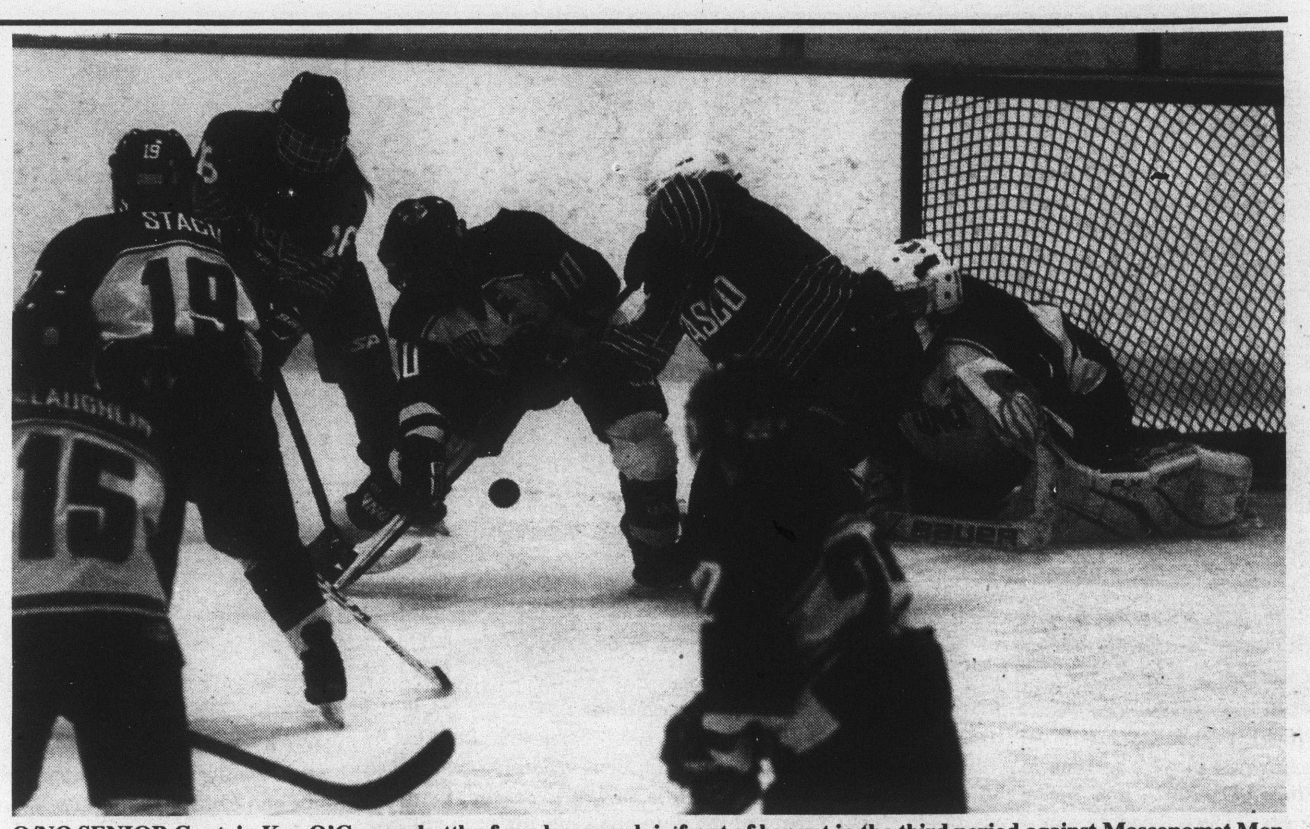
Q/NQ continued to work hard in the corners and behind the net and finally got on the board. Whalen made it a one-goal game with 1:33 left in the second. Working on the power play, Whalen maneuvered her way in off the faceoff and stuffed a backhander under Elmore to make it a 2-1 contest.

Q/NQ had trouble getting to the Masconomet net in the third period, but Beal was solid and kept the squad within striking distance. The senior made a huge stop on Masconomet's best offensive threat, Isabelle Sarra, when she broke past the Q/NQ defense with 11:07. Sarra, though, caused plenty of damage on the evening as she struck for her second tally with 9:21 left, cutting across in front of the Q/NQ net on a rush down the wing and blasting a wrist shot past Beal for the 3-1 advantage.

Craig was forced to pull Beal in favor of a sixth player with time winding down in the third, but couldn't put a dent in the two-goal defecit. Masconomet scored a pair of empty-net goals and Sarra struck again with 44.9 seconds left on a wrist shot to beat Beal for the 6-1 advantage.

Craig wasn't upset with the loss, knowing the coaching staff did everything it could to prepare Q/NQ for a tourney surge.

"Our goal last year was to make the tournament and that was the first time we had ever made the tournament," said Craig. "This year I told them I wanted to do some damage. Then we got a couple of injuries on an already light squad. We fought and I scheduled the last five games of the season against that caliber of quality. We were as ready as we were going to be. I liked our chances this year. We had a better record last year, but we played better teams this season."



Q/NQ SENIOR Captain Kay O'Connor battles for a loose puck in front of her net in the third period against Masconomet Monday night at Quincy Youth Arena. Q/NQ bowed 6-1 in the preliminary round of the Div. 1 girls ice hockey tournament.

QNQ SENIOR CAPTAIN Riley McLaughlin cuts past Masconomet forward Olivia Nieves in the first period in a preliminary Div. 1 tournament game Monday night at Quincy Youth Arena.

Q/NQ SENIOR FORWARD and captain Kate McGahey looks to set up a play in the Masconomet end in the second period. Q/NQ, which qualified for the tournament for the second straight year, bowed 6-1 in the Div. 1 preliminary tournament game.

WITH 1:33 REMAINING in the second period and Q/NQ on a 5-3 man advantage, junior forward Julie Whalen scores to cut the Maconomet lead to 2-1.

Quincy Hoop, Hockey In Action Wednesday

Police Tell Consumers: Be Wary Of Vehicle Alert Notice

By LT. DANIEL MINTON
Quincy Police Crime Prevention

VEHICLE ALERT NOTICE: You may receive a yellow postcard in the mail with the aforementioned title, stating that there is important information about your vehicle.

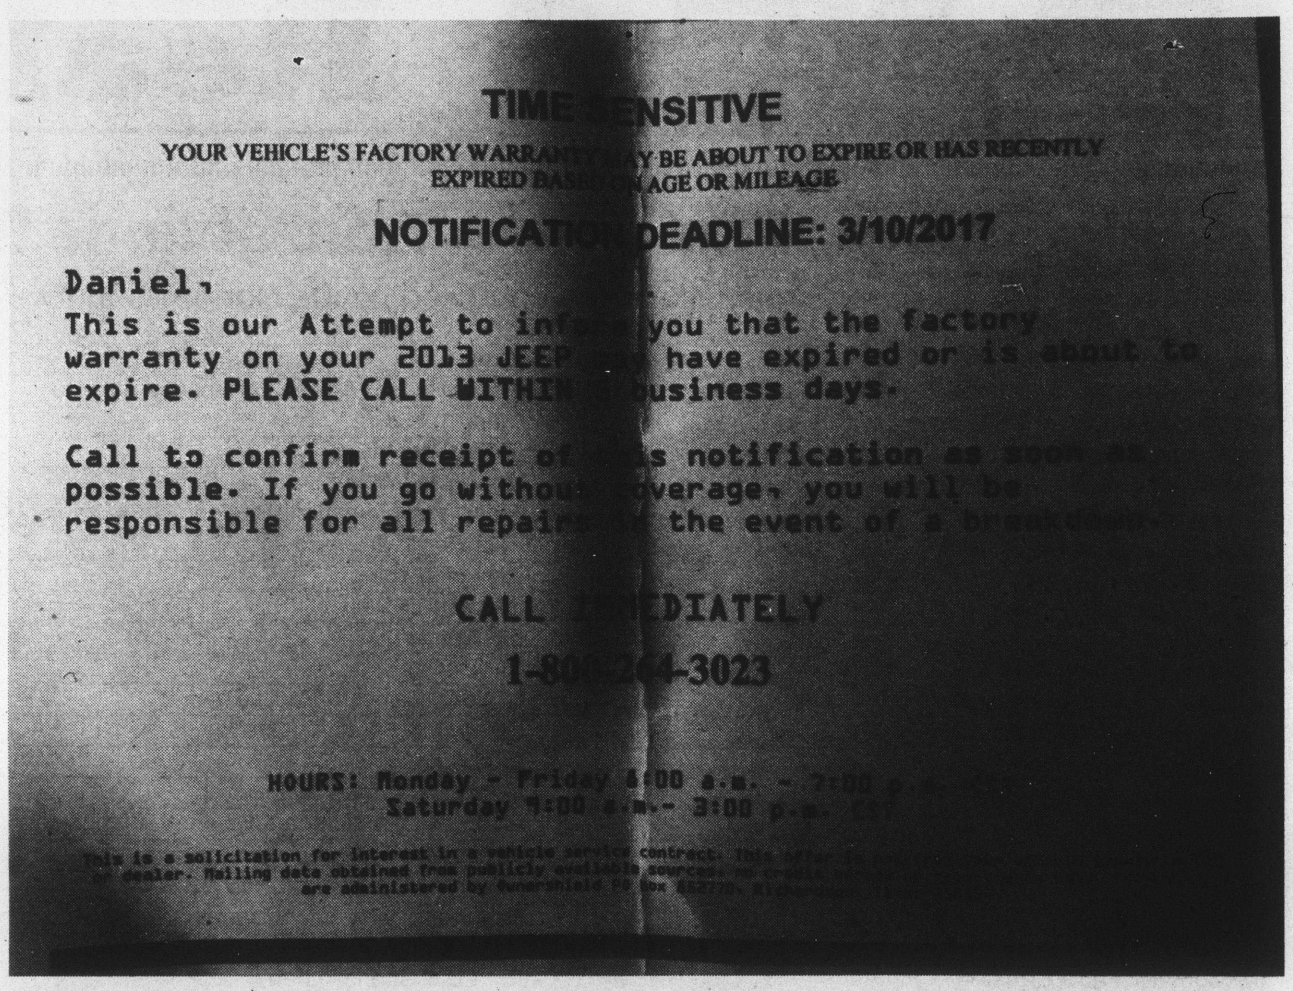
With all the recent recalls, especially around airbags, along with the statement "Your immediate response is requested," grabs your attention. The card will even list your year and make of vehicle.

On the back side of the card, it may have the car owner's name and pressure packed phrases like, "TIME SENSITIVE," "NOTIFICATION DEADLINE" AND "CALL IMMEDIATELY." The card states that your factory warranty may have expired and if you go without extended coverage, you will be responsible for all repairs.

There is limited information about this company on the card. This should elevate your concerns. There is also no reference to the actual manufacturer of the vehicle and there are no positive comments from users. In the small print, the card reads, "This offer is not from your vehicle manufacturer or dealer." Most likely, your name and vehicle information was sold to this company.

Is it a good deal? Generally, these third party companies do not have a good rating and most complaints are that repairs/refunds are not covered under the new warranty. In this case, the Better Business Bureau rated this company, Ownershield as a D-.

If you are so inclined to purchase an extended warranty, the best bet is to purchase it from the dealer where you bought the car. There is a physical address, an actual supervisor and small claims court at your beckon if you want to challenge a claim. Dealerships want to keep your business as well as their reputation intact, so this is the better option.



QUINCY POLICE are alerting consumers about a Vehicle Alert Notice being mailed to some local residents. The Better Business Bureau has rated the company that sent out this solicitation, Ownershield, with a D-.

Cigarette Sparked West Quincy Fire

One Alarm At 21 Westford St.

By SCOTT JACKSON

A one-alarm house fire in West Quincy started when a mattress caught on fire while a resident was smoking.

The fire at 21 Westford St. was called in shortly after 6 p.m. on Feb. 22, Fire Chief Joseph Barron said the following day. A resident smoking inside the bedroom attempted to remove the mattress from the residence before calling 9-1-1 once the fire started.

"They tried to put it out themselves, which you should never do," the chief said, noting the resident brought the mattress through a doorway, giving it more oxygen to burn.

"They would have been better off closing the door to isolate it, getting out of the building and calling us immediately."

No injuries – to firefighters or residents of the multi-family home – were reported, Barron said. The fire was extinguished in just over two hours and was contained to the third floor of the home. The chief credited Capt. Steven Baylis and Engine 5 for their efforts to limit the fire by attacking it from inside the home.

"The guys did an outstanding job containing it to the third floor," Barron said.

The fire caused an estimated $200,000 in damage, Barron said. The Red Cross was on scene that night and provided assistance to five residents living in four units at the home who were displaced by the fire.

FIREFIGHTERS RESPONDED to a one-alarm fire at 21 Westford St. Wednesday night. Here, firefighters Michael Dwyer and Pat O'Donnell of Engine 1 change their tanks before heading back in the building and EMT Ken Arienti of Brewster EMS provides water.

Conviction Upheld In 2006 Shooting Murder

A 49-year old Mattapan man will remain in prison, sentenced to life without parole for the Jan. 9, 2006 murder of Jamal Vaughn outside a Quincy apartment, the state's highest court ruled Feb. 24, according to Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey.

In a 24-page decision, the Supreme Judicial Court rejected both Deryck Long's appeal and his motion for new trial, according to District Attorney Morrissey. The court had heard arguments on the case on Oct. 11, 2016.

"We are gratified that the SJC has affirmed the first-degree murder conviction and rejected Long's claims that mistakes by his attorney and a motions judge should disturb the verdict," Morrissey said. "Although the murder precedes my tenure as District Attorney, my review of the evidence shows very clearly that Long drove to Willard Street in Quincy that night armed and with the intention of murdering Mr. Vaughn. I am pleased for Mr. Vaughn's family and friends that the SJC has put this to rest."

Long was convicted by a Norfolk Superior Court jury in 2011. Hours before the murder, Long and Vaughn had been in a brief altercation while Long was retrieving belongings from an apartment where he had frequently stayed with a former girlfriend.

"The investigation by Quincy Police and State Police detectives attached to the District Attorney's Office put together a solid body of evidence," Morrissey said. "They deserve great credit for the strength of that investigation; Assistant District Attorneys Pamela Alford, who argued the appeal, and ADA Craig Kowalski deserve recognition for the hard work that led to this successful result."

Council OKs $159,000 For Firefighter Gear

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city will spend $159,500 to purchase new protective equipment for 27 newly hired firefighters.

The City Council approved appropriating that amount during its meeting on Feb. 21 in an 8-0 vote. The funding will come from the city's free cash account.

Fire Chief Joseph Barron said the money would be used to buy two sets of turnout gear for each new recruit. Turnout gear includes items such as jackets, pants, boots, helmets and gloves, among others.

Two sets of turnout gear is the industry standard. Barron said that is the case because each set needs to be fully cleaned after firefighters respond to a major incident, taking that set offline.

"Dirty gear carries less insulation, is more likely to conduct heat and electricity, lacks liquid shedding properties and come become potentially flammable," the chief said. "Moreover, many fire burned contaminants are carcinogens and skin-toxic chemicals.

"Turnout gear needs to be cleaned regularly to prevent these problems. Soiled or contaminated ensemble elements are not be brought into living or sleeping quarters, not to be brought into the home, not stored in personal vehicles and not washed in home laundries or washed in public laundries."

Barron, a 39-year veteran of the department, recalled going from one fire to another with the same turnout gear soon after he became a firefighter. The equipment would be saturated and conducted heat, exposing firefighters to steam burns.

City councillors welcomed the purchase of new protective equipment for the incoming firefighters.

"It's not an easy task that you guys do and making sure you have the proper equipment, the proper gear, to better serve our city I think is crucial," Nina Liang said.

"We need to be able to give you the resources to do your job," Noel DiBona added. "You can't wait until they're to a point you can't use this stuff – you have to replace them while you have that second set of gear. I want the public to understand how important that is."

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Friday, Feb. 17, at approximately 8 p.m., Officer Jeffrey Bossart was on routine patrol in West Quincy checking out the parking lot of Home Depot on Willard Street when his attention was drawn to a Ford F250 pickup truck. It was parked at an odd angle in the parking lot, not properly within a parking space and there were many spaces available much closer to the store.

The officer could see that the pickup was occupied and running, with the tail lights and one head light on. There was also significant damage to the front and a large hole where the head light should be.

Officer Bossart drove by and queried the registration, learning that it was a rental vehicle. Due to department wide knowledge that the Home Depot parking lot is considered to be a high drug use area, this increased the officer's concerns. After driving through the parking lot, the officer strategically parked to monitor the pickup.

Approximately 10 minutes later, the officer watched as the pickup exited the lot onto Willard Street. The officer decided to stop the pickup near Bates Avenue for the head light violation. The pickup turned into a strip mall parking lot so the officer activated his emergency blue lights. After the pickup came to a stop at the far end of the parking lot, Officer Bossart made contact with the two occupants and requested the operator's license and registration.

Noting the passenger was not wearing a seatbelt, the officer requested identification from the passenger too. When asked where they were coming from, they replied Home Depot. The occupants both appeared to be nervous and were talking over each other. When asked what they were doing at Home Depot, the driver said that he is a plumber and was there to buy supplies for a job. When asked what they had purchased, the driver said that they ended up not buying anything.

Officer Bossart noticed that the driver's hand was trembling as he handed the Officer his driver's license. When told that the lot was well known to Officers for drug involvement, the occupants had an overly dramatic shocked response. When asked where they were going, both spoke simultaneously said they were going home but gave different addresses. When asked why they pulled into the parking lot if they were headed home, the driver initially said he was stopping for a slice of pizza but then said he saw the cruiser behind him so he wanted to see if the Police were following him.

Officer Bossart inquired about the damage to the vehicle and the driver said he came out this morning to find the front of the car damaged and had no knowledge of how it happened. He said the vehicle was parked in the lot of 608 South St. but didn't report the incident to the Police or the rental company. After checking the occupant's criminal record, Officer Bossart learned the driver had a previous charge for possession of Oxycontin and the occupant had several previous charges for possession of Class B, C and E.

Considering that they were in a rental vehicle, often used by both drug users and distributors to shield their identities and criminal histories from law enforcement, that they were in a high drug use area, that they were parked suspiciously away from the entrance/exit to the business as well as all other vehicles utilizing the business, that they didn't purchase anything from the business, that they had conflicting stories about their destination, that they had nervous demeanors, that they had suspicious damage to their rental vehicle that they had not reported to anyone and admitted to conducting counter-surveillance by turning into the parking lot to see if the Police were following them, the officer suspected that criminal activity was afoot.

Officer Bossart requested K-5 Officer Paul Foley and his single purpose narcotic detection K9 respond to assist. Upon arrival, Officer Foley asked the occupants if they had ever been arrested before. The passenger said he had been but the driver said he had no criminal history. Officer Foley then informed both he had a drug detection dog and asked if there was any reason his dog might alert to the odor of narcotics in the vehicle. The passenger immediately reacted that the dog would not find anything, while the driver avoided eye contact with Officer Foley, looked down at his phone and attempted to change the subject.

Officer Foley retrieved K9 Charlie and approached the pickup. K9 Charlie showed a positive alert to a narcotic odor emanating from the driver's door. Officer Foley then advised both the occupants of their Miranda Rights. Officer Foley asked if there were any drugs in the pickup and the driver responded, "You might find a blue box with a little something in it" as he stared at the center console area. The driver was removed from the vehicle, pat frisked for weapons and asked if he had any syringes that could stick the officers. He replied that he does not shoot heroin - he snorts it.

A search of the driver compartment area uncovered numerous square and rectangular pieces of tin foil in driver's door map pocket that had burn marks and charring on them. This is known as "freebasing," a form of ingesting illegal narcotics. There were numerous empty plastic corner bags and ripped knots to corner bags in the driver's door map pocket as well as on the floor under the steering wheel and under the driver's seat. These items were placed on the driver's seat. There was also a small container containing a small amount of heroin along with two hollow pens with charring on the ends, used to inhale freebasing narcotics.

Under the driver's seat Officer Bossart located a plastic bag containing several collectors' type silver coins. The officer recalled that BCI Detective MacIsaac sent out a bulletin regarding a recent breaking and entering in North Quincy, where a large collection of silver and gold coins were stolen. When questioned, the driver said "I've had those forever." When told it was odd he would have them in a rental vehicle, the driver changed his story and said that he was given those today as payment for a plumbing job. When asked for clarification, the driver said he did a plumbing job on Newcomb Street in Quincy and the client paid him in coins. He added he walked off the job over payment issues, which was odd since he said he accepted the coins as payment. During the search, the driver appeared very nervous, pacing back and forth saying he was going to be arrested. The driver told the officers he has been clean for two weeks and kept repeating anything found in the pickup belonged to him.

After searching the vehicle, Officer Foley brought K9 Charlie back over to the driver's seat area where all of the drug evidence found in the door and driver's area had been placed. K9 Charlie positively alerted to the odor of narcotics on everything on the front seat, as well as the plastic bag containing the silver coins. Due to the amount of paraphernalia with residue located in the rental vehicle, it was very apparent that the driver has a significant drug abuse problem.

The driver, a 38-year-old Quincy resident was placed under arrest and charged with, defective equipment, no headlight, possession of Class A – Heroin and possession of Class B – cocaine. The passenger told the officers the driver has a significant drug abuse problem and that he needs help to stop it. The drug evidence collected from the vehicle was placed in an evidence bag and brought back to the station.

The small amount of powder in the blue covered container was tested using the TruNarc Ramen Spectrometer. The results of this test showed the presumptive presence of Cocaine HCI. The silver coins were seized as evidence.

Nice Work!

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Keep an open mind about a suggestion you see as unworkable. Give it a chance to prove itself one way or another. The results could surprise both supporters and detractors.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) News about an upcoming venture causes you to make some last-minute adjustments in your plans. But the extra work will pay off, as you come to learn more about the potential benefits opening up.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A more positive aspect grows out of your determination to reach your immediate goals. Continue to keep your focus sharp and on target by steering clear of petty quarrels and other pesky problems.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) By acting as a voice of reason, you can avoid adding to an already turbulent situation. You might have to shout over the tumult, but your words ultimately will be heard and heeded.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The possibility of a new acquisition always makes those Leonine eyes light up. But be careful that what you see is what you want. Appearances often can be deceiving.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) No matter how much you might feel that you're in the right, resist saying anything that could reignite a still-unresolved situation. Let the matter drop, and move on.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Help with a personal problem comes from an unexpected source. You also find workplace pressures easing. Use this period of calm to restore your spent energies.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to share the credit for that project you're working on. But there'll be enough credit to go around, and your efforts will be recognized and rewarded.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Details need to be dealt with before you can move on to another area. Make sure you don't leave any loose ends that could later cause everything to unravel.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) News about a change in the workplace carries with it a challenge you could find difficult to resist. Check it out. It could be what you've been waiting for.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Allowing your artistic nature full expression will help restore your spirits and will put you in the mood to take on that new career challenge. A Libra creates excitement.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Expect to happily plunge right into a hectic social whirl starting at week's end. Your aspects favor new friendships as well as the strengthening of old relationships.

BORN THIS WEEK: Like St. Patrick (who was also born this week), your spiritual strength is an inspiration to others.

Purim Events At Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills

The festive Jewish holiday of Purim will be celebrated at Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills (formerly Temples Shalom of Milton and Beth El of Quincy) this year with two special events in March.

On Saturday evening, March 11th, the synagogue will be converted into a "Purim Palace," starting at 5:45 p.m. with a Family Pasta and Salad Dinner ($5/pp, kids under 5 free, RSVP required); at 6:45 Havdallah will be followed a "dramatic" retelling of the Purim story; at 7:15 families with kids will enjoy "Hamantashen a la mode;" finally at 7:30 p.m. there will be a full Megillah reading followed by Hamantashen, and wine tasting in preparation for Passover. The public is invited and costumes are encouraged.

On Sunday, March 12th, the synagogue's Rabbi Weistrop Religious School will sponsor its Annual Purim Carnival from noon to 1:30 p.m. at 18 Shoolman Way in Milton. The retelling of the Purim story will precede the Carnival, which will feature games, booths, prizes, raffles, food and fun for all ages, and prizes for costumes. It is open to the entire community with free admission, and tickets for booths and snacks will be available for purchase. Everyone is welcome, especially costumed children.

Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills conducts a full schedule of religious, cultural, educational and social events and services throughout the year. It also operates a religious school for Jewish children of all grade levels.

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is located at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton. There is limited parking at the synagogue, so its use is suggested for the elderly and handicapped. Additional parking is available on nearby Pleasant Street. There is no parking on Lodge or Maitland Streets.

For further information about Purim or other temple activities, call the temple office at 617-698-3394, email: office@BethShalomBlueHills.org, or visi www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

OBITUARIES

Gloria C. Marini, 104

Funeral services and interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery in Quincy for Gloria C. (Giovannangeli) Marini, age 104, a lifelong Quincy resident, were privately held.

Mrs. Marini died peacefully Feb. 12.

She was a blessing to everyone she encountered, always selfless and caring. She will be remembered as a warm and loving daughter, sister, aunt and wife.

Mrs. Marini was born in Quincy on Jan. 7, 1913, to the late Felice and Nunziata (DiBona) Giovannangeli. She was raised and educated in Quincy and was a graduate of Quincy High School.

She worked as a bookkeeper in the granite industry and had been retired for many years. Mrs. Marini was a member of the Quincy Granite Association, she and her family were actively involved in the Quincy granite industry and in many other community activities.

Beloved wife of the late John L. Marini. She was the last of four siblings and was predeceased by Ugo Giovannangeli, Stella Tocchio and Isabelle DeSantis. Survived by several nieces and nephews.

Memorial donations may be made to the Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum, P.O. Box 690724, Quincy, MA 02269.

Arrangements were under the direction of the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

John 'Tom' Mullaney

A funeral Mass for John "Tom" Mullaney of Quincy was celebrated Feb. 23 in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Mullaney died Feb. 19.

Above all things, he loved three things in his life: his family, youth sports and his beloved city of Quincy. He loved his family with his entire heart and was fortunate to spend his later years as the proud grandfather of his only grandson, Michael. He was a fixture at youth sporting events over his many years, with the Morrisette American Legion Post 294 baseball team being one of his favorites. Mr. Mullaney attended more baseball games at Adams Field than any other Quincy resident. He enjoyed coaching Quincy Little League and Babe Ruth's Granite City Electric and attended innumerable high school basketball and volleyball games.

Mr. Mullaney was a proud 80-year resident of Quincy and was engaged in local politics; he was a true civic participant. He was a member of the U.S. Army reserves, worked for the Polaroid Corporation for over 35 years, and worked part-time at H&R Block in his retirement. He was always there to help friends and family and continuously worked to make Quincy a better place.

Predeceased by his loving wife Mary L. (McIsaac) Mullaney and his sister Marilyn Caiewski. He is survived by his daughter Mary Ann Mullaney, son Michael Mullaney, daughter-in-law Janice Mullaney and cherished grandson Michael Mullaney, all of Weymouth. He is also survived by his sister Dorothy Blyth of Abington and many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Morrisette Post 294 Baseball, c/o Fred White, 104 Edward St., Quincy, MA 02169.

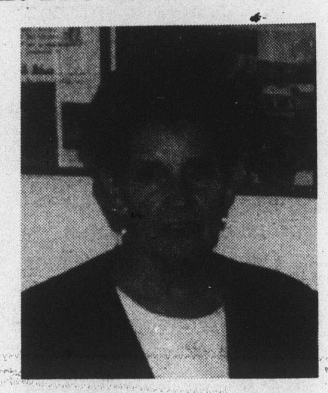
Pauline M. Holland

A funeral Mass for Pauline M. (Murphy) Holland of Quincy was celebrated Feb. 24 in St. Gerard Majella Church, Canton.

Mrs. Holland died Feb. 20.

She adored her family, especially her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She enjoyed taking them out to eat and trips to the beach. She also loved to travel all over, including Marco Island, and to read. Mrs. Holland was a very hard worker. She worked for over 25 years in human resources for the state government. She was a quiet, loving, and kind woman who will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Beloved husband of the late Paul Holland. Cherished mother of Paul Holland of Quincy, Sheila Holland of Quincy, and Diane Dockray and her husband Stephen of Canton. Sister of the late John and Charles Murphy and Alice McDonough. Devoted Nana of Paul Jr.,



PAULINE M. HOLLAND

Elizabeth, Joseph, Jacqueline, and Victoria Holland and Alexandra, Cassandra, Stephen, and Patrick Dockray. Loving great Nana of Katie, James, Joey, Wes, and Will. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton.

Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, North Weymouth.

Memorial donations may be made to Hospice of the South Shore, 30 Reservoir Park Dr., Rockland, MA 02370.

Michael J. Shaughnessy

A funeral Mass for Michael J. Shaughnessy of Quincy, formerly of Dorchester and originally from County Galway, Ireland, was celebrated Feb. 23 in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Shaughnessy died Feb. 19.

The beloved husband of 54 years to the late Catherine P. Shaughnessy. Loving father of Bryan Shaughnessy and his wife Tricia of Braintree, Kevin Shaughnessy and his wife Christine of Norwood and Michael G. Shaughnessy of Weymouth. Cherished grandfather to Meaghan, Caitlan, Brendan, Matthew and Daniel Shaughnessy.

Mr. Shaughnessy came over from Ireland in 1956. He spent nearly 30 years in Dorchester before moving to Quincy in 1986. He was a hardworking man who loved his family. He enjoyed walking Castle Island on Sundays. He worked as a painter and for the Archdiocese of Boston. He was a devout Catholic and his faith was very important to him. Mr. Shaughnessy was always there to help his sons with anything they needed and always put others before himself. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at Cedar Grove Cemetery, Boston.

Memorial donations may be made to Boston Catholic Television, P.O. Box 9196, Watertown, MA 02471.

Mary V. Bimmler, 87

A funeral Mass for Mary Virginia "Ginnie" (Harrington) Bimmler, 87, a longtime Squantum and South Yarmouth resident, most recently at Atria, Marina Bay, was celebrated Monday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Bimmler died peacefully Feb. 22.

The beloved wife of the late Joseph E. Bimmler. Loving mother of Paul J. Bimmler of Squantum and his late wife Mariellen, Mary Yacobian and her husband Ara of Framingham, Joanne Dalabon and her husband Thomas of Sharon, and Virginia Paluzzi of Braintree. Sister of the late Grace Mahoney. Cherished grandmother of Alyson Yacobian, Jacqueline and Joseph Dalabon, Kristen Bimmler and Jason Paluzzi.

Mrs. Bimmler found great pleasure and enjoyed a complete life of activities and commitments surrounding the schools, church and local community and a 20-year career with State Street Bank. The foundation of her life was her family and her faith. Thoughts of Mrs. Bimmler will always bring happy memories.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Memorial donations may be made to New England Homeless Veterans, 17 Court St., Boston, MA 02108.

Please gather at the Greenleaf Street entrance to the cemetery.

Arrangements under the direction of the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Avenue, Quincy.

Elaine Poplawski

A funeral Mass for Elaine (Rouse) Poplawski, of Quincy, formerly of Somerville, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Poplawski died Feb. 23.

Beloved wife of the late John T. Poplawski. Loving mother of Janet Stanton and her husband Stephen of Quincy, John Poplawski and his wife Deborah of Norton, Judith Poplawski of Wakefield, James Poplawski and Mary Juliano of Watertown and Jay Poplawski and his companion Sarah Camacho of Westford. Mother-in-law of Sherry Parsons Poplawski of FL. Sister of Carolyn Minton of NH and Irving Rouse of Lynn. Cherished grandmother of 14 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Poplawski was a longtime Quincy resident and enjoyed her time she spent at The Moorings in Squantum. She was a member of the Polish American Woman's Auxiliary in Cambridge. Every year she participated in the Quincy Senior Olympics. She enjoyed traveling, cooking and was an avid card player. What was most important in her life was her family; she cherished each of them. They are grateful for all the blessings she brought into their lives. Mrs. Poplawski will be sadly missed by all those who knew her.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

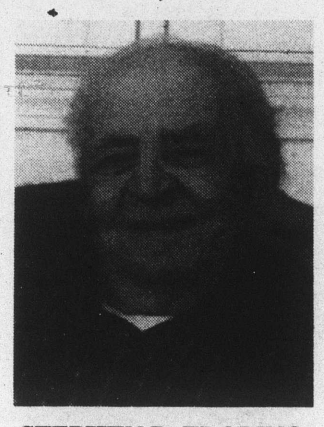
Stephen D. Florino, 98



STEPHEN D. FLORINO

A funeral Mass for Stephen D. Florino, age 98, of Quincy, formerly of Dorchester, was celebrated at 10 a.m. Thursday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Florino died peacefully Feb. 24 at home, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born in Somerville to the late Joseph and Mary (Bruno) Florino. He was raised and educated in the West End of Boston and was a graduate of Boston English High School. He had lived in Quincy for thirty-nine years, previously in Dorchester.

Mr. Florino served as a staff sergeant in the Army Air Corps with the 524th Fighter Squadron from 1941 to 1945 during World War II. He participated in the campaigns of Northern France, Algeria-French Morocco, Tunisia, Rome-Arno, Southern France, North Apennines, Rhineland, and Central Europe. He received the European African Middle Eastern Theater Campaign Ribbon.

Mr. Florino was employed as a truck driver with the Teamsters Local 25 for twenty-eight years. He was a member of the John P. McKeon AmVets Post 146, William G. Walsh American Legion Post 369, and the Braintree American Legion Post 86.

He enjoyed reading, socializing with friends, and staying up to date on current events. He was also an avid Red Sox fan.

Beloved husband for seventy-one years of Marion L. (Sullivan) Florino. Devoted father of Catherine M. Reynolds of Braintree and her late husband James, Elizabeth J. Finn and her husband Stephen of Quincy.

Loving grandfather of Stephen P. Finn and his wife Nicole Abruzzese of Quincy, Scott Finn of Dorchester, great grandfather of Cody and Marielle Finn and step great grandfather of Evan Abruzzese. Jeannette Falcione

JEANNETTE FALCIONE

A funeral service and interment for Jeannette "Jeanne" Falcione of Quincy were privately held Tuesday.

Ms. Falcione died Feb. 22 at Massachusetts General Hospital after a brief illness.

She was the daughter of the late Etto and Jennie Falcione of Quincy, sister of Dennis and his wife Robin Falcione of Hanover, Richard and his wife Alberta Falcione of Brockton, aunt of Dennis Jr. and Kristy Falcione of Hanover, Rick Falcione and his wife Katie of Carmel, Indiana, and Mary Festa of Chelsea, great aunt of Christopher and Marin of Carmel, Indiana.

Ms. Falcione was born in Dorchester and was a Quincy resident for most of her life. She also enjoyed quality family time in Sandwich and Royal Palm Beach, FL. An avid and humble golfer, with many lead crystal trophies from her home course (Presidents), she was no stranger to the golf course. As well as being an avid golfer, she was passionate for bowling.

Her biggest joy in life was the enormous amount of time spent with her niece and nephews. From their infancy to the present, Ms. Falcione was always there to create a foundation of unconditional love and sincerity. Ms. Falcione always put family and friends first, and there is an abundance of scenarios to illustrate her kind and caring spirit.

Her professional life was one of dedication to passion and excellence. Always fair but without compromise for getting the job done right, from being a high school teacher to managing the operations of one successful family business, lending her business expertise as partner in another, retail banking management (Quincy Savings) to the public sector as a municipal employee.

Already missed by many, and will be forgotten by few. We love you Jeanne.

Funeral arrangements were made by Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Shuttered Downtown Bar Owner Hopes To Sell

By SCOTT JACKSON

The owner of a Quincy Center bar whose license was revoked by city officials in January is appealing that decision to the state and is aiming to sell the establishment.

The Board of Licensing Commissioners on Jan. 24 unanimously voted in favor of revoking the all alcohol license held by the Clash of the Ash at 1464 Hancock St. after the bar was caught serving a minor on Nov. 24. Louis Cassis, the attorney for bar owner Bernard Connaughton, told the license board on Feb. 21 that he has filed an appeal with the Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission to get that punishment overturned.

The ABCC will hear the matter May 10. In the interim, Cassis said Connaughton would like to sell the Clash of the Ash and its liquor license. Cassis said there is a prospective buyer for the site and hopes to have the sale finalized – including a transfer of the liquor license, which requires board approval – prior to May 10.

"My hope is that if all this happens before we have a hearing at the ABCC, the place would be under agreement or sold if the buyer is approved by this board," he said.

Cassis appeared before the board Feb. 21 because the ABCC rescinded the board's previous revocation of the Clash of the Ash's liquor license. The bar was stripped of its license in April 2016 after a minor was found in possession of alcohol on St. Patrick's Day of that year, but was allowed to stay open pending appeal. It was ordered to close immediately following the second revocation in January.

The ABCC ruled the license board's April 2016 revocation was too harsh a penalty and asked the board to hand down a new penalty. In its ruling, the ABCC noted the Clash of the Ash's license was revoked for the third offense that went before the local board while two other licenses revoked by the city in recent years – those held by Quincy Jade and Yaz's Place – were taken away after five and four violations, respectively.

The ABCC had also found Clash of the Ash in violation of state law for a previous incident, but in its ruling the commission said the license board could not factor that into its decision because no written or unwritten policy of the board allowed it.

At the Feb. 21 meeting, the licensing board imposed a 10-day suspension on Clash of the Ash for the March 2016 violation with credit for the days it has been closed since the January revocation.

Cassis told the board he would not appeal the suspension.

The board also granted a common victualler license on Feb. 21 to Café Gelato, which is set to open in a 1,700 square foot space inside the West of Chestnut development in Quincy Center on Chestnut Street.

Denise Santini, the restaurant's manager, said Café Gelato could open in mid April. The café will be open between 6:30 a.m. and 11 p.m., with a possible midnight closing time during the summer.

The café will serve gelato, specialty coffees, sandwiches and salads, Santini said.

Café Gelato will be the third of three restaurants to open at West of Chestnut, which also includes 169 apartments spread between a pair of six-story buildings in the 1400 block of Hancock Street. The first two restaurants, KKatie's Burger Bar and Fuji at West of Chestnut, opened in December and January respectively.

In other action Feb. 21, the board:

Approved the request of Fusion Kitchen for a pledge of license to Bank of Canton to secure a loan for renovations to the facility. Fusion Kitchen is set to open at 75 Franklin St., formerly home to Alfredo's, and will offer a combination of Chinese and Japanese cuisine, including sushi. Chris Coleman, the attorney for the restaurant's owner, said the new eatery should be open in five months.

Approved the request of Costy Touma for a garage repair license at 664 Washington St. The owner of the service station at that location is subletting the garage space to Touma.

Approved a common victualler license for Fatos Manaj, who is taking over Papa's Roast Beef at 15 Scammell St. The license was granted pending a final inspection by the Quincy Fire Department; Chief Joseph Barron said the Ansul fire suppression needs to be inspected and the grill hood requires cleaning.

Woman Stabbed In Quincy Karaoke Bar

By SCOTT JACKSON

A 43-year-old woman remained in critical condition at Boston Medical Center Tuesday after being stabbed several times inside a karaoke bar in Kam Man Plaza early Sunday morning, and police are asking for the public's help in identifying her assailant.

Officers were called to Jazz Moon Karaoke Bar – located at 217 Quincy Ave. – around 12:30 a.m. Sunday. Police reported seeing a dark-colored SUV, driven by an Asian male, exiting the shopping center's parking lot when they arrived on scene.

When officers arrived at the karaoke bar, they found the victim on the ground surrounded by a large amount of blood. Officers then performed life-saving measures on the woman, who police said was stabbed more than five times and lost a large amount of blood.

The victim, described by police as a 43-year-old Asian female, was rushed to Boston Medical Center in critical condition. She remained in critical condition as of Tuesday morning, according to Police Capt. John Dougan.

Witnesses to the incident described the suspect as an Asian male with a dark, knit hat and a three-quarter-length coat that was possibly green or multi-colored. The suspect was armed with a knife, which was not recovered on scene.

Dougan said witnesses reported seeing the suspect spit on the victim during the attack. The victim's clothing was collected by police to be swabbed for DNA, which Dougan said is a standard procedure during an investigation.

Quincy police are asking any witnesses who may have been present at the scene and taken videos or pictures of the incident on their cellphones to contact detectives at 617-479-1212. Tips may also be submitted using the MyPD app.

Funeral Saturday For Houghs Neck Fire Victims

begin at 11 a.m. at Most Blessed Sacrament Church of Holy Trinity Parish at 1013 Sea St. Interment will follow at Pine Hill Cemetery on Willard Street in West Quincy.

The wake is Friday from 4 to 8 p.m. at Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., in Quincy Center.

Thelma and William Powers were killed in a two-alarm fire that engulfed 13 Bell St. during the early morning hours of Feb. 12. A third family member – William's father, Michael – was injured when he jumped from the second floor of the house.

The Quincy Fire Department has said the fire was not intentionally set. Fire Chief Joseph Barron had previously stated the exact cause of the fire might never be known because of the extent of the damage, but it was believed a pure oxygen tank inside the house fueled the blaze and led it to spread so quickly.

The house had hard-wired smoke detectors installed, Barron said previously.

Full obituaries for Thelma and William Powers were not yet ready as of press time. They will be published on The Quincy Sun's website, thequincysun.com, when available.

Spring Fever Grips City . . . In February!!

TEMPERATURES BROKE RECORDS reaching the upper 60s and low 70s last week and sent folks outdoors for an array of spring-like activities. Boston set a new record for the warmest day in February ever with a reading of 73 degrees last Friday. The day before, Thursday, Feb. 23, the high temperature was 68 degrees, also a record for that day. Top photo: lone sunbather catches some rays on Wollaston Beach. Scout Timothy Ng Delivers Flag Disposal Box To City Hall

Timothy Ng, a Boy Scout candidate for Eagle Scout, recently delivered a flag disposal box to the foyer of Quincy City Hall.

Assisting Ng with the drop off were Troop Scoutmaster Ray Theberge, Quincy Veterans Services Graves Registration Officer George Bouchard and Quincy Fire Chief Joseph Barron.

Ng's flag retirement project was recently completed with the box, the last of three collection containers. The City Hall collection box is located outside the Assessors' office on the first floor of City Hall.

Other containers have been placed at Quincy Fire Department Headquarters on Quincy Avenue and the Quincy Police Department at Sea Street and Southern Artery for drop off at any time day or evening.

Bouchard will check the boxes regularly and empty them for proper disposal as needed.

Scout Ng made all the arrangements for the wood needed for the project, sought assistance from knowledgeable persons to make the boxes and painted them with the proper sealant to help them last for years. He also had to oversee the project in a management position and not do the job himself.

Quincy Scout Honored At State House

Members of the Boy Scouts of America from across Massachusetts recently delivered the annual State of Scouting report to the Commonwealth at the Massachusetts State House.

The report, titled "The 2016 Statewide Scouting Impact in Massachusetts", detailed the progress made in scouting last year and was handed to state Sentate President Stanley Rosenberg and Senate Minority Leader Bruce Tarr during a ceremony on the Grand Staircase at the State House.

The Boy Scouts have made great strides in recent years in Massachusetts, offering youth development programs that bond families through shared experiences. The report noted there were about 38,000 youth involved in Boy Scouts during 2016, with more than 1200 Scout units active statewide.

More than 10,000 adult volunteers were involved in running these Scout programs. The Boy Scouts in Massachusetts performed more than 150,000 hours of community service, and more than 1200 Scouts attained the rank of Eagle. The report also highlighted the successful "Scouting for Food Drive," which collected more than 200,000 pounds of food for local food pantries.

The report also highlighted the Boy Scouts' diverse membership and programs, its focus on new STEM-related programs, and the revitalization of scouting the inner-city neighborhoods of Boston, Lawrence, Lynn and other urban areas.

Rosenberg asked the Scouts to collectively lead the Pledge of Allegiance to open the Senate session for the day. Gov. Charles Baker delivered an inspiring talk to the Boy Scouts and read an official proclamation designating Feb. 23 as Boy Scout Day in Massachusetts.

Stephanie MacFarland, 18, of Venturing Crew 42 in Quincy, was among the scouts selected for special recognition at the State House ceremony based on her exemplary service to the community and to Scouting.

Council Rejects Santuary City Resolution

By 6-3 Vote

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors rejected in a split vote Monday night a resolution that would start the discussion on whether or not Quincy should declare itself a "sanctuary city" and what exactly the term entails, though community meetings might still be held on the issue in the future.

Councillor Nina Liang introduced the resolution, which asked city officials to prepare a presentation on what becoming a "sanctuary city" would mean and if the city should take steps to become one. Councillors Joseph Finn and William Harris joined Liang in voting in favor of the resolution Monday.

Six councillors – Ian Cain, Brad Croall, Noel DiBona, Kirsten Hughes, Margaret Laforest and Brian Palmucci – voted against the measure.

"Sanctuary city" is a term used to describe municipalities where local police officers generally do not assist federal authorities in enforcing immigration laws,

City Seeking LED Streetlights

By SCOTT JACKSON

City officials want to install energy-efficient LED light bulbs in 6,500 streetlights across Quincy this year, a move that could save more than $400,000 annually in electricity and maintenance costs.

Mayor Thomas Koch submitted a request to borrow $3.62 million to pay for the purchase and installation of the LED light bulbs to the City Council Monday night. In addition to the 6,500 streetlights – nearly all city-owned lights – Koch also hopes to have LEDs installed in 80 percent of the traffic and pedestrian signals citywide.

The request to borrow the money was referred to the council's finance committee for further consideration.

Nomination Papers Available May 2

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday night approved the electoral calendar for this year's municipal contests.

A preliminary election, if necessary, would take place on Tuesday, Sept. 12. The final election is set for Tuesday, Nov. 7.

All nine seats on the City Council are up for election this year, as are three of the positions on the School Committee – the ones currently held by Barbara Isola, Emily Lebo and Anne Mahoney.

A preliminary election would be required if more than two candidates run for any one ward council seat, or if more than six ran for either councillor at-large or school board.

Mayor Thomas Koch is not up for re-election this year; voters in 2013 approved a referendum giving the city's mayor a four-year term. Koch is in his second year of the four-year term he won in 2015.

Candidates for the 12 seats up for grabs this fall can begin taking out nomination papers on May 2. Those nomination papers must be returned to the

Teacher Training Refocused On English, Math Needs

By TOM GORMAN

For the remainder of the school year, training for the city's public school teachers will be refocused to emphasize more writing and math problem-solving in the classroom.

During the March 1 school committee meeting, the district's curriculum directors presented a mid-year reflection on professional development and outlined plans to reset teaching training in certain areas of need for the rest of the year. High school curriculum Director Beth Hallett, Special education and elementary curriculum Director Erin Perkins and middle school curriculum Director Madeline Roy discussed their respective areas and action steps being taken.

Hallett said the mid-year reflection helps administrators reevaluate teacher training for the rest of the school year.

"This is an inside look of how we examine where we've been so far with our professional development plan and where we're going and how we're going to reach our school improvement and program improve-

Girls Scouts Commended For Community Contributions

By SCOTT JACKSON

Seventeen Quincy Girl Scouts – including the recipient of the prestigious Girl Scout Gold Award who organized a children's history program at one of the city's historic sites – were recognized recently by the City Council for their contributions to community.

The Gold, Silver and Bronze Award recipients received commendations from the City Council during its meeting on Feb. 5. Councillor Nina Liang presented the commendations, calling the scouts essential parts of what makes Quincy great.

"It takes creativity, discipline, commitment to community service to better their lives around them, and that's exactly what these girls did," she said. "They've become an essential part of what makes our community great, and we're here today to congratulate them and honor them for their awards."

Brianna Cristiani, a member of Troop 74202, received the Gold Award for her work project – a children's history program at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead.

"I wanted to teach the history of Quincy to children in a fun but interactive way," Cristiani said. "The reason I chose this project was because when I was in fourth grade, we had a woman come from the National Park Service to discuss the history of Quincy and to tell us there was going to be a contest. We had to make a brochure all about Quincy, and the park service picked three of them to go into a time capsule that was being put into the Abigail Adams memorial.

"I remember having so much fun researching Quincy and I learned so much from that project. For me, that opened up the world of history and I wanted to instill that same love and passion for history in children."

"One of main causes for my issue was children not knowing about the history of Quincy because it wasn't talked about much, and when it was it was mostly presented to the children in a PowerPoint or a lecture format," Cristiani continued.

"I addressed this problem by reaching out to groups on Facebook and promoting my event using social media. I also addressed this problem by creating a program for children where history was presented in an interactive way."

Cristiani's project included historical lawn games children could play, planting flowers in the homestead's garden, and a chance for children to make their own whirligig. She also made a child-friendly booklet that children could take with them when they toured the property. The booklet included trivia questions that could only be answered by paying attention during the tour, and instructions on how to make a whirligig at home.

Children weren't the only beneficiaries of Cristiani's project. She said she learned valuable life skills along the way.

"I have learned so much from the project. I have learned to advocate for myself for what I believe while also being open to other peoples' ideas. I have also learned that to be a good leader you have to be proactive and not wait until the last minute and try to rush around getting everything together," Cristiani said.

"I have also learned how to articulate my thoughts and words more clearly. Before this project I'd mostly get everything done myself, but throughout this project I learned that was not a good way to do things. I would not have known how to clearly explain what I wanted, but after this project I have a much better grasp on that. I've also learned confidence

Quincy Saves Program Boosts City Households' Energy Efficiency

$295,000 A Year According To Utility Fact Sheet

An energy efficiency program co-sponsored by National Grid and the city of Quincy will save participating residents $295,000 a year, according to a fact sheet provided by the utility. The program will also eliminate as much pollution and greenhouse gas emissions as if 668 cars were permanently taken off the road.

During 2016, nearly a thousand Quincy households received free energy audits through Quincy Saves. The households had an average of 21 incandescent light bulbs replaced with efficient LEDs, and nearly 200 houses had old-style analog thermostats replaced with programmable digital units, which can reduce heating costs and energy use.

Many households also took further action. HomeWorks Energy and other contractors replaced 112 older heating systems with efficient, state-of-the-art equipment, added insulation to 221 houses, and did air sealing work at 193 houses.

Mayor Tom Koch was pleased with the extent of residents' involvement. "Quincy residents are concerned about the environment, slowing climate change, and saving money;

Veterans Incentives Sought In Homebuyers Program

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors want Quincy to offer incentives to veterans, active-duty military personnel and the surviving spouses of service members killed while serving in its first-time homebuyer program.

The council in an 8-0 vote on Feb. 21 approved a resolution asking the city's Affordable Housing Trust Fund Committee and the Quincy HOME Consortium to alter their existing rules to waive all closing costs for veterans of the U.S. armed services, military personnel on active duty, and spouses of those killed on active duty. The resolution also asks the Quincy Planning Department to adopt the MassHousing Operation Welcome Home Program.

Councillor Noel DiBona introduced the resolution at that night's meeting. DiBona said the issue was important to him because his grandfather served in the Navy during World War II and his father served in the Air Force during the Vietnam War.

"[This] is very near and dear to my heart," he said. "To have some time type of program here in Quincy is very important to me."

"This is something that I've been working on for quite a while – for a few months now – trying to figure out how I could give something back to the citizens of Quincy that put their lives on the their line," DiBona added.

"Before it was World War II veterans, Korea veterans, Vietnam veterans. Now we're in a different phase – Gulf War veterans, Iraq and Afghan veterans coming back to the city of Quincy. This will be an incentive for them. Hopefully this will move forward and they can capitalize on this."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, who serves on the Affordable Housing Trust Fund Committee, said that committee had already begun taking steps to offer the incentives DiBona's resolution called for.

"This is something that has had some forward progress already by the committee," she said.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, who said he used the first-time homebuyer program when he purchased a home, said the program is important for those looking to live in the city for the long run.

"Programs like this I think are of the utmost importance and we should be making them available obviously to veterans – that's fantastic – but to everyone who wants to own a home in the city of Quincy because it's that security in knowing that you are going to live somewhere and stay somewhere and plant your roots that makes our community great," he said. "You can really set up stakes and raise your family and grow with the community.

"It's a great effort by Councillor DiBona and I'm happy to support it."

PROMISES MADE

While an engagement ring is a sign of imminent marriage, a "promise ring" is something of a pre-engagement ring. It may be a serious sign that a couple recognizes that they may be too young to marry, but old enough to know the meaning of committed love. Or, it may be that a man wants to stave off marriage without losing the woman of his dreams. Whatever the intention, a promise ring makes a clear statement. It is often worn on the ring finger of the left hand (as a placeholder for an engagement ring). Because promise rings speak of romance, commitment, and enduring love, they are cherished by all who wear them, both men and women.

Choosing the right promise ring is just as important as choosing an engagement ring. The ring you choose is a ring that she will wear regularly. It is also a ring that she will show her parents and friends. So choose carefully! For the latest trends in jewelry, please visit our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center or call 617-773-3636. If we don't have what you're looking for in stock we will get it, usually within 72 hours with no obligation on the customer's part. Complete written appraisals are available.

Sister Miriam Patrice McKeon: A Voice For The Voiceless

A Tribute To Late Founder Of Fr. Bill's & MainSpring

By JOHN YAZWINSKI and Rev. ADOLPH H. WISMAR, Jr.

When you spoke with Sister Miriam Patrice McKeon, you felt like the most important person in the world. It didn't matter if you were a stranger or you were someone she had known for 50 years, whether you were a prominent community leader or you were homeless without a dime to your name. When you were in Sister Miriam's presence, you were loved, you were respected and you were valued - because she saw every person for what they are above all else: a child of God.

Sister Miriam, one of the founders of Father Bill's & MainSpring, was our Mother Theresa. Last week, she passed away at the age of 88.

A Sister of Charity for 67 years, Sister Miriam spent many years residing at St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy. In the early 1980s, she was part of the original group of interfaith leaders, along with Father Bill McCarthy, who stood up with great courage to make sure people experiencing homelessness had a safe place to stay, leading to the creation of Father Bill's Place in Quincy.

As one of our co-founders, she volunteered a countless number of hours supporting our agency's mission, and she served on our Board of Directors for many years. Sister Miriam was also a founder and tireless advocate for the Friends of the Unborn, a sheltering home and program in Quincy that supports women in a crisis pregnancy.

Sister Miriam was like a walking saint, the type of person who exuded charity and grace, who never spoke a discouraging word and who always brought positivity and calmness to the most difficult of situations. If our mission was being challenged, either through fundraising obstacles or through criticism and judgment from the public, she helped bring it back to faith, reminding us that we were doing God's work on behalf of the most vulnerable members of our community.

For some in our agency, it was Sister Miriam's unwavering belief in God's will that provided the strength needed to continue carrying out our mission, no matter what type of resistance we faced.

When she volunteered at Father Bill's Place, Sister Miriam spent all of her time interacting with the shelter guests, providing them with counsel and support during what, for many, was the darkest and most hopeless periods of their lives. Sister Miriam was drawn to the people who so desperately needed a champion, and this explains why she devoted so much energy serving as an advocate for people experiencing homeless - many of whom struggle with substance-abuse issues and mental health problems - and on behalf of pregnant women out of options and with nowhere else to go.

She was typically quiet and stayed in the background during our board meetings, but make no mistake about it: When critical resources were at stake for our community's most vulnerable residents, she was a fighter on the front lines. Sister Miriam was a voice for the voiceless.

It wasn't uncommon to find Sister Miriam praying with someone at random locations throughout Quincy, whether it was inside a hair salon, a coffee shop, or at City Hall. She did her best work one-on-one; she held onto your hands, gave you her undivided attention, and reminded you that you were not alone.

Sister MIRIAM PATRICE MCKEON

At our FoodFest fundraiser every summer, Sister Miriam routinely sold the most tickets for our raffle drawings; she joked that no one could say no to her. Also at FoodFest, we learned just how much she loved to sing and dance.

Besides her years of service in Quincy, Sister Miriam (a member of the Sisters of Charity based out of Halifax, Nova Scotia) also was missioned in Halifax, Nova Scotia, at St. Joseph's in Needham, St. Patrick's in Roxbury, and most recently at the Elizabeth Seton Residence in Wellesley. The guiding principles of her work can be found in the Constitutions of the Sisters of Charity, Halifax, which says "We strive to show forth the love of God by serving those in need in a spirit of humility, simplicity and charity and according to the circumstances of the times. By living this, our charism, in the Church, we share in the saving mission of Jesus who is the love of God made visible."

You don't meet many people like Sister Miriam in a lifetime; she was a real treasure. We thank the Lord for knowing her.

Volunteer Opportunities With Friends Of The Crane Library

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

Has your life evolved so that your time is more flexible? Do you wish to contribute some of your spare time to your community? Would you like to interact with new people and have new experiences?

If you answer "YES" to any of these questions, come to an informational meeting of the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library on Tuesday March 21, either at 10 a.m. or at 7 p.m. that evening in The Quincy Room, top floor of the Library at 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library are in need of additional volunteers to enable us to continue to be a major contributing factor to the quality of life for children, teens, and adults who live in the City of Quincy.

One hundred percent of funds raised by The Friends are used to support community programs at the library, including lectures, concerts, film screenings, museum passes, and a variety of special events for children

Opportunities to help include: membership, mailing, gardening and bookstore sorting and sales. Volunteer time can be minimal, and varies from weekly to monthly or even quarterly commitments.

Learn about the various volunteer opportunities available through The Friends on March 21. For more information, contact Betty Molloy at 617-479-7440 or bettymolloy@verizon.net. We hope to see you there.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1937 real photo postcard shows Quincy's famous Bargain Center just after it opened on the corner of Washington and Hancock Streets in Quincy Square. The founders – Joseph Coppleman, Louis Ross and Harry Van Dam – and their next generation family members operated this store for almost 50 years until it closed in April, 1986. Today's low-price eclectic stores like Ocean State Job Lot and National Wholesale Liquidators don't even come close to resembling what many affectionately remember as simply "The BC" or "The Bargie." Its place in Quincy's retail legacy is legendary. A year after the store closed the building was demolished and ground was broken for the Presidents Place complex that now occupies this corner of Quincy Square. The Munroe Building on Hancock Street can be seen on the far left. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Harold Darrow: A Great Friend And True Veteran

READERS FORUM

On Wednesday, Feb. 15, 2017, this world lost a great man who was not only a hero who served in World War II but also my good friend. Harold Darrow, known to those close to him as Bud or Buddy, lived in Houghs Neck all his life.

Buddy joined the Navy a week after the attack on Pearl Harbor at the young age of 14. He falsified his birth certificate to join the Navy and fight for this country. During the war, he was stationed in the Pacific on many different ships. He was on a ship headed for Russia when he lost his mother and never got to come home for the services. After a short leave, he was transferred to the West Coast and traveled by train to get there. He was not able to return home until January 1946. He was the first one to join the service from Houghs Neck and the last one to return home. There was no fanfare; he just did his job.

While in the Navy, he reached the rank of first class gunners mate. He was in charge of a gun mount on a minesweeper at the age of 17. He was on the underwater demolition team, also known as a frogman. Buddy received many medals for his service, one of them being a Purple Heart with cluster. Buddy returned home after serving four years at the age of 18 when he was met with his draft notice in the mail. It took a longtime to prove he wasn't dodging the draft. His birthdate would be forever wrong due to the fact that he had to falsify it to join.

Buddy was not the kind of man who sought recognition for his service; he never joined any military organization or bragged about what he had done or medals he received. This is what you call a real American hero.

I got the pleasure of meeting Buddy when we worked together in the boiler room of Quincy City Hospital where we were both third class engineers. We were good friends ever since. I will miss our morning coffee and sharing stories.

Thank you, Buddy, for being a great friend and a true veteran at an early age.

Get The Facts About Diabetes, Risk Factors

Everyone is at risk for prediabetes. As a nurse practitioner student, I see the effects of diabetes in the patients I care for and want to raise awareness through prevention.

How can we prevent diabetes?

Communicating with your health care provider, knowing the risk factors and testing for prediabetes are excellent ways to start.

Prediabetes is a condition where your blood sugar is elevated, but is not high enough to be classified as diabetes. According to a recent article by the CDC, a third of adult Americans have prediabetes which puts them at high risk for developing type II diabetes.

Talking with your health care provider about prediabetes and having a hemoglobin A1C blood test, which gives your average blood sugar over the past three months, will show if you are at risk. This test is important because people with prediabetes do not feel any different.

Knowledge about prediabetes and your personal blood sugar results is the first step to delay or prevent the development of diabetes. The National Diabetes Education Program has done a study that supports the need for more education and outreach. People seem to know about diabetes, but have not been screened themselves.

I urge everyone to communicate with their health care provider and get the facts about their blood sugar results, personal risk factors and how changes to their routine can benefit their health.

As our excitement and dedication to our New Year's resolutions begin to fade, I'd also like to re-energize and encourage everyone to make small lifestyle modifications that can lower blood sugar and prevent diabetes. Increasing activity, losing weight if you are overweight, adding more vegetables, and cutting portion sizes are all examples of changes that can have a big impact on our overall health.

Finally, I'd hope to inspire people to pick up the phone and schedule their annual physical today. At your annual health exam, ask your provider about testing for prediabetes and what your personal risk factors may be. Even small modifications to health behaviors can have lasting, positive effects on your health.

Thank you for taking the time to read this and best wishes for a healthy 2017!

Taxpayers Assn. Demands Pay Increases Be Tied To Cost Of Living

The Quincy Taxpayers Association will demand that any increase given to city employees be tied to the cost of living index.

The association's views will be placed on record at the City Council's Finance Committee meeting.

George Yarrington, executive director, was instructed by the association Board of Directors to appear before the committee and make this demand.

The cost of living has gone up 4.5 percent since the city employees received their last general increase on July 1, 1955.

PAY RAISES SURE, SAYS AUSTIN

"There is no doubt that city employees will get a pay raise, but there has been no decision reached as to what the increase will be and when it will become effective," said Edna B. Austin, Finance Committee chairman. The Quincy City Employees Association is asking for a flat $350 annual increase.

Virtual Walking Tour Of Granite Railway March 16

The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum will present a power point presentation titled "Virtual Walking Tour of the Granite Railway Quarry" Thursday, March 16 at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

The presentation is a virtual walking tour the museum conducted in the fall of 2016. If you did not take the actual walking tour in the fall, this virtual tour will give you everything the walking tour did except the fresh air and rough walking terrain.

The Granite Railway Quarry Company with Thomas Handasyd Perkins as president began operation around 1830 at what was called Pine Hill Ledge in West Quincy. The quarry was opened to supply granite for the Bunker Hill Monument after the Bunker Hill Quarry Company lost the contract to supply granite for the monument. The Granite Railway Company operated under that name for over 112 years.

The Granite Rail Quarry and surrounding land was purchased by the Department of Conservation and Recreation to expand the Blue Hills Reservation. The quarry was filled in with dirt from Boston's Big Dig project and is now a site for rock-climbing and hiking. Artifacts of the granite industry remain today scattered throughout the site.

The virtual walking tour will give the audience a look back in time at the quarry operation.

For additional information call the museum number at 617-472-1322.

'Mutiny On The Bounty Revisited' Topic Tonight At Historical Society

The Quincy Historical Society will offer a new look at the most famous case of mutiny at sea in history at a program entitled "The Mutiny on the Bounty Revisted" Thursday, March 9 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

Guest speaker will be Robert Begin.

By the late 1700's Great Britain had emerged as the world's great power. The Royal Navy was instrumental in her goal of expansion. Its fleets roamed the world in search of territory, knowledge and commerce. No other navy would claim to have the recognition and supremacy that the Royal Navy possessed.

In 1787, William Bligh, a dedicated but nondescript officer, was charged with bringing a ship to Tahiti to gather and bring back to England, samples of the breadfruit plant. His ship, HMS Bounty was not exceptional: actually it was insignificant in stature. The Bounty's voyage to Tahiti went smoothly. The return was another story. On April 28, 1789, mutineers took the ship, and after placing Bligh and 18 of his men in a 23' open boat, the Bounty sailed off seeking a safe haven.

Ever since, the actions, motivations, and justifications and ultimate fates of both the mutineers and Bligh and his loyalists and the response by the Royal Navy have been the subject of discussion and debate and speculation. They have also been represented and misrepresented in several movie versions. Speaker Robert Begin will present the facts and explain what actually happened and why.

Mr. Begin has previously presented several programs at the Historical Society on the USS Quincy, John Paul Jones, and the Barbary Pirates.

Everyone is welcome. There is no charge for admission.

College Planning Night

Quincy High School will host a College Planning Night for students and families Thursday, March 9 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the school's Lloyd Hill Auditorium.

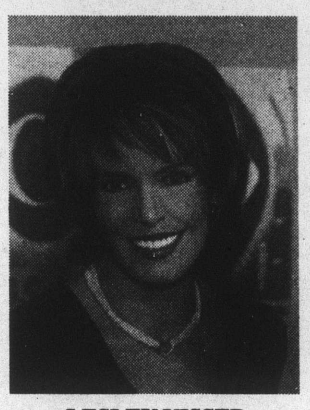
Lesley Visser Keynote Speaker Lasell College Commencement May 14



LESLEY VISSER

Quincy native Lesley Visser, a pioneering broadcast sports journalist and media personality, will deliver the keynote address at Lasell College's commencement Sunday, May 14.

Visser's distinguished résumé reads as a roster of career "firsts." She is the first woman the Boston Globe hired as a sports reporter, the first woman to cover the National Football league (NFL) on a regular basis for any media outlet, the first female NFL color analyst, the first woman to cover the World Series for the network broadcast, the first woman to be recognized by the Pro Football Hall of Fame and the first woman sportscaster to carry the Olympic Torch.

Along with her current reporter duties on CBS's The NFL Today, Visser also contributes to We Need To Talk, the first all-women's network sports talk show, and CBS's coverage of the NFL Playoffs, the Super Bowl and the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship and Final Four games. Known throughout her four-decade journalism career for focusing on substance over style, Visser takes her role as a media mentor seriously, often reaching out to help young female reporters navigate the sports TV industry.

"The entire Lasell community welcomes Lesley Visser as our keynote Commencement speaker," said Lasell College President Michael B. Alexander. "Her experience as a respected broadcaster and trailblazing role model for young women will inspire our students and their families gathered on campus to celebrate the College's 163rd annual Commencement."

Among the numerous honors Visser has received are the Compass Award for "changing the paradigm of her business" and recognition by the Museum of Television and Radio for "a career that has broken many barriers and defined previously unimagined roles for women in professional sports and sports broadcasting."

A native of Quincy, Visser holds a BA degree in English from Boston College and an Honorary Doctorate in journalism from her alma mater. She resides in Bal Harbour, Florida, with her husband, Robert Kanuth, a former Harvard University basketball captain.

Visser will receive an honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters at Lasell's Commencement, set for Sunday, May 14 at 11 a.m. on Taylor Field at the College's Newton campus.

Salem State Professor To Lecture On Snow Cover, Climate Change March 15

Professor Stephen Young, a geographer from Salem State University, will return to Quincy on Wednesday, March 15 to deliver a lecture on his original research into climate change.

Cosponsored by Quincy Climate Action Network and the Thomas Crane Public Library, the lecture will take place at 7 p.m. at the library in Quincy Center

Two years ago, Young gave a well-received lecture in Quincy on evidence of climate change in New England. This year, he will lecture on how our warming climate is affecting snow cover in the northeast US and eastern Canada.

Young uses data from satellites to assess the extent of snow cover as well as the temperature of the soil.

"Snow cover in the past 15 years has been going down," he said in a phone interview. "One potential cause is that excess warmth is causing snow to melt. Another concern is that with less snow cover, less solar energy is being reflected back into space, so that more is absorbed into the earth's system." This further accelerates warming, he said, leading to more snow melt, in what scientists call a feedback loop.

Northern parts of the planet, according to Young, have been heating up faster than other regions, possibly owing to the loss of snow cover.

The loss of snow cover also affects plants and animals.

"Certain life forms live under the snow, and without snow the surface of the earth is much colder," Young said. Loss of snow cover and the warming climate have also cause a northward migration of deer ticks, spreading Lyme disease.

Climate change will hit Quincy in the form of rising sea levels and heat waves, Young said. "The hotter the climate, the more people die in heat waves, and already more people are dying in heat waves than in tornadoes or hurricanes," he said, adding that irritability and crime have also been shown to rise with temperatures.

Young has published widely in scholarly journals, including Conservation Biology, Biotropica, and International Journal of Applied Geospatial Research, but his lecture is intended for the general public. He extended a special welcome to students and those who doubt or deny that the climate is changing.

Stuffed Peppers In Muffin Tins

By MARIE

I have made stuffed peppers dozens of times with great success. However, today's recipe is stuffed peppers baked right in muffin tins and so easy to serve and reheat if needed.

I have two recipes for the stuffing. The first one is a bread stuffing which has always been my family's favorite.

BREAD STUFFING

4 small to medium red bell peppers (cut peppers in half to fit into the muffin tin if peppers are small enough you can use the whole pepper.)
4 slices of bread (any kind that you like - soaked and squeezed)
3 to 4 tablespoons of tomato sauce
1 teaspoon of dried basil
¼ cup of seasoned bread crumbs
1 to 2 tablespoons of grated Parmesan or Romano cheese

Place the drained squeezed bread in a bowl and add all of the bread stuffing ingredients and mix well until the mixture is the right consistency to fill the pepper.

Spray each muffin tin.

Place pepper in tin and put stuffing in it.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes until the peppers are tender.

RICE AND GROUND BEEF STUFFING

1 cup of cooked rice white or brown
½ pound of ground beef (lean)
1 small onion chopped
2 tablespoons of olive oil
Salt, pepper and garlic powder to taste.

In hot oil sauté the onion, add beef. Mix well and add salt pepper and garlic powder. Stuff the same way and bake in 350 degree oven.

Shamrock Eggs

By SUSIE

Here is a fun and easy recipe for St. Patrick's day (or any day!) You can do these with any color peppers, even a variety for a special breakfast, not matter what the holiday. Enjoy!

SHAMROCK EGGS

- eggs (as many as you have bell pepper rings)
- green bell peppers
- pasture butter / olive oil as needed
- sea salt /pepper
- parsley

Instructions

1. Wash and clean out bell pepper
2. Slice across the bell pepper to make shamrock rings
3. Heat butter or oil in frying pan (I used a little of both)
4. Place bell pepper rings in pan to heat
5. Crack eggs into center of each ring
6. (The eggs will ooze out of the rings but you can clean them up later)
7. Flip when one side is cooked
8. Cook to desired texture
9. On plate, clean up edges
10. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, parsley
11. Enjoy!

SS Chamber Of Commerce Employment Law Session March 30

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has scheduled its annual Employment Law Update session on Thursday, March 30th.

The program will run from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Boston Quincy Marriott, 1000 Marriott Dr., Quincy. Registration will begin at 7:15 a.m.

Co-sponsored by the Chamber's Human Resources Group and Murphy, Hesse, Toomey and Lehane, the annual update is a 'must event' for key leaders responsible for human resources in their organizations.

Topics on tap for discussion at the March 30th session include:

- Marijuana in the workplace
- Background checks and CORI
- Data Security
- Immigration

The update will also provide an overview of major legislation, case law developments and significant court decisions.

"This annual event has taken on new importance for the Chamber as it helps shape some of our work around government advocacy on employment law issues," said Peter Forman, president and CEO of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Admission to the highly-anticipated session, which will include a continental breakfast, is $95 for South Shore Chamber members, as well as all Braintree, Weymouth, Rockland and Marshfield Chamber and South Shore Young Professional members and $125 for general admission.

Space is limited; advance registration is encouraged by contacting hmccall@southshorechamber.org.

Manet Health, BMC Health System Form New Primary Affiliation

Manet Community Health Center announces a new primary affiliation with BMC Health System, which includes Boston Medical Center (BMC) and Boston Medical Center HealthNet Plan.

Manet remains an independent Federally Qualified Community Health Center, governed by a patient-majority board of directors. Over the past 18 months, Manet has undertaken a comprehensive strategic planning process to ensure that it can continue to deliver high quality, accessible care to patients and communities along the South Shore.

"Inspired by our Strategic Plan, Manet is moving in a positive direction to best serve our patients and position our dynamic community health center organization for a solid future," said Henry Rittal, vice president of the Manet Board of Directors. That process has included placing an inspired and strong executive team, expanding and renovating practice sites, retaining exceptional and recruiting new primary care providers and remaining a health center in positive standing with the United States, Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA).

At the core of the Manet-BMC affiliation are their shared values and aligned missions. Both organizations are dedicated to providing accessible health care to all, keeping health care in the community, creatively engaging patients in their own health, integrating health care with social services, managing and evaluating performance with data, and building programs that demonstrate positive health outcomes.

"Boston Medical Center is delighted to join with Manet Community Health Center in this partnership. We have been working together since 1999 bringing exceptional health care to patients throughout Quincy and other south shore communities. Our new primary relationship will allow us to develop even more integrated services and better care coordination for the patients we serve," said Kate Walsh, President and CEO of Boston Medical Center.

Manet and Boston Medical Center have enjoyed a secondary affiliation for several years. "Our new primary affiliation builds on that longstanding relationship," said Cynthia Sierra, Manet's CEO. "It will strengthen Manet's role as a strong, vibrant participant of an Accountable Care Organization (ACO) and, with that, our ability to deliver integrated care that is member-centered, wellness-focused, and culturally and linguistically accessible in close collaboration with behavioral health, health-connected social needs, and long-term services and supports."

Manet patients will experience no interruption in care or services with the new BMC affiliation. Patients can continue to utilize such area facilities as Carney Hospital, Dorchester, and Morton Hospital, Taunton, while also benefitting from the services of Boston Medical Center.

The Mystery Of Morgellons Disease

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Morgellons disease is a rare, unexplained skin disorder characterized by sores, crawling sensations on and under the skin, and unidentified fiber-like filaments emerging from the sores.

Popular thought is that these strands are wisps of cotton thread, probably coming from clothing or bandages. Others suggest that they result from an infectious process in the skin cells.

Morgellons is a controversial and poorly understood condition. Some medical experts say Morgellons is a physical illness, while others propose that it is a type of psychosis called "delusional parasitosis," in which a person perceives parasites have infected their skin.

People who have Morgellons disease report the following signs and symptoms:

- Feeling like bugs are crawling all over the skin.
- Burning or stinging sensations under the skin.
- Intense itching.
- Some patients report thread-like fibers stuck in the skin.
- Skin sores that appear suddenly and heal slowly.
- Sores that leave very red scars.
- Difficulty paying attention and concentrating
- Extreme fatigue
- Hair loss
- Joint and muscle pain
- Nervous system problems
- Tooth loss
- Sleep problems
- Short-term memory loss

The intense itching and open sores associated with Morgellons disease can severely affect a person's quality of life.

Morgellons disease is a relatively uncommon condition that most regularly affects middle-aged white women. A cluster of cases occurred in California, which provoked the CDC to conduct a research study to determine if the cases were somehow related. Another study conducted in London reviewed five years of cases, from 2003 to 2008, and found 18 patients with a diagnosis of Morgellons. Of these, 83 percent were middle-aged women and 69 percent were white.

In a previous study, researchers with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) concluded that Morgellons disease, which they refer to as an unexplained dermopathy, isn't caused by an infection or parasites. They examined samples of skin, blood, urine and hair. Many of the patients in the CDC study showed signs of being obsessively concerned about health problems in general, referred to as somatic concerns. About half of the people in the study had additional health problems, including depression and drug abuse.

To date, there is no known cure for Morgellons. Treating any medical or psychiatric problems that transpire at the same time as Morgellons may help alleviate Morgellons symptoms in some patients. A team of medical researchers at the Mayo Clinic also recommend that patients with these symptoms should undergo psychiatric evaluation.

Formerly, few doctors had heard of Morgellons, but in response to scattered reports, the CDC worked with several other health care agencies to investigate this disorder. Most reports came from California, Texas, and Florida, although people afflicted have been seen in all 50 states. The question of whether Morgellons is a disease or a delusion has triggered debate and further research in recent years.

The CDC states that the condition is not caused by an infection or something in the environment. The CDC study also included a lab analysis of skin fibers in Morgellons patients. The analysis showed that these fibers were mostly cotton, such as typically found in clothing or bandages. CDC investigations also revealed that the skin sores appeared to be the result of long-term picking and scratching of the skin. The CDC report continued on to say they were not able to conclude, based on this study, whether this unexplained dermopathy represented a new condition, as had been proposed by those who used the term Morgellons, or a broader recognition of an existing condition such as delusional parasitosis. The results of the CDC study have been archived and are no longer updated. The CDC does not intend to do any further research on this matter.

Besides the CDC, other research teams have contributed to the debate on Morgellons. Previous case studies and investigations have suggested that Morgellons may be related to Lyme disease. Various patients with signs and symptoms of Morgellons had concurrently tested positive for the bacteria that causes Lyme disease. But according to Morgellons researchers at Oklahoma State University, there is no evidence to prove this theory. Likewise, there was no substantiation of Lyme infection in any of the people in the CDC study.

A 2010 study found a potential link between Morgellons symptoms and an underactive thyroid (hypothyroidism). However, more research needs to be done to further examine this finding.

Morgellons also appears comparable to a condition seen in cattle called bovine digital dermatitis, which is due to an infection, according to a 2011 study. But no valid conclusions can be reached from these small studies. Further research is necessitated to ascertain whether Morgellons is an actual new disorder and, if so, to develop diagnostic criteria.

Attitudes toward Morgellons disease differ greatly but seem to fall into several categories:

- Some health professionals believe that Morgellons disease is a specific condition that needs to be confirmed by research, while others believe it is caused by psychological illness.
- Other health professionals don't acknowledge Morgellons disease or are saving judgment until more is known about the condition.

Many patients who suspect they have Morgellons disease allege they've been ignored or dismissed as frauds. In contrast, some doctors say that people who report signs and symptoms of Morgellons disease typically resist other justifications for their condition. That being said, even though health professionals may dispute the nature of the condition, patients deserve caring and compassionate treatment.

To manage signs and symptoms:

- Establish an attentive health care team. Locate a health care provider who acknowledges your concerns, does a thorough examination and discusses treatment options with you.
- Be patient. Your doctor will likely examine you for known conditions that point to evidence-based treatments before considering a diagnosis of Morgellons disease.
- Keep an open mind. Consider alternative causes for your signs and symptoms and discuss your doctor's recommendations for treatment, which may include long-term mental health therapy.
- Pursue management of additional disorders. Get treatment for anxiety, depression or any other condition that affects your thinking, moods or behavior.

Join us to read and discuss Leslie Morgan Steiner's Crazy Love (2009).

Leslie Morgan Steiner met the love of her life at age 22, soon after graduating from Harvard and starting her first job at Seventeen magazine in New York. She fell for his self-deprecating wit and street smarts - and especially his unabashed worship of her. They married and spent four years together. At first Leslie felt like the woman of his dreams.

Then she discovered her husband had been beaten as a child, taught by his parents that intimacy and rage dance together. He brought violence into their life, pouring coffee grinds over her hair, choking and threatening her with a gun during arguments. Several times, he came close to making good on his threats to kill her. Leslie's mistake is one millions identify with: she fell in love with the wrong man. It took one last terrifying attack to convince her that he would kill her one day if she let him.

Gripping and compelling, Crazy Love unravels the traps laid by love, mesmerizing listeners with insights into why smart women stay in unhealthy relationships - and how one found the courage to leave.

Stuffed Peppers In Muffin Tins

By MARIE

I have made stuffed peppers dozens of times with great success. However, today's recipe is stuffed peppers baked right in muffin tins and so easy to serve and reheat if needed.

I have two recipes for the stuffing. The first one is a bread stuffing which has always been my family's favorite.

BREAD STUFFING

4 small to medium red bell peppers (cut peppers in half to fit into the muffin tin if peppers are small enough you can use the whole pepper.)
4 slices of bread (any kind that you like - soaked and squeezed)
3 to 4 tablespoons of tomato sauce
1 teaspoon of dried basil
¼ cup of seasoned bread crumbs
1 to 2 tablespoons of grated Parmesan or Romano cheese

Place the drained squeezed bread in a bowl and add all of the bread stuffing ingredients and mix well until the mixture is the right consistency to fill the pepper.

Spray each muffin tin.

Place pepper in tin and put stuffing in it.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes until the peppers are tender.

RICE AND GROUND BEEF STUFFING

1 cup of cooked rice white or brown
½ pound of ground beef (lean)
1 small onion chopped
2 tablespoons of olive oil
Salt, pepper and garlic powder to taste.

In hot oil sauté the onion, add beef. Mix well and add salt pepper and garlic powder. Stuff the same way and bake in 350 degree oven.

Shamrock Eggs

By SUSIE

Here is a fun and easy recipe for St. Patrick's day (or any day!) You can do these with any color peppers, even a variety for a special breakfast, not matter what the holiday. Enjoy!

SHAMROCK EGGS

- eggs (as many as you have bell pepper rings)
- green bell peppers
- pasture butter / olive oil as needed
- sea salt /pepper
- parsley

Instructions

1. Wash and clean out bell pepper
2. Slice across the bell pepper to make shamrock rings
3. Heat butter or oil in frying pan (I used a little of both)

4. Place bell pepper rings in pan to heat
5. Crack eggs into center of each ring
6. (The eggs will ooze out of the rings but you can clean them up later)
7. Flip when one side is cooked
8. Cook to desired texture
9. On plate, clean up edges
10. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, parsley
11. Enjoy!

SS Chamber Of Commerce Employment Law Session March 30

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has scheduled its annual Employment Law Update session on Thursday, March 30th.

The program will run from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Boston Quincy Marriott, 1000 Marriott Dr., Quincy. Registration will begin at 7:15 a.m.

Co-sponsored by the Chamber's Human Resources Group and Murphy, Hesse, Toomey and Lehane, the annual update is a 'must event' for key leaders responsible for human resources in their organizations.

Topics on tap for discussion at the March 30th session include:

- Marijuana in the workplace
- Background checks and CORI
- Data Security
- Immigration

The update will also provide an overview of major legislation, case law developments and significant court decisions.

"This annual event has taken on new importance for the Chamber as it helps shape some of our work around government advocacy on employment law issues," said Peter Forman, president and CEO of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Admission to the highly-anticipated session, which will include a continental breakfast, is $95 for South Shore Chamber members, as well as all Braintree, Weymouth, Rockland and Marshfield Chamber and South Shore Young Professional members and $125 for general admission.

Space is limited; advance registration is encouraged by contacting hmccall@southshorechamber.org.

and public speaking for my project.

"The biggest skill that I've learned is leadership – not just from my Gold Award but from Girl Scouts in general. That is a huge trait that not a lot of people in today's society have."

Six Silver Award recipients – all from Troop 74125 – were also honored Feb. 5.

Molly Cronin and Olivia Hernon received the award for sowing a vegetable garden at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School. Vegetable's harvested from the garden were provided to students at the school, with excess donated to Interfaith Social Service's food pantry.

Alessandra and Serena Krejci-Papa completed a foster cat project for their Silver Award. They worked with the Quincy Animal Shelter to provide resources on fostering kittens, including a website where foster families could find a how-to guide and a stand at a local pet store to promote fostering.

Alison Cahill and Ashling Mannion's Silver Award project was focused on teenage abusive relationships, The project endeavored to teach teenage girls about the warning signs of an abusive relationship and how to avoid them, Working with DOVE, they created brochures, newsletters and pamphlets for middle school health teachers to better educate students.

Ten Bronze Award recipients from Troop 65472 were also commended.

Lauren Donahue, Catherine Pakkala and Ella Zhu completed a project about bats and birds. Too many people, they said, use herbicides and pesticides harmful to bats and birds. To address this, they went on QATV to make a public service announcement about making bat and bird houses, and worked with the Park Department to make posters showing the same.

Amy, Lyna and Rebekah Dang and Elena Gillespie completed a feral cat project for their Bronze Award. The feral cat population is exploding, they said, and their project is meant to slow that growth. Their project entailed working with the local humane society to encourage the organization to trap, neuter and return feral cats. The scouts also collected donations of cat toys.

For their Bronze Award project, Sophia Clark, Madison Rose and Zara Valencius planted flowers and painted flowers at a local playground, working with the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation. As a result of their efforts, more kids have been using the park.

Seven Tips To Prevent Tax ID Fraud

File Early, File On Protected Wi-Fi Network Among Suggestions

With the 2017 tax season underway, MountainOne is urging all customers to take extra precaution when filing their return to prevent their exposure to tax fraud.

"Fraudsters are using very clever tactics to get a hold of your personal information and submit false tax claims," said Mary Morrow, Senior Community Banking Officer. "Consumers must be suspicious of any communication from the IRS – through email, text or social media – that requests personal information, and should keep a watchful eye out for missing W-2s and mail containing sensitive financial information."

Tax identity fraud takes place when a criminal files a false tax return using a stolen Social Security number in order to fraudulently claim the refund. Identity thieves generally file false claims early in the year and victims are unaware until they file a return and learn one has already been filed in their name.

To help consumers prevent tax ID fraud, MountainOne is offering the following tips:

• File early. File your tax return as soon as you're able, giving criminals less time to use your information to file a false return.

• File on a protected Wi-Fi network. If you're using an online service to file your return, be sure you're connected to a password-protected personal network. Avoid using public networks like a Wi-Fi hotspot at a coffee shop.

• Use a secure mailbox. If you're filing by mail, drop your tax return at the post office or an official postal box instead of your mailbox at home. Some criminals look for completed tax return forms in home mailboxes during tax season.

• Find a tax preparer you trust. If you're planning to hire someone to do your taxes, get recommendations and research a tax preparer thoroughly before handing over all of your financial information.

• Shred what you don't need. Once you've completed your tax return, shred the sensitive documents that you no longer need and safely file away the ones you do.

• Beware of phishing scams by email, text or phone. Scammers may try to solicit sensitive information by impersonating the IRS. Know that the IRS will not contact you by email, text or social media. If the IRS needs information, they will contact you by mail first.

• Keep an eye out for missing mail. Fraudsters look for W-2s, tax refunds or other mail containing your financial information. If you don't receive your W-2s, and your employer indicates they've been mailed, or it looks like it has been previously opened upon delivery, contact the IRS immediately.

If you believe you're a victim of tax identity theft or if the IRS denies your tax return because one has previously been filed under your name, alert the IRS Identity Protection Specialized Unit at 1-800-908-4490. In addition, you should:

• Respond immediately to any IRS notice and complete IRS Form 14039, Identity Theft Affidavit.

• Contact your bank immediately, and close any accounts opened without your permission or tampered with.

• Contact the three major credit bureaus to place a fraud alert on your credit records:

o Equifax, www.Equifax.com, 1-800-525-6285

o Experian, www.Experian.com, 1-888-397-3742

o TransUnion, www.TransUnion.com, 1-800-680-7289

• Continue to pay your taxes and file your tax return, even if you must do so by paper.

More information about tax identity theft is available from the FTC at ftc.gov/taxidtheft and the IRS at irs.gov/identitytheft.

Schools Recognized For High Grad, Low Dropout Rates

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy Public Schools was one of a handful of urban districts recognized by the state for having a high graduation rate and a low number of dropouts.

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro informed the school committee on March 1 that the Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) cited Quincy as having the highest urban city graduation rate above the state level. Quincy was second to Cambridge with the dropout rate below the statewide rate.

According to the he DESE's statement, the state's overall four-year graduation rate improved for the 10th consecutive year while the dropout rate is at the lowest in more than three decades.

Quincy's graduation rate topped the list at 90.4 percent compared to the state rate of 87.5 percent. Cambridge came in second at 88.8 percent and Taunton in third place at 88.7 percent.

The dropout rate for Quincy is 0.9 percent while the state rate is 1.9 percent. Cambridge had the best rate at 0.8 percent.

DeCristofaro said Quincy has seen fewer dropouts in recent years. He noted that two years ago, 43 students left high school and last year, 25 dropped out. At the same time, he said the number of students receiving their high school diplomas has been going up.

"We have seen some real progress," he said, crediting programs the district offers and the work of teachers to retain struggling students. "We would love a zero student dropout rate and a 100 percent graduation rate. Certainly, that's what we strive for and keep working at."

According to the district's profile, the city's dropout rate fell from 1.8 percent in the 2011-12 school-year to 0.9 percent last year. The graduation rate went up from 89.7 percent five years ago to 90.4 percent last year. It was also noted that 80 percent of the city's high school graduates go on to post-secondary education.

The superintendent explained that such specialized programs as the evening high school, GOALS and Pathways offer alternative education choices for struggling and at-risk students.

"We are proud of the breadth of opportunities we offer students," he said. "We make sure in our budget that we have in place (these) programs that gives our students so many more specific opportunities and alternatives."

DeCristofaro said the district maintaining reasonable class sizes and the support of the school committee and Mayor Thomas Koch for the school budget has "put us in a position to offer so much more personalized education at the high school level."

He also noted the prekindergarten, elementary and middle school levels also share the "caring atmosphere" as the high schools where parents, positive community relationships, staff and a rigorous curriculum all go toward a building a strong school system.

"It's a shared vision with students and families that instill a framework, positive relationships, rigor and a consistently sound rationale for graduating while envisioning a future within the world of work, higher education and, of course, service to our country," DeCristofaro said.

He added, "I want to congratulate so many staff members for contributing so many great things to the Quincy Public Schools. I want to congratulate the school system on the dropout rate and the graduation rate."

The DESE said that the graduation rate in the Commonwealth continues to grow for all major ethnic and racial groups in urban communities.

"It is encouraging to see to see our graduation rate increase," DESE Commissioner Mitchel Chester in the department's news release. "A high school diploma is a necessary, although increasingly insufficient, step toward future success. Most students will need to pursue college or career training beyond high school to have access to opportunities in the 21st century."

State Education Secretary James Peyser said in the DESE statement that graduation rate improvements have been realized by low-income, English learner and urban students.

"We are especially pleased to see the gap closing in graduation rates, particularly for Hispanic and African-American students," he said.

The DESE reported that the dropout rate was at its highest in the state in the 2006-07 school year at 3.8 percent where a total of 11,436 students left high school. In the 2015-16 school year, that figure fell to 1.9 percent, or 5,523 students leaving before graduating.

In October 2015, the DESE was awarded a $200,000 grant from the America's Promise Alliance for a multi-year effort to raise statewide graduation rates. The department is using the grant to create a coalition of districts to improve graduation rates for students whose first language is not English.

In another matter, the committee approved an out-of-state trip for the Quincy High School History Bowl Team to compete at the New England History Bee and Bowl at ConVal High School in Peterborough, N.H. on March 25.

Six Firefighters Injured In Quincy Point House Fire

By SCOTT JACKSON

Six firefighters sustained minor injuries while fighting a two-alarm house fire in Quincy Point early Sunday morning in bitterly cold weather.

The fire at 47 Circuit Rd. was called in around 1:45 a.m. Sunday, Deputy Fire Chief Paul Griffith said Monday. A second alarm was struck about 30 minutes later to provide extra manpower on scene.

Four firefighters were injured when they slipped and fell on ice that accumulated while crews shot water at the fire, Griffith said. Two others were injured when they fell 10 feet out of the house's backdoor into the rear yard. The six injured firefighters were not taken to the hospital and remained on scene.

"We were lucky no one was really hurt," Griffith said.

Firefighters had to contend with temperatures in the low teens coupled with a subzero wind chill. Griffith said the firefighters had to work slowly to avoid slipping and falling in icy conditions, and the cold weather rendered one fire hydrant inoperable, though it was fixed later that day. The high winds helped fan the flames and allowed the fire to spread quickly throughout the house, he added.

Four residents were home when the fire started, and all had made it out before firefighters arrived. Griffith said one occupant of the home was taken to an area hospital with unknown injuries, but had been released by Monday afternoon.

The fire caused an estimated $300,000 worth of damage to the home, which is believed to be a total loss.

Griffith said the Circuit Road fire remained under investigation as of Monday, but it was started accidentally.

Firefighters responded to a second fire on Sunday afternoon.

The fire at the Quincy Housing Authority's Tobin Towers building at 80 Clay St. in Wollaston was reported shortly before 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

The fire was located within a sixth-floor apartment. A mattress and bedding inside the apartment caught on fire when a cigarette was improperly disposed off, Griffith said.

Firefighters were able to quickly put out the mattress fire. The units above and below were inspected for smoke and water damage, but none was found.

No residents were inside the sixth-floor apartment when the fire started, but a dog was inside the unit at the time. Griffith said firefighters were able to rescue the dog and left it with tenants living in another apartment on site.

The fire at 80 Clay St. caused an estimated $3,000 in damage.

Writing Your Memoir March 28

Henry M. Quinlan, Esq., publisher of Omni Publishing Company, will give a presentation about writing an autobiography, a novel or a memoir, on Tuesday, March 28th at 10 a.m. at the Kennedy Center in Quincy.

She's Pleased With What Sen. Warren's Done

I, too, read that piece in The Boston Globe which quoted Kirsten Hughes, Quincy's Ward 5 councillor, as well as the chairperson of the Massachusetts Republican Party. I did agree with the headline, "GOP's Hughes Has a Right To Her Opinion," but what an opinion!

I disagree with her comments, quoted in the article, that Senator Warren's constituents are not interested in what she does in Washington but only what she does in Massachusetts.

I am a lifelong Democrat and I am quite pleased with everything she has said and done in the United States Senate. That's what I and many others voted for her to do.

I suppose that it doesn't matter to Mr. Giarratani that she had only recently declared her intention to run for the Senate, again. I say "hooray" for that even if some people carry "fake news" around about her "run" for the presidency.

I've never read about Senator Elizabeth Warren's "shrieking" in the Senate or in Massachusetts but I'm relieved that both Giarratani and Trainor are such strong advocates of free speech for Democrats and Republicans.

New Owner To Host Open Office Hours At QMC Site

The new owner of the Quincy Medical Center site is hosting open office hours March 15 and March 16 for residents to have 'informal and informational conversations' about the Whitwell Street property.

FoxRock Properties will hold the open office hours from noon to 2 p.m. on Wednesday, March 15 and 5:30 to 7 p.m. Thursday, March 16 at its offices at 1245 Hancock St., Suite 33, in Quincy Center. Coffee and refreshments will be provided.

The North Quincy-based company – which is owned by Rob Hale, who is also the president and CEO of Granite Telecommunications – purchased the hospital site at 114 Whitwell St. late last year from Steward Health Care.

FoxRock officials, at a community meeting in January, said there are no definitive plans for the 14.4-acre property but said the company is committed to finding medical uses on site and being good neighbors. In its agreement with Steward, FoxRock agreed to lease the emergency department on site to the former hospital operator for five years.

FoxRock struck a separate deal with the city, announced the same day as the hospital purchase, in which the real estate firm was named the designated developer for the Ross Garage area in Quincy Center.

Quincy Chamber Annual Meeting Thursday

Business Showcase At Boston Marriott Quincy 4-8 PM

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce will host its Annual Meeting & Business Showcase on Thursday, March 9th from 4-8 p.m. at the Boston Marriott Quincy.

Over eighty member businesses will participate in the trade show style event giving them an opportunity to highlight their business to an audience of 400 other small business personnel. A variety of industries are represented from development, financial, healthcare, and services.

"This is the go-to networking event of the year for the Quincy Chamber," said Chamber Vice President Margaret Laforest. "It is a chance for our local business community to connect with each other and we welcome the public to attend. We are the first local event being held in Marriott's newly renovated ballroom."

Tickets are $40 and available online at TheQuincyChamber.com or at the door.

The evening caps off with a speaking presentation with remarks from Mayor Thomas Koch, Quincy Chamber of Commerce Chairman Ed Fleming and Chair-Elect Dolly Di Pesa and keynote speaker Rob Hale. Hale is a co-founder and president of Granite Telecommunications, LLC, a communications company headquartered in Quincy.

Founded in 2002, Granite now has over 1.5 million business telephone lines under management, annual revenues exceeding $1.2 billion and employs over 1,700 workers. The company provides voice and data communications products and services to over two thirds

LBC Partners Pitches Downtown Apartment Building

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Boston-based developer has set aside plans to construct a hotel on Hancock Street as part of the new Quincy Center, but is pressing ahead with a proposal for a 171-unit apartment building on the same site.

LBC Partners of Boston, which has purchased more than $23 million worth of property in Quincy Center in recent years, plans to build the seven-story apartment building at 1500 Hancock St. The site is presently home to one-story retail buildings – now empty – that would be razed to make way for the new development, which would be called Nova Residences.

LBC's proposal features 15,000 square feet of retail space on the ground floor. The building's top six floors would house the 171 residential units. The second floor, with 36 units, could be converted to hotel rooms in the future if market conditions were favorable to doing so.

The project requires approval from both the City Council and Planning Board before it can move forward.

The council is being asked to consider a land disposition agreement submitted by Mayor Thomas Koch. Under the LDA, the city would sell a 10,196 square foot portion of the Hancock Lot to LBC. In exchange, the city would receive 5,657 square feet of land from the developer, plus cash.

An appraisal for the land being swapped between the two parties was still being completed as of Feb. 21, when the project was first presented to the City Council. The appraisal should be completed when the next time the council meets to review the agreement on March 20.

The city would use the land acquired from LBC for two purposes.

The first is widening the sidewalk in front of the proposed building to 18 feet – 10 feet wider than it currently is – to conform to the Urban Revitalization and Development Plan for Quincy Center.

The second piece of land the city would acquire would be used for a glass atrium that would be located between the new building and Nova Suites, a 28-room hotel LBC Partners owns at 3 Cottage Ave. The atrium – 30 feet tall, 130 feet long with 3,600 square feet of space inside – would connect Hancock Street to the Hancock Lot, where the city plans to construct a new parking garage and civic space.

"It will be a well-lit, energized, dynamic environment," Avi Shoss, an architect and principal of SN Consulting Group, said of the proposed atrium.

As part of the project, the city would also replace the century-old drainage system that currently flows under 1500 Hancock St. The new drain line would be relocated under the atrium space. William Geary, Koch's special counsel for downtown development, said the replacement of the drainage is essential for both the Nova Residences project and future work in the Hancock Lot.

"It is not sexy, but it is necessary," he said. "It's indispensible."

The city would pay for both the construction of the new drainage system and the glass atrium, the latter of which Geary said would cost about $1.4 million. The developer is paying for the cost of designing the atrium, about $150,000 to date.

Koch and LBC first unveiled plans for the property in April 2015. At that time, the developer had proposed a 116-room hotel on the site that would have also included ground floor retail.

Since that announcement, LBC worked with a hotel consultant and several major hotel chains to assess the market for placing such a building in Quincy Center, Geary said, and determined one would not be sustainable at the present time. Geary said Pamela McKinney, a consultant for the city, also reached the same conclusion.

The project was one of three announced in April 2015. Construction of the first of those projects, Galvcon's 56-condo development at 1545 Hancock St., began last year. The council approved an LDA for the second project, Peter O'Connell's planned 124-unit, 15-story building on a portion of the Hancock Lot, in January; the Planning Board must still approve that proposal.

The city's LDA with O'Connell included tax incentives to the developer, requiring him to pay 10 percent of gross revenue generated on site in lieu of traditional property taxes.

The proposed agreement with LBC Partners contains no tax incentives. City officials estimate the new building would generate $478,000 in property taxes annually – more than 10 times the $40,000 the company pays in taxes on the same land now. Additionally, Geary said the commercial tenants of the new building could pay to rent space inside the atrium, as could vendors with kiosks there.

LBC Partners would lease parking spaces in the new municipal garage planned for the Hancock Lot. Geary said the developer would rent between 50 and 150 spaces, and its lease payments would be proportional to the cost of constructing the garage. O'Connell would also lease spaces – 126 of them – in the garage, which could have 600 to 700 spaces total. (Plans for the garage will be before the council in April, Geary said.)

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall expressed concern that if the garage were not built big enough, people looking for parking in Quincy Center would be forced to find spaces in the surrounding residential neighborhoods.

"If we don't build that garage appropriately, unfortunately the surrounding neighborhoods will bear the brunt," he said.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked Geary if city officials were aiming to build a hotel elsewhere in Quincy Center with LBC's plan for one shelved.

"It's always been proposed that a hotel was necessary to help revitalize the downtown area. Are we seeking to have a hotel built at another site in the downtown district?" he said.

Geary said the market in Quincy Center does not currently support building a large hotel, but noted a 180-room hotel in North Quincy was recently approved.

"The market does not exist for it currently," in Quincy Center, he said. "There are areas in the city where there may be opportunities for hotel development, but not now in downtown."

Commercial development, eyed at the former Ross Garage site, could help make a hotel feasible in Quincy Center in the future, Geary added.

Councillor Joseph Finn noted the LBC and O'Connell projects have more than 19,000 square feet of retail space between them, and wanted to know if the developer or city had undertaken a market analysis or would do so before the building goes up.

Shoss, the architect, said there is high interest in the retail space from local and national companies.

"We have a significant amount of interest both locally – from local, homegrown retail – and also national retail," he said, adding that the space on the ground is flexible and can be tailored to a particular business's needs.

City Seeks LED Streetlights

communications director, told the council the purchase of the LEDs makes sense for three reasons. Doing so, he said, would reduce the city's overall energy usage by 10 percent per year. By using less electricity, the city would pay less on its energy bills and use the savings to offset the initial purchase price. Finally, Walker said the LEDs provide a quality of life benefit for residents because they give off a cleaner, crisper light than the current bulbs do.

The city has reached an agreement with Siemens to install the LEDs across Quincy. Walker said the contract with the company includes a guarantee that the conversion to LEDs will save the city on its electricity usage; if not the company would have to pay the city the difference or undertake other energy-saving work.

"If we don't make those benchmarks, Siemens will make up the difference." Walker stated.

The deal with Siemens includes a 10-year warranty on the product and labor costs for the LEDs as well as the 10-year performance contract, said Clint Schuckel, an account manager with the firm.

Siemens has undertaken similar projects in three-dozen other Massachusetts communities, such as Gloucester, Salem, Winthrop and Melrose, Schuckel said, and also converted streetlights in Providence to LEDs.

"We've done very similar projects in about 35 different Massachusetts communities, many of which were also performance contracts, and we've not yet experienced a single shortfall," Schuckel said.

The LEDs have a projected 20-year lifespan, more than three times the lifespan of the high-pressure sodium vapor bulbs currently in use.

Schuckel said Quincy would save $424,000 annually on energy and maintenance costs by switching to LED streetlights. That is on top of the $350,000 in maintenance costs the city is already saving annually after purchasing all the streetlights in Quincy, save for those owned by the state, from National Grid for a total of $1 in 2014.

If the city were to convert to LED streetlights, Schuckel said Quincy would be eligible to receive $1.1 million between a rebate from National Grid and a grant from the Massachusetts Department of Energy Resources. That would leave Quincy responsible for paying $2.5 million of the $3.6 million bond.

Schuckel said Siemens could begin replacing the streetlights and traffic lights this spring and complete the project in the fall if the council were to approve the bond. Schuckel said the LEDs would have appropriate brightness for each street they're located on, and would match the style of the lights already in place.

Teacher Training Refocused On English, Math Needs

ment goals," she said. "Reflection at a mid-year point is necessary to understanding how best to achieve goals. It is an opportunity to reset action steps, redirect our instruction and support, and to reevaluate methods and tools to see if they're effective in moving students and ourselves forward."

Perkins explained that teams of special education, literacy, Title One, English Language Learners (ELL) and classroom teachers have identified certain curriculum areas where training needs to be refocused for the second half of the school year. She said that professional development in writing, as it relates to what students read, and improving students' understanding of solving math word problems are among the areas that will be stepped up and that teachers will be working together to address these needs.

"The focus is on collaboration and alignment between all our different areas with our classroom teachers, special education teachers, ELL teachers, elementary (teachers) all the way to high school," Perkins said. "We really worked hard with principals and staff this year to make sure that we are all working together for a common purpose and goal."

In English Language Arts, reading, vocabulary, writing in response to reading, multiple choice, open response and analysis are among the improvement goals from now through June. For math, teacher training will focus more on the use of precise and accurate math language and problem solving.

At the elementary level, multiple choice, understanding fractions as a number and constructed response will be emphasized. Middle and high school teachers will step up instruction on math concepts, geometry/statistics/probability and interpreting the structure of expressions.

Teachers will also work to strengthen ELL students' comprehension of complex texts and continue to work on increasing the achievement of high needs students. Districtwide, teachers will also be preparing students for the new MCAS 2.0 exam that will be rolled out this spring.

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro noted how the effort and time that goes into developing an effective training program for the 850 teachers and staff pays off.

"When you look at our evaluations, overwhelmingly they are positive due to the professionalism of our staff and the effectiveness of this professional development plan," he said.

In other matters: the superintendent informed the committee that plans are in the works to honor the late Central Middle School teacher, Emily Zarnoch, who died in an auto accident last year. He said that a memorial bench will be dedicated at the school in her memory at a future time.

DeCristofaro also told the committee that construction plans for the new Sterling Middle School are on target and that the contractor, Bond Brothers Construction, is ready to begin work in the spring. He said the existing school's gymnasium will be taken out of service in mid-June to allow site work to begin.

"We're very excited about the progress," he said.

Also, Quincy Chorale Boosters President Stacey Barker addressed the committee and requested that a sequential and standards-based music program be available for all students, kindergarten through grade 12. Noting it would be a "long-term process," she suggested the district appoint a dedicated districtwide music head who would oversee and enhance the program.

Additionally, Barker said the music department head would be able "to create opportunities for music teachers to meet, work and strategize together that would serve to bridge any divide that might exist between chorale and band programs and between music educators at different school and across different levels."

Committee member Barbara Isola suggested the proposal be taken up by the teaching and learning subcommittee.

Board of Registrars by July 25. Candidates need to collect 50 signatures; residents running for one of the six ward councillor seats must obtain the signatures from within their ward.

Certified nomination papers, including a statement of candidacy, must be submitted to the city clerk by 5 p.m. on Aug. 8. A list of candidates will be posted by the clerk the following day, Aug. 9. The deadline to file objections to or withdrawals of nomination papers is 5 p.m. on Aug. 10. Ballot positions for the preliminary would be drawn on Aug. 18 at 10 a.m.

The candidates must submit finance reports to the city clerk no later than 5 p.m. on Sept. 5.

The deadline to file a recount petition or withdraw from a nomination following the preliminary is 5 p.m. on Sept. 18. That is also the deadline for a write-in or sticker candidate who won the preliminary to file a written acceptance letter with the city clerk.

The deadline to submit finance reports to the city clerk before the final election is 5 p.m. on Oct. 30.

The deadline to file a recount petition following the final election is Nov. 17 at 5 p.m. Final finance reports are due to the city clerk by 5 p.m. on Jan. 19, 2018.

Residents have until 8 p.m. on Aug. 23 to register to vote in the preliminary, and until 8 p.m. on Oct. 18 to register for the final election. Absentee ballots would be available up until noon the day before each respective election.

Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on both days voters cast their ballots.

While the council unanimously approved this year's election schedule Monday night, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said the body should revisit requirements for candidates prior to the 2019 municipal election.

Palmucci specifically mentioned that some communities require at-large candidates to collect a certain number of signatures in each ward, which is not the case in Quincy. He also said the body should consider whether a mayoral candidate should have to collect only 50 signatures citywide when candidates for ward council seats have to get the same number of signatures in just their ward.

"We obviously don't want to bar folks from running for office, but some of the timelines and some of the hurdles aren't really much of hurdles or timelines," Palmucci said.

getting a home energy assessment helps with all of that."

In addition to HomeWorks Energy and National Grid, the City worked with Home Energy Efficiency Team (HEET), a Cambridge nonprofit. According to Shelly Dein, Quincy's energy director and the City's point person for Quincy Saves, HomeWorks sent representatives to Quincy events and stores, where they met with residents and encouraged them to get the assessments. HEET helped with outreach to the city's Asian community and did advance work to get HomeWorks personnel invited to meet residents at church fairs, lectures, movie screenings, and other public events.

National Grid set ambitious goals for the number of audits, new heating unit installations, and air sealing and insulation jobs performed by Quincy Saves, and according to Dein, the program easily met all goals, exceeding one by more than 1,200 percent. As a result, National Grid will award the city $40,000, of which half will defray Quincy Saves program expenses and half will go toward an energy efficiency project, possibly the lease or purchase of an electric car for the city fleet.

The Power Of Social Security

By KRISTEN ALBERINO
Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

March is Women's History Month — a time to focus not just on the past, but on the challenges women continue to face. Nearly 60 percent of the people receiving Social Security benefits are women, and in the 21st century, more women work, pay Social Security taxes, and earn credit toward monthly retirement income than at any other time in our nation's history. Knowing this, you can be the author of your own rich and independent history, with a little preparation.

Social Security has served a vital role in the lives of women for over 80 years. With longer life expectancies than men, women tend to live more years in retirement and have a greater chance of exhausting other sources of income. With the national average life expectancy for women in the United States rising, many women will have decades to enjoy retirement. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, a female born today can expect to live more than 80 years. As a result, experts generally agree that if women want to ensure that their retirement years are comfortable, they need to plan early and wisely.

You can start with a visit to Social Security's Retirement Estimator. It gives you a personalized estimate of your retirement benefits. Plug in different retirement ages and projected earnings to get an idea of how such things might change your future benefit amounts. You can use this valuable tool at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator.

You should also visit Social Security's financial planning website at www.socialsecurity.gov/planners. It provides detailed information about how marriage, widowhood, divorce, self-employment, government service, and other life or career events can affect your Social Security.

Your benefits are based on your earnings, so you should create your personal my Social Security account to verify that your earnings were reported correctly. Your account also can provide estimates of your future retirement, disability, and survivors benefits.

If you want more information about how Social Security supports women through life's journey, Social Security has a booklet that you may find useful. It's called Social Security: What Every Woman Should Know. You can find it online at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10127.html.

Two Local Churches Offer 'Ashes To Go'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Commuters who use the Wollaston MBTA station received a special welcome one recent morning.

The pastors of two local churches – the Rev. Liz Williams of the Wollaston Congregational Church and the Rev. Alissa Oleson of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church – were there the morning of March 1, Ash Wednesday, blessing those headed to the Red Line with ashes.

The two pastors both joined their respective churches in 2016, and Williams said they had been meeting to discuss how to reach out to the community.

"The idea is to reach out to the younger commuting population in particular," she said. "I particularly like rituals such as imposition of ashes, as they offer people an opportunity to connect with an early tradition of the church in a visual, tactile way."

The concept, dubbed 'Ashes to Go,' is not new to Quincy, Williams said. Clergy from Quincy Point Congregational Church and Bethany Congregational Church have offered the service to commuters at the Quincy Center station in recent years.

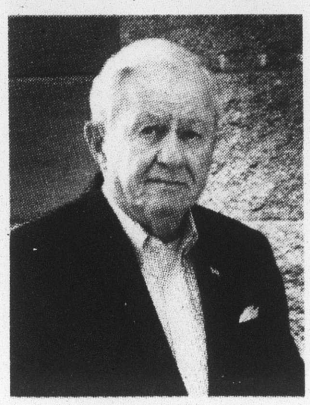
Tom Galvin To Be Honored At St. Patrick's Lunch March 17

Long-time community leader and historian Tom Galvin will be honored as Irishman of the Year at City's 21st Annual St. Patrick's Lunch set for noon on Friday, March 17 at the Tirrell Room, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quarry Street, West Quincy.

Mayor Thomas Koch and Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti, who will once again host the event at the Quincy Elks, announced this year's honoree on Tuesday. Galvin, a life-long Quincy resident and retired executive at Boston Gear Works, has been active in the City for decades. He's a past president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; a Quincy Rotarian for nearly 40 years and a past chairman of the Quincy 2000 economic development group among many others.

He's also the volunteer chairman of the City's Cemetery Board of Managers and the official City Historian, and he's especially well known for his walking tours of Mount Wollaston Cemetery and weekly historic postcard submissions to The Quincy Sun.

"'Tom is truly the personification of community," Bellotti and Koch said in a joint statement. "He's given his time and talent in so many ways for decades – all because he cares deeply about our City and its people. He's an institution, and we're thrilled to be honoring him at this year's Lunch."



TOM GALVIN

The annual corned-beef and blarney event will, as always, include traditional Irish music and performances as well jokes at the expense of the local elected officials.

Proceeds will benefit the Quincy Parks Conservancy, and tickets are $50. Table sponsorships are available, but space is limited.

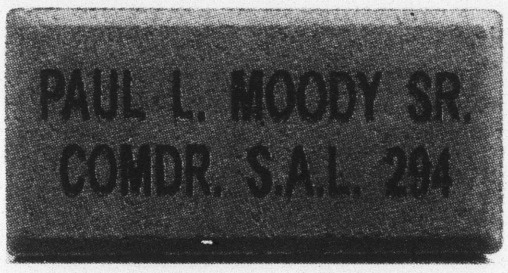
Bricks for Veterans Program



Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

ence. Technology, Engineering and Math) projects will be judged.

The students were among 120 classmates who participated in Quincy High School's 10th annual STEM Fair on Feb. 15. About 250 people, including parents and students, viewed the STEM projects during the fair.

The event featured 105 projects from grades 9 through 12 and spanned the fields of biology, chemistry, environmental science, physics, and engineering.

"They are interdisciplinary projects that span the fields based on what kids are interested in," Quincy High School science department Chairman Edward Smith said. "If they are in biology, they don't have to do a biology project. Students worked individually or as a team to investigate topics such as heart rate, nutrition, alternative energy, and innovative building materials."

Smith explained that the students began the projects in September. A research paper was due in October, data was collected during November and December and then the projects were completed and ready for judging in February.

"It's a yearlong project," he said. "It's a great experience for students to have some inquiry based learning throughout the year. This (STEM Fair) is the celebration, a graduation, of the science fair."

Smith said that 65 professionals from the community served as volunteer judges during the fair. Project scores were then tallied and weighted based on scientific approach, creativity, understanding, and presentation.

"Every project was judged by three adults and one student judge," he said. "The student judges are generally in honors level classes or underclassmen not in the fair. We try to stimulate some excitement for them in the science fair by having them come and judge either older kids or kids in advanced classes."

According to Smith, the in-depth project work helps students build such career and life skills as critical and creative thinking, communication, teamwork and ethical decision-making in preparation for successful 21st century careers.

"Quincy High School students work one-on-one with teachers and professionals year-round to follow their natural curiosity and explore 'real world' science and engineering problems," he said.

Smith noted that the

Quincy Bounces Brookline, Bows To 1-Seed Mansfield

By JOE REARDON

After an inspiring 74-56 first-round win over Brookline in the Div. 1 South Sectionals, everyone in President Nation knew Quincy would have a monumental task trying to upend top-seeded Mansfield in their own house last Friday night in the quarterfinal round.

The Presidents did their job by hanging tough with Mansfield in the early going, but the Hornets showed exactly why they clinched the No. 1 rank in the Div. 1 rankings in the South.

Quincy did stay close to the 23-2 Hornets for the opening quarter, but a second quarter run by Mansfield put the No. 8 seeded Presidents down to stay with a decisive 71-43 win that ended their season at 14-8.

"They're a tremendous team," said Quincy head coach David Parry. "I take my hat off to them. We stuck with them for that first quarter. We felt pretty good about ourselves then and then things just started slipping away."

The Hornets' stingy defense held the Quincy threesome of Ugo Kamalu, Kyle Murphy and Will Zarges to eight points apiece. Kamalu was in foul trouble almost immediately and his season ended with 5:16 remaining in the game when he notched his six infraction of the evening.

Mansfield's scoring was spread out with 11 players putting points on the board, led by Samuel Goldberg (12 points) and Tyler Boulter (11 points).

Quincy came out quick against Mansfield in the first quarter, much the way they did against Brookline, getting an inside hoop from Kamalu and a three-pointer from Zarges to tie the game 5-5. After consecutive baskets from Mansfield, the Presidents went to the basket hard and put together an 8-0 run, led by a three from Kamalu and a pair of baskets from Ramy Chebbo to take a 13-10 lead.

That would be the last time the Presidents were up all evening as the Hornets closed out the first quarter scoring with a John McCoy three pointer and an inside bucket from Samuel Hyland for a 15-13 advantage.

The two teams came out in the second with matching three pointers - Quincy's coming on a long-range shot by Zarges - before the Hornets dealt the blow that knocked the Presidents from the postseason. Boulter and Philip Vigeant both hit from beyond the arc and Mansfield hit on 4-of-7 from the free throw line during a 15-1 tear that put the Hornets up 33-17. They went to the locker room with a 33-20 advantage and would only extend it from there in the second half.

Parry wasn't about to panic, though, and thought the Presidents had to get the lead down to single digits entering the final eight minutes to give them a fighting chance. The Hornets already had a big run and Quincy wanted to prevent another by taking their time until they had high percentage shots to go after.

"We wanted to cut it down to six or so getting into the fourth," Parry said. "You're not going to get it all back. There's no 13-point plays. There's nothing I could script up for them to come right back. I had to break it down a little bit. We felt that they had their run. I thought if we came back we could have a litte run of our own. If we could cut it to six or seven points and keep it even for a period of time I thought that might help us. But they just kept coming. They're a very deep and talented team.

"We tried some different things, but they didn't give a lot. We were trying to milk the clock a little bit, but not too much because we were down by too much. We wanted to make sure we had good quality shots. We didn't want the kids coming down and shooting off that first pass. We wanted to make sure they presented a good shot. That's kind of the way the kids have been playing all season. One guy would give up a good shot to a teammate for a better shot. That's how, to me, you become a very good team."

Mansfield's outside shooting proved to be the difference when Quincy tried to stop their scoring in the paint.

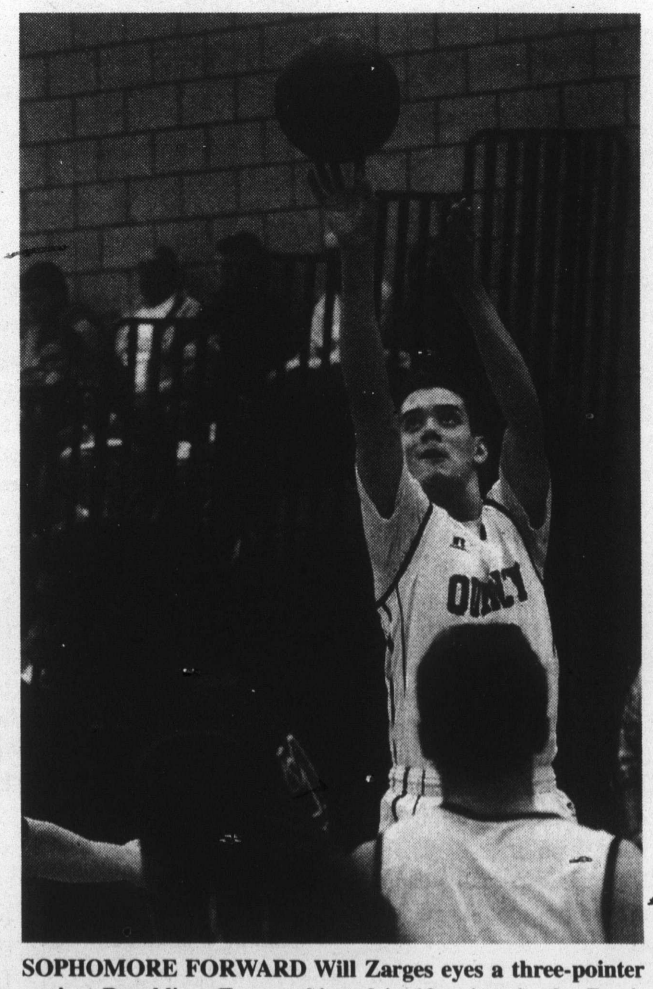
"They're a big team," said Parry. "They won 22 games for a reason. They all rebound and play together. And they can all shoot threes. We tried to take away their inside drives because we thought that was key, but they could really shoot the rock tonight."

A pair of free throws from Damyan Markov and a Murphy three got the Presidents within 10, 35-25, with 5:12 left in the third, but Quincy wasn't able to put a dent into the Hornets' lead after that. Mansfield knocked down six three pointers in the second half and finished with 11 on the night.

"Obviously he's one of our main weapons and when we don't have him things kind of slow down a bit," said Parry of Kamalu. "I just can't replace his offensive end or his rebounding. That kind of hurt tonight, obviously."

Quincy's players were upset and disappointed by the loss, but Parry said the preparation for next season started when the final buzzer sounded.

"We have some young guys who got some quality time at the end," said Parry. "Hopefully that will motivate them for the offseason. Hopefully they want to get back to something like this in their years coming up. That's what we try to do. We try to promote getting in the tournament every year and then anything can happen. And that comes from hard work. Next year starts tomorrow. The guys who want it will be in the gym doing their thing. I told them they really had to be proud of what they did Wednesday night (against Brookline). They came out focused and we had a good game plan for them. Tonight, you really couldn't game plan for this team. They're that deep"



SOPHOMORE FORWARD Will Zarges eyes a three-pointer against Brookline. Zarges chipped in 12 points in the Presidents' 74-56 first-round tournament win.

PRESERVING YOUR KNEES

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, nearly one out of two people may develop symptomatic knee osteoarthritis by age 85. Not only is knee osteoarthritis becoming more prevalent, but it is striking Americans at a younger age. By 2020, it is estimated that approximately 6.5 million Americans between 35 and 84 will be diagnosed with the condition, and the average age of diagnosis will have fallen from 72 to 55. If there is any good news to report, it is that chiropractic treatment and massage therapy have been linked with better knee function in patients experiencing this problem. Research indicates that chiropractic adjustments improve mobility and decrease clicking and grinding sensations among people with knee osteoarthritis.

A chiropractor's role in treating patients with knee osteoarthritis is to minimize disability in mild to moderate cases. The chiropractor will also discuss options with patients whose degenerative changes have reached a stage at which more invasive therapy is necessary to preserve optimum quality of life. To schedule an appointment please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. Our practice is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Two out of every three obese individuals may develop symptomatic knee osteoarthritis in their lifetimes.

A past president of the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association, he also was an assistant men's basketball coach at Boston College and the head basketball coach and baseball coach at Newton Junior College.

He also been an active adminstrator including director of sports promotion at Boston University, director of athletics at Bridgewater State College, owner/director of "The Basketball School and Grand Slam Softball," coordinator of physical education at Medfield Public Schools and director of business development at Mass Premier Courts.

North Quincy Girls Basketball Finishes With A Win

After enduring a two win season a year ago, the North Quincy Girls basketball team, in a near 180, finished their season at 10-12 after a home win against Eastern Athletic foe Martha's Vineyard, 45-31.

The Red Raiders, playing their best basketball of the season down the stretch, won five of their last six contests, missing the Division 1 South Tournament by a single game.

Against the Vineyarders, whom the Red and Black lost to on opening night in December, North led from wire-to-wire, taking an early 6-4 lead on baskets by Kerin Coleman and Remy Aucoin. A Jenn Butka three pointer with five seconds left in the quarter gave North an 11-4 advantage entering the second quarter.

North's offense stalled a bit until a Celia Hussey 10-footer found the mark with 5:30 left in the half. A Jill Hallisey steal and coast to coast layup put the hosts up 18-6. The Raiders held for one shot as the half wound down and Butka found Aucoin underneath with a pretty pass as the buzzer went off.

Defensively, Hallisey and Samantha Smith were limiting senior captain Whitney Schroder to practically nothing playing her tight without the ball. Schroder had scored 24 against North in their first match up, including 6 three-pointers.

North opened the second half with baskets by Aucoin and Coleman. After Hallisey took a charge, Jessie Caldwell hit a baseline jumper to stretch the lead to 26-14. Back-to-back steals by Hallisey and Karyn McEvoy resulted in the Raiders extending the lead to 14 entering the final quarter.

However, Martha's Vineyard was not done. They came out to begin the fourth on a 7-0 run to close the gap to 7. Aucoin ended the North Quincy scoring drought with a basket at the 4:14 mark. A Hallisey steal and resulting free throw upped the lead back to ten. North then sent a parade of players to the free throw line attempting 19 free throws in the fourth, converting 12.

With 57.5 seconds left and the Red and Black up only by a 36-31 score, McEvoy sank two free throws as did senior captain Abbie Koch. Then senior Michelle Mark sealed the deal making 5 of 6 free throws and provide the Raiders with the win.

"Our defense in the last five games was outstanding," said Coach Paul Bregoli "We held teams to an average of 34 points during that stretch. Kids like Hallisey, Smith, Coleman, Koch and McEvoy really stepped it up. Hallisey and Smith did a great job on Schroder today, holding her to only 9 points.

"I was especially happy the seniors could go out with a win after all they have been through. They finished their high school careers on the floor together in the last two games. The reaction from the underclassmen was special as they watched them on the court for the final time.

"Our seniors were terrific. Each one had a role and they were unselfish and did everything to help the team win and, it rubbed off on the others," Bregoli added.

Leading the Raiders was Aucoin with 15 points, 8 rebounds and two blocked shots. Aucoin finished her career with 789 points and 804 rebounds. She also broke the career mark for blocked shots finishing with 145 while also setting the single season record for blocked shots with 61. Aucoin was named to the Patriot League All-Star team for the third time. Coleman had 6 while Mark and Hallisey had 5 apiece and Butka and McEvoy added 4 each.

Friends Of Wollaston Beach Present Annual Awards

The Friends of Wollaston Beach capped off its tenth Beach Season with the Annual Meeting and Awards event, held at the Robert I. Nickerson Post in Squantum.

FWB President Neil McCole opened the meeting with an overview of the last 10 years. He praised the work of each of the committees throughout the years in fulfilling the group's mission of "promoting public use of Wollaston Beach, preserving and protecting the fragile ecosystems, and addressing the quality of life issues relating to the Beach." He spoke of the thousands of hours spent in promoting free family events such as the Kids' Fest and the Kite Fest; reading programs, puppet shows and family-friendly movies in the Tot Lot, a car show, art exhibits, volleyball tournaments, the John Hancock and Cupid Splash plunges, senior lunches at Tony's and the Clam Box, holiday meetings where members generously donated gifts to benefit underserved children, and, of course, the beach cleanups on Park Serve Day (late April) and Cleaner Greener Quincy (early May).

One of the more high-profile activities sponsored by FWB is the interpretive trail along the Beach. McCole envisioned signage along the Beach to bring a bird's eye view of all that surrounds Wollaston Beach. McCole and late FWB vice president, Dick Herbert, brought the concept to the attention of Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR). DCR and FWB jointly filed an application with Quincy's Community Preservation Committee (CPC) who, with the DCR, shared the funding for the signs.

The project could not have been completed, nor been as effective without City Historian Tom Galvin. His photographs and postcards, combined with a succinct narrative brought the project to life. In addition to thanking the DCR and CPC for their contributions, McCole thanked the group's benefactors – Save the Harbor/Save the Bay and a local anonymous foundation.

"Without the financial assistance of these groups, we would not be able to do as much as we do for beach users" said McCole.

Robert Bosworth (and the staff of The Quincy Sun) was honored with the Friend of the Year Award for his community engagement and being a tireless cheerleader and Friend to Quincy's environmental, religious, social, civic and PTO groups. Bosworth and the Sun promote all of Quincy's events – no matter how small – following the tradition established by Bob's late father, Quincy Sun founder Henry Bosworth.

ENVIRONMENTAL AND COMMUNITY activist Sally Owen receives the Spirit Award from Neil McCole, president, Friends of Wollaston Beach, at the group's recent annual meeting at the Robert I. Nickerson Post in Squantum. McCole was also recognized with the President's Award serving as president of the group for nine of the first 10 years. He has stepped down. Former Councillor Doug Gutro has succeeded McCole as the Friends' new president.

ROBERT BOSWORTH, publisher, The Quincy Sun, shares a laugh with Mayor Thomas Koch at the Friends of Wollaston Beach annual meeting. The Sun was honored as the FWB's Friend of the Year for promoting and publicizing the group's many activities.

Also on hand to honor Bosworth were Mayor Thomas Koch, Councillors William Harris and Noel DiBona, state Rep. Bruce Ayers and Norfolk DA Michael Morrissey.

"On behalf of The Quincy Sun staff, I am grateful and honored to accept this recognition from the Friends of Wollaston Beach," Bosworth said. "The Quincy Sun was established in 1968 by my dad because Quincy did not have a newspaper devoted soley to the City of Presidents. Nearly 50 years later our mission has not changed: cover Quincy and only Quincy.

"The Friends of Wollaston Beach is just one of the many groups in Quincy that have worked tirelessly to enhance the quality of life here. The Friends may be thanking The Sun for helping them promote their activities but we should be thanking them for making Quincy a better place to live, work and raise a family.

"Thank you again for this recognition. We are happy to be 'friends" with the Friends of Wollaston Beach. And congratulations to the other award recipients. Together everyone is making a positive difference in our city," Bosworth added.

Citations from each of the city's elected officials were presented to Bosworth and the other honorees.

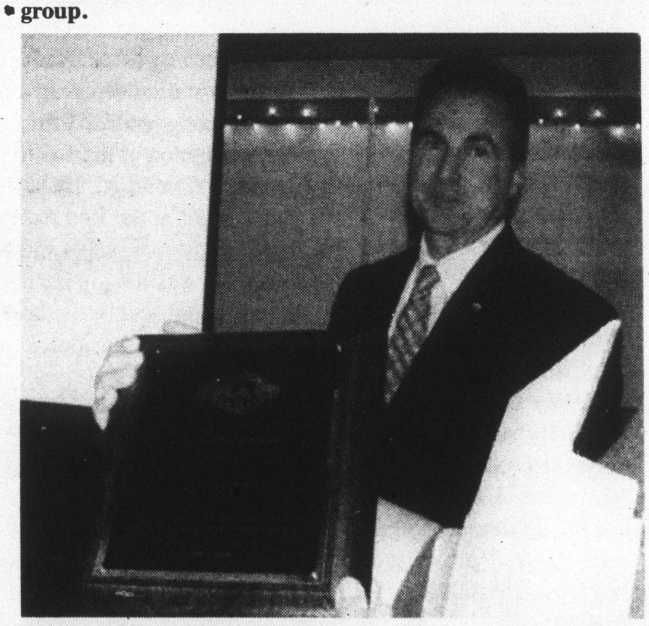
Sally Owen was given the Spirit Award for her advocacy for Quincy's Environmental Treasures (including Wollaston Beach) since 2000. Owen engages residents and non-residents alike in programs that highlight the hidden gems of the city. Whether it's a moonlight stroll along a newly-created nature walk, a program co-sponsored by the DCR to explore the quarries, or visiting the formal gardens at the Adams Mansion (her very first tour), Sally has turned the program into a "must do" for over 16 years. Steve Perdios of the Quincy Environmental Network may have said it best when Sally did her 100th tour in 2008.

"The tours are important because they draw people's attention to Quincy's natural treasures, and make people want to help preserve them." Owen's philosophy is that "if you are made aware of these wonderful places, you become a stakeholder, and are more inclined to become a steward."

The Member of the Year Award was given to FWB secretary, Bob Verney. Verney can be seen walking Wollaston Beach all year long picking up trash along the way. It's hard to tell how much trash Bob has "rescued" from polluting the Beach and its waters over the years, but it is substantial.

Bob's theory is that "When the beach is clean, people are less likely to carelessly discard a piece of trash – they don't want to be the first. But, if cans and food wrappers are already there, you might not feel too bad about it. It's all about perception and creating a litter free environment for our kids and grandkids."

NEIL McCOLE (left), immediate past president of the Friends of Wollaston Beach, receives a State House citation from state Rep. Bruce Ayers at the FWB annual meeting. McCole led the group for nine of the last 10 years as president. He has been succeeded by former councillor Doug Gutro. Gutro and the late Brian McNamee were instrumental in organizing the formation of FWB by donating money to help establish the group.



DOUG GUTRO, the new president of the Friends of Wollaston Beach, holds the plaque he presented to Neil McCole for his years of leadership as FWB president. McCole stepped down at the annual meeting after nine years of service as president. Gutro, a former councillor who helped establish the FWB along with former council colleague and friend Brian McNamee, was elected to succeed McCole as president.

Following the customary reports, the Nominating Committee offered the slate of new officers for the coming year: Doug Gutro, president; Bob Verney, secretary and Maureen Mazrimas, treasurer. Verney and Mazrimas have held those positions since the group was formed. Mazrimas joked that she and Verney were like judges – appointed for life! As for Gutro, he and the late Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee spearheaded the creation of the group with a donation of seed money all those years ago.

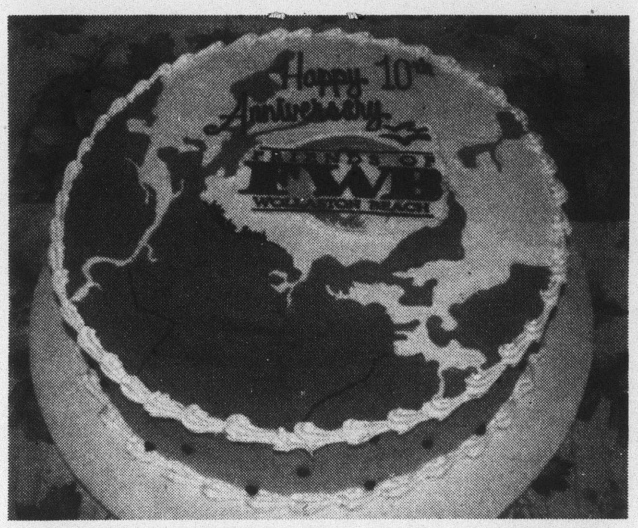
Gutro's first duty was to present The President's Award to outgoing president, Neil McCole. McCole served as president of FWB for 9 of its 10 years. He has been like the Energizer Bunny in his advocacy for the beach and its users. Through his work in preparing grant applications, assisted by Carla Moran, he has assured that the group will have sufficient funds to continue to be able to provide a wonderful experience for all beach users – particularly families – at no cost to them. He is indefatigable.

Gutro asked members to become involved in the life of the group. "This is your beach. I'd invite anyone with an interest in preserving it to reach out to me or one of the other officers and offer any expertise you might have.



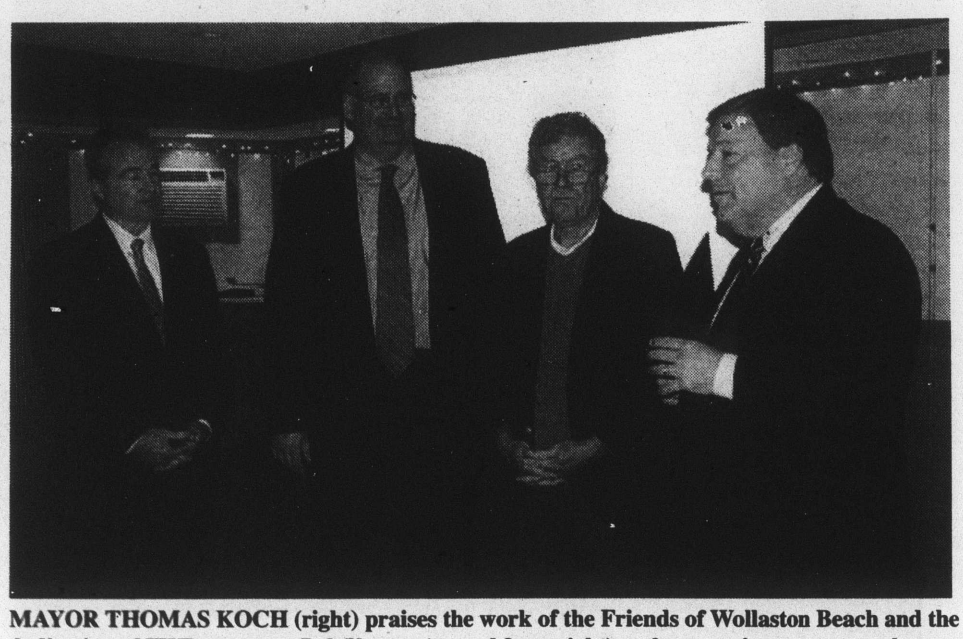
CAKE FROM MONTILIO'S celebrates the 10th anniversary of the Friends of Wollaston Beach civic and beautification group.

We are looking to the next generation of beach users to 'step up to the plate' and help us out. We cannot do this alone."

The evening concluded with a light buffet, and was topped off with an amazing cake from Montilio's showing Wollaston Beach and the Boston Harbor Islands.

On behalf of FWB, Gutro thanked Montilio's for creating an edible piece of art, our benefactors for keeping us solvent, the Committee responsible for setting up and breaking down, the Nickerson Post and its members for their hospitality, and those members who brought food and desserts. He also gave a shout out to the DCR, the CPC, Discover Quincy, the City of Quincy, Tony's, the Clam Box and Wollaston Yacht Club, each of whom has contributed in some meaningful way to the success of FWB.

"We are looking forward to another productive season at the Beach," said Gutro. "Working together, we can continue to provide family-centered events on the Beach. And, more importantly, we need to continue our advocacy for amenities, maintenance and public safety for years to come."



MAYOR THOMAS KOCH (right) praises the work of the Friends of Wollaston Beach and the dedication of FWB secretary Bob Verney (second from right) at the group's recent annual meeting and awards night at the Nickerson American Legion Post in Squantum. Q/NQ Indoor Track Wrap Up

Q/North Quincy indoor track teams completed another season in the always tough Patriot League.

Per usual Whitman-Hanson, Hingham, Pembroke, and Plymouth North all contended for the top team scores in their divisions and had multiple All-State qualifiers.

QNQ did manage to place Jimmy Cannon and Devin Hiltunen on the All-Star team. Cannon and Alex Case were selected Scholar-athletes for the team and Kara Polsgrove and Cannon received the sportsmanship awards. Cannon managed to lose just once in the two mile qualifying for the Division 1 state meet in the two mile for the first time with a 10:05.61.

"Jimmy has been so close so many times it was great to finally see him make it," said Coach Geoff Hennessy. "Division 1 is the toughest in the state so when you make that it proves you're one of the best."

The girls 4 x 200 relay also provided some fireworks. Hennessy tried several combinations and substitutions trying to find the best talent and order and it all came together at the State Divisional. The team of Alex Case, Kelsey Coughlin, Mia Healy and Devin Hiltunen broke the NQ school record with a time of 1:50.00.

"Every baton pass was perfect," Hennessy said. "It was the first time everything came together and we did it in the biggest venue placing eighth." Although the girls didn't advance, they beat several automatic qualifiers from lower divisions.

"We only graduate Mia Healy so we should run even faster next year," Hennessy said. "Case and Hiltunen have shown themselves to be hard workers and consistent trainers. Sarah Pillone (freshman) might be the one to fill Mia's spot next year but nothing's promised. It'll be fun to find out."

On the boys side, Nathan Sleiman started the year off with a bang with a fifth in the Pentathlon at the Boston Holiday Challenge. He also made finals at the Red Auerbach Freshman-sophomore meet. He was the top sophomore in the league in both long jump and hurdles and has multiple talents.

"Nathan is not one to shy away from training," Hennessy said. "For a 10th grader he has accomplished much. We take him for granted but consider he lit it up in football as well with interceptions and touchdowns and carried that over to the track. He's a master technician and looks to make a huge impact in spring."

Other distance runners like Rory Mahoney and Abby Murphy also spell "double trouble." Mahoney was the top freshman miler for most of the indoor season and Murphy was sure points in the 600 or 1000 all winter. Murphy did her best at States with a 1:46 in the 600 placing 16th in a talent laden field.

One of the most improved runners was Ava Lapsley. As a freshman she spent most of cross country nursing injuries but has improved nearly 30 seconds in her 1000 meter race and Hennessy moved her up to the mile where she ran 6:12.

"Ava was never afraid to work hard and is someone who always did her best," Hennessy said. "A lot of kids she couldn't beat in cross country now only see her back in races. Boy runners like Aidan Ring and Matt McGrourty moved around between the 600, 1000 or mile and continued to improve due to their work ethic. "Give credit to our distance coach Carolyn Mullaney who worked these kids daily either indoors or out. They were on the roads, on the track, on the bikes, in the weight room."

Hennessy was quick to praise the rest of his staff. Michelle Bell, John Green, Dee Page and Seth Harmon brought out the best from the small 40 member squad.

"They were problem solvers all winter," he said. "We rub shoulders with the hoop teams, the wrestlers, the football lifters. The kids in QPS don't know how blessed they are to have such good people working with them. Of course there's always room for improvement but we all push our kids to realize their full potential."

Friends Of Wollaston Beach (FWB) Secretary Bob Verney Participates in 'Shamrock Splash'

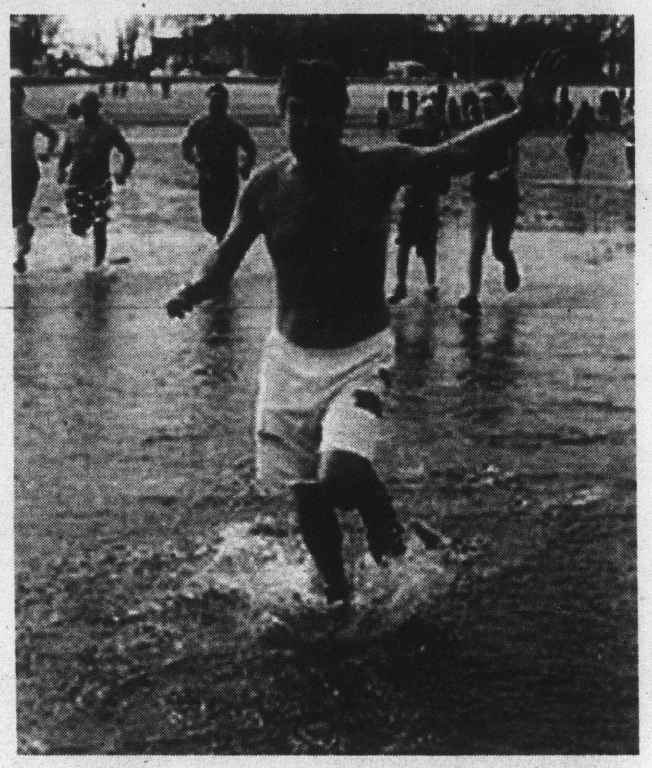
On Sunday, March 5, with temperatures in the teens, and most people trying to stay warm, Friends of Wollaston Beach Secretary Bob Verney was "plunging" into Boston Harbor to support the efforts of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay (SH/SB).

Thus far, Verney's plunge into bone-chilling waters at the BCYF Curley Community Center in South Boston has singularly raised $345 in support of free beach events and programs. The total pledged for Wollaston Beach has just passed the $1,000 mark.

The "Splash" has enabled SH/SB to generously assist FWB in providing free family-friendly events on Wollaston Beach for nearly a decade.

"It's not too late to support Wollaston Beach and reward Bob's efforts" said FWB President Doug Gutro. "With declining funds to support beach programs, we rely on the generosity of advocacy groups like SH/SB more than ever."

To support Bob's splash, go to: http://shamrock-splash.org/participantpage.asp?fundid=2036&uid=3592&fkroledescid=5 and make a pledge. When you do, you are sending a message that Wollaston Beach users are invested in the many programs that FWB sponsors.



BOB VERNEY, scretary of the Friends of Wollaston Beach, participated in Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's "Shamrock Splash" Sunday at the BCYF Curley Community Center in South Boston. Verney raised $345 in support of free beach events and programs.

Friends of Wollaston Beach is a community-based organization which has sponsored events and programming, advocated for amenities and maintenance at Wollaston Beach for the past ten years. Residents interested in becoming a member of FWB, or learning of upcoming events and activities should visit wollastonbeach.org or "like" the FWB Facebook page. Membership is $10 per year, and members donating more than $15 get a free t shirt.

Congratulations and Many Thanks to Bob Verney. His efforts and those of other plungers make Wollaston Beach and the other beaches from Nahant to Nantasket, such great recreational resources.

Registry Of Deeds Promotes Foreclosure Assistance Programs

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell reminds homeowners who are in the midst of struggling to pay their mortgage or are facing a foreclosure that there are consumer programs available to help them out.

"During the past several years our office has partnered with reputable agencies by promoting their services when it comes to mortgage modification and foreclosure issues," O'Donnell said. "Consumers can contact either the Quincy Community Action Programs at (617) 479-8181 x-376 or NeighborWorks Southern Mass at (508) 587-0950 x-46. Another option would be the Massachusetts Attorney General's HomeCorps program at (617) 573-3333. These agencies provide a range of assistance from helping with the mortgage modification process to providing legal services to stave off a foreclosure as well as offering several forms of credit counseling.

"Additional information can be found on the Registry's website, www.norfolkdeeds.org under the Support tab."

The Register also had a cautionary warning for consumers.

"It's important to seek the right source for your needs such as a non-profit or state agency as cited above," O'Donnell said. "Unfortunately, foreclosure rescues and mortgage modification relief are becoming a growing scam. Some unscrupulous private companies look to charge consumers outrageous prices for services and make unrealistic promises to them."

During the past few months, a statistical review showed that there has been a relative decline in foreclosures, particularly Notice to Foreclose Mortgage filings – the first step in the process.

"With that said," noted O'Donnell, "we realize that while Norfolk County is a destination location to both live and work, there are still some of our neighbors facing economic hardships. During the month of January, there were 30 foreclosures recorded at the Registry and 41 Notice to Foreclose mortgage filings initiated against homeowners."

O'Donnell concluded:

"The Registry is unequivocally committed to helping those facing a mortgage delinquency or foreclosure by directing them to the appropriate agency that can hopefully put them back on the road to financial recovery. I urge people who feel that they need such services to contact the agencies referenced above."

First-Time Homebuyers Workshop March 25, April 1

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. will offer a two-part workshop for first-time homebuyers, to be held from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, March 25 and Saturday, April 1 at the Winter Gardens apartment complex (lower level community room), located at 45 Winter St. in Quincy.

Sponsored by Bridgewater Savings Bank, the workshop will give participants an opportunity to meet and hear from real estate brokers, insurance agents, attorneys and loan originators. Attendees also will have an opportunity to learn about the South Shore Home Consortium's down payment assistance programs, which may provide qualified buyers with up to 9 percent of the purchase price toward their down payment and up to an additional 1 percent toward closing costs on homes purchased in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Holbrook or Milton.

Workshop participants will also be able to speak to a lender about different mortgage options.

The registration fee for the workshops is $20 per person. To register and pay online, visit www.nwsoma.org or call Elvira Caldeira at (617) 770-2227 x34 for more information.

Board Rejects Planned Point Home

The city's zoning board shot down a two-family home proposed for Quincy Point amid strong neighborhood opposition.

George Lang had sought approval from the Zoning Board of Appeals Feb. 28 to raze the commercial garage at 83 Dysart St. and replace it with a two-and-a-half-story home. Each of the residences inside the house would have had two bedrooms.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall and a dozen area residents spoke against the project at the meeting. They said the project would negatively impact the surrounding neighborhood.

William Phelan, Lang's attorney and a former mayor of Quincy, said the current garage on site does not conform to the zoning for the neighborhood, which is designated Residential B. Tearing down the non-conforming structure, he said, would not be detrimental to the area. Additionally, Phelan said the proposed would comply with other city requirements, including having the required four parking spaces – two per unit.

The board's rejection of the proposal Lang cannot file plans for the site for a period of two years, unless those plans are substantially different than the proposal

On Wednesday, March 1, 2017 at approximately 10:30 a.m., Officers Robert Sweetland and Ken Wood were dispatched to the 800 block of Southern Artery after a caller reported a suspicious male who entered the front porch area of her home.

Upon arrival, Officer Sweetland met with the female caller who said that she was driving her mother home and as she pulled into the driveway of the Southern Artery address, she observed an unknown male enter the front porch area. She watched as the male placed money under the front door mat which was inside of the porch. The porch is enclosed by walls and windows and the door is a sliding glass door. She told the officers the male attempted to speak to her inside of her vehicle, but she locked the doors and refused to speak with him. The male, who was not intimidating, then walked away in an unknown direction.

The caller notified the Quincy Police and then went out to the neighborhood to relocate the male. Since she couldn't find the male, she returned home and searched the area where the male had been on the porch. She discovered inside the recycle bin an empty pack of cigarettes that contained white oval pills. Upon Officer Sweetland's arrival, she pointed out the empty cigarette pack, which he took as evidence.

The caller provided the officers with a description of the male suspect, describing him as white, in his 30's, balding, and wearing a red and blue or gray coat. She also stated that he was carrying a Dunkin Donuts cup. A description of the male was provided to Quincy Police communications.

Officer Wood, checking yards and driveways, located a male fitting that description coming out from a nearby office building on Southern Artery. The officers stopped the male and asked for identification, which he provided. He was advised of his Miranda rights and said he understood. The male said he was in the building for a dentist appointment. When asked what he was doing at the house in question, the male said that his sister just moved into an apartment there. The male said he lives in Plymouth and confirmed that he did take money from the porch and secondly, that he had his sister's pills in Plymouth and was returning them to her. He also stated that she owed him $100. He added that when the car pulled into the driveway he was only attempting to introduce himself.

When asked why the pills were not in a pill bottle, he stated that he did not bring them all. He then voluntarily offered his cell phone to Officer Sweetland so that he could look at the messages he received from his sister. The text messages started from his sister to him on Feb. 28, 2017 which stated, "Hey when u come tomorrow can u plz bring me some johnnies? I haven't had any since the other day! Blah I forgot to ask u today! Wanna help me create a meeting?! Dude we got this."

The male replied, "Ok but don't forget that $, don't forget to let me know where you're going to leave that money and I'll leave the joys there." The next message was from his sister who wrote, "I won't forget bro, I'll take a pic. Love you." The next text was a picture of the porch area of the residence.

At 8:48 a.m., she texted him and stated, "It's under the first mat when you open the slider so it's 100 bucks under there and when you walk in to there is a blue recycling bin to your left stick the Johnny's under a paper in the bucket." Then she stated "Are u ok?" The next text from her to him is as follows, "Dude this sux there are cameras outside of my place and the owner saw u grab $ then put pills in. Doesn't know it's u but it basically looked like a transaction! I'm f@#$%^."

Then at 10:36 a.m., the male writes, "Omg wtf and I'm waiting in front of my dentist she's right there in the car do you want me to go tell her I was leaving you get medication I'm your brother." She then writes, "I'm at the dr gotta call ya back, Ok I will and that's the sister wtf stop please I'm gunna be homeless."

Pictures of the text messages were taken by Officer Sweetland and uploaded for the report. It was determined that the "johnnies" pills were Gabapentin. The male was placed under arrest and transported to the station for booking.

The male suspect, a 34-year-old Plymouth resident, was charged with possession of a Class E substance with intent to distribute. The pills and the male suspect's cell phone were taken as evidence.

OBITUARIES

William R. Powers, 19

WILLIAM R. POWERS

A funeral Mass for William Robert Powers, 19, of Houghs Neck, was celebrated March 4 in Most Blessed Sacrament Church of Holy Trinity Parish, Quincy.

Mr. Powers died Feb. 12 as a result of injuries sustained in a house fire.

He was the loving son of Michael Joseph Powers of Quincy.

Mr. Powers was a student at St. Coletta Day School in Braintree, where he leaves many dear friends and classmates who grieve his loss. Administrators and teachers describe him as a hard-working, bright and caring student who has "Forever left his compassionate mark on the school." He will be sorely missed.

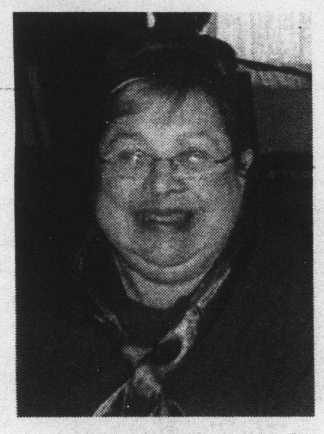
Brother of Joey Ulrich. Dear nephew of Robert M. Powers and his wife Tracy of Easton, William R. Powers and his partner Kerry Pollock and her daughter Jessica of Bridgewater, Christine M. Kalinowski of Tilton NH, and Christopher M. Powers and his wife MacKenzie of Villa Rica, GA. Also survived by many cousins, extended family and close friends.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Coletta Day School, 85 Washington St., Braintree, MA 02184.

Carolyn Phipps, 71



CAROLYN PHIPPS

A funeral Mass for Carolyn (Menino) Phipps, age 71, of Quincy and formerly of Hyde Park, was celebrated March 2 in St. Francis Xavier Parish, Weymouth.

Mrs. Phipps died Feb. 26 after a long illness with family by her side.

She was born and raised in Hyde Park. She attended Boston College receiving a graduate degree in education. Mrs. Phipps taught elementary school in Boston for several years before getting married and starting a family. Later in life, she went back to school and became a reading specialist through Mass General Hospital's Language Clinic. She loved teaching and helped many adults and children with learning disabilities learn to read. Despite many struggles throughout her life, Mrs. Phipps demonstrated an inner strength and spirit that encouraged others to persist when faced with challenges. She had great empathy for others and was a positive role model for those who knew her

Mrs. Phipps enjoyed living at the River Bay Club in Quincy. She had many friends and enjoyed playing bingo, scrabble, trivia and many other activities. She also enjoyed cooking and crocheting blankets. She will be remembered for her compassion and independence.

She is survived by her beloved children Amy Francoeur and her husband Michael of S. Weymouth, Michael Phipps of Quincy, and Caroline Phipps of Braintree, her cherished grandkids Lucas, Tyler, Cecelia, and Sam, her brother David Menino of Hyde Park, her late brother Thomas Menino, former mayor of Boston, and his wife Angela.

Funeral arrangements were made by C. C. Shepherd Funeral Home, Weymouth.

Memorial donations may be made to the Elder Service Plan of Harbor Health Services, 1135 Morton St., Mattapan, MA 02126.

Alice Oakes

ALICE OAKES

A funeral Mass for Alice "Pat" Oakes of Norwell, originally of Dorchester and Quincy, was celebrated March 4 in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Ms. Oakes died Feb. 24.

She was born in Boston. She was a longtime employee of 40 years of the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles in Boston. Ms. Oakes was the matriarch of her family and always looked after them. She was very independent and was a great leader. She loved to travel, including many trips to the beach and cruises. Ms. Oakes was an avid bingo player and especially loved the Red Sox. She will be sadly missed, but never forgotten.

Daughter to the late James and Anna Oakes. Beloved sister to Mary Ford of Quincy, Barbara Smith of Hingham, and the late Anna Wildes, James R. Oakes, Jr., and Frances Lazzaro. Dear aunt to 21 nieces and nephews.

Interment at Cedar Grove Cemetery, Boston.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

Mary L. Caloia, 73

MARY L. CALOIA

A graveside service for Mary Louisa Caloia, 73, of Quincy was held March 3 at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Ms. Caloia died Feb. 22.

A lifelong Quincy resident, she was a graduate of Lemuel Shattuck and St. Elizabeth Nursing Schools and received an Associate's Degree in science from Quincy Junior College. She worked as a registered nurse at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Carney Hospital and Quincy City Hospital. After retiring, she worked as an associate at Stop & Shop.

The daughter of the late Joseph and Ida Caloia, Ms. Caloia was the beloved sister of Rosalie Corbo of So. Weymouth and the late Basil Caloia; sister-in-law of Dorick Corbo and the late Marie Caloia; loving aunt of James Corbo and his wife Kathleen of Braintree, Teresa Corbo of So. Boston, Catherine Caloia of Hull, David Caloia of Andover, Christine Caloia of Weymouth and JoAnn Caloia of N. Attleboro; and is also survived by her companion Thomas Myers of Weymouth and several great-nieces and nephews.

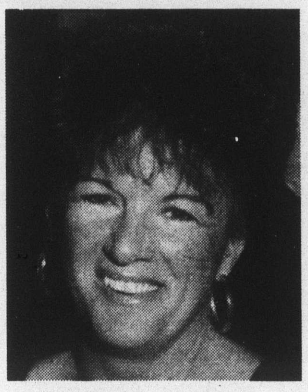
Carol A. Shea, 74



CAROL A. SHEA

A funeral Mass for Carol A. Shea of Quincy, formerly of South Boston, will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Ms. Shea died on March 2, her 74th birthday.

The beloved mother and best friend of Suzanne (Shea) Monahan and her husband John of Squantum. Loving sister of Rick Shea and Patricia Carter, both of South Boston, and Robert Shea of Brockton and the late Peggy Phillipson and John J. Shea. Cherished Nana to Matthew and Mark Monahan of Squantum. Also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Ms. Shea was raised in Roxbury; her childhood was rich with family tradition, which would later become the foundation for all that was important to her. She worked as a payroll manager for the Mitre Corporation and later for the Pappas Company in South Boston and finished her career at the Houghton Mifflin Publishing Company in Boston.

Throughout her life she enjoyed shopping, traveling, spending time at the beach and truly enjoyed the company of children. The essence of her life was her family; she was devoted to each of them. Ms. Shea will be remembered as a loving mother, sister, grandmother and aunt who brought grace and style to the lives she touched, so characteristically of the way she lived her life. Although her family is heartbroken over her loss, they feel fortunate for all the blessings she brought into their lives.

Visiting hours were 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. Celebration of life service at 9:45 a.m. Thursday in the funeral home, prior to the Mass.

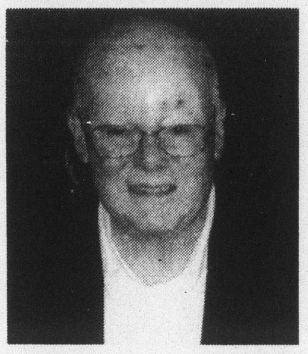
Joseph T. Cavanagh



JOSEPH T. CAVANAGH

A funeral Mass for Joseph Thomas Cavanagh was celebrated Wednesday at Holy Trinity Parish at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy.

Mr. Cavanagh died peacefully March 3 at Carney Hospital after a brief illness.

He was the loving husband of the late Dorothy Downey Cavanagh, son of the late Joseph F. and D. Laura (Braese) Cavanagh and brother of the late Richard E. Cavanagh. Born in Boston, Mr. Cavanagh was a graduate of Boston Technical High School and Boston State Teachers College. He also served in the United States Army, posted in Korea.

He and his wife moved to Quincy following his discharge from the Army where they lived for the rest of their lives. After teaching for a short time, Mr. Cavanagh worked for most of his life in the food service industry, primarily as a chef for the city of Boston hospital system. He was a member of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Quincy, and served as an usher there for many years.

He enjoyed working with his hands, and became fascinated with model trains, building many from kits and constructing many by hand. He had an elaborate railroad system in his home for many years. He also enjoyed music, particularly high-end sound equipment which he was able to access throughout his house. Mr. Cavanagh was a whiz at anything technical or mechanical, often helping friends and neighbors with various problems.

He was active in the Merrymount Beach Association and spent many an hour repairing and doing other work to make sure the "Canteen" at the beach was running smoothly. Mr. Cavanagh also served as a mentor to several, including Corey Grier.

As he helped others, others helped him. Kathy Houten and Jimmy Wiedemann were very close friends of Mr. Cavanagh and helped him at every corner of his life.

Survived by his sister-in-law, Nancy Cavanagh of Abington; two nephews, Stephen Cavanagh of Westford and Paul Cavanagh of Cumberland, RI; two nieces, Martha Lockhart of Warner Robins, GA and Laura Downey of Old Town, FL; together with several grand-nieces and grand-nephews. He is also survived by his very special friend of many years, Lorraine M. Grier of Hull, formerly of Quincy.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Cavanagh Family Scholarship Fund, c/o Stonehill College, 320 Washington St., Easton, MA 02357-6242.

Council Rejects Santuary City Resolution

though the phrase has no singular definition. Boston, Cambridge, Lawrence and Somerville have designated themselves as sanctuary cities while other Massachusetts communities are contemplating doing the same. President Donald Trump has threatened to cut federal funds to communities that declare themselves sanctuary cities.

City officials have said the Quincy Police Department is not an immigration enforcement agency, and only deals with immigration status once an individual is arrested and charged with a crime. Mayor Thomas Koch and Police Chief Paul Keenan are opposed to changing that policy, Koch spokesman Chris Walker has previously stated.

A standing-room-only crowd of more than 100 people attended Monday's council session. Many of them had pre-printed signs urging councillors to vote for or against the resolution, and councillors speaking for or against the resolution received rounds of applause from those in attendance.

At Monday's meeting, Liang reiterated she was neither for nor against declaring Quincy a sanctuary city. Instead, she said it was important for all the concerned parties – city officials, academics and residents on both sides of the issue – to discuss the matter.

"We chose to run for office to serve the people of Quincy and part of that service is to bring the people together for these kind of conversations. Many communities have rushed into making a decision on this issue with little to no conversation or understanding. It's led to confusion and more misunderstanding on both sides of the issue," Liang said.

"Taking a step to have a community-wide discussion is what I believe to be the only responsible way to look at this issue…Quincy is our city – all of us. Not just this body, not just the folks in this room, but everyone, and everyone deserves to be part of this conversation."

DiBona said he swore to uphold the U.S. Constitution when he joined the council in 2016 and also made a commitment then to taxpayers who could lose out on federal money – such as the $7.8 million the school system receives annually as well as funding for infrastructure projects in Quincy Center and various grants to the Fire and Police Departments – were Quincy to become a sanctuary city.

"I took an oath over a year ago when I was first sworn-in as a councillor at-large. That oath was to obey the Constitution and to follow the rules and laws of the land. I also made a commitment to protect the taxpayers of the city of Quincy. My top priorities as a city councillor are education, public safety and public works," DiBona said.

"We as a city depend on federal funding to help our taxpayers."

Finn said Quincy could be affected by the federal government's changes to its policies on immigration enforcement regardless of whether or not Quincy became a sanctuary city. He said he was opposed to sanctuary cities, but did not want his colleagues to shy away from the topic just because it is a polarizing issue.

"This body – on the time I have served on it – hasn't run away from issues just because they're polarizing or just because they're difficult. We have often entered into that discussion and quite honestly through that conflict and through that discussion often wisdom prevails and sane and smart types of policies emerge," Finn said.

"It's timely. I think it's important. We can't bury our heads in the sand in terms of what's happening in Washington."

Harris had objected to Liang's resolution when it was first introduced on Feb. 21 – putting debate of the item off until the council met again Monday – and previously told The Sun he would vote against the resolution. On Monday, Harris said he remained opposed to making Quincy a sanctuary city, but would support the resolution calling for discussion of the matter based on a community meeting he held in Ward 6 late last week, which Liang also attended.

"People in my ward want to know more information on this subject. Many seniors who attended this meeting were confused and nervous about this very controversial and volatile subject, which has been in our headlines and on the nightly news that they watch and see each day. These folks were reaching out for answers," Harris said.

"For that reason, I will support Councillor Liang's resolution and vote yes on a discussion – and just a discussion only."

Palmucci said the conversation on becoming a sanctuary city or changing current policy should begin in the community, not the City Council.

"I look forward to having a discussion. I am ready to host that discussion and participate with all of you and anyone else that wants to be a part of it. But in terms of this resolution, I don't think this is where the conversation should happen – I think this is where the conversation should end," Palmucci said.

"If we have a community meeting and there is some sort of issue that's brought up that we have to change current policy, then we come here and we deliberate and we legislate and we change regulations to reflect the will of the community we represent and we put in place new policies or change existing policies. But this isn't the place where we just have conversations and discussions."

Laforest echoed Palmucci's comments.

"Councillor Palmucci, you expressed my sentiments pretty much verbatim what I was going to say," Laforest said. "For the public to have input, this is not the forum."

Hughes, who is the council president and also the chairwoman of the Massachusetts Republican Party, said she supports law enforcement agencies in Quincy and throughout the state. The City Council, she said, is not the correct venue to debate the matter.

"I don't think this forum is the proper one – as many of my colleagues have expressed – to debate, and make no mistake about it, this is not a discussion, this isn't a study, it's a debate between two sides who are very hunkered down in their beliefs," she said.

"I don't believe this is the forum for that. We have rules. We have procedures here. This is a deliberative body that puts forth legislation."

Churches Offer 'Ashes To Go'

gy colleagues in the city had done it before," Williams said. "It's something that's been around for a little bit but still sort of new."

Williams, who became ordained minister in September 2016, had participated in Ashes to Go at Boston's Old South Church, where she interned, but had not done so at an MBTA station previously.

"I had been an intern at Old South Church in Boston where they did Ashes to Go at the church door on Boylston Street, but this is the first time I'd been connected to a church that did it at an MBTA station," she said.

Williams and Oleson arrived at the Wollaston station around 6:45 a.m. on Ash Wednesday. Originally, they had planned to stay to 8:30 a.m. but remained there an extra half hour as commuters kept streaming into the station.

Williams and Oleson were busy throughout that time, blessing with ashes all those who wanted them. Each recipient was also given a small handout, explaining the symbolism of the ashes and providing contact information for the pastors' churches.

"We were busy," Williams said. "We were more or less constantly giving out ashes. There was very little time when we were standing there and doing nothing."

Commuters gave an overwhelmingly positive reaction to the two pastors.

"Many of the recipients were deeply grateful to us for being there," Williams said, "and a number of people said 'I love that you are doing this' even though they didn't want ashes for themselves."

Williams plans to offer Ashes to Go again next year, and hopes to do so at the Wollaston station.

"I will most likely be at the Wollaston station again next year," she said. "I'd like to start something of a tradition."

Williams wants to continue her outreach to the community.

"I'm really hoping to do a lot more public ministry – for some people coming to the church can be an ordeal," she said. "I'm trying to make connections with people outside of the church."

rejected Feb. 28 – such as a single-family home. The ZBA's decision could also be appealed to the state's Land Court.

In other business on Feb. 28, the zoning board:

Continued to April 25 a hearing on a request by Louis restaurant, located at 1269 Sea St. in Houghs Neck, for permission to sell its parking lot on the opposite side of the road. The eatery had initially sought to sell the parking lot to a developer, but those plans were met with neighborhood opposition during a community meeting in February. Instead, the city is now contemplating purchasing the lot and keeping it for parking.

Allowed Jody Luongo to withdraw without prejudice plans for a three-unit, three-story residential building at 19 Trask Ave. in West Quincy.

Denied a request from Qiong Lin for a variance to change the existing single-family home at 48 Newton Ave. in Wollaston to a two-family home.

Continued a hearing on a request by Minh Van and Thanh Pham for a variance to subdivide the lot at 1 James St. in Quincy Point and construct three three-story townhouses at 74 Lancaster St. to March 28.

Continued to March 28 a hearing on Lenny Chen's request to change the use of 657 Adams St. from office to retail.

Granted Jeremy Gavin's request to rebuild an existing, non-conforming porch, which is currently unsafe, at 7 Muirhead St.

Denied Jimie Wang's request to enclose a second floor porch at 9 Hovey St. to enlarge a bedroom in the house.

Of:
Quincy, MA
RESPONDENT
Alleged Incapacitated Person

To the named Respondent and all other interested persons, a petition has been filed by Thena Nguyen of Quincy, MA and Danny Nguyen of Quincy, MA in the above captioned matter alleging that Daniel Nguyen is in need of a Guardian and requesting that Thena Nguyen of Quincy, MA and Danny Nguyen of Quincy, MA (or some other suitable person) be appointed as Guardians to serve Without Surety on the bond.

The petition asks the court to determine that the Respondent is incapacitated, that the appointment of a Guardian is necessary, and that the proposed Guardian is appropriate. The petition is on file with this court and may contain a request for certain specific authority.

You have the right to object to this proceeding. If you wish to do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance at this court on or before 10:00 A.M. on the return date of 03/22/2017. This day is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline date by which you have to file the written appearance if you object to the petition. If you fail to file the written appearance by the return date, action may be taken in this matter without further notice to you. In addition to filing the written appearance, you or your attorney must file a written affidavit stating the specific facts and grounds of your objection within 30 days after the return date.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The outcome of this proceeding may limit or completely take away the above-named person's right to make decisions about personal affairs or financial affairs or both. The above-named person has the right to ask for a lawyer. Anyone may make this request on behalf of the above-named person. If the above-named person cannot afford a lawyer, one may be appointed at State expense.

STEM Fair is a great way for the students to share the results of the research and or experiments with classmates, families and friends.

"Each year Quincy High School shows a great diversity of projects and the students' enthusiasm carries the evening as they get to celebrate their accomplishments with the community," he said. "One volunteer said the best part of the evening was seeing how professional and passionate the students are of their work, 'The students are prepared to speak and are so polished and proud.'"

The Quincy High STEM Fair is partly supported by The Gelfand Family Charitable Trust through the Gelfand Endeavor in Massachusetts Schools. The organization has a multi-year partnership with Quincy High School and provides training, resources and tools to integrate real-world, inquiry-based learning activities into the curriculum.

The Gelfand organization has also teamed up with the Massachusetts Science and Engineering Fair through the Curious Minds Initiative. This collaboration helps increase the number of Bay State schools and teachers that sue the inquiry-based learning model for teaching science and engineering.

The first place winner of the STEM fair was Rachel Shen and her project, "Controlling Phragmites by Depleting Stored Nutrients;" second place went to Dash Chin and Klei Hamzallari with their project on "Promoting the Efficiency of Hydrocarbon-Degrading Acinetobacter Calcoaceticus through Different Sources of Biostimulation;" and placing third was Alexander Ireland's "Natural Disaster? No Problem!"

Shen, Chin, Hamzallari and Ireland will be competing in the regional fair along with the following students who received honorable mention for their respective projects: Christine Le's "How Safe is Our Water? Part 2;" Kumudini Devalla's project on "Computer Sleuth: Identification by Text Analysis;" Cindy Trac's "The Effect of Varying Temperatures on Bisphenol A Levels in Plastic Bottles;" and Alexandra Case and her project on "Better Clean or Better for the Environment."

They will be joined by, Jola Laguda's project on "Sustainable Energy and the Effectiveness of Water Mills;" Emily Nguyen's "Traditional vs. Hydroponics;" Terry Deng and his project, "The Effects of Water pH on Plant Growth;"

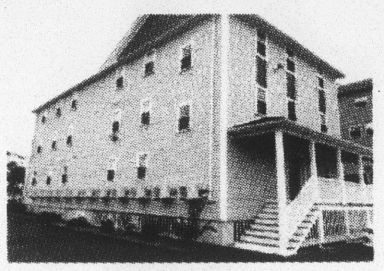
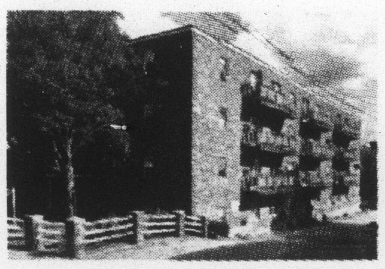
Brady Closes Loans in Quincy and Weymouth to Start '17

Patrick Brady, Vice President at Cornerstone Realty Capital, secured $1,750,000 for the refinancing of a three story, 14-unit apartment complex located on Fort Street in Quincy. The building was recently redeveloped, and consists of 14 studio apartments. Unit amenities include maple cabinets, stone countertops, stainless appliances, as well as hardwood floors throughout. Brady stated, "Due to the strong asset quality, historical occupancy, and transit-oriented location, lenders were able to get extremely aggressive on terms." The financing secured in late January consisted of a 10-year fixed rate term, a 3-year interest-only period, followed by a 30-year amortization.



FORT STREET



BROAD STREET

In early February, Brady secured $4,387,000 for the refinancing of a building located on Broad Street in Weymouth. The property is a four story, 39-unit multifamily property. The building, which was built in 1975, had undergone significant updates since the owners acquired the property in 2006. Brady shared that, "Like Quincy, the Weymouth apartment rental market shows incredibly strong fundamentals, including historically low vacancy rates, which in turn are increasing rental rates due to pent up demand. The strong historical occupancy at the subject coupled with the track record of the owners made for a very competitive lending environment." The financing had a 10-year fixed rate term, a 3-year interest only period, followed by a 30-year amort.

Patrick Brady is a commercial mortgage broker at Cornerstone Realty Capital in Lexington, MA. He is responsible for originating commercial mortgage loans nationwide. As a resident of Quincy, Patrick is active within the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, and is a Quincy Young Professionals board member. Patrick can be reached at 781-861-7100 x103 and by email at Patrick@CornerstoneRC.com.

Quincy School Enrollment Up Nearly 500 In 10 Years

By TOM GORMAN

Several Quincy Public Schools are at or near capacity in the wake of a nearly 500 student enrollment increase over the past 10 years.

During a recent school committee meeting, School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro outlined current student enrollment and trends during a "Challenges and Opportunities" presentation in preparation of the district's budget process for the 2017-18 school year. He explained that when kindergarten registration begins on March 7, officials will have a better idea of what staffing and space will be needed when the school doors open in September.

"This information will help us look at enrollment trends and space contemplation, open enrollment, special education and placements as we prepare the budget for next year," he said. "Kindergarten registration truly drives the bus in so many ways with our elementary schools' enrollment."

According to DeCristofaro, a total of 8,969 students were enrolled in the Attention All Korean War Veterans

By GEORGE NICHOLSON
Director
Quincy Veterans Services

If you served between June 25, 1950 and July 27, 1953 and your service was "boots-on-the-ground" in Korea, in the air over Korea or in the waters surrounding Korea (i.e. you were awarded the UN and Korean Service Medals), the Republic of South Korea would like to recognize your contributions by presenting you with the "Korean Ambassador for Peace Medal."

The Korean Consulate General for Boston will come to Quincy to make the presentation if we have 10 or more respondents. If you believe you qualify and would like to be a recipient of this attractive medal, you must contact the Quincy Veterans Services office to complete an application which, along with a copy of your DD214 or Separation paper will be forwarded to the Korean Consulate.

I will compile a list and if we get enough respondents, I will try to arrange for a ceremony at Quincy's Korean War Memorial on a date as close to the anniversary date of the start of the Korean War (June 25th) as possible.

The Quincy Veterans Services number is 617-376-1192 and it is located at 24 High School Ave.

Remove Decorations From Veterans Lots At Cemeteries

To Quincy residents:

On March 15th we will start cleaning the veterans lots at Mount Wollaston and Pine Hill Cemeteries. During this time we will remove all Christmas decorations and plastic plants and anything that becomes unsightly and anything that interferes with the cemetery operations such as mowing and cleaning up in participation of Memorial Day.

Natural flowers can be placed throughout the year but will be removed when their presence interferes with grounds maintenance. Permanent planting such as plastic plants, statues, vigil lights, wind chimes, and breakable objects will not be permitted at any time.

This is the final resting place for our local veterans and we ask all of you to please cooperate with us in keeping it clean when you pay your respect to your loved one.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Quincy Sun Price $1 Effective April 6

Effective April 6th, the price of The Quincy Sun newspaper on newsstands and delivery by newcarriers will rise 25 cents to $1.00.

This will be the first increase in the newsstand price in about six years.

The increase is necessary due to escalating costs associated with producing and distributing the newspaper.

We thank all our readers for supporting The Sun.

FoxRock Properties and Granite Telecommunications CEO Rob Hale said his redevelopment firm is playing a major role of returning the "grandeur" to city's downtown and former Quincy Medical Center.

Hale outlined his plan during his keynote address at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce Annual Meeting and Business Showcase on March 9 at the Quincy Marriott. Nearly 500 attended the event where about 90 local businesses and organizations were represented.

Hale explained that his FoxRock Properties purchased the shuttered Quincy Medical Center site three months ago and that he intends to bring it back to life.

"My opinion is Quincy Hospital right now is not something that Quincy can be proud of," he said. "We are going to restore its luster. That's what we're here to do."

The hospital was closed in late 2014 by Steward Health Care after it failed to attract enough patients to keep the facility running. The hospital served the city since the late 1800s.

Hale said he plans to replace the existing hospital and "keep it medical."

"We intend to supplement it, upgrade it and add more medical," he said. "It's a beautiful building and it's a beautiful part of Quincy."

He added that the new facility would be "well cared for and properly populated."

Hale explained that his firm is making its biggest ever redevelopment investment in Quincy and that he is committed to returning the city back to its heyday.

"I believe as most of you do that Quincy was an important, beautiful city," he said. "It hit a little bit of a trough and it's on its way back. We intend to build and restore the grandeur that Quincy had and we intend to do it relatively quickly."

According to Hale, his firm will be redeveloping the Ross Garage site and proposes to build one million square feet of Class A office and medical space in downtown Quincy. He said that his firm will own the buildings.

He noted that FoxRock has bought 32 buildings on the South Shore in the past

Ordinance Aimed At Absentee Landlords

By SCOTT JACKSON

An ordinance pending before the City Council would require landlords who live outside Quincy to seek permits from the city and put in place a system of standards for them to abide by in an effort to improve quality of life in residential neighborhoods.

Councillors Brian Palmucci, William Harris and Margaret Laforest introduced the 13-page proposal at the body's March 6 meeting. It was referred to the council's ordinance committee for review, which would include a public hearing.

Palmucci, at the March 6 meeting, said some rental properties owned by absentee landlords – those living outside the city – have become nuisances in neighborhoods that bring down

Grant To Help Support At-Risk Youth

The City of Quincy has been awarded a grant from the Baker-Polito administration to combat gang violence and support local at-risk youth.

Quincy is among six communities that will share $335,735 under the program -- the Shannon Community Safety Initiative, or "Shannon Grant" – which targets gang violence in Massachusetts.

The grants provide funding to communities that demonstrate high levels of youth violence and gang activity, and who have a comprehensive plan to work with multi-disciplinary partners and a commitment to coordinated prevention and intervention strategies, the governor's office said. Those strategies include social interventions, opportunity programs, time and personnel for gang task forces, and more.

Quincy's grant will be used by Quincy Police Department's Metro Gang Task Force/Hot Spot Patrols and Quincy Recreation Department's Teamwork Quincy.

BRILLIANT DEDUCTION

When shopping for a diamond, it is helpful to consider the three basic parts of a cut diamond: the "crown," the "girdle," and the "pavilion." The crown, which is composed of the large flat area on top (the "table") and a number of facets, splits the entering light into white light (which provides "brilliance") and colored light (which provides "fire"). It is important to note the size of the table as a percentage of the crown because it determines the amount of brilliance that the diamond will reflect. The more brilliance a diamond has, the less fire it tends to exhibit, and vice versa. In general, it is desirable to strike a balance between these two factors.

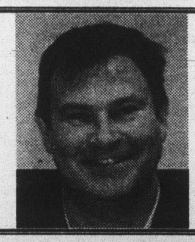
Vinyl Music: 'Side B'



Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A recent column on vinyl music struck a chord with a few of our readers.

So much so that we've decided to run a follow-up.

Call it "Vinyl Music – Side B."

I received a few phone calls from readers who enjoyed reading about my new pursuit with vinyl records and the restoration of my parents' old RCA stereo console that is approaching a half-century in age.

The readers had similar experiences listening to their vinyl albums and agreed turntables represent a simpler time in life devoid of cell phones, computers and 24-hour TV news channels among other distractions. They also agreed vinyl offers a purer sound of music compared to cassettes and CDs.

But the column response also set off a few unexpected results.

And those I am happy to share this week.

The first column ("Side A") mentioned a few music stores that I frequent searching for used and new vinyl albums. One in particular that offers a wide selection of used albums at the can't-be-beat price of 99 cents.

One gentleman called specifically to inquire where such a store exists.

So this week I've decided to let that cat out of the bag.

Newbury Comics located near the Auto Mile on Route 1 in Norwood has a vast and varied assortment of vinyl records. Every genre you can think of all under one roof. At least a third (if not more) of the music selection is vinyl.

There's new wave, rock, jazz, easy listening, country, even comedy albums. You name it, they have a section for it.

It's too bad that Quincy no longer has a record store like Newbury Comics. There used to be quite a few back in the day including Jason's Record and Luggage Store and Quincy Records. But maybe with vinyl making a comeback, so to will a local record store to serve "vinyl nation" in the City of Presidents.

The column also underscored the upside of running a local community newspaper. You get to meet a lot of nice people from all walks of life.

Ursula Svizzero is one of those people.

After reading the vinyl column, Ursula called me at the Sun. She had noticed the photo of the RCA stereo console at the bottom of Page 4 and told me she had one just like it years ago.

The 85-year-old Quincy Point resident then offered me some of her records and asked if I would be willing to stop by sometime and take a look. I called her the next day and made arrangements to visit with her on a recent afternoon.

It was a wonderful visit with a sweet lady who shared stories from her vinyl listening days. But they were more than stories.

They were moments from her life that brought back happy memories.

And made me smile just listening to her.

Ursula is a remarkable woman. She and her late husband, Henry, raised three children. She is a two-time cancer survivor – colon 10 years ago and lung cancer five years ago. She is upbeat and positive – like so many of the records she offered me.

"I thank God for every day," she says. "Life has its ups and downs. You have to play the hand that was dealt you."

Ursula grew up in West Quincy across from Saint Mary's Church where her mother played the piano. Her father immigrated from Italy when he was just 17 leaving his family never to return to his native country.

Henry owned Beacon TV Sales and Service in Brookline and also managed a store in Quincy for a few years at the corner of Sumner and Washington Streets.

Ursula worked at Lincoln Stores on Hancock Street as a secretary for about eight years. It was a job she loved taking orders and learning short-hand.

On a table next to where we sat for the interview were two small stacks of vinyl records. They are the ones she wants me to have.

She tells me she and Henry enjoyed collecting and listening to vinyl records years and years ago. They are classic albums including artists like Liberace, Mantovani, The Boston Pops, and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

There's marching albums by John Philip Sousa and one that was produced after John F. Kennedy was slain in Dallas 54 years ago this November. The JFK album features a black and white sketch of the nation's 35th president. The album includes excerpts from some of his famous speeches including his inaugural address Jan. 20, 1961 and the last public remarks given in Dallas before that tragic motorcade ride in Dealey Plaza.

I'm drawn to that one immediately because my mom and dad attended JFK's inauguration along with their good friends, John and Vi Gillis.

Soon we are talking about her records and what they mean to her. The answer is simple. Those records were time spent together with Henry and her family.

Music and memories.

"The John Philip Sousa marching album is one of my favorites," she says. "Henry used to put that on and he'd blast it. The kids would go around the house marching. We'd laugh and laugh."

She has other favorites like 101 strings, 1812 overture, and Liberace. Some were gifts like a Barbara Streissand greatest hits album. She remembers buying albums at the old Quincy Music Shop that was down on Granite Street.

"Henry and I were big fans of vinyl records," she says. "They're in great shape."

She tells me her aunt lived on Miller Street. She inherited a vintage phonograph from their grandmother. "It was the kind that you wind," Ursula recalled. "We had it up in our attic when we lived on Crescent Street. It was a big house.

"On a rainy day we would go up into the attic and play. We had everything up there. I can remember that phonograph. You would have to wind it up and I did go to Jason's and the first record I bought was Claire De Lune (by French composer Claude Debussy.)

"I played it on this phonograph and as it played it went slower and slower because you had to wind it up," she explained.

Ursula's records hadn't been played for about 25 years. Until now. They are getting cleaned up and a full listen at my home.

"We enjoyed them tremendously and I can still see the kids marching around to all the marches," she tells me. "They're good memories.

"I hope that you will enjoy them. I'm sure you will."

Thank you, Ursula for your kindess and generosity.

We will take very good care of them.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 31, 1492, in Spain, a royal edict is issued by the nation's Catholic rulers declaring that all Jews who refuse to convert to Christianity will be expelled. Most Spanish Jews chose exile rather than renounce their religion and culture.

• On March 27, 1905, the high-profile murder of two London shopkeepers is solved using fingerprint evidence for the first time when a thumbprint found on the side of the cashbox was matched to one of the suspects.

• On April 2, 1917, President Woodrow Wilson asks Congress to send U.S. troops into battle against Germany in World War I. Four days later, Congress obliged. Wilson then signed the Selective Service Act, which required men between 21 and 35 years of age to register for the draft. The Army quickly grew from 200,000 troops to 4 million.

• On March 28, 1941, workers start clearing trees from hundreds of acres of land 30 miles west of Detroit, in preparation for construction of the Ford Motor Company's Willow Run plant, which will build B-24 bomber planes. Early on the plant was plagued by labor shortages and earned the nickname "Willit Run?"

• On April 1, 1963, the ABC television network airs the premiere episode of "General Hospital," the daytime drama that will become the longest-running serial program produced in Hollywood. On the same day, rival NBC debuts its own medical-themed soap opera, "The Doctors."

• On March 29, 1973, two months after the signing of the Vietnam peace agreement, the last U.S. combat troops leave South Vietnam. The accord was short-lived, and by early 1974 full-scale war had resumed.

• On March 30, 1981, President Ronald Reagan is shot in the chest outside a Washington, D.C., hotel by deranged drifter John Hinckley Jr. As Reagan was prepared for surgery, he quipped to his surgeons, "Please tell me you're Republicans."

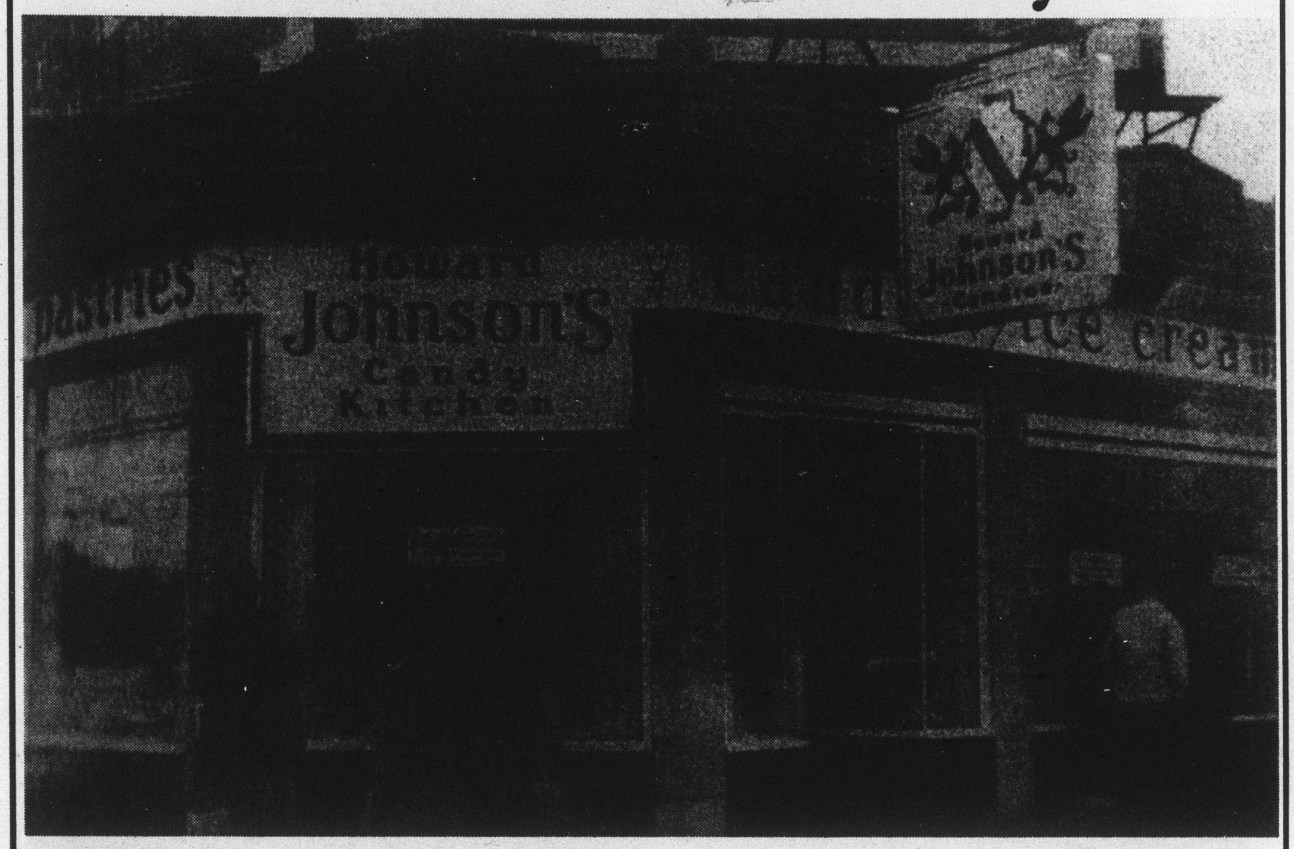
Scenes From Yesterday



THIS IS A 1934 real photo postcard reproduction showing what was the newly opened Howard Johnson's Candy Kitchen and ice cream shop at 33 Billings Road in Norfolk Downs. This store was previously owned by Hilliard's and then the Witherall's Glass House Candy Company. Howard Johnson bought it during the Depression when he decided to make his own brand named candy. The sign overhanging the doorway in the right center featured Johnson's coat-of-arms logo which his company used until it later adopted its famous "Simple Simon and the Pieman" logo. In 1938 Johnson moved the candy making operation from here to a new larger candy and condiment factory on Old Colony Avenue in Wollaston. The ice cream shop remained open here until 1943 and then this building became a branch of the Granite Trust Company. The bank changed the façade and moved its entrance to the corner with Hancock Street. The branch remained here under several names for almost 50 years until it moved to its present location at 440 Hancock St. This corner store is now home to the Pho Linh restaurant which features Vietnamese cuisine. Mayor Urged To Reconsider $58,000 School Cut

The school budget committee of the Quincy Parent-Teacher Council asked Mayor Charles A. Ross to reconsider his $58,000 cut in the 1949 school budget.

The request was made in a statement issued by Earl Lantery, chairman of the committee, which was formed by the Parent-Teacher Council for the express purpose off trying to regain the money, which the mayor had stricken from the departmental budget.

The school budget advisory committee has been investigating quite extensively the cut in the school budget by Mayor Ross. "We are firmly opposed to this cut or any other cut that might be made by the council finance committee," the committee said. "We feel that the Mayor's actions was decidedly unwise."

AUDITOR OPPOSES PUBLIC FUNDS FOR CHRISTMAS LIGHTS

Quincy merchants were told that there are "limits to what they can expect from public funds," by a city official who opposes legislation requiring a $2,500 municipal appropriation to help finance Christmas decorations at Quincy trading centers.

City Auditor Leo E. Mullen told a legislative committee at the State House that a city appropriation for this purpose has been sought for several years. Mullen said, "We have done all right by the merchants. We gave them a million-dollar parking area. Talk about being Santa Claus, there are limits to what they can expect from public funds."

HOSPITAL OUT-PATIENT DEPARTMENT TO BE OPENED

Dr. Ensio K.F. Ronka, director at Quincy City Hospital, announced that the long awaited outpatient department will be opened. "For the people of Quincy it means that they will be able to get certain types of medical and surgical care at substantially reduced costs," he said.

He's Running Marathon To Support Fallen Heroes

It is hard to believe it is once again that time of the year where I find myself not only in the midst of training for what will be my 12th Boston Marathon, but also when I find myself reaching out to you for support.

As many of you are aware for the past nine years I have proudly run in support of causes that are very close to my heart. Those nine years have focused on our well deserving military personnel, our veterans and their families and the Mass General Hospital Cancer Center.

This year all proceeds of our fundraising efforts will be in support of Massachusetts Fallen Heroes. This cause is personal to my family and I based on my younger brother Jerry is a United States Marine Corp Veteran. The scope of services provided and good work done by Massachusetts Fallen Heroes is far reaching. Massachusetts Fallen Heroes not only provides a wide array of crucial services to our veterans when they return but they also help Gold Star Families whose loved one made the ultimate sacrifice to this country. Just recently the news covered a story in which Massachusetts Fallen Heroes used money they have raised to purchase a brand new car for a Gold Star Family. This is just one example of the type of unbelievable work this organization does, which is why I am filled with a large amount of pride having the opportunity to play a role in their future good work.

Over the past several years our fundraising efforts have raised $199,000 which is constant reminder of the innate kindness and generosity of the human spirit. Because of everything you all continue to do in support of these past fundraising efforts, I proudly admit that I have a level of confidence that this year we will be able to reach a higher level of fundraising success to help so many deserving people.

To help achieve this on April 1st, 2017 at 7 p.m., I will once again be hosting a fundraising event at J.J. Foley's Café, located at 117 E. Berkley St., Boston. I guarantee you an awesome night filled with raffles, a silent auction and entertainment.

All we ask is for a donation to be made at the door (checks may be made payable to Massachusetts Fallen Heroes Tax ID # 27-3495087). All donations are welcome and appreciated even if you cannot attend.

Thank you for your support and helping to ensure those who have given unselfishly are able to receive the help and services they deserve.

Opposes 7-Story Apartment Building

(A copy of the following letter was submitted by the author for publication.)

Dear Mr. Fatseas and others,

I wish to have my opposition to the application of Andrian Shapiro, Edward Shapiro and Alex Matov for the construction of 7-story, 171 apartments with parking provided with dedicated spaces within adjacent municipal garage,to be constructed . . . noted as public record under opposition of this application. This is within Ward 5.

I did request a public neighborhood meeting with Councillor Hughes for an explanation, however I never heard back from her. As one of the closest abutters to the Hancock Lot across the street from 31-37 Revere Rd., I only learned of this Public Hearing from reading the Legal ad in the March 8th, Patriot Ledger, page 23.

Since these applicants were in violation of Campaign Finance Laws with illegal contributions to our mayor and several city councillors, it puts the mayor's appointed officials and elected officials in a rather questionable position of law and ethics and public trust.

This plan also involves giving up public land, a portion of the Hancock Lot to build luxury apartments and a taxpayers funded municipal parking garage.

A week's notice with very little or publicly about this public hearing to me is shameful.

Please see that all members of the Planning Board receive a copy of this letter of opposition.

Thank you,

The performances are set for Friday, March 17th at 7:30 p.m.; Saturday, March 18th at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.; and, Sunday, March 19 at 2 p.m.

The musical is directed by Margaret Spencer featuring 100 talented students with 80 on stage and 20 on crew.

"Hello, Dolly!" is a 1964 musical with lyrics and music by Jerry Herman and book by Michael Stewart, based on Thornton Wilder's 1938 farce "The Merchant of Yonkers." It is one of the most beloved musicals on Broadway and won a record 10 Tony awards, that was held for 37 years! It has stood the test of time and enjoyed three revivals as well as international success and is currently being revived on Broadway with Bette Midler as Dolly.

The musical features familiar songs like "Hello, Dolly!," "Before the Parade Passes By," and "Put on Your Sunday Clothes." The setting is turn-of-the-century New York about a charismatic matchmaker (Dolly) and the people she is trying to help find mates.

The students have been rehearsing since January and promise it will be an enjoyable time for the entire family.

Tickets are $12 for general admission and $5 for students. For further information or to purchase tickets in advance, call Deborah Golden at 617-376-3353 during school hours. Tickets will also be available after school in the auditorium until 5 p.m. and also at the door."

Conway Contingent Attends Global Real Estate Event

A contingent of Jack Conway Realtors convened with 2,000 peers at the Leading Real Estate Companies of the World Annual Conference, held recently at the Fountainebleau Hotel in Miami, Florida.

Conway was honored with the 2017 Website Quality Certification Award from its relocation network for having the "best internet lead management and response time" of 550 LeadingRE member companies in the U.S. and abroad. The Conway Marketing Department also took home a prize for its winning entry in the group's annual contest.

Conway CEO/President Carol Bulman co-hosted the opening session of the conference with Berry Everitt of the Chas Everitt International Property Group, a family-run realty firm in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Conway Director of Relocation Dawn Stevens served as an emcee for some of the conference activities and moderated a panel on the Military on the Move program, which offers real estate savings to members of the Armed Forces, as well as wounded warriors and veterans.

Conway associates attending the LeadingRE conference were VP of Marketing and Operations Al Becker, VP of Sales Janet Pistone, Tia Zaferakis (South Boston) Denis Lilla, Amy Kobza and Cindy Brouwer (Lakeville) Sue DiPisa (Hingham), and Outgoing Relocation Coordinator Lauren Poremski.

Granite Telecommunications Fundraiser Benefits International Book Fair

Granite Telecommunications, LLC, a provider of communications solutions to businesses based in Quincy, raised $4,919 for the 12th Annual Lawrence International Book Fair, an event featuring a series of activities and programming that celebrates the richness of Hispanic culture through literature and underscores Lawrence's own cultural image.

"We believe literature and art are essential elements to transforming a community and its people. The Lawrence International Book Fair is grateful for your generous donation," said Fr. Joel Almono, Lawrence International Book Fair Board president. "Thank you for helping us continue our commitment to the community of Lawrence."

Each year the planning committee for the Lawrence Internal Book Fair dedicates the event to a specific culture, and in keeping with that tradition this year's fair will pay tribute to Columbia, its people and literature. As in years past the fair will showcase an acclaimed list of local and international speakers, writers, musicians and artists.

The three-day event will take place on Oct. 20 through Oct. 22 at Northern Essex Community College.

Colleen Babson Director Emergency Services At SSMH

South Shore Mental Health announces Colleen Babson, LMHC, LMFT, has been appointed director of Emergency Services for the Quincy-based behavioral healthcare provider.

Babson joins the nonprofit with more than 20 years of experience developing, implementing, and monitoring emergency psychiatric programs for Lahey Health Behavioral Services' Salem, Haverhill, and North Shore emergency services teams.

COLLEEN BABSON

In her new role at South Shore Mental Health, Babson will oversee the operational functioning of the agency's emergency services program, community crisis services, intensive community supports unit, and enhanced integrated care models.

"We are pleased to welcome Colleen as our new director of Emergency Services," said South Shore Mental Health President and CEO Harry Shulman. "Her breadth of experience as a clinical supervisor, crisis clinician, and community liaison will not only be invaluable to our team and our many deserving clients, but will serve us well as we continue to integrate emergency mental health services into the community."

Babson holds a Master of Science degree from Lesley College and a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Massachusetts.

Boiled Dinner With Double The Flavor

By MARIE

Often times, when I have cooked New England boiled dinner, I have used the combination of smoked shoulder, which I think yields the tastiest ham, and a 2 to 3 pound piece of beef. The two of these together enhance the flavor of the soup.

Most restaurants, when serving the dinner, do not include the delicious soup but simply serve the ham along with its vegetables. But my family always uses a big bowl with the soup and meat in it. Or you could serve the soup on the side.

When my daughter Ann Marie makes boiled dinner she makes a smoked shoulder in one big pan and corned beef in another and everyone is so pleased to have one or both.

BOILED DINNER MADE WITH DOUBLE THE FLAVOR

5 to 6 pound smoked shoulder
2 to 3 pounds of beef (I used bottom or top of the round but any beef will do)
4 medium potatoes cut in quarters (You can also use sweet potatoes along with them.)
1 large head of cabbage cut in quarters
1 large onion cut in half
4 large carrots cut in half
1 turnip
Salt and pepper

Fill a large pan with water, add the smoked shoulder, beef, onion, salt, pepper and cook covered for 1 to 2 hours depending on the size of the meats. At this point, take the meats out of the pan and keep them in a warming oven. Now add all of the vegetables and cook until tender. Serve hot.

Spinach Turkey Meatballs

By SUSIE

Here is another recipe that is tasty and "green" – just in time for St. Patrick's Day. These are super easy and really delicious. Great for those picky eaters too. You can not taste the spinach.

SPINACH TURKEY MEATBALLS

1 lb organic Ground turkey
1 cup fresh spinach handful of fresh parsley, chopped fine...
1 organic egg
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tsp garlic powder
1 tsp onion powder
1 tsp sea salt
1/2 tsp black pepper
½ tsp cumin

Instructions

1. Preheat the oven to 350
2. Place the spinach and olive oil in food processor and process until pulverized.
3. Mix everything in by hand until well combined.
4. Scoop 1 to 2 Tbsp of meat dough, roll into balls and place on a baking sheet lined with parchment paper.
5. Bake for 20 minutes, or until turkey is cooked through.

Serve with your favorite sauce.

Corn Bread

By MARIE

Here is recipe for a great 3-ingredient corn bread recipe that will be a wonderful accompaniment with the delicious Boiled Dinner entrée (recipe above) - and one that my mother always made.

3 medium potatoes cooked boiled and mashed
1 cup of yellow corn meal
1 tablespoon of course black pepper

In a bowl place mashed potatoes, add corn meal and pepper and mix thoroughly. If dry, add a little milk. Place mixture in a slightly greased pie plate and bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes until top is browned. Cut in pie-shaped pieces.

Council Sanctuary Vote Distressing

Now we know the price for which Quincy taxpayers are expected to sell their souls -- $257. That's the amount losing federal funding by becoming a Sanctuary City would cost every city taxpayer, city councillor Noel DiBona stated at the March 6 council meeting.

Because the public was not permitted to speak at that meeting, no one could ask DiBona what the human cost is when federal ICE officers pull a child's father out of his car in front of his daughter outside the schoolhouse and detain him for deportation. That's the policy the Trump administration has already put in motion in states such as California.

So when some councillors argue that the city's current practices provide sufficient protection to law-abiding immigrants, they must be thinking the Obama administration is still calling the shots. They must not have heard the shouts of approval from Immigration and Customs Enforcement officers (and the current administration's white supremacist supporters) when Trump removed any restrictions on their detention of undocumented people, or whoever looks like them, regardless of whether the 'targets' have been convicted or even accused to doing anything wrong.

And because the City Council voted 6 to 3 the other night against opening a conversation on the Sanctuary City issue, no opportunity was offered to broaden the public's knowledge of the issue, provide everyone with current factual information, and correct councillors' misunderstandings. Information such as the prevalent legal opinion that any attempt to cut off federal funding to sanctuary cities is unlikely to withstand a Constitutional test.

And since members of the public were not permitted to speak, voters may not have noticed that some councillors' reasons for voting 'no' contradicted those of others voting no. Some argued that Quincy was already functioning like a sanctuary city since local officials are not seeking to identify whether local people are undocumented, while DiBona said Quincy should never become a sanctuary city. So is Quincy "really" a sanctuary city already, or isn't it?

Evidently, matters both factual and conceptual need clearing up. Councillors are now asking the rest of us to do the job while they're not in the room. President Kirsten Hughes's argument for voting against holding a council discussion of the issue – "this is not what we do" – is the most distressing response of all. It amounts to telling Quincy citizens 'you may have the Constitutional right to ask us to consider matters important to you, but we have the right to never do it,' a position that effectively denies Americans' First Amendment right to petition their elected officials for a redress of wrongs.

If local officials in the polities that became the United States of America had taken that view of things before 1776, there would never have been a United States of America. One of the most important steps to independence was town meeting approval of the Braintree Instructions calling on local representatives to the Massachusetts General Court to reject the authority of Parliament to govern the American colonies. Full marks to the first council member who can tell us who wrote the Braintree Instructions.

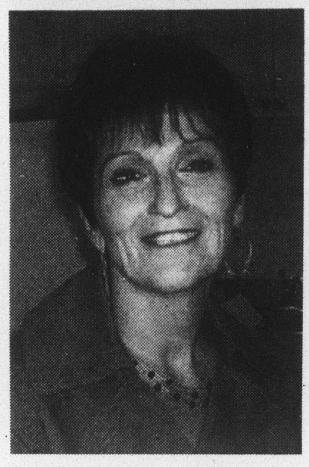
Cellulitis: Not Just Another Skin Rash

A Message From The Quincy Health Department



RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Cellulitis is a common, potentially dangerous bacterial skin infection.

Cellulitis appears as a swollen, red area of skin that feels hot and tender. It can spread swiftly to other parts of the body.

Cellulitis isn't usually transferred from person to person. The skin on the lower legs is the site most commonly affected, though cellulitis can appear anywhere on your body or face. Cellulitis might affect only your skin's surface, or it might also affect tissues underlying your skin and can disseminate to your lymph nodes and bloodstream. Left untreated, the spreading infection can rapidly turn life-threatening. It's crucial to seek immediate medical attention if cellulitis symptoms occur.

Possible signs and symptoms of cellulitis, which usually occur on one side of the body, include:

- Red area of skin that tends to expand
- Swelling
- Tenderness
- Pain
- Warmth
- Fever
- Red spots
- Blisters
- Skin dimpling

It's important to recognize and treat cellulitis early because the condition can spread throughout your body rapidly.

Cellulitis occurs when bacteria, most frequently streptococcus and staphylococcus, enter through an opening or break in the skin. Bacteria is most likely to enter areas of skin that have been disrupted, such as where you've had recent surgery, cuts, puncture wounds, an ulcer, athlete's foot or dermatitis.

Particular types of insect or spider bites also can transmit the bacteria that initiate the infection. Bacteria can also penetrate through areas of dry, flaky skin or swollen skin.

Numerous factors can put you at an increased risk of developing cellulitis:

- Injury. Any cut, fracture, burn or scrape gives bacteria an entry point.
- Weakened immune system. Conditions that weaken your immune system such as diabetes, leukemia and HIV/AIDS can potentially leave you more susceptible to infections. Certain medications, such as corticosteroids, also can compromise your immune system.
- Skin conditions. Skin disorders such as eczema, athlete's foot, chickenpox and shingles can lead to breaks in the skin allowing an entry point for bacteria.
- Lymphedema which is a chronic swelling of your arms or legs may cause skin tissue to crack, leaving it vulnerable to bacterial infection.
- People who previously had cellulitis, especially of the lower leg, may be more prone to develop it again.
- People who inject illegal drugs have a higher risk of developing cellulitis.
- Being overweight or obese increases your risk of developing cellulitis and having recurring episodes.

The bacteria that cause cellulitis can spread rapidly, entering lymph nodes and your bloodstream. Recurrent episodes of cellulitis may injure the lymphatic drainage system and cause chronic swelling of the affected limb. In rare cases, the infection can expand to the deep layer of tissue called the fascial lining.

Flesh-eating strep (necrotizing fasciitis) is an example of a deep-layer infection and it represents an extreme emergency situation.

Most patients start by being evaluated by their primary care practitioner, who may refer them to a dermatologist, a doctor who specializes in skin disorders. If they have a severe infection, they may also be referred to an infectious disease specialist.

Most likely, a prescription antibiotic will be necessary to clear the infection. However, until you see your doctor, you can cleanse the injured area with soap and water and place a cool, damp cloth over the affected area for relief. The skin's appearance will assist your doctor in making a definitive diagnosis. He or she may also suggest blood tests, a wound culture or other tests to help rule out other disorders.

Cellulitis treatment usually involves a prescription oral antibiotic. Within a few days of starting an antibiotic, you should know whether the infection is responding to treatment. You'll need to take the antibiotic for as long as your doctor directs, typically five to 10 days but perhaps as long as 14 days.

In the majority of cases, signs and symptoms of cellulitis dissipate after a few days. You may need to be hospitalized and receive antibiotics intravenously if:

- Signs and symptoms don't respond to oral antibiotics
- Signs and symptoms are extensive
- You have a high fever

Usually, healthcare providers prescribe a drug that's effective against both streptococci and staphylococci. It's imperative that you take the medication as directed and finish the entire course of the antibiotic, even after you begin to feel better. Your doctor also might recommend elevating the affected area, which may hasten your recovery.

If your cellulitis reappears, your doctor may recommend prophylactic, or preventive antibiotics. To aid in the prevention of cellulitis and other infections, consider these safety measures when you develop a skin wound:

- Wash your wound daily with soap and water. Do this gently as part of your normal bathing.
- Apply a protective cream or ointment. For most surface wounds, an over-the-counter antibiotic ointment (Neosporin, Polysporin, others) provides adequate protection.
- Cover your wound with a bandage and change bandages at least daily.
- Be alert for signs of infection. Redness, pain and drainage are all signs of possible infection and may necessitate a medical evaluation.

People with diabetes and those with poor circulation need to take additional precautions to prevent skin injury. Good skin care practices include the following:

- Inspect your feet daily. Regularly check your feet for signs of injury so you can catch infections early.
- Moisturize your skin regularly. Lubricating your skin helps prevent cracking and peeling.
- Trim your fingernails and toenails carefully. Take care not to injure the surrounding skin.
- Protect your hands and feet by wearing suitable footwear and gloves.
- Promptly treat infections on the skin's surface (superficial), such as athlete's foot. Superficial skin infections can easily spread from person to person. Don't delay starting treatment.

Medical Marijuana Dispensary Donates Edible Proceeds To DOVE

Ermont, Inc., a non-profit medical marijuana dispensary specializing in edibles, has launched Ermont Cares, a bimonthly charitable initiative designed to give back to local organizations through the sale of a marijuana infused product.

The first Ermont Cares recipient is DOVE, a Quincy-based multi-service organization providing comprehensive direct services and support for victims of dating and domestic violence, as well as their children.

"We are proud to launch our Ermont Cares initiative with DOVE," said Scottie Gordon, Chief Operating Officer of Ermont, Inc. and a member of the Board of Directors of DOVE. "Being able to provide our patients with the medicine they need, while at the same time giving back to an organization that is so vital to our host city and surrounding communities, further helps us fulfill our mission to provide advocacy and relief for our community."

Over the next two months, Ermont will donate 80 percent of the proceeds from the sale of specially created marijuana infused chocolate to support DOVE's services to victims of domestic and dating violence. The Ermont Cares campaign will continue on a bimonthly basis. Nonprofit organizations interested in becoming an Ermont Cares beneficiary may contact Ermont for more information about the initiative.

Ermont's edibles, created by culinary staff in a professional-grade kitchen, allow patients to get the medicine they need in a more discreet and pleasurable way than smoking marijuana. The rotating menu includes chocolate bars, hot chocolate, lozenges, individual pies, lemonade, cookies, olive oil, hot sauce, mac and cheese, and muffins infused with either THC or CBD in order to best serve patients.

Ermont, the first registered marijuana dispensary on the South Shore of Massachusetts, opened in October 2016. The dispensary is open seven days a week serving patients throughout Massachusetts with a valid patient ID or caregiver card issued by the state Department of Public Health.

Domestic Violence Book Group May 10 At Crane Library

DOVE (DOmestic Violence Ended), Inc., a nonprofit organization in Quincy, will hold a book group to read and discuss an emotional book dealing with the sensitive topic of domestic violence.

The discussion will feature Crazy Love, by Leslie Morgan Steiner, a memoir of a young woman whose seemingly perfect life turned into a nightmare because of domestic violence.

The event will be held Wednesday, May 10, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Thomas Crane Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

A representative of the Quincy Police Department will be in attendance, as well as several DOVE staff members to aid the discussion and answer questions.

Cellulitis isn't usually transferred from person to person. The skin on the lower legs is the site most commonly affected, though cellulitis can appear anywhere on your body or face. Cellulitis might affect only your skin's surface, or it might also affect tissues underlying your skin and can disseminate to your lymph nodes and bloodstream. Left untreated, the spreading infection can rapidly turn life-threatening. It's crucial to seek immediate medical attention if cellulitis symptoms occur.

Possible signs and symptoms of cellulitis, which usually occur on one side of the body, include:

- Red area of skin that tends to expand
- Swelling
- Tenderness
- Pain
- Warmth
- Fever
- Red spots
- Blisters
- Skin dimpling

It's important to recognize and treat cellulitis early because the condition can spread throughout your body rapidly.

Cellulitis occurs when bacteria, most frequently streptococcus and staphylococcus, enter through an opening or break in the skin. Bacteria is most likely to enter areas of skin that have been disrupted, such as where you've had recent surgery, cuts, puncture wounds, an ulcer, athlete's foot or dermatitis.

Particular types of insect or spider bites also can transmit the bacteria that initiate the infection. Bacteria can also penetrate through areas of dry, flaky skin or swollen skin.

Numerous factors can put you at an increased risk of developing cellulitis:

- Injury. Any cut, fracture, burn or scrape gives bacteria an entry point.
- Weakened immune system. Conditions that weaken your immune system such as diabetes, leukemia and HIV/AIDS can potentially leave you more susceptible to infections. Certain medications, such as corticosteroids, also can compromise your immune system.
- Skin conditions. Skin disorders such as eczema, athlete's foot, chickenpox and shingles can lead to breaks in the skin allowing an entry point for bacteria.
- Lymphedema which is a chronic swelling of your arms or legs may cause skin tissue to crack, leaving it vulnerable to bacterial infection.
- People who previously had cellulitis, especially of the lower leg, may be more prone to develop it again.
- People who inject illegal drugs have a higher risk of developing cellulitis.
- Being overweight or obese increases your risk of developing cellulitis and having recurring episodes.

The bacteria that cause cellulitis can spread rapidly, entering lymph nodes and your bloodstream. Recurrent episodes of cellulitis may injure the lymphatic drainage system and cause chronic swelling of the affected limb. In rare cases, the infection can expand to the deep layer of tissue called the fascial lining.

Flesh-eating strep (necrotizing fasciitis) is an example of a deep-layer infection and it represents an extreme emergency situation.

Most patients start by being evaluated by their primary care practitioner, who may refer them to a dermatologist, a doctor who specializes in skin disorders. If they have a severe infection, they may also be referred to an infectious disease specialist.

Most likely, a prescription antibiotic will be necessary to clear the infection. However, until you see your doctor, you can cleanse the injured area with soap and water and place a cool, damp cloth over the affected area for relief. The skin's appearance will assist your doctor in making a definitive diagnosis. He or she may also suggest blood tests, a wound culture or other tests to help rule out other disorders.

Cellulitis treatment usually involves a prescription oral antibiotic. Within a few days of starting an antibiotic, you should know whether the infection is responding to treatment. You'll need to take the antibiotic for as long as your doctor directs, typically five to 10 days but perhaps as long as 14 days.

In the majority of cases, signs and symptoms of cellulitis dissipate after a few days. You may need to be hospitalized and receive antibiotics intravenously if:

- Signs and symptoms don't respond to oral antibiotics
- Signs and symptoms are extensive
- You have a high fever

Usually, healthcare providers prescribe a drug that's effective against both streptococci and staphylococci. It's imperative that you take the medication as directed and finish the entire course of the antibiotic, even after you begin to feel better. Your doctor also might recommend elevating the affected area, which may hasten your recovery.

If your cellulitis reappears, your doctor may recommend prophylactic, or preventive antibiotics. To aid in the prevention of cellulitis and other infections, consider these safety measures when you develop a skin wound:

- Wash your wound daily with soap and water. Do this gently as part of your normal bathing.
- Apply a protective cream or ointment. For most surface wounds, an over-the-counter antibiotic ointment (Neosporin, Polysporin, others) provides adequate protection.
- Cover your wound with a bandage and change bandages at least daily.
- Be alert for signs of infection. Redness, pain and drainage are all signs of possible infection and may necessitate a medical evaluation.

People with diabetes and those with poor circulation need to take additional precautions to prevent skin injury. Good skin care practices include the following:

- Inspect your feet daily. Regularly check your feet for signs of injury so you can catch infections early.
- Moisturize your skin regularly. Lubricating your skin helps prevent cracking and peeling.
- Trim your fingernails and toenails carefully. Take care not to injure the surrounding skin.
- Protect your hands and feet by wearing suitable footwear and gloves.
- Promptly treat infections on the skin's surface (superficial), such as athlete's foot. Superficial skin infections can easily spread from person to person. Don't delay starting treatment.

Medical Marijuana Dispensary Donates Edible Proceeds To DOVE

Ermont, Inc., a non-profit medical marijuana dispensary specializing in edibles, has launched Ermont Cares, a bimonthly charitable initiative designed to give back to local organizations through the sale of a marijuana infused product.

The first Ermont Cares recipient is DOVE, a Quincy-based multi-service organization providing comprehensive direct services and support for victims of dating and domestic violence, as well as their children.

"We are proud to launch our Ermont Cares initiative with DOVE," said Scottie Gordon, Chief Operating Officer of Ermont, Inc. and a member of the Board of Directors of DOVE. "Being able to provide our patients with the medicine they need, while at the same time giving back to an organization that is so vital to our host city and surrounding communities, further helps us fulfill our mission to provide advocacy and relief for our community."

Over the next two months, Ermont will donate 80 percent of the proceeds from the sale of specially created marijuana infused chocolate to support DOVE's services to victims of domestic and dating violence. The Ermont Cares campaign will continue on a bimonthly basis. Nonprofit organizations interested in becoming an Ermont Cares beneficiary may contact Ermont for more information about the initiative.

Ermont's edibles, created by culinary staff in a professional-grade kitchen, allow patients to get the medicine they need in a more discreet and pleasurable way than smoking marijuana. The rotating menu includes chocolate bars, hot chocolate, lozenges, individual pies, lemonade, cookies, olive oil, hot sauce, mac and cheese, and muffins infused with either THC or CBD in order to best serve patients.

Ermont, the first registered marijuana dispensary on the South Shore of Massachusetts, opened in October 2016. The dispensary is open seven days a week serving patients throughout Massachusetts with a valid patient ID or caregiver card issued by the state Department of Public Health.

Domestic Violence Book Group May 10 At Crane Library

DOVE (DOmestic Violence Ended), Inc., a nonprofit organization in Quincy, will hold a book group to read and discuss an emotional book dealing with the sensitive topic of domestic violence.

The discussion will feature Crazy Love, by Leslie Morgan Steiner, a memoir of a young woman whose seemingly perfect life turned into a nightmare because of domestic violence.

The event will be held Wednesday, May 10, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Thomas Crane Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

A representative of the Quincy Police Department will be in attendance, as well as several DOVE staff members to aid the discussion and answer questions.

School Enrollment Up Nearly 500 In 10 Years

district in 2006. Last year, the total was 9,442, an increase of 473 students over the past decade. He noted there were "some ups and downs" during the past 10 years, notably a drop of 75 students in 2014 and a loss of another 56 the following year, in 2015.

The enrollment spiked by a total of 103 from 2015 to 2016. At the elementary level, there was an increase of 77 students in the past year.

"The increase is not severely significant, but some individual schools draw some concern," DeCristofaro said. "Most of the schools are not significantly trending upward."

Lincoln-Hancock,Beechwood Knoll, Montclair and Clifford Marshall elementary schools are "tight." Most of the other schools have some room to accommodate additional students.

The superintendent said the kindergarten enrollment figures will help determine what, if any, additional staffing or programs would be needed for next year.

"By late May or early June we will have a pretty decent idea what our kindergarten class sizes will be and how it will shift from building to building or shift staff," he told the committee. "If the schools are tighter than we want, I will present options to consider."

DeCristofaro noted there are 788 full day kindergarten students enrolled this year.

"That is something our city should be very proud of," he said. "It's a great benefit many other cities and towns don't have."

The superintendent added that although some schools are near or at capacity, class sizes are good.

Committee member Anne Mahoney suggested that Quincy follow the lead of some other communities and begin the kindergarten registration earlier in the year, such as January or February, before the budget process starts. This, she said, would give administrators more time to prepare staffing needs for the next school year.

"When you do (kindergarten registration) in March and right after we start the budget process, you're right up against the wall," she said. "The earlier you are able to predict (enrollment), the better you are able to understand potentially the impacts you are having for the schools."

She noted that Quincy is a transient city, given the large number of apartments, and that makes it difficult to predict enrollment trends, but asked that the administration get a "jump start" on getting the information earlier.

DeCristofaro said Quincy differs from some surrounding communities and trying to get the numbers earlier would not be easy.

"There are a lot of variables," he said. "I would be interested at looking at whatever concept we could apply. If there is a way to inject in January or February some way of defining what will be in June, July, August or September, I'd love to know what that is and what other communities do. I think it would be very difficult because of the variables."

In other matters: Executive director of Career and Technical Education Keith Segalla informed the committee of two state grants awarded to the district.

One, a Massachusetts Skills Capital Grant for $75,000, will fund a new information technology program at North Quincy High School in the fall to purchase 25 computers, five iMacs, an interactive whiteboard, servers, a tablet, routers, a short-throw projector, a document camera, three printers and related equipment and furniture to outfit the lab.

The second $75,000 grant, from Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, will fund staff and purchase computer equipment for an underserved student technical career program in the district.

Segalla also said the district has two new community business partners, Mass Bay Credit Union and Granite Telecommunications. He explained that Mass Bay would assist with the annual Credit for Life Fair on March 23 and provide support for accounting and finance courses at both high schools.

According to Segalla, Granite will provide $15,000 a year for the next 20 years – a total of $300,000 - to support mini-grants, the arts and technology.

Curriculum coordinator Beth Hallett informed the committee about the All-City Chorus, a new fifth grade chorale program that started in January where 61 students from across the district are participating. She explained the students are "learning challenging chorale music and learning how to blend their voices as part of a large ensemble."

There will be a culminating concert on May 2.

She also expressed appreciation to the newly-created Quincy Chorale Boosters group's fundraising efforts that is supporting the district's chorale events. The group is planning to hold a chorale camp for elementary and middle school students during April vacation. She noted the boosters has provided assisted with private voice lessons.

Hallett also thanked the Quincy Band Boosters for supporting the kindergarten through grade 12 instrumental bands. Hallett noted the organization has purchased instruments for students and is providing scholarship opportunities for private lessons and a summer camp as well as securing grants for the Quincy/North Quincy Marching Band.

Hallett also informed the committee that Koch is supporting funding for the district to purchase new uniforms for the Quincy/North Quincy Marching Band.

She also paid tribute to several students who participated in art and music events.

Bryan Spaur Memorial Flag At WWII Memorial

Quincy Veterans Services has raised a donated memorial American flag at the World War II Memorial at Mount Wollaston Cemetery in honor of a deceased veteran.

The flag is in memory of Quincy resident Bryan Perry Spaur, a U.S. Army soldier retired of 21 years of service to his country who served in Vietnam during the Vietnam War as an E-6 sergeant. Mr. Spuar was honorably discharged. He died in March of 2004.

This flag will continue to flag over the veterans lot until the flag is ready to be disposed.

the quality of life for other residents.

"The purpose of Councillor Harris, Councillor Laforest and myself putting this legislation together is to really crack down on absentee landlords – that's who this is addressing – specifically the absentee landlords who don't take care of their properties," Palmucci said.

"Anyone who lives near one of these properties knows how they can drag down quality of life in a neighborhood. They tend to attract tenants who cause problems because there is no oversight at these buildings. They're unsightly. The properties become run down. They become not only a hazard to the residents living there, but also to the community at-large."

Under the proposal, landlords who rent out five or more dwelling units in the city would be required to obtain a business license. Landlords with four or fewer units who reside or have a business office outside of Quincy would be required to obtain a permit for each unit at an annual cost of $25.

No permit would be issued to a landlord that neither lives within a 45-mile radius of Quincy nor has a business office in that same area, unless the landlord has a "responsible local representing" residing or working in the same vicinity who is able to act as an agent for the owner.

The proposed ordinance would require landlords who must obtain a rental permit submit an affidavit stating each unit meets minimum standards as established by city and state regulations. The property owners subject to the ordinance would also have to make their properties available for an inspection by the city's Inspectional Services Department on 48 hours notice, and would have 30 days to correct any issues.

The ordinance states that professional management companies in good standing would be exempt from the permit fee and the affidavit of conditions.

The ordinance also creates a points system for infractions by tenants, based on the severity of their misdeeds. A first-time warning for a particular offense might get one point, for example, while a violation that results in serious injury or death would result in an assessment of 25 points.

If a dwelling unit accumulates 10 points on more than six occasions within a 12-month period, it could be subject to revocation hearings before the city's Board of License Commissioners. If a permit were revoked, the tenants living on site with a valid lease would still be subject to all protections afforded by state law.

If a landlord began eviction proceedings against an offending tenant, the permit-revocation hearing would be stayed until that process is completed. If the behavior of a tenant was the sole cause for the points being awarded, eviction of the offending party would remove those points from the record.

Palmucci said the regulations proposed in the new ordinance would be the most robust of their kind in the Bay State.

"This legislation would create the most robust system of laws regulating absentee landlords, I think, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," he said. "It's the first of its kind in Massachusetts because of the depth and the bredth that it takes in terms of regulating and disciplining wayward absentee landlords."

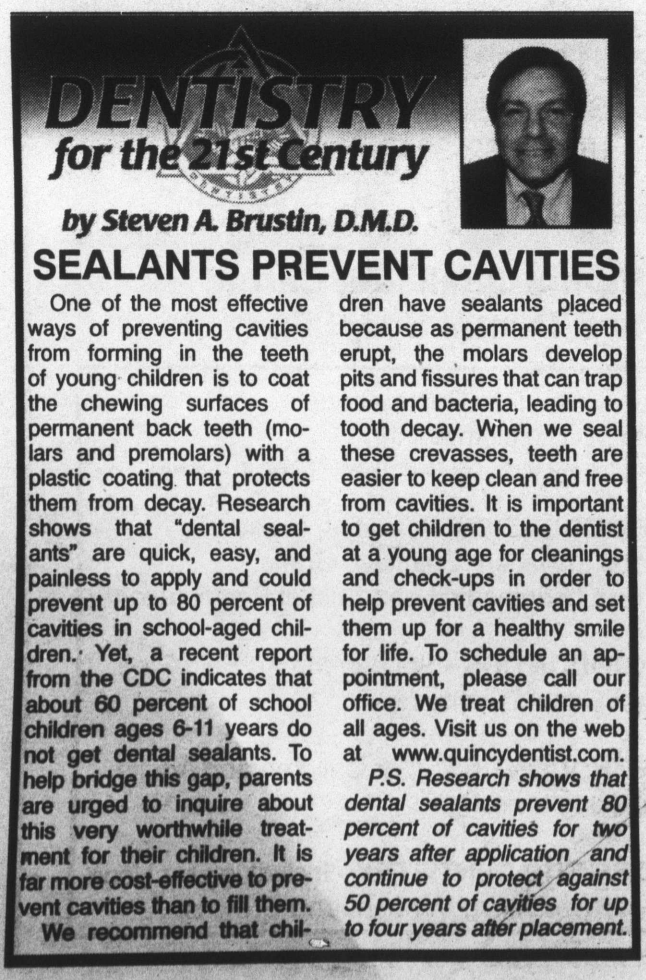
The legislation is subject to review by the council as a whole, and also by the city's law office. Palmucci said he wants to work with the public, including landlords, to craft the best bill.

"I'm certainly open to working with other councillors, working with concerned residents and property owners to shape something that makes sense for everybody that still achieves the same goals that Councillors Laforest, Harris and I are setting out here," he said.

"We see that this is kind of a first draft that may change during the legislative purpose – we're open to that – and I look forward to in the coming months working directly with those who would most be impacted by this legislation."

Council President Kirsten Hughes lauded the three councillors for the work they put into the proposed ordinance.

"I just want to commend council colleagues on this," she said. "As a ward councillor, we all know the affect absentee-landlord properties. It's always sort of the same ones that we see coming up and being problematic to folks in the neighborhood…Working together to find a solution to that problem is important."



Quincy Point Bar Getting New Owner

Pat Sheehan's Pub Opening At 536 Washington St.

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new owner is renovating a Quincy Point barroom and will re-open the venue with a new name in the coming weeks.

The Board of License Commissioners on March 7 approved the transfer of the all alcohol license previously held by Greater Hospitality Inc., the operator of Yesterday's at 536 Washington St., to D. Lee Enterprises. Daniel Lee, the bar's new manager, is a selectman in the town of Holbrook.

Lee plans to re-open the bar as Pat Sheehan's Pub and will do so once the Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission gives its approval to the transfer.

Bob Harnais, Lee's attorney, said the new owner hopes to make the bar more attractive and inviting to patrons.

"He just wants to clean it up and make it more of an attractive bar," Harnais said. "Right now when you walk in it's kind of dark. He wants more of a pub-type bar with TVs and things that attract people there."

Pat Sheehan's Pub will be open between 10 a.m. and 1 a.m. seven days a week. Yesterday's had those same hours but was only open intermittently.

"Yesterday's is open sporadically – sometimes it's open and sometimes it's not," Harnais said. "That doesn't attract business, so [Lee] is going to maintain it every single day."

Lee said he plans to offer food at the pub, including pizza and sandwiches.

In other business at its meeting March 7, the board continued a request for the transfer of stock and change of directors of Nite Entertainment, the company that owns Revel at 79 Parkingway.

Jon Aieta, the attorney who went before the board, said Edward Matthew was in the process of purchasing all outstanding shares stock in Nite Entertainment and would be the only outstanding officer, director and shareholder in the company following the transfer.

"He is a hands-on owner. He wants to jump right in and get involved pending approval," Aieta said. "In terms of day-to-day operation, they're going to stay the same. The hours of operation will remain the same. There would be very little change in terms of the operation itself."

Matthew said he planned to improve food service at the venue, and would also end nights targeted to college students.

"We're not looking to do anything different in the business there other than to perfect the restaurant, which has been missing in the business," he said. "That's our biggest forthcoming – to expand the operations for food service.

"The entertainment business is what it is. We'll perfect that as well by managing the IDs. We're not doing nights that appeal to college [students] anymore. We've changed that and we're not going down that path."

The hearing on the request was continued because investigators with the ABCC have said 14 minors – mainly college students – were found in possession of alcohol inside Revel on Feb. 16 and the bar's current owners will be called before the state commission in the future for a hearing.

Police Chief Paul Keenan said the ABCC would not allow a transfer of the license while the hearing with state regulators is still pending. He asked that Matthew's request be continued until after that process is completed, and his colleagues unanimously agreed.

Aieta said Matthew submitted paperwork to assume ownership of the bar prior to the Feb. 16 incident.

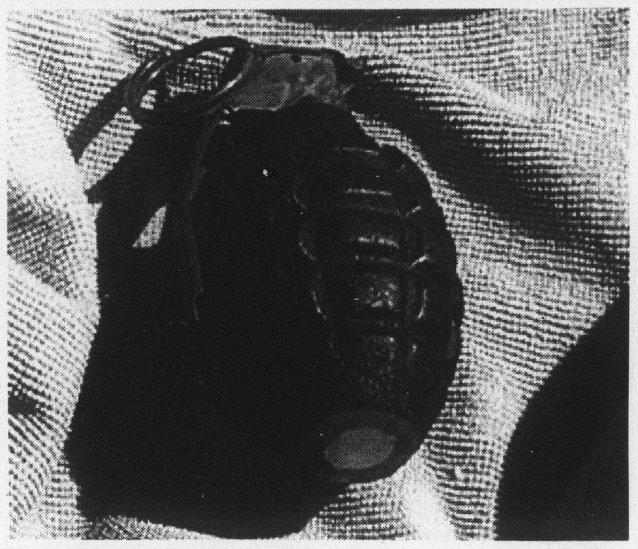
"It's not like a violation happened and we ran in for the transfer," he said following the board's decision to continue the matter.

In other business, the board granted Louis at 1269 Sea St. permission to open its outdoor patio for one day on Saturday for a St. Patrick's Day event.

Louis had received permission from the licensing board to open the patio full-time last year, but the city's regulations only allow restaurants to offer outdoor seating between Patriots Day in April and Columbus Day in October.

John Galligan, the restaurant's manager, said the event on Saturday would also involve the closure of Bayview Avenue adjacent to Louis' patio. The event will take place from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

City Clerk Nicole Crispo said Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest had contacted her prior to the meeting to give her support for Louis' request; Laforest also said she had received positive feedback from the nearby community for the request.



A GRENADE brought to Quincy police headquarters March 6 was inert, police said. People are advised to report such devices to the police and leave them in place until experts arrive.

Grenade Brought To Police Station Was Inert

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy police said residents should call 9-1-1 if they see a suspicious object and not take it to a police or fire station as one local man did recently when he brought an inert grenade to department headquarters.

The man brought the grenade to the police station on Sea Street around 12:15 p.m. on March 6. He told officers in the station's lobby he found it on a relative's property in Hanover and decided to bring it to Quincy police headquarters as he was in the city for a funeral that day.

The grenade was immediately removed from the building and the Boston Police Department's bomb squad was called to the scene to investigate. Quincy Police Capt. John Dougan said the investigators determined the grenade was inert and likely was used for training purposes.

Police are continuing to investigate where the grenade was found, but Dougan said the individual who brought it to the police station would not face criminal charges because he was looking to dispose of the device.

In the future, Dougan said such devices should be reported to police and left in place until experts arrive.

"Call 9-1-1. Don't go near it. Don't bring it to us or bring it to the fire department," he said. "Leave it in place and let the experts handle it."

'Unraveling The Mystery Of Healthcare Costs' Seminar

Comprehensive Benefit Administrators, a company that combines traditional brokerage services with specialty services such as advocacy, claims administration, benefits expertise and compliance, will host a seminar, "Unraveling the Mystery of Healthcare Costs" in conjunction with Rockland Trust Company.

The seminar will take place Thursday, March 23 at the Quincy Marriott, 1000 Marriott Dr., from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The seminar is a two-part series. The first, "Unraveling the Mystery of Healthcare Costs," will run from 8:30 to 10 a.m., with the actual seminar beginning at 9 a.m. This topic is presented by Michael McKenna, president and CEO of Comprehensive Benefit Administrators. The presentation will include an open discussion on why today's healthcare costs are so expensive, and some general strategies for how to mitigate those costs, and a look at what the changing face of healthcare costs may include.

The second part of the seminar is "Understanding the Economic Impact of a Financially Unprepared Workforce to your Bottom Line," introduced by Rockland Trust Retirement Plan Manager Sean McGarry and presented by MassMutual's Brian J. Mezey. This portion of the program will be a discussion to help CFOs and HR Managers quantify what they already know; namely, that an aging workforce costs more. The discussion will focus on what you can do about it.

"This is a must-attend for anyone concerned about the spiraling costs of healthcare and how employers can mitigate the financial challenges of these costs, plus workforce issues," McKenna said. "These will be challenging issues for employers in the New Year, and with a change in administration, it's advisable to stay on top of what's happening and hear some strategies for the coming year."

There is no cost to attend, but seats are limited. RSVP to Kasey Southwick, ksouthwick@cbacompanies.com, by March 20.

Quincy Police Female Self Defense Classes In Demand

By Lt. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit

The Quincy Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit, which organizes the two-night free self defense program, has increased the classes from quarterly to monthly based on public demand. The classes are held at three different locations and Quincy Police Chief Keenan would like to thank:

- President's Place/Related Beal, 1250 Hancock St.
- Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston
- Best Western Adams Inn in North Quincy

for continuously hosting such an important program. These locations provide ample space for free as part of their community outreach.

The two consecutive night program starts at 6 p.m. and runs to about 8:30 p.m. Since this is a progressive program, attendance is required for both nights. The class starts out with a brief discussion on "Awareness of your surroundings" so that you will reduce your chances of having to physically defend yourself. The instructors stress that escape is your priority, using verbal commands - calling out for help as your first actions. It is at this point that the class focuses on taking physical measures to protect and defend yourself.

On the first night, Quincy police officers/instructors work with the students individually and as a group on the proper technique for various kicks, punches and blocks. A major component that is stressed both nights of the class is verbal commands, which most people don't have an opportunity to use on a daily basis (i.e. yelling).

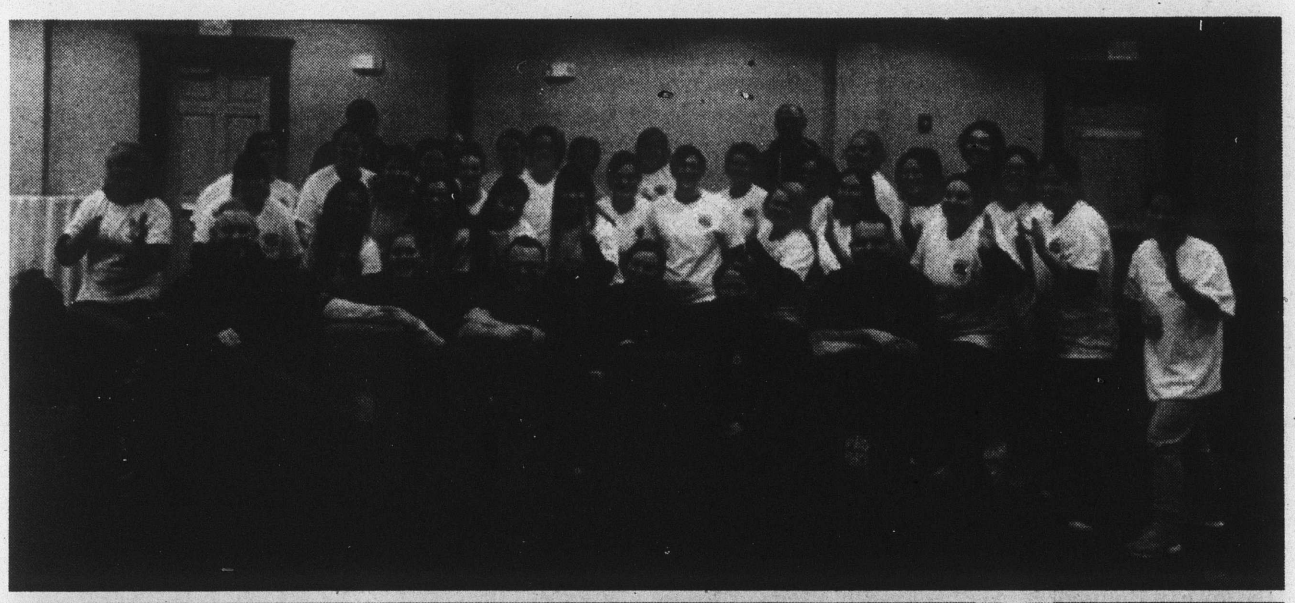
On the second night, after learning additional maneuvers, there is a review and then the scenarios are presented so that the students can test themselves. At this time, the students leave the hall/gym and are suited up with a padded helmet and other pads. One at a time, the students will be warmed up outside the confrontation room as they punch and kick bags held by instructors, who tell the students to make this as real as possible. Once the student enters the confrontation zone, the instructors will give the student a briefing of the scenario.

The student will then encounter one or two of the instructors, who will be dressed up in the "Red Man" suit, which is a fully padded outfit to protect them from the onslaught of 25-35 students, giving their best punches and kicks to get free from the "assaulter." Each student will be afforded the opportunity to go through two different scenarios. It is important to note that the scenarios are private and optional. There are no other students in the hall/gym. The Instructors tell the student that there is no running away in the scenarios; that it is set up so that each student can test their physical skills they learned in the class.

This class gives each student a personal test to assess their own skill in a life like situation. For some, it may lead to taking a martial arts or strength and conditioning program. It is also important to know the following; there is no certificate, there is no "pass/fail" standard and it is emphasized that no student is required or pushed to do any aspect of the class that she may feel uncomfortable with. We will however give you a complimentary "Friends of Quincy Police" shirt!

The Quincy Police Self Defense class, which has been in existence for about 15 years, has trained hundreds of women ranging in age from 16 to 85. As always, students who have completed the course are always welcome to refresh their skills by attending the program again or just coming the second night to go through the scenarios.

"The City of Quincy is a very safe place, however, as in any major city, there are incidents of threats and assaults," said Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan. "We've taught this class to high school juniors/seniors who may be going off to colleges across the country. We train senior citizens at the Kennedy Center, too.



"It is a feeling of empowerment for the students of the class – to know that you have the tools to defend yourself to ultimately escape the situation," the chief continued. "This program has been ongoing for about 15 years and I constantly get much appreciated letters from participants who rave about the Instructors and their commitment to protecting our citizens. The demand for the program has increased so much that we have added additional classes.

"I encourage all females who live in the city, work here or just wish to attend to sign up. Based on all the letters, you will feel confident about yourself after completing this class."

We hope that all females will take up this offer and if the above information is not enough to get you to the class, consider recent letters from past students:

I had the fortunate opportunity to attend the two night women's only self defense class, held by the Quincy Police Department. I wanted to extend a personal thank you to you, for allowing such a program to be offered to

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Wednesday, March 8, members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit (Detectives Sgt. Tapper, Duran, Powers, Glennon and O'Brien) were conducting surveillance in the area of Marsh and Quincy Street due to recent complaints about drug use.

The initial complaint was from a citizen who observed suspicious activity, namely that a person walked down from Quincy Street and got into a vehicle with money in his hand. This person spent about 3 minutes in the car and got out with a brown paper bag. He then walked back toward Quincy Street.

The citizen provided a license plate and description of the vehicle, which was registered to a male from Boston. Soon after, Detective O'Rourke conducted surveillance on Marsh Street and observed a male get in and out of a 2000 white Mitsubishi Montero. Detective O'Rourke stopped the male after the Montero drove off and questioned him. The male told the Detective the male in the Montero sells heroin and that he owed him money. A check of the registration at the time showed that this vehicle was also registered to the same man from Boston.

Soon after, the Quincy Police Drug Unit received another complaint about drug activity on Marsh Street from an anonymous tipster on MYPD. The complaint stated that a Hispanic male sells heroin out of a black Toyota on Marsh Street and that several deaths have been caused by this male's heroin. A check of the registration showed that the car was owned by a rental company.

On March 8th, at approximately 5:30 p.m., Detective O'Brien was conducting surveillance when he observed a brown Hyundai parked at the corner of Marsh Street and Quincy Street with three occupants sitting inside of it. A query of the plate showed that the owner was from Halifax, MA and the plate had been queried 41 times in the past month. (The plate was checked 41 times by police departments.) After a few minutes, one of the males exited the vehicle and began walking up Marsh Street. Detective Glennon arrived to assist and observed the male walk to Marsh and School Street while pacing back and forth using his cell phone.

After a minute, the male began to slowly walk back down Marsh Street. A brown Toyota Avalon occupied by two males turned down Marsh Street and stopped in front of a house. A male got out of the rear passenger seat of the vehicle and walked over to the Hyundai and got in. At that time, the detectives believed the male and the occupants of the Toyota Avalon were just involved in a drug transaction. The Hyundai then drove away and the Toyota Avalon drove around the corner onto Quincy Street. Once on Quincy Street, the Toyota pulled over again. The passenger then exited the Avalon and walked over to a parked 2017 black Ford Fusion occupied solely by a blonde female, which was noted by Detectives earlier. Detective Glennon then observed the male walk away from the Ford Fusion and back to the Toyota Avalon. The Ford Fusion then left the area.

LT. DAN MINTON

During this time, the Toyota Avalon drove down Quincy Street, turned around and came back to pick up the male near the Fusion. The detectives believed a second drug transaction involving the occupants of the Toyota Avalon. The Toyota Avalon then drove around the corner back onto Marsh Street and stopped on the side of the road.

Detective O'Brien then observed a female go up to the passenger side window and lean into the vehicle briefly. She then stood upright and began to walk back towards Quincy Street as the Avalon drove away towards School Street. At that time, through training and experience it was believed that the occupants of the Avalon were just involved in a third drug transaction.

Detective O'Brien relayed the description of the female to Detective Glennon. Detective O'Brien continued to follow the Avalon. Detective Glennon approached the female as she walked on Quincy Street and could see that she was holding an object that appeared to be multiple small glassine bags in her right hand. Detective Glennon grabbed her hand and stated, "Quincy Police" while displaying his police badge. He then read Miranda Rights to her which she stated she understood. He told her that he saw the drug transaction and she admitted that she just purchased heroin for $110 and turned over 3 small baggies to Detective Glennon. She said that she bought them from the operator of the Avalon by reaching in through the open passenger window. Detective Glennon then relayed that he recovered drugs from the female to the other Detectives.

Detective O'Brien then contacted Officer Paul Foley and requested that he stop the Toyota Avalon, which was stopped at the intersection of Copeland Street and Furnace Brook Parkway. Once stopped, the detective approached the passenger side door and requested that he step out of the vehicle. As he did this, several one hundred dollar bills fell from his lap onto the ground. Detective O'Brien placed the male under arrest and advised him of his Miranda Rights. When asked where he was coming from, the male said he was at the South Shore Plaza. He then denied meeting any people on Marsh Street. When asked why he had so much cash, the male said he was looking to buy a car. Detective O'Brien then placed the male under arrest. Officer Foley then placed the operator under arrest, read him his Miranda Rights, and then he was transported to the Quincy Police Station by Officer Acevedo.

The vehicle was then towed by Schlager's Towing to the Quincy Police Station to be searched. Officer Foley then searched the vehicle with the assistance of his narcotics trained K-9 "Charlie". Officer Foley stated K-9 "Charlie" alerted to the presence of a narcotics odor in the area of the rear of the center console. Officers Foley and Dabilis then located a mechanical "hide" under the center console. Officer Foley alerted Detectives Duran and Powers of his findings. They then located a large kitchen knife, numerous baggies of tan and white powder which they believed to be heroin and/or Fentanyl and cocaine. The baggies weighed approximately 71 grams.

The two males, 21 and 20 years old, from Boston, were both charged with trafficking in Class A (heroin) over 36g, trafficking in Fentanyl, possession with intent to distribute Class B (cocaine), Distribution Class A, Distribution Class B, and conspiracy to violate the drug laws. The male driver was also charged with operating a M/V without a license.

The $1,824 found on the passenger, along with two cell phones and the 2001 brown Toyota Avalon were seized pending civil forfeiture. Nice Work!

Register O'Donnell Emphasizes Need To File Mortgage Discharges

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds homeowners about the importance of filing a mortgage discharge in a timely manner after their mortgage has been paid off.

"When holding office hours, and speaking before concerned citizens in each of the Norfolk County communities, one of the most commonly asked questions I receive from homeowners is whether they have clear title to their property," O'Donnell said. "One way to check on your title is by accessing the Registry's online records and verifying if all mortgages associated with the property have been discharged."

"When a mortgage is paid off, a mortgage discharge document needs to be recorded with the Registry of Deeds to clear a homeowner's property title relative to that loan," O'Donnell said. A discharge is a document (typically one page) issued by the lender, usually with a title such as "Discharge of Mortgage" or "Satisfaction of Mortgage."

"In many instances," O'Donnell said, "Discharges are filed directly by banks or settlement closing attorneys with the Registry as part of a property sale or as a result of a refinancing transaction. In other cases, the mortgage discharge is sent to the property owner who becomes responsible for making sure the document is recorded at the Registry. Whether or not a discharge is recorded by the lending institution or the individual property owner, it is prudent that the property owner make sure that all necessary documents have been recorded at the Registry of Deeds."

The Register further mentioned that there have been cases where no discharge has been recorded against a long paid off mortgage. Unfortunately, some of the lending institutions that provided funds for these mortgages are no longer in existence. In other cases, financial entities have merged with another lending entity. "You cannot sell your property without having your mortgage discharged," the Register warned.

If a property owner needs to retrieve an original discharge of a mortgage and is unclear which lending institution is now responsible for providing the document, an option is to contact the Massachusetts Division of Banks at 1-800-495-2265. This government agency can assist the consumer in tracking down contact information for the lending institution that is responsible for the mortgage.

When recording a discharge, the original document is required. The Registry of Deeds does not accept photo copies or faxed copies of documents. The filing fee, set by state statute, is $76.

"After paying off all the mortgages on their property, homeowners want to be assured that they have clear title to their property, especially if they are contemplating selling," O'Donnell said. "Being diligent and aware of what is required will go a long way in giving the homeowner peace of mind. Therefore, I again urge homeowners to make sure their mortgage discharge has been filed with the Registry of Deeds once their mortgage has been paid off. There is no reason to wait."

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is staffed with a team of customer service representatives who can be reached Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 781-461-6101. Representatives have been trained in researching documents and are well versed on the subject of mortgage discharges and what, if necessary, needs to be done to clear title to a property.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Residents in need of assistance can consult the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org or contact our Customer Service Center via telephone at (781) 461-6101.

Quincy Student 'Ambassadors' Honored

By TOM GORMAN

Three Quincy grade 8 students joined more than 300 students from across the state on Jan. 14 to kick-off the yearlong Project 351 Ambassadors program for a day of community service in Boston.

Asling Kelly of Broad Meadows Middle School, Anthony Coughlin of Atlantic Middle School and Renee Clermont of Central Middle School were recognized by the school committee at its Jan. 25 meeting for participating in the program. Clermont was not present at the meeting.

Project 351, founded in 2011 by then Gov. Deval Patrick, is a statewide, youth service organization where eighth grade students from each of the Commonwealth's 351 communities participate in a yearlong program that fosters unity, the ethic of service and civic responsibility.

The ambassadors are chosen by their school's educators who serve as their mentors.

Kelly's mentor was Broad Meadows principal Dan Gilbert, Coughlin's was Atlantic Middle social studies teacher Joe MacRitchie and Central Middle teacher Aaron Skowyra served as Clermont's mentor.

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said the program promotes leadership and enrichment opportunities through community projects.

"A lot of it is based on service to create positive change in communities, building a statewide network of value based peers and unite the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in a way that people get input from our wonderful young students," he said.

Kelly and Coughlin related their kickoff day experience for the committee.

Kelly was a member of Team Martin Richard, named after the 8-year-old who died in the 2013 Boston Marathon bombing. She explained that her team created care packages for children who are taken in by the Department of Children and Families (DCF).

"We made little care packages with a toothbrush, toothpaste, a change of clothes and a change of pajamas, things that will make them feel more comfortable for the situation they are in," she said. "Sometimes if they're taken they don't get to go home and grab their supplies that make them feel comfortable."

Coughlin was a member of former Gov. Deval Patrick's team and worked at the Edwards Middle School in Boston.

"We painted murals," he said. "Students made quotes and we painted them on the walls. We also made cards for first responders - firefighters, police officers, EMTs."

He added that another group of students there created a safe room in the school.

"It's amazing how much we got done," he said.

Committee members congratulated the students.

Anne Mahoney noted that she participated in Project 351 Ambassadors when she was in middle school.

"It's such an exciting program, I'm glad it's still going on," she said. "It's an opportunity to learn about each other and team building. It's the beginning of things you will be doing. I can't wait to see where you're going to go."

Committee Vice Chairman Paul Bregoli concurred, adding that he was "incredibly impressed" by the students.

The ambassadors will participate for the next year in a variety of projects, results-driven leadership training and will be exposed to various issues and opportunities that are challenging.

In other matters, the committee voted to accept a $6,500 gift from the Randy C. Wolfe Music Trust to benefit the district's music program.

The superintendent informed the committee that two new nurses, Sarah Stanton Crowley and Mollie O'Connell were appointed to the district.

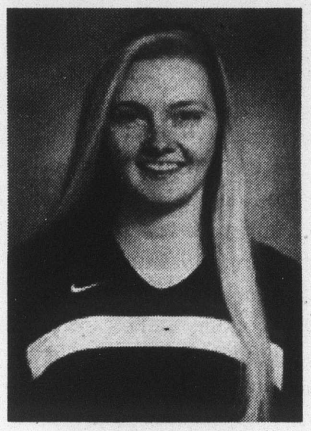
Caitlin Bulger Concludes Steller Career At Rivier



CAITLIN BULGER

Caitlin Bulger of Quincy was among five seniors recently honored by Rivier University Women's Basketball.

Bulger, a 2013 graduate of North Quincy High School, concluded her Rivier career with 90 games played and 75 games started. She started in every game she has played in since her sophomore year.

A fan favorite with her signature pink shoes and perfect rainbow shot, she also became a favorite to those who understand the game of basketball with her level of unselfish play and incredible passing abilities.

Bulger will go down as one of the best three point shooters to wear a Raider uniform. One of her career highlights occurred on Jan. 31 as she tallied a program single game scoring record with 38 points. In setting the mark, Bulger drained seven three-point attempts in Rivier's 93-75 win over Pine Manor College in front of a vociferous crowd at the Muldoon Gymnasium.

Bulger shot 13-for-20 from the floor and also recorded eight assists in the win.

She finished her college career with more than 600 points, over 100 steals and nearly 200 rebounds.

Andrew Jaehnig On Assumption Baseball Team

The Assumption College Department of Athletics announces Andrew Jaehnig, of Quincy, has earned a spot on the 2017 Assumption College baseball team.

Jaehnig, Class of 2018, will compete during the Greyhounds' spring season, which began in late February when the team traveled to the USA Baseball National Training Complex in Cary, NC, for a four-game series, followed by nine games during their annual spring break trip to Florida.

"As a program, we are very excited about the start of the 2017 season," said fourth-year head baseball coach Mike Rocco. "Being able to go down to Cary, NC, and Florida for spring break are great opportunities for us to go out and compete against some competitive programs."

Of its 50 schedulued games, Assumption will play 19 of them at home. In 2016, the Hounds posted a 14-15 record (19-25 overall) in the Northeast-10 Conference, which earned Assumption its first postseason berth since 2009.

For more information on Assumption sports, visit www.assumptiongreyhounds.com.

Fitzy-Nolan Games Thursday At QHS

The Boston Athletic Basketball Club will honor Squantum native and New England Basketball "Hall of Fame" inductee George "Bo" Ruggiero at the BABC's annual Fitzy-Nolan games Thursday, March 16 at Quincy High School.

The games will feature BABC sophomores suiting up against South Select Juniors followd by BABC juniors versus South Select Seniors beginning at 6:30 p.m. March 16.

Local basketball playrers invited to compete are Quincy High senior Ugo Kamalu, QHS sophomore Will Zarges and North Quincy High School junior Jean Louis.

Many BABC alumni from the previous three games held in Quincy are now excelling at the NCAA Division 1 level. Nationally ranked Florida State sophomore (and team captain) Terrance Mann, University of Miami freshman (and candidate for ACC Rookie of Year) Bruce Brown are among the 26 BABC alumni currently active in college basketball.

Ruggiero, a 1960 graduate of North Quincy High School and high school hoop coaching legend, will receive the BABC's Lifetime Achievement Award. Ruggerio has been an active coach, primarily in the MIAA arena, since the 1960s at Medfield High School continuing to the present at Cohasset High School.

Ruggiero has amassed 583 career victories including more than 100 games at four different schools: Medfield, Bridgewater State College, Foxboro High School and Cohasset High.

Parent & Tot Recreation Program Underway

The Quincy Recreation Department announces a Parent and Tot recreation program, Tot Time, is underway.

The recreation time takes place on Saturday mornings through April 8th at the Fore River Cluhouse, Nevada Road, Quincy Point, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. It is open to children age 2 through those not yet enrolled in kindergarten.

The cost is $5 for the first child and $3 for each additional child in the same family with a maximum of $10 per family per week.

Registration can be done in person at the program.

For additional information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at (617) 376-1394 or visit www.QuincyRec.com.

The department will provide age appropriate toddler play equipment and gym mats with leaders to guide play. Parents or guardians are required to remain at the facility. The Recreation Department will brew hot coffee for the adults, and encourages parents to provide appropriate snacks for their own children.

"Parents requested this new program which will have activity that is designed to provide toddlers the opportunity to enjoy indoor play during the cold winter months," Recreation Director Barry Welch said. "At the same time, parents can socialize and network with others who have children of the same age."

Morrisette Legion Baseball Info Meeting March 22

Morrisette Legion Baseball will hold its annual informational meeting Wednesday, March 22 at 7 p.m. at the Morrisette American Legion Post Home, Liberty Street, Quincy.

This meeting is for any player (and parents) who plans on trying out for Morrisette this summer. Whether you're new to the program or a returning player, you or a parent should be in attendance.

CORE SOLUTION TO LOWER BACK PAIN

Those who suffer from lower back pain are often told that they should strengthen their abdominal muscles. However, this is only part of the solution. A more comprehensive approach involves "core strengthening" exercises that include the abdominal muscles, back muscles, and the muscles around the pelvis. If one group is stronger than another, it throws balance and posture off, leading to back pain. With this in mind, it is important to simultaneously strengthen the lower back and abdominal muscles to create a healthy core. One of the best exercises to attain this goal is the "pelvic tilt," which involves lying down with knees bent and raising the butt off the floor about two inches for ten seconds at a time.

Chiropractors perform 95 percent of all adjustments to correct the subluxations, or misalignments, of the vertebrae in the spine. There are many different chiropractic adjustment techniques that are very gentle and effective. The goal of any adjustment is to restore nerve function. To schedule an appointment for chiropractic care, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. Our practice is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Do not arch your back while performing the pelvic tilt. Ask your chiropractor to check your technique.

JOHN PAUL - AAA's Car Doctor

What do you think of these new "automatic manual" transmissions; I'm looking at a couple of cars with them and have heard of problems. What makes them different and will they last like a regular transmission?

There are basically three types of transmissions: a manual transmission that the driver uses a clutch and gear shift to change gears, a hydraulic automatic transmission that uses sophisticated gears, hydraulic valves, bands and clutches. Then the type that you are referring to: the electronically shifted manual transmission. This system uses a series of gears, similar to a manual transmission and two clutches. These transmissions can be shifted manually or electronically. These dual-clutch transmissions are simpler, return better fuel economy and for the enthusiast can provide many of the same thrills as driving a stick shift. For the everyday driver, these transmissions also have a different "feel" which not everyone likes or appreciates. Regarding longevity, so far this style transmission is holding up pretty well, although routine servicing is necessary and transmission fluid is pricey compared with a conventional transmission.

I took my Jeep with 120,000 miles into the dealer and they told me it was going to need shocks. I didn't have them replaced and had the Jeep looked at by my local shop and they didn't see anything wrong. Who do I believe?

Testing shocks haven't really changed in as long as I can remember. At 120,000 miles it is certainly possible the shocks are worn out. Start with a visual inspection-looking for leaks and damage. If the shocks look okay, then bounce on the car and watch how the car rebounds. A good shock with generally only allow the car to rebound once or twice. If the vehicle bounces more than twice replace the shocks.

I have a Ford Excursion with at least 150,000 miles on it (the odometer stopped working) and the check engine light is on. There is a code P0420. We have been told that the catalytic converter and oxygen sensors need replacement. I don't want to put any more in this "beast." Is there anything I can do short of spending thousands of dollars on this truck?

This code will set when the vehicle's computer determines that the efficiency of the catalyst has degraded below a calibrated threshold. There is no easy fix (magic additives, oxygen sensor extenders) that will fix the problem. Perhaps to save a little labor cost see if a local vocational school will take on your truck as a class project.

I'm looking for a luxury SUV that is a bit different with a slight "green" edge and also stands out from the SUV crowd. I see too many Cadillac Escalades and Navigators and I would like a hybrid, electric or diesel. I'm looking at the Tesla X, Lexus RX450h and maybe a diesel Land Rover. What do you think?

I have never spent any time in the Tesla model X although I have been a passenger in the four-door sedan and came away impressed. I did recently review the Range Rover HSE and was very impressed. The overall fit and finish were top-notch; the performance from diesel engine was very good. As a bonus the fuel economy was an impressive 26 miles per gallon. The Lexus RX hybrid is also very impressive, a great interior with very comfortable seating, very good performance with seamless hybrid-drive. As outrageous as the Tesla Model X looks the Range Rover certainly turns plenty of heads.

My car shakes when I go 65-75 miles per hour and I have had the wheel alignment checked. That didn't fix the problem and my brother-in-law suggested new tires. The tires look ok; what could be wrong?

My first suggestion is to have the tires inspected and rebalanced; this is typical of a tire that is out of balance. Tires are balanced with metal weights, over time a weight could have come off. The other issue is one of the tires could be damaged and have a cord separation which could cause the vibration and also could lead to a tire blowout. Having the tires inspected will rule out a tire problem.

I have a 2010 Subaru Forester that I purchased used a year or so ago and have been satisfied with it. However, I hate the wimpy horn sound so much that I may not buy another one. Do you have any suggestions?

The first thing I would do it make sure the horn is working properly. This model has both a high and low tone horn. Perhaps one is not working? If that is not the case there are always options to change a car's horn. Looking at the website CARiD, there were many options, from novelty musical horns to loud replacements. In most cases the installation is quite simple requiring only basic hand tools.

On my two 1987 Toyota Camrys, I would get about 200,000 miles out of the first alternator. My daughter has a 2005 Corolla with 190,000 and she wants to keep it. I may replace the alternator, when it goes bad. My question is do alternators usually begin to show failure, slowly? I put a voltage meter on the car, which usually shows 14.2 volts, at 750 RPM and light, fan and rear window defogger on. So I do not want to replace it, until the voltage begins to fall under the normal voltage. I am hoping the voltage will drop slowly so I can fix it in time to prevent a breakdown. Will watching the voltage be an indicator of failure?

The problem is most of the time alternators fail with little or no warning. One indicator that sometimes works is measuring what is referred to as diode ripple. An alternator can be charging within limits but internally one of the diodes can be starting to fail. Diode ripple can be checked with a digital volt meter. As a general rule more than 90 millivolts on the A/C scale of the meter can indicate a pending failure.

We own a 2003 Ford Ranger with low mileage for the year. Starting this year, every morning there is frost it forms on the inside of the windshield. When it thaws there's a mess to dry up and wipe away. What's causing this? Would leaving the passenger window open a little help?

The frost is from moisture collecting inside the truck. This could be from a leak (windshield/body) or even from a heater that has a clogged evaporator drain and not allowing condensation to drain. The first place to start is always keep the ventilation system on the fresh air setting. Then carefully inspect the vehicle for signs of moisture. Look for damp carpets and even traces of water dripping down from the windshield. In the short term thoroughly "wet-vac" the cabin to completely remove any moisture as well as commercially available dry-packs that you would use for a damp basement may even help.

My 2007 Honda Element makes all sorts of noises particularly during cold weather. When summer temperatures arrive the noises go away. I hear the noise when I place the car in drive as well as when the car is moving. If I shift it back into park or neural, the noise goes away. My mechanic thought it was a loose heat shield that was rattling so he secured it and some of the noises were resolved; however, the central noise that I brought it in for still remains. His next guess was that it could be a bad drive shaft bearing. My question is could a bad drive shaft bearing cause a noise when the car is in drive but not moving? I had a transmission specialist take a ride in my car and he clearly heard the sound. He did not suspect it was the transmission. Any advice?

I wouldn't suspect a driveshaft bearing or transmission issue. I am leaning toward a rattle perhaps an internal baffle in the muffler that is affected by both air and engine temperature. Additionally this engine can have a characteristic buzz when coming down to an idle that is especially noticeable in park or neutral. This is a normal characteristic of the engine oil pump and balance shaft assembly

I am finally ready to purchase a larger vehicle since we have a new addition in our family. I have a difficult time with shopping for a brand new car since I have never had one, both of our cars are 10 years old and my husband and I think they work great but the issue is space.

So I have started to look at safety ratings for vehicles with room but not super big. The issue is I apparently have expensive car taste and have been looking at Volvos (which are not cheap, who knew). My question is what is a good value for a used Volvo? I have been looking at Volvo XC60s and I am open to suggestions. I have seen model year 2010-2013 priced from $20,000-$25,000 with 80,000-120,000 miles. Any suggestions on what I should look for in a used Volvo?

The Volvo XC60 is a great car-classified as a luxury compact SUV. With any used car you can expect repairs and some level of undependability especially one with 100,000 miles on it. If you are looking at one of these models I would certainly take it to a Volvo specialist before purchasing it just to ensure any problems are taken care of before you own it. As much as you like the security of the Volvo have you considered a new vehicle? One to look at that offers as much room and does very well in all the safety tests is the Mazda CX-5. It is fun to drive, dependable and fuel efficient. It is at the top of your budget but it is brand new and has the latest features which you won't find in an older Volvo.

I just came across your column. I just purchased a brand-new 2016 Subaru Crosstrek after the first month of owning it the OEM battery that came with the car died. I took it back to the dealer they told me it was a bad cell in the battery so they replaced it with another Subaru battery. I had it for approximately another month after that and the battery drained again and died. The dealer told me to jump the car and bring it to them. I did jump the car drove it over to them the dealership had it for approximately a day and a half and told me that there was nothing wrong. The battery was fully charged when I received the vehicle the battery read 12.4 volts. Approximately seven days later with me not using the vehicle the battery voltage dropped down to 10.4 V and of course the car didn't start. I called the dealer again and told them my issue they told me that it looks like I'm having a problem with some of the electronics in the car to bring it back in yet again. When I brought the vehicle back in they did a diagnostic check and told me that there is nothing wrong there is no draining issue. The dealer said next time if it ever happens again to get it towed in. I am in my sixth day of not using the vehicle and battery voltage has dropped from a 12.4 volts to a 11.5 volts, do you have any idea what this could be?

I get emails like yours (not as detailed) two or three times per month from late model Subaru owners. The result from Subaru is the same-no problem found. The issue is that some electrical part in the car is not shutting down or even turning back on when the car sits. This of course discharges the battery. Some dealers have told vehicle owners that letting a car sit for a week or so is the issue and the car needs to be driven to keep the battery charged. This is nonsense, looking at the battery capacity and normal parasitic drain, the battery should last a month before becoming discharged. Some owners have opted for replacement batteries with higher reserve capacity. This doesn't fix the problem; it just allows longer time until the car won't start. I think Subaru engineering needs to get involved to come up with a reasonable solution. If I had to take a wild guess, I would look at the evaporative emissions pump. This pump does not turn on until several hours after the engine is shut off and perhaps it is not turning off appropriately.

I read your column all the time and as a non-technically-oriented auto owner have learned much. So first of all, thanks for the free education! I just returned from having my summer tires demounted and winter tires mounted at a national auto/tire chain. When I made the appointment I gave them the year/make/model of my vehicle; also I had been there previously for an oil change. The vehicle is a 2012 Ford F-150 XLT, bought as a leftover in July 2013. I have just under 31,000 miles on it now. When I first came in I signed the authorizawomen in this city. Not only did it teach me valuable life skills that hopefully I will never need to use, but it also showed me that despite my size and gender, I can still fight back and defend myself in times of need/struggle. I feel a lot safer and stronger having learned all of these. Lisa was the leader (along with many others) and along with her expertise and guidance, I was able to learn the different moves quickly and even though mistakes happened in learning, she was always attentive and reassuring. She, along with many of the teachers did a fantastic job, teaching us about different scenarios we may find ourselves in and how to get out of them. Life skills that we can apply, if need be. We had a full class this month, and in those two days we learned more than we ever thought we could. None of which would've been possible without your support and generosity. On behalf of all the a##-kicking women in my class.

And this letter:

Thank you for the Self Defense Classes that happened this past Tuesday and Wednesday! I really appreciate it. I learned a lot of life saving skills from those two nights, and I would love for my mom and sister in laws to take it if there is another opportunity. I know a lot of my friends wanted to take it, but the class was already full. I definitely have a different mind set about how to handle attackers now. I would also like to thank a few other people. Lisa was an awesome instructor. Everything that she taught us was simple and effective. Lt. Dan Minton was also going around randomly engage us from behind to kick and punch the punching pad that he was holding. It taught us to be more aware of our surroundings. Officer Stephen DesRoche taught us a great way to get out of a frontal strangle situation. He is also very motivating and patient when we practiced our punches and kicks. He would point out if we were doing anything wrong and teach us the correct ways. I also want to thank the other Steve and Matt. During the second night, they both pretended to be the attackers in two scenarios. Even with the padding, I bet they still took a beating after everyone went twice. I really hope that others can benefit from this class too. I would love my daughter to take it, and I know that there are some other moms that would really appreciate it too.

And this letter:

The self-defense class taught by the Quincy Police Department was the best class I have ever taken! They taught us valuable lessons and techniques on how to defend ourselves such as using the spear with our hands or elbowing behind our backs. They even created different scenarios to show us how to defend ourselves in real life situations. I will never forget the lessons they taught us and I encourage that the Quincy Police continues this great class/program for women who are in need to protect themselves from danger, whether is in Quincy or any where else.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS:

Who can attend?

Females 18 and older and as young as 16 with a parent in the class.

How much does it cost?

Quincy Police Department programs are free.

Do I have to be a Quincy resident?

First preference goes to residents, followed by those who work in the City of Quincy, then all others.

How do I sign up?

Watch for postings in The Quincy Sun, the Quincy Police Department web page and Facebook, Twitter and Nextdoor. Then contact Lieutenant Dan Minton at dminton@quincyma.gov

When do you have the programs?

Monthly, except for July and August. It is just too hot for the Instructors in the Red Man suit. If the demand lessens, the programs will be adjusted accordingly

What should I bring?

Bring water and a great attitude!

What should I wear?

Sneakers and comfortable clothing

Could I get hurt?

Unlikely as long as you know your limitations. No student has to participate in any activity they feel uncomfortable with.. You may be sore the next day or two since you can have contact with a bag about 200 times.

What else do I need to know?

You need to be there both nights.

If you can't make it both nights, please let me know beforehand so that someone else can attend, even if it is last minute. We know things come up and we can get you in another class.

Ask John Paul: Tire Pressure Monitor Systems, Wiper Blades

tion form which had the price for mounting and balancing the four tires: $98.62.About 35 minutes in, the tech brought one of the wheels out to explain that they normally replace the valve cores and caps but with a tire pressure sensor "it was recommended" to replace the entire valve every time the tires were removed/remounted. He acknowledged what I could see: that there was no sign of corrosion or imminent failure, so I declined the replacement at $7.49 per wheel. When I checked out, he told me that they had to reset the tire pressure system for which they normally charge another $27.49, but because they had not listed this at check-in he would waive it this time. My questions: since they know the make/model/year/trim level, should they not know in advance whether there is a tire pressure system present before writing the work order? Would the system need a reset any time the tires are replaced? Should that have been discussed up front? And regarding the valve replacement, is replacement of the valve indeed "recommended" every tire remount on a tire pressure TPMS-equipped vehicle? All the local chains charge around $100 for the changeover and balancing, but how much upselling should be expected if these items should have been included in the base price?

Tire pressure monitor systems require a little extra service but there seems to be some confusion with your vehicle. Ford recommends replacing the rubber-valve portion of the sensor when switching wheels, not changing the tires. Regarding retraining the sensors, this is necessary when the wheels go back in different positions on the truck. If the left front wheel stays in the left front there is no need to retrain the system. Like all service it is best to ask upfront exactly how much the bill will be and what work will be performed.

We have a 2013 Subaru Impreza Premium with a CVT. For a couple years, we've noticed that a problem with acceleration at highway speeds (sometimes as low as 40 miles per hour). Starting at 2,000 RPM, if you step on the gas pedal the car will not accelerate until 3,000 RPM, instead it appears that the CVT is changing the gear ratio to maintain the current speed. Sometimes, I've noticed that the range is from 1,500 to 3,500 RPMs. A couple times I've asked the service people at the local Subaru dealer and they either say they can't reproduce the problem or there are no codes, so there is no problem. Despite what the dealer says I find the lack of acceleration to be disconcerting. Does this sound normal to you? Do you have any suggestions?

The continually variable transmission has in some cases odd characteristics and from what you describe may in fact be normal. I have driven many CVT equipped vehicles and some perform better than others. I would certainly make note of the issue whenever it concerns you and keep the dealer informed. It is not usual that over time the manufacturer updates the drivetrain computer to fix any glitchy conditions.

My husband and I share the same Toyota Prius and my husband shifts into neutral whenever there is an opportunity to coast, claiming it saves on gas. He seems to think this even saves more gas than driving a hybrid the "normal" way. What do you think of this method?

The hybrid drivetrain partially relies on engine braking to recharge the battery that supplies power to the electric motor. In addition any slight savings in fuel economy would be lost in wear and tear to the transmission. If this were my car I would leave it in drive and follow standard fuel saving techniques. These are; brake smoothly, which helps with battery charging, anticipate traffic conditions, scan the roadway looking for other traffic and slow down. Even hybrids benefit from reduced speeds and easy acceleration.

I have a 2015 Volkswagen Jetta purchased new late in 2015. The original wipers were not clearing water from the driver's side windshield during rainy wet weather. In heavy rain I could barely see where I was going. We replaced the original wiper blades in late January and these was no real change in the wipers cleaning ability there were big streaks at the attachment point right in the center of my vision and there were other places continuously streaking and skipping. We had the Volkswagen dealer take a look and all they did was replace the wiper blades again. According to the dealer there are no recall notices or technical bulletins on this problem. Have you heard from anyone else who is also dealing with this issue?

A. I have not heard of any problems with this model but it is certainly possible that the wiper arms or the angle of the blade is part of the problem. I would look at the angle of the blade to see if it is perpendicular to the windshield. Since it sounds like the car may have sat on the dealer's lot for a while, the wiper arms could have gotten damaged during routine cleaning at the lot. Finally completely clean the windshield. I have seen wax from automatic car washes and cleaning services causes all kinds of windshield wiper problems.

When did car keys get so expensive? I recently purchased a new Jeep Grand Cherokee and they dealer wanted to sell me "key-coverage" and insurance policy just in case I lose my key. What is this all about? A friend of mine just paid $350 for a replacement key!

There was a time that a key was nothing more than something that opened a lock. Today the fob tells the car where it is, to automatically unlock the doors, and in some cases remotely start the car. All this technology has a cost attached to it. I have seen keys/fobs costing $1000 or more. In some cases when the keys are lost the car's computer will need to be replaced when new keys are programmed. With many vehicles a $350 key is becoming more of the rule than the exception.

Before I turn 30 I want to buy a "hot-hatch." I have a couple of cars in mind. Two used cars that I have found are a Subaru WRX Sti and Mitsubishi Lancer Evo. Both cars are a couple of years old with fairly low miles. Both cars look like they have new brakes and tires. Do you think the new tires and brakes indicate abuse? Is there one car you would choose over the other? Since they don't make the Evo anymore, would it ever be considered a collector's item?

When driven aggressively it is easy to wear out brakes and tires especially on a small car that develops nearly 300 horsepower and will get to 60 miles per hour in just under five seconds. Both are good cars and it more about what appeals to you. To me the Evo stands out because you don't see many of them. On the other hand the Subaru has a great selection of aftermarket enhancements available to make this quick car, quicker and handle better. My best advice is considering how this high performance car could be treated it would be money well spent to have a pre-purchase inspection performed before you buy the car.

Koch Eyes Hotel-Motel Tax To Fund $15M Hancock Adams Green

cock Adams Green in Quincy Center, which should be completed by June 2018.

Koch discussed plans for the new park connecting City Hall and the United First Parish Church during a recent interview. He will introduce a request for a bond to pay the costs of the new public space in Quincy Center – as well as other projects, including planning for improvements at Merrymount Park – on Monday, March 20. At that time, the mayor will give an overview of the funding request, which he did not yet have a total for, and he expects the matter to go to committee for further review.

The city has already received bids for the next phase of the Hancock Adams Green project, which will include construction of the new park linking the two historic buildings. The section of the park will include a promenade, water features, trees and bronze statues of the two men for whom it is named, John Hancock and John Adams, commissioned for the project and cast in Italy.

Koch said bids for the project came in lower than expected. The city had yet to select a contractor for the project, but the lowest qualified bid came from Halifax-based WES Construction, the same firm that completed Creedon Field in North Quincy, which opened last fall.

"The engineers have to go through the bids, make sure everything is in order, so it hasn't been awarded yet, however the lowest qualified bidder on the face of it is the company called WES, which is the company that did Creedon Field – that whole project – which was complicated," Koch said.

"There was pipe, drainage, retention areas, the field – there were a lot of aspects to it. It wasn't just a pure civil engineering project. We're delighted and hopefully they'll be the company it's awarded to because their workmanship is terrific and they met all their schedules."

The mayor said the city had initially estimated the upcoming park work would cost $18 million, but the city has lowered that number to $15 million.

"The original estimates we had going in for this next phase of the Hancock Adams Green were $18 million. We now think we're going to be at $15 million for the next phase," he said. "That $15 million isn't totally for WES – that includes engineering, the design and other stuff. WES is somewhere between $12 and $13 million – closer to $12 million."

By tapping into the hotel tax account to pay for the park, Koch said he is following through on his pledge not to use property tax receipts for the work.

"I've said from day one the project would be built without using property tax money," the mayor stated. "The next phase will be hotel tax, which is paid for obviously by visitors to the city – it's a room tax, not the property tax on the building.

"There is some irony in that. This is going to become a park for city of Quincy residents, but it's going to be a beautiful place for visitors coming here and it's those visitors who are paying for it."

Koch said the new park would be without equal in the area.

"In my opinion, it's going to be unrivaled in beauty and historic importance in the region," he said.

"It's going to be a project that I think will be the most visible sign of us reclaiming our place in the history of both the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the U.S.," the mayor added later. "That sounds like an exaggeration, but it really isn't.

"When you look at the stories of these people and their contributions to the formation of the state and the country, it's not an exaggeration at all. It's a reality."

The first phase of the project was completed last year using a $4.2 million state grant awarded to the city in September 2015 by Gov. Charlie Baker. The work completed last year included installation of new underground infrastructure under the park site, while the work to be completed in the next 15 months will include construction of the green itself. Most of the new park will be included in this phase, save for the area adjacent to the MBTA station that will be built out in the future once plans for a new commuter hub come into focus.

"A lot of the first phase was underground work – utilities, pipes, water, sewer, Verizon, electrical, cable and all that stuff. That takes time and takes money, but you can't appreciate it because it's below the ground," Koch said.

"So the next phase is probably the biggest phase, the most visible phase, of the project. We've cut off a corner of it. The design by Halvorson, which was the hired design company, had the park going all the way to the T station with other elements to it. We've decided to do this phase we're doing – the promenade along with the statues and fountains.

"We're cutting off that area (near the T station) because we don't know yet how it's going to integrate with the new possible development at the station, so I don't want to waste money and be digging things up again. That phase will happen at another time down the road."

Koch said work on the second phase should begin later this spring or early in the summer, with a dedication of the new space set for June 2018.

"We're going to have a hell of a party," he said of the dedication ceremony. "We're going to make a big deal, as we should, about this."

Koch is eyeing two high-profile individuals to unveil each of the statues, and will extend formal invitations to them once a date for the ceremony is selected.

The mayor hopes to have author and historian David McCullough unveil the state of Adams. McCullough won the Pulitzer Prize – his second – for his 2001 biography of the second president, entitled "John Adams." The book was adapted into an award-winning HBO miniseries, and is credited for a revival of interest in all things Adams, including tourism to Quincy and visits to local historic sites associated with the family. Koch extended an invitation to McCullough when the author was in Quincy last October for a wreath-laying ceremony at the United First Parish Church in recognition of Adams' birthday.

Koch plans to have Baker, the Bay State's governor, on hand to unveil the statue of Hancock. Hancock – who presided over the Second Continental Congress and was the first to sign the Declaration of Independence – served as the first and third governor of Massachusetts. In addition, Koch credited Baker for supporting the new public park by awarding the city the $4.2 million grant for utility work completed last year.

The mayor also plans to extend invitations to several other prominent people, including President Donald Trump and Vice President Mike Pence; Sergey Eylanbekov, the Russian-born sculptor who crafted the two new statues at a studio in Italy; and members of the Adams, Quincy and Hancock families.

"Anybody and everybody, we want to invite to this," Koch said.

The statues of Adams and Hancock will be located on opposite ends of the section of Hancock Street that closed last June to make way for the new park. The Adams statue will be located on the north side of the park with the Hancock statue on the southern side with a promenade connecting them.

In addition to the two new statues, two existing ones – one of Abigail Adams and a young John Quincy Adams outside the United First Parish Church and the other of John Adams on the McIntyre Mall – will also be incorporated into the new park. The Quincy Partnership commissioned both statues and Lloyd Lillie crafted them.

"If you're walking down Hancock Street from north to south, you come to the Munroe Building by Grandasia, you now enter the Hancock Adams Green," Koch said when asked to describe the new park.

"You're going to see a promenade – a beautiful walkway lined with trees, and I mean significant trees. We're putting in six to eight inch caliper trees, these aren't little trees. Benches. The paving material. This is going to be very impressive.

"As you walk in, to the right there is going to be the statue of Adams and the granite work and pavers tell the story of Adams and his contributions. When you look beyond Adams, behind him between the statue area and the City Hall area where the bricks are, there is going to be a very significant fountain – very significant, this isn't just a little trickling thing. This is going to be a major water element in the park I think people are going to be very impressed with.

"When you get in front of the church and town hall, the promenade opens up so that the space between City Hall and the church is completely connected with granite pavers. You'll be able to have civic events [there]…

"As you pass City Hall on the left and the church on the right, it goes back to the promenade…There is going to be a garden area where the two Partnership statues are going to be located and the plantings will kind of reflect what's at Peacefield. That's going to be a little garden in the park, which is kind of cool because it will be both John and Abigail and John Quincy together in that garden space.

"Further down the promenade you'll come to another water element – a more contemplative type…and then the Hancock statue, which will face south. Adams will face north. The area around Hancock will have all the description of his contribution to the country."

In addition to the construction of Hancock Adams Green, Koch will seek money to design, engineer and permit improvements to Merrymount Park, the city's largest green space at 80 acres.

"We're looking at some major, major improvements at Merrymount Park to really open it up and connect it to the open space and beautiful estuaries around it," he said.

"We're looking at potential footbridges, walkways – not just active recreation but passive recreation – so you can do the whole loop, which will be absolutely phenomenal. As we get built out as a city with more residents there are these opportunities that people are looking for.

"When you're in the middle of Merrymount Park, you don't even know you're in the middle of a city. It's such an incredible spot."

Also included in the request, Koch said, would be work for parks throughout the city.

Police Warn Businesses Of Counterfeit Currency

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Police Department wants businesses to be on the look out for counterfeit U.S. currency after three fake high-denomination notes were recently used.

Customer tried to pass counterfeit $100 bills at the Stop & Shop on Southern Artery and the Big Y on Hancock Street within hours of each other on Feb. 24, Sgt. Karyn Barkas said; cashiers were able to spot those fakes and contacted police. The individual at the Stop & Shop and the pair of customers at the Big Y who attempted to use the fake bills fled the stores before officers could arrive.

A manager at the Dunkin' Donuts at 195 Newport Ave. also reported finding a fake $20 bill in his cash register Feb. 27 while he went through his cash receipts from the previous day, Barkas said.

Quincy police are investigating each incident and it is unclear if they are related. The department has also alerted the U.S. Secret Service, which Barkas said is done whenever someone attempts to use a counterfeit bill.

Barkas said people handling money should inspect it thoroughly.

"Look at the printing, it tends to blur on the counterfeit bills, and the paper itself is a little smoother than a regular bill," she said.

Special pens designed to catch counterfeit money can also be used.

RELIGION

Bethany Congregational

On Sunday, March 19, Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, will have a Worship Service and Sunday School at 10:00 a.m. The Rev. Peter M. Preble will preach the sermon entitled "Thirsty Voices." Fellowship with light refreshments will follow service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany's Worship Services and its numerous group activities. Bethany has an active Missions and Growth Committee doing various charity works.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon-1 to 4 p.m. Please visit us at our webpage: www.bethanycongchurch.org for updates and activities. Thanks to the Video Ministry, if you're unable to attend worship service, the Bethany Sunday Service is broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6 p.m. on Thursdays and 10 a.m. on Sundays on Channel 8.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays. The church is wheelchair accessible.

Native American Sunday Apr. 2

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate Native American Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday, April 2.

Guest speaker will be Patricia Parent, a Native American descendant of mixed heritage. Her First Nations heritage is Penobscot and Western Abernaki, of Maine and New Hampshire. She is a storyteller, musician, writer and teacher.

A lifelong student of Native culture and spirituality, she shares her knowledge with schools and churches throughout New England. She is also the secretary for the New England Annual Conference United Methodist Committee on Native American Ministries and has led three-day Schools of Christian Missions on Native American Culture Survival at UMaine Farmington, Gordon College and Aldersgate Camp in Rhode Island.

Patricia is married to Rev. Peter Parent, a United Methodist elder presently serving the United Methodist church in Fall River. Following Native American tradition, Rev. Peter does exquisite beading, and has created beaded clerical stoles, one of which will be placed on the altar during the worship service. The couple has one son, Aaron.

Ms. Parent will share some of her music as well as her story-telling talents at Quincy Community United Methodist Church's worship service. The service's readings, hymns and Communion service will also honor Native American culture.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

United Methodist Church Beach Blanket Bingo March 26

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its fifth annual Beach Blanket Bingo Sunday, March 26.

Everyone is encouraged to attend the 10:30 a.m. worship dressed in their favorite summer, tropical, or Hawaiian-style clothes. After worship, everyone is invited to Fellowship Hall for the party.

At the "Cheeseburger In Paradise Beach Shack," party-goers will enjoy cheeseburgers and frappes. Desserts and tonic will also be available. Those who choose to do so may give a donation to help defray expenses.

After lunch, the party will continue with beach-themed games such as "pin the beak on the flamingo" and a beach ball toss. For those who prefer to relax, chaise loungers will be available in the adjoining "tropical paradise."

Music will be provided by Jeannie and John O'Connor for listening and dancing fun.

The church is handicapped accessible through the entrance nearest the flag pole.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

OBITUARIES

Carol T. Wong, 65

A memorial service for Carol Tan Wong, 65, will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. on Friday in Lydon Chapel for Funerals, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mrs. Wong died March 2 after an aggressive battle with stage 4 lung cancer.

She was born October 14, 1951 in Pingtung, Taiwan. Mrs. Wong arrived in the United States at the age of 25 after receiving her associate's degree from Takming University of Science and Technology. She had her humble beginnings in Boston working as an administrative assistant for an engineering company. She married Yuen Kwong Wong in 1979 and left the workplace for a few years to raise her two kids: Adrian and Aileen.

After her kids were able to attend elementary school, Mrs. Wong started a career as a paraprofessional at Montclair and Squantum elementary schools for the Quincy Public Schools. She continued to work there for almost 30 years aiding in the development and establishment of strong morals in the lives of countless young students.

Beloved wife of Yuen Kwong Wong, devoted mother to son Adrian Wong and his wife Angela Zheng, daughter Aileen Wong, and loving grandmother to Aria Wong. She is also survived by her mother, four siblings and their families, her colleagues at Quincy Public Schools, and friends.

Interment is at Forest Hill Cemetery, Boston, on Saturday. Please meet at the funeral home at 10 a.m., where a procession with police escort will leave at 11 a.m.

John K. Kavanagh, 90

A funeral Mass for John J. Kavanagh, 90, of Quincy was celebrated March 11 in St. Joseph's Parish, Quincy.

Mr. Cavanagh died March 7.

He was born in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. He leaves behind his wife Ann Kavanagh of Quincy. His children Alice Golden and her husband Joe of Weymouth, Sandra Khirallah and her husband Ralph of Norwood and Sharon Lesher and her husband Larry of Natick. He also leaves behind his eight grandchildren: James, Emily, Stephen, Jennifer, Jack, Timothy, Ella and Elizabeth.

Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery, Randolph.

counselor at Central Middle School in Quincy, where he also coached football. He was a past commander of the VFW Hyde Square Post #722 in Jamaica Plain.

Interment in North Beverly Cemetery, Beverly.

Funeral arrangements were made by Peterson-O'Donnell Funeral Home, Danvers.

Memorial donations may be made to the Upper Saco Valley Land Trust, PO Box 424, North Conway, NH 03860.

Jeremiah F. Mulcahy, 64

A funeral Mass for Jeremiah F. "Jerry" Mulcahy, 64, of Quincy was celebrated March 10 in St. Agatha Church, Milton.

Mr. Mulcahy died March 4.

Born July 6, 1952, in South Boston to Jeremiah and Joan (Tracey) Mulcahy, he moved to Quincy when he was 2 years old and attended Quincy Public Schools and graduated from North Quincy High School in 1970. Mr. Mulcahy was an accomplished athlete, captain of the football and gymnastics team. He attended Bridgton Academy where he played football and lacrosse. Mr. Mulcahy then went to Boston University and graduated in 1975 with a physical therapy degree.

His first job as a physical therapist was at Glover Memorial Hospital. In 1978 he started Chest Physical Therapy Services with colleagues John and Ann Marie Nadeau as a home healthcare business dedicated to the physical therapy needs of the cystic fibrosis community.

In his youth, Mr. Mulcahy spent summers recreating in Quincy Bay. He was an expert boater and sailor and enjoyed cruising in the Virgin Islands where he was a bareboat charter captain. Mr. Mulcahy was also an avid ocean and ice fisherman. He was a skilled skier and loved ski weekends with his family. He was a casual bowler and golfer with a 'hole in one' at the Michaela McCloskey Ternes Memorial Golf Tournament. He was inducted into the NQHS Football Hall of Fame in 2011 and was a former member of the Squantum Yacht Club.

Mr. Mulcahy cherished his house on the Bass River and loved all things Cape

JEREMIAH F. MULCAHY

Cod, especially Cape Cod oysters and over sand excursions on Nauset Beach. He enjoyed vacationing in Florida on Captiva Island, and was a veteran Christmas stroller. Most of all Mr. Mulcahy loved his family, especially being "Grampy" to his beloved grandchildren. The captain has left the ship and he will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Beloved husband of Denise Mulcahy of Quincy. Devoted father of Cara Valente and her husband Dan of Needham, Jeremiah Mulcahy and his wife Laura of Hanover, and Brendan Mulcahy and his wife Polly of Quincy. Loving brother of Richard Mulcahy and his wife Bonnie of Hanover, Donna Mock and her husband Kevin of Quincy and brother in law of Elaine Souza and her husband William of Newport, RI, Stephen Runge of Quincy, and Lesley Pollara and her husband Ron of Hingham. Cherished "Grampy" of Molly, Nicholas, Emily, Sean, and one on the way. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to help aid the patients with cystic fibrosis and their families at The Joey Fund, 55 Cambridge Parkway, Cambridge, MA 02141.

Funeral services for Edward J. Quinlan, age 75, of South Boston and formerly of Quincy, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Friday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

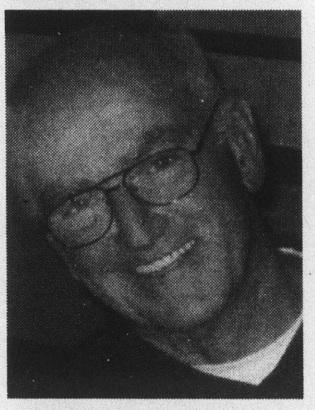
Mr. Quinlan died unexpectedly at home March 11.

He was born in South Boston on March 9, 1942, to the late John and Mary (Doyle) Quinlan. Mr. Quinlan was raised in South Boston and was a graduate of Dorchester High School, Class of 1960. He had lived in Quincy for eighteen years but most of his life in South Boston.

He was a retired self-employed carpenter. Mr. Quinlan proudly served in the U.S. Navy during the early 1960s as a machinist mate 2/c on the USS Cadmus AR-14. He was a member and past commander of the Martin F. McDonough American Legion Post #368.

Mr. Quinlan enjoyed boating and was an avid fisherman. He was dedicated to his family and especially to his cherished grandchildren.

Beloved husband for fifty-six years of Ann E. (Doherty) Quinlan. Devoted father of Edward W. Quinlan and his wife Judie of Abington, Ann E. Quinlan of Weymouth, Christine Q. Glynn and her husband Mark of Abington, John J. Quinlan and his wife Gisele of Panama City, Florida. Loving grandfather of Brian, Kevin and Jake Quinlan, John and Michael DeCoste and Kayla Quinlan, affectionately known as "Pork Chop."



EDWARD J. QUINLAN

One of eight siblings, Mr. Quinlan was brother of Mary Kreplka of Arlington, John Quinlan of Rockland, Helen Pohl of Stoughton and pre-deceased by Donald Quinlan, Gerald Quinlan, Lorraine Lee and Jean Powers. He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Visiting hours are 4 to 7 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home.

Interment with Military Honors at the Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne.

Memorial donations may be made to the South Boston Special Kids and Young Adults, c/o Nicole Young, 159 H Street, South Boston, MA 02127 or to the American Heart Association, 300 5th Avenue, Suite 6, Waltham, MA 02451-8750.

Peter V. Maiolino

A funeral Mass for Peter Vincent Maiolino of Middleborough was celebrated March 11 in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Maiolino died March 5 surrounded by his loved ones after a brave battle against cancer.

He was born and raised in Winthrop. He graduated from Salem State College and later worked for Thomas' English Muffins as a route salesman. He had an incredible work ethic and thoroughly enjoyed his job and his colleagues. Mr. Maiolino loved food, music and all things sports. He could always be caught snoozing on the couch at home, putting on vocal and air guitar shows in the car, or cracking everyone up (including himself). He will be sadly missed by all who had the pleasure of knowing him.

Mr. Maiolino was the son of Rose (Conti) Maiolino of West Yarmouth and the late Vincent Maiolino. He was the loving husband of Ellisa (Smith) Maiolino, proud father of Alexandra and Michael of Middleborough, as well as caring brother of Vincent "Skip" Maiolino of Forestdale, Nancy St. Angelo and her husband John, of Barrington, RI, and supportive uncle to Anthony Maiolino of Portland, OR.

PETER V. MAIOLINO

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, 3 International Drive Suite 200, Rye Brook, NY 10573.

Giancarla Dragone

A funeral Mass for Giancarla Dragone, the beloved and devoted wife of Dr. Anthony J. Dragone of 49 years, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Dragone died peacefully March 10 in Milton.

She was the caring as well as loving mother and "nonna" of her two daughters, Romina Hyde and Rhonda Dragone, and her three grandchildren, Daniela Hyde, Anthony Dragone II and Liana Hyde. Mrs. Dragone is also survived by her son-in-law Gordon Hyde, her brother-in-law Victor G. Dragone, her sister-in-law Paula Dragone, her niece Melissa Dragone, her nephew Victor Dragone III and her grandson's father, Scott Langer.

Her love, generosity and

smile touched the lives of so many people. Mrs. Dragone will forever be in our hearts and prayers.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Arthur E. Freddolino

A Mass of Christian Burial for Arthur E. Freddolino was celebrated Feb. 27 at Annunciation Church in Crestwood, NY.

Mr. Freddolino died unexpectedly Feb. 20 at his home in Fallbrook, CA.

He was born in the Bronx, NY to Salvatore Freddolino and Lillian (Lanza) Freddolino on Jan. 18, 1931. Mr. Freddolino moved to Yonkers, NY at age 9 and spent the next 70 years there raising his family, running his business, Freddolino Construction, and giving back to his community.

Mr. Freddolino and his best friend and loyal coworker, Ed Sena, built 60 single-family homes. Fifty-eight were located in the Crestwood area of Yonkers, including the family home on Crestwood Avenue, and two were built in Scarsdale. Mr. Freddolino was also the city councillor for Ward 5 in Yonkers for ten years, acting as vice mayor for two of those years. His campaigns were a family event with his five children going door to door throughout the ward delivering literature about the candidate. Mr. Freddolino also was the supervisor of the Yonkers Parks and Recreation department for many years.

Giving back to his city, Mr. Freddolino co-founded the Hillcrest Lakers Boys Club around 1960. He also coached his son, Tony, and his teammates through many years of baseball. He was a loyal fan of the New York Giants and stayed loyal even when they moved to California and became the San Francisco Giants. Originally the club focused on boy's baseball but has grown to include boys and girls in many sports. He was also a member of the East Yonkers

Kiwanis Club, Knights of Pythias, Knights of Columbus, Yonkers VFW and was honorary discharged from the Navy in 1954.

In retirement, Mr. Freddolino became an avid traveler, had been on five continents including the northernmost point in the US at Point Barrow, Alaska, and the southernmost tip of Australia, Port Arthur. He was on over twenty cruises and as many windjammer cruises. While on the windjammer, The Polynesian, he met his current wife, Diann.

Mr. Freddolino survived by his wife of 17 years, Diann (Jackson) of Fallbrook, CA. Beloved father of Anthony (Tony) Freddolino of Pahoa, HI, Linda Powers and husband Bill of Longmont, CO., Joan Yankun and husband Richard of Surprise, AZ., Gail London and husband Jered of Cape Coral, FL. His sister, Stella Guzy and husband Richard of Georgetown, TX and a brother Ralph Freddolino of NY. Predeceased in death by the love of his life, and mother of his five children, Ann Maher Freddolino and his daughter, Lorraine Freddolino.

Arrangements by the Fred H. McGrath & Son, Funeral Home, Bronxville, NY, Memorial donations may be made to Knights of Columbus, 15 Andover Drive, West Hartford, CT.

OBITUARIES

Meredith F. Morrison

A funeral Mass for Meredith F. "Merry" (Wall) Morrison of Quincy was celebrated Monday in Holy Trinity Parish at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Morrison reluctantly died on March 6.

She was married to the late Lyle D. Morrison, Jr. She is missed by her family: her children, Debbie Morrison of Quincy, Lyle D. Morrison III & Andrea Serpa Morrison of Lexington, Brenda Morrison & James Keane of Wareham, Paula Rowe & Larry Rowe of Quincy and Jeffry Morrison and Betty Morrison of Cohasset. Grandmother of Austin, Morgan, Lyle D, Sam, Julia, Cole & Charlotte. Sister of Sandy & Mike Delahunt of Marshfield, Phil & Jeanne Wall of Mansfield and Valarie Robertson. Daughter of the late Geraldine and late Phillip N. Wall of Quincy. She has many nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Morrison enthusiastically raised her family of five after being widowed at age 30. She embraced every aspect of parenting but especially enjoyed driving a station wagon full of kids to various sporting events. She was a daily baker, had 4-hour turnaround service on laundry and an immaculate home. Most of all she enjoyed her grandchildren; each one held a special delight for her. Mrs. Morrison enjoyed monitoring weather reports and loved a good storm. She loved peppermint patties and Barbara Streisand.

MEREDITH F. MORRISON

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Foundation Fighting Blindness, 7168 Columbia Gateway Drive, Suite 100, Columbia, MD 21046,or at blindness.org.

Joan E. Dauphinee, 85

A funeral Mass for Joan E. (Cooney) Dauphinee, age 85, a lifelong resident of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

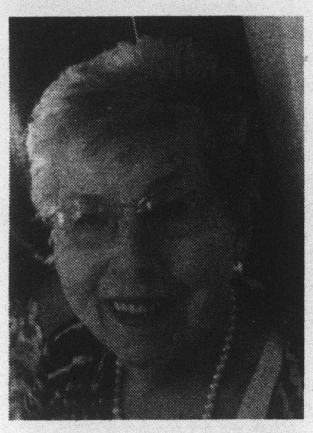
Mrs. Dauphinee died peacefully March 10 at Hancock Park Rehabilitation and Nursing Center.

She was born in Quincy to the late George and Elizabeth (Osborne) Cooney. She was raised in Quincy and was a graduate of Quincy High School.

Mrs. Dauphinee was employed as an insurance agent for many years. A job she loved, and retired at the age of seventy-eight. She enjoyed playing Bingo and cribbage, trips to Foxwoods, and vacationing with her family on Cape Cod.

Mrs. Dauphinee was devoted to her family and especially enjoyed supporting the activities and accomplishments of her grandchildren.

Beloved wife of the late Robert H. Dauphinee, who passed in 1983. Devoted mother of Janet Dauphinee Quigley and her husband Charles of Winthrop, Carol A. Dauphinee of Quincy, Linda Dauphinee-Quinn and her husband Gregory of Stoughton, Cheryl A. Daniels of Quincy, and Michele Dauphinee of Waltham. Loving grandmother of Kasey, Courtney, and Hannah Quinn; Kristen, Nicholas, and Ashley Daniels.



JOAN E. DAUPHINEE

Mrs. Dauphinee was one of six siblings and is survived by Virginia Crismond and Maureen Berggren, both of Quincy, and was predeceased by Roberta Hickes, Barbara Boedeker, and Richard Cooney. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Hancock Park Alzheimer's Fund, 164 Parkingway, Quincy, MA 02169.

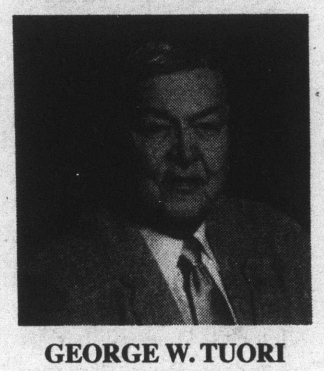
George W. Tuori, 86

A funeral for George W. "Bill" Tuori, 86, a lifelong Quincy resident, will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in Faith Lutheran Church, Quincy.

Mr. Tuori died March 12.

Born and raised in Quincy, he served his country with honor in the US Navy and retired from the Navy Reserves after 30 years with the rank of chief petty officer. He was a longtime, active member of Faith Lutheran Church, Rural Lodge of Masons, Quincy and the UKTS Finnish Society.

Devoted husband of 65 years to Joan R. Tuori, he was the loving father of Eric C. Tuori and his wife Linda of Quincy and Vivian R. Leonard of Santa Fe, NM. Cherished grandfather of Christopher & Michelle Tuori of Quincy.



GEORGE W. TUORI

The Rev. Heidi Johnston, Pastor, will officiate the service.

Interment with military honors to follow at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Visiting hours at the Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St,, Quincy, on Friday from 4 to 8 p.m.

Robert E. Cormack, 82

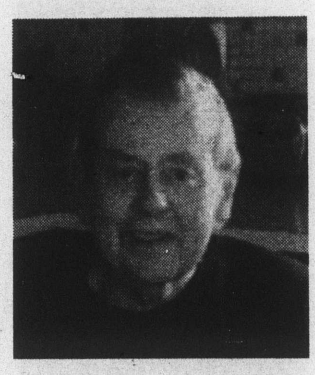
A funeral Mass for Robert E. Cormack, 82, of Quincy will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Friday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Cormack died peacefully March 11.

He is survived by his loving wife of 56 years, Carol A. (Holland) Cormack, four daughters, Jean C. O'Brien and her husband Timothy of Hanson, Maureen O'Brien and her husband Edward of Braintree, Joanne Cormack of Quincy, and Marianne Alcaro and her husband Kevin of Marshfield. Cherished Grampy of four granddaughters, Caroline and Jamie O'Brien of Braintree and Christina and Julie Alcaro of Marshfield. He is also survived by his sister-in-law Josephine Cormack of San Antonio, Texas. Son of the late Kathleen M. and John J. Cormack of Quincy. He was also the brother of the late Frank W. Cormack, John J. Cormack and Richard L. Cormack.

Born and educated in Quincy, he was a graduate of Quincy High School and a veteran of the United States Navy.

A lifelong resident of Wollaston, Mr. Cormack was a proud U.S. Navy veteran serving as the official photographer for the USS Intrepid. He worked at New England Telephone Company for his entire career and was a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America. He was an avid reader, modern history enthusiast, passionate gardener and most of all, devoted and loving Grampy to his four granddaughters.



ROBERT E. CORMACK

Visiting hours are 4 to 8 p.m. Thursday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. Celebration of life service at 9:15 a.m. Friday in the funeral home, prior to the Mass.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Wounded Warrior Project, PO Box 758517, Topeka, KS 66675-8517.

Charles L. Engren, 76

A memorial funeral Mass for Charles L. Engren, age 76, of Bridgewater, formerly of Abington and Quincy, will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Thursday in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Engren died March 9 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born, raised, and educated in Quincy. Mr. Engren had lived in Bridgewater for eleven years, previously in Abington for over twenty-five years. He was a proud member of the International Association of Heat and Frost Insulators & Allied Workers Local 6 for over thirty years.

Beloved husband for fifty-two years of Dianne (Robertson) Engren. Devoted father of Erik C. Engren and his wife Sheri of Marshfield, David L. Engren of Rockland and his former wife Heather Engren of Weymouth. Loving grandfather of Nicole, Madison, Charlie, Jacob, and Tyler Engren. Cherished great-grandfather of Taylor, Aubrey, and Bailey.

Dear brother of Rita Doyle and the late John Doyle of Weymouth, Carol Hickey and the late Michael Hickey of Naples, FL, Edward Engren and his wife Georgia Engren of Quincy, and Leona Cullen and the late William Cullen of Quincy. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Mr. Engren was well known to be a storyteller and always seemed to find an audience. His sons were his biggest fans and always by his side.

He enjoyed cooking holiday dinners and looked forward to seeing his friends and family at all times. Some of his best days were playing in golf tournaments with his former co-workers from Local 6. He considered them part of his family.

He had said on many occasions that he was the richest man in the world as long as he had his beloved wife, Dianne, at his side. They spent many years travelling throughout New England and enjoying each other's company.

Mr. Engren felt very fortunate to spend quality time with all of his grandchildren whether they were painting together, or he was attending their sporting activities or fishing. He was always smiling and was well known for bringing joy and laughter to those he encountered. His laugh was infectious.

A reception on Thursday will follow the Mass at the Stone Meadow Community Center, 105 Bridgestone Way, Bridgewater, until 4 p.m. At the request of the family, visiting hours have been omitted.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Lung Association, 1661 Worcester Road, Suite 301, Framingham, MA 01701.

Arrangements under the direction of the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Avenue, Quincy.

Q. Medical Center Among City Redevelopment Plans

host of reasons, this city will grow," he said. "We want to be long-term partners with Quincy and in five, six, seven years (from now), we want you to be proud of what we built."

In addition to outlining his redevelopment plan for Quincy, Hale also shared his career path with the gathering, including his triumphs and failures.

"You're about to get career advice from a guy who simultaneously lost his entire company and a billion-and-a-half dollars," he said. "It's not that that much of a horror story and I survived."

Hale credited his success with listening to his customers and wisely choosing his teammates.

Instead of building a physical regional phone company as initially planned for Granite, Hale said that demands of two major clients – Walgreens and Wal-Mart – to consolidate phone lines throughout their national stores forced his venture into becoming a national wholesaler of phone lines.

"We built a $2.5 billion company by listening to our customers," he said.

Koch, who introduced Hale to the gathering, called the FoxRock and Granite Telecommunications' CEO "a great leader in the corporate world." He noted how Hale built his company from the ground up – twice. The first business venture, Network Plus, fell victim to the 2008 financial crisis.

Shortly after Network Plus went out, Hale started Granite that quickly grew into a major player in the telecommunications field. Hale later started FoxRock Properties that also has grown into a successful development firm.

The mayor noted Hale's philanthropic efforts for the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Koch explained that in the aftermath of Hale's father succumbing to cancer, he began fundraising campaigns for Dana-Farber that, according to Hale, has raised about $12 million for pancreatic cancer research.

Koch thanked the chamber and the business community for its commitment to the city and to jobs. He noted that working with business and labor leaders is vital to Quincy's rejuvenation.

The mayor added that he will soon be submitting to the city council his proposal for the next phase of the Hancock Adams Green project in front of city hall. According to Koch, revenue from the city's hotel tax is funding the project that includes statutes that will grace the Adams Green.

Governor Charlie Baker and author David McCullough are among the dignitaries invited to the unveiling of the statues scheduled for next June.

Quincy Chamber of Commerce outgoing Chairman Edward Fleming thanked the attendees for coming to the annual meeting and business showcase saying that participating in such events helps "create a great, vibrant business community in the City of Quincy."

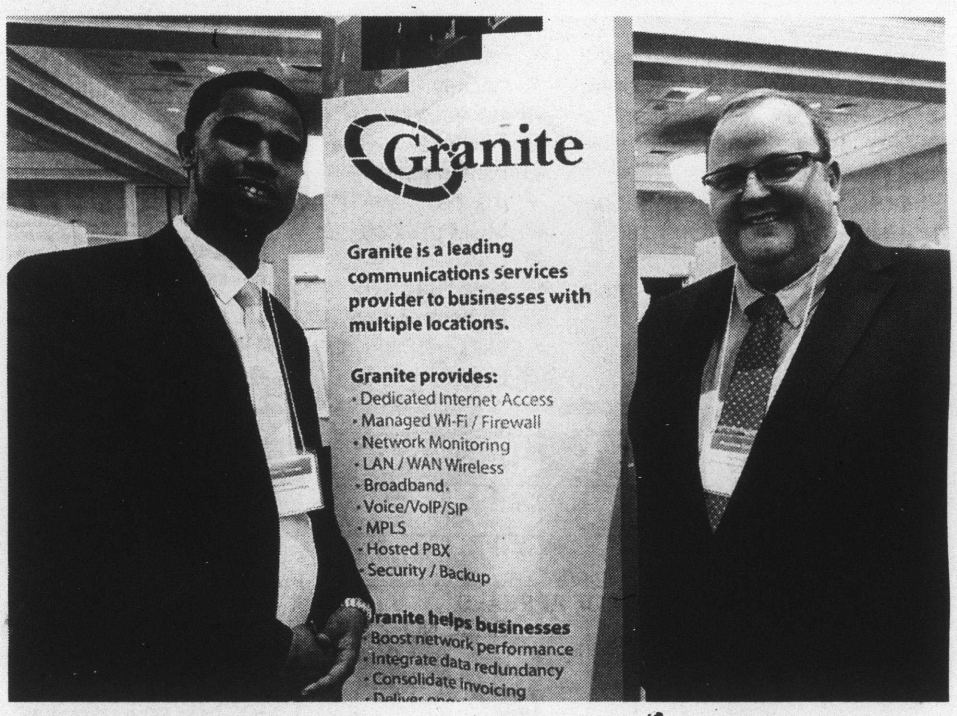
He noted that a new executive board was voted in that will be led by the chamber's new chairperson, Dolly Di Pesa.

Di Pesa praised Hale for his dedication to Quincy as well as his charity work. She presented a gift to him in appreciation of his work to revitalizing the city.

She also recognized Fleming for his work the past two years and being one of the founders of the chamber. Di Pesa noted that under Fleming's leadership, the chamber's membership has grown to 250 and the innovation center grew from 30 to 44 companies.

Fleming said the Quincy Chamber of Commerce will continue to foster the growth of the city.

"Quincy's time of economic growth is here," he said.



GRANITE TELECOMMUNICATIONS representatives Alex Brito, left, and Pat Prince were on hand at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce's Annual Meeting and Business Showcase.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good time to reassess important relationships, both personal and professional, to see where problems might exist and how they can be overcome. Keep communication lines open.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's not easy to bring order to a chaotic situation, whether it's in the workplace or at home. But if anyone can do it, you can. A pleasant surprise awaits you by week's end.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be careful that you don't make an upcoming decision solely on the word of those who might have their own reasons for wanting you to act as they suggest. Check things out for yourself.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A personal relationship that seems to be going nowhere could be restarted once you know why it stalled. An honest discussion could result in some surprising revelations.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) That unexpected attack of self-doubt could be a way of warning yourself to go slow before making a career-changing decision. Take more time to do a closer study of the facts.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A workplace problem needs your attention, now, before it deteriorates to a point beyond repair. A trusted third party could be helpful in closing the gaps that have opened.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A recent family situation could give rise to a new problem. Keep an open mind and avoid making judgments about anyone's motives until all the facts are in.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Rely on your always-sharp intuition to alert you to potential problems with someone's attempt to explain away the circumstances behind a puzzling incident.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Although you still need to do some snipping of those lingering loose ends from a past project, you can begin moving on to something else.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) With your self-confidence levels rising, you should feel quite comfortable with agreeing to take on a possibly troublesome, but potentially well-rewarded, situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Travel is favored, both for business and for fun. The end of the week brings news about an upcoming project that could lead toward that promised career change.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might feel suddenly overwhelmed by a flood of responsibilities. But if you deal with each one in its turn, you'll soon be able to hold your head above water and move on.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a wonderful way of offering comfort as well as guidance. You would do well in the healing arts.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Put your restlessness to good use by indulging the Arian love of exploring new places and seeking new challenges. There also could be a new romance waiting to be "discovered."

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A surprise message from someone in your past could lead to a long-awaited reunion with a once-close friend. Also, look for a workplace problem to be resolved in your favor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your self-confidence is rising, and that should be a significant factor in helping you adjust to a new social situation, as well as adjusting to a series of changes in the workplace.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Turnabout could be lots of fun when someone who previously accepted your tender, loving care without question now suggests that he or she wants to start taking care of you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Put the lessons you learned from past disappointments to work in planning your future. The way ahead opens to opportunities "purrfectly" suited to the adventurous Lion.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to renew contacts with family members and/or old friends who somehow slipped off your personal viewing screen in recent years. Travel also is favored.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Most problems surrounding that recent personal situation have been resolved, and that means you should move on to other things that are important to you.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Spend this weekend recharging your physical and spiritual energies. When you return to your workaday world, you'll be ready to take on that new project.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Be careful how you advise a troubled friend. Even your wise counsel could be misunderstood. Better to suggest that he or she seek professional help.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family problems once again dominate and, once again, everyone seeks your guidance in these matters. Later, you can indulge in some much-needed relaxation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Some mixed signals create confusion in the workplace. Best advice: Ask for explanations before you attempt to deal with any of these matters on your own.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A patch of roiling water in the workplace could be threatening, but stay the course and you'll soon be clear of it. Then go out and have a great time with loved ones.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your extraordinary leadership qualities mark you as someone people can turn to for guidance in difficult situations.

Quincy Public Schools Celebrate Read Across America

Quincy Public Schools staff and students recently held a week-long celebration in honor of Read Across America, Dr. Suess' Birthday, and their love of reading.

Throughout the week, Dr. Seuss books were featured throughout the schools, followed by fun-themed activities. Students were invited to attend a "Green Eggs and Ham" breakfast, wear a favorite hat to school ("The Cat in the Hat"), wear silly or mismatched socks ("Fox in the Socks"), or talk about what they wanted to be when they grow up ("Oh the Places You'll Go").

Guest readers were invited to take part in the celebration and included QPS administrators, parents, grandparents, and "mystery readers."

The Quincy School ~ Community Partnership thanks guest readers from Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, Quincy Retired Teachers Association, Colonial Federal Savings Bank, and QUARI for their participation in this celebration.

Quincy Art Association Hosts Chinese Calligrapher Mike Mei

The Quincy Art Association recently opened its doors to Quincy and surrounding towns and hosted Mike Mei, a noted Chinese calligrapher and president of the Chinese American Fine Arts Society.

Mei lectured and demonstrated the fine art of Chinese calligraphy at the QAA. He has lectured and taught at many distinguished institutions including MIT, Harvard and Wellesley College.

The QAA located at 26 High School Ave. in Quincy was standing room only as guests were treated to the magical world of Chinese calligraphy. The event began with an overview of the five styles of ancient Chinese Calligraphy and progressed into a demonstration to create a piece of art.

Mei will be teaching at the Quincy Art Association later on this year.

New Push For Affordable Housing In Quincy Center

By SCOTT JACKSON

Two city councillors want to require developers behind residential projects in Quincy Center to comply with Quincy's affordable housing ordinance.

Councillors Brian Palmucci and Joseph Finn introduced an amendment to Quincy's zoning code Monday night that would eliminate the exemption to affordable housing requirements currently given to downtown developers in the zoning code. A public hear-

Council Approves $147,000 For Sea Wall Design, Permitting

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city will design, engineer and permit repairs to a 6,000-foot long section of sea wall along Adams Shore and Houghs Neck using funds from Quincy's hotel tax receipts and a state grant.

The City Council on Monday night approved $147,000 from the hotel tax account to match a $441,000 grant received from the state last November.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said Quincy is working with engineering firm Tighe & Bond – the company that completed the Edgewater Drive sea wall project – to replace the 6,000-foot section of sea

TV Commercial Filmed At Adams Shore Super Market

By TOM GORMAN

The Adams Shore Super Market was transformed into a Hollywood movie set last week where a television commercial for Hefty trash bags was filmed.

Owners Angie and Nick Phillips closed their Sea Street store for the two-day shoot on March 15 and 16 featuring pro-wrestler John Cena. Sets were created inside the store where various scenes were filmed for the commercial that will air on national television in the coming months.

"It was a madhouse here," Nick Phillips said, referring to the 300-member crew that descended on the store, during an interview the day after filming was completed. "There were cameras and computers in the aisles and people all over the place. But, it was worth it."

Because of a confidentiality agreement with the producers, the Phillips couldn't discuss specifics of the scenes. The public was not allowed inside during filming and even the Phillips' daughter was kept out.

During the two days of shooting, white production trucks jammed the store's parking lot and lined both sides of Albatross Road. A heated camper was parked midway down the street for Cena to take a break between scenes. Crew members could be seen going in and out of the store with equipment and costumes.

Nick Phillips said the neighbors enjoy the excitement.

"They love the action," he said.

Angie Phillips said they were contacted several weeks prior to the shooting by a production company that the store was being considered for a TV commercial shoot. She explained that a scout came by and took some pictures that were sent to the producer.

"The producer reviews the pictures and decides

Quincy Sun Price $1 Effective April 6

Effective April 6th, the price of The Quincy Sun newspaper on newsstands and delivery by newcarriers will rise 25 cents to $1.00.

This will be the first increase in the newsstand price in about six years.

The increase is necessary due to escalating costs associated with producing and distributing the newspaper.

Kennedy Center Offering Health, Wellness Program For Residents 60 And Over

The Kennedy Center announces it is the first in the area to offer an innovative new 10-week health and wellness program to residents 60 and over.

The Aging Mastery Program® (AMP) was developed by the National Council on Aging (NCOA) and has been successful at helping older adults build their own playbook for aging well.

The Kennedy Center is currently recruiting 30 adults, ages 60+ to participate in the 10-week educational program.

AMP is a fun, innovative, and person-centered education program that empowers participants to embrace their gift of longevity by spending more time each day doing things that are good for themselves and for others. The program encourages developing sustainable behaviors across many dimensions that lead to improved health, stronger economic security, enhanced well-being, and increased societal participation.

The Kennedy Center will host AMP classes every Friday from April 21st to June 23rd.

Those interested in learning more about the program should call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506 or stop by in person at 440 East Squantum St. in Quincy.

The Kennedy Center is offering the AMP at no cost. Registration deadline is April 18th.

held regarding the demolition of the Quincy Center station's garage. That meeting kicks off at 6:30 p.m. in the lower level meeting room inside the McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall) at 1305 Hancock St.

The final meeting will cover the planned improvements at the Quincy Adams station's garage. That meeting is slated for 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 11, inside the cafeteria at the Lincoln-Hancock School, 300 Granite St.

"Information, including design plans, about individual projects will be presented at the public meetings," according to Lisa Battison, deputy press secretary for the MBTA.

The long-awaited renovations to the Wollaston station are meant to bring it into compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act and to alleviate concerns about flooding at its entrances. The station first opened in 1971 and is the only Red Line station that does not meet ADA requirements.

Work at the Wollaston station could begin as soon as this fall, MBTA spokesman Joe Pesaturo said in January.

The 870-car garage at the Quincy Center station has been closed since July 2012, when state officials shuttered it without warning because of concerns regarding its structural integrity. The garage dates to 1971, when the station opened.

Mayor Thomas Koch told The Sun in December the garage would be demolished this year, and that the state would pay for those costs. City officials have begun the process of designing a replacement for the garage and are also eyeing a mixed-use development for the station. The idea of placing a new Quincy District Courthouse at the site was floated but state officials nixed that concept, Koch said in October.

The work at the Quincy Adams station's garage – along with a similar project at the Braintree station – is expected to take up to three years to complete and could commence later this year, Pesaturo said in January. Work at those stations will include structural concrete repairs and repairs of parking deck membranes as well as the replacement of damaged expansion joints. The project will also address the stations' drainage, electrical, fire alarm and lighting systems, among other aspects.

The 2,500-car garage at the Quincy Adams station first opened in 1983.

Randolph Man Arraigned In Quincy Center Shooting

By SCOTT JACKSON

An 18-year-old Randolph man was arraigned Monday on seven charges he is facing in relation to a Friday afternoon shooting in Quincy Center, which prosecutors said was a failed attempt to rob a drug dealer.

Cory Kisakye pleaded not guilty to the charges – including armed robbery and unlicensed possession of a firearm – Monday afternoon in Quincy District Court. Bail was set at $25,000.

A second individual, a juvenile, has also been charged in connection with the shooting, but that person's identity has not been made public because of his age.

Prosecutors said Kisakye and the juvenile were apparently walking around Quincy Center Friday afternoon with two loaded guns looking for someone to rob. Prosecutors said the pair arranged to meet a marijuana dealer in a stairwell outside the Mason Temple on Hancock Street and planned to rob him.

A witness told police the drug dealer fought his assailants and it was at that point a pistol in the juvenile's hand went off. The drug dealer was not injured, and the shot pierced a nearby window.

Police were called to the scene around 1:50 p.m. Friday. Kisakye was arrested shortly thereafter in the garage at 1250 Hancock St., but the juvenile was able to flee the scene while leaving behind a backpack with two loaded handguns.

A State Police helicopter was called in to help hunt for the juvenile suspect after he fled the garage. The second suspect was arrested about an hour later at the corner of Furnace Brook Parkway and Newport Avenue after being spotted by two people listening to a police scanner.

Kisakye is due back in court April 19 for a probable cause hearing.

Quincy Mans Pleads Guilty To Federal Bank Robbery Charges

A 28-year-old Quincy man has pleaded guilty in federal court to charges he robbed multiple banks throughout the Boston area.

Kyle P. Nathan, 28, pleaded guilty to four counts of bank robbery in the U.S. District Court in Boston on March 16. Judge Douglas P. Woodlock scheduled sentencing for July 12.

According to court documents, on various dates in February and March 2016, a number of banks were robbed in the Greater Boston area. Because the similarity of how the banks were robbed, and the physical description of the robber, law enforcement suspected the same individual was involved in each of the robberies.

Law enforcement identified Nathan as the individual responsible for the robberies of a branch of the East Boston Savings Bank in South Boston on Feb. 27, 2016; a branch of the East Boston Savings Bank in Dorchester on March 8, 2016; a branch of the Santander bank in Chelmsford on March 10, 2016; and a branch of the Citizens Bank in Chelmsford on March 18, 2016.

On March 18, 2016, following the robbery of the Citizens Bank in Chelmsford, law enforcement officers arrested Nathan. At the time of his arrest, Nathan was wearing the same clothing he had been wearing during the prior robberies.

The charging statue provides for a sentence of no greater than 20 years in prison, three years of supervised release and a fine of up to $250,000 on each count. Actual sentences for federal crimes are typically less than the maximum penalties. Sentences are imposed by a federal district court judge based upon the U.S. sentencing guidelines and other statutory factors.

Acting U.S. Atty. William D. Weinreb; Harold H. Shaw, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Boston Field Division; Col. Richard D. McKeon, superintendent of the Massachusetts State Police; and Chelmsford Police Chief James Spinney, made the announcement March 16. Assistant U.S. Attorney Kenneth G. Shine of Weinreb's Major Crimes Unit is prosecuting the case.

FANCY THIS!

If you were born during the month of April, congratulations! Diamond is your birthstone. Before you indulge yourself in what is probably already your favorite gemstone, let's think about your options. While a (near) colorless "white" diamond is the choice of nearly all engaging couples, your birthday gives you an occasion to be a bit more daring. Approximately one in every 10,000 diamonds possesses natural color and can be classified as a "fancy" colored diamond. While colored diamonds are rarer than their colorless counterparts, they are not necessarily more expensive. Pink, purple, green, blue, violet, and pure orange are considered to be the rarest of diamond colors (and the most expensive), but grey, chocolate, and yellow are more affordable.

Over the past few years, fancy color diamonds have forged a path into the public's consciousness. Even among colored diamonds, not all diamonds are created equal. The two most popular colors for diamonds are yellow and pink diamonds. For the latest trends in jewelry, please visit our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

• On April 5, 1792, George Washington exercises the first presidential veto of a Congressional bill, which proposed a new plan for dividing seats in the House of Representatives. Washington decided that the bill would have resulted in a higher number of representatives than that proscribed by the Constitution.

• On April 3, 1860, the first Pony Express mail, traveling by horse and rider relay teams, simultaneously leaves St. Joseph, Missouri, and Sacramento, California. Ten days later, the westbound rider arrived in Sacramento, beating the eastbound mail packet by two days.

• On April 8, 1916, at the Boulevard Race in Corona, California, an early racing car careens through a barrier and into a crowd after a wheel breaks, killing the driver and two others. "Wild Bob" Burman had previously set a world speed record for hitting 129 mph.

• On April 7, 1920, Indian sitar legend Ravi Shankar is born in India. Shankar's "discovery" by the Beatles' George Harrison in 1965 made him a household name around the world and changed the music sound of the '60s.

• On April 4, 1933, a dirigible crashes in New Jersey, killing 73 people in one of the first air disasters in history. The Akron was the largest airship built in the United States.

• On April 6, 1970, Sam Sheppard, a doctor convicted of murdering his pregnant wife in a trial that caused a media frenzy in the 1950s, dies of liver failure. After a decade in prison, Sheppard was freed following a re-trial. His story is rumored to have inspired the television series "The Fugitive."

• On April 9, 1987, U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz states that he is "damned angry" about possible Soviet spy activity in the American embassy in the Soviet Union. Soviet officials called the espionage charges "dirty fabrications."

More Fun For Our Readers

You may have noticed on our front page the last few weeks a small blurb announcing the price of The Quincy Sun will be going to $1 the first week of April.

It's a decision we have given much consideration. The price was almost raised a few years ago but we held off. Now it's necessary as expenses associated with producing and distributing the Sun have increased.

Long-time subscribers may remember that The Quincy Sun was only a dime when it first started in September, 1968. The first issue was actually a gift for our readers.

Over the years the price has gone up incrementally like many other publications. At $1 we will still be less than a majority of newspapers in circulation including other weeklies in the area.

One thing that won't change is our focus on Quincy.

We will continue to strive to bring our readers as much Quincy news and information week after week.

The price adjustment is also a good time to pause and reflect on what we can do to help improve our newspaper for our readers.

One of those improvements you will notice on Page 29 this week.

We are expanding our Fun Page to Fun Pages. Beginning in this issue, we are producing two Fun Pages featuring more puzzles and entertainment features.

We think our readers will enjoy the expanded Fun Page.

We know this has been a very popular feature over the years. And when we didn't run a Fun Page a few weeks ago, we heard from many readers concerned we were abandoning this page.

We certainly did not have any intention to eliminate the Fun Page.

The reason the Fun Page did not run a few weeks ago was due to a production problem.

And after the Sun was distributed that week, we started getting phone calls here at the office from Fun Page fans. Got a few emails and some questions from folks I run into making my rounds in Quincy Square after the paper is printed, too.

They questioned if we were no longer going to publish it.

We never thought about discontinuing the Fun Page. And looking back we should have dropped a small box in the paper somewhere apologizing for the inconvenience of not publishing a Fun Page in our March 9th issue.

But this experience made us realize that folks really look forward to the games and puzzles on the Fun Page. And so with a price increase on the horizon, we have decided to give our readers more of what they like – a second Fun Page.

We certainly hope the expanded Fun Page is well received.

And we will continue to monitor the features to ensure they are popular with our readers.

We also want our readers to know that we appreciate their comments and suggestions about other sections of the newspaper.

We are doing our best to cover as much as Quincy as possible every week with the resources we have available.

The Quincy Sun is your community newspaper.

We are here to help spread good news about good people.

We're also here to provide news and information about Quincy. We will continue to cover city government including the mayor's office, city council and school committee as well as local boards and other groups.

We sincerely thank our readers and advertisers for continuing to support The Quincy Sun which is approaching its 50th year in circulation this fall.

Enjoy the expanded Fun Pages.

Let us know what you think.

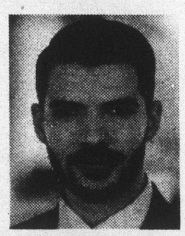
A FIRST-TIME CANDIDATE appears ready to make a run for one of the three school committee seats up this fall.

Anthony Andronico, a lifelong Quincy resident who attended Quincy Public Schools, tell us he will be a candidate for school committee in the municipal election. Three school committee seats will be on the ballot: those currently held by incumbents Anne Mahoney, Barbara Isola and Emily Lebo. It's unclear at this point whether any of the seats held by the incumbents will be open this fall.



ANDRONICO

Andronico is a 2011 graduate of North Quincy High School. He also attended Central Middle School and the Wollaston School. He graduated from Emerson College in 2015 and was the class vice president. He currently works in the business and information technology sector.

He says he is running for school committee "to build a strong educational system that prepares students for the challenges they will face tomorrow."

Having graduated from QPS less than a decade ago, he says he has a unique perspective into the challenges students face now and in the near future. He says his campaign will focus on "smart and responsible resource allocation and spending, career and technical education, and community engagement.

"My career has focused on bringing people together from business, academia, and government in order to overcome challenges in education, financial services, and business technology. I believe that strong collaboration leads to positive change and can drive innovation.

"I want to get to work for Quincy and build a top-notch educational system for all of the city's students," Andronico says.

Nomination papers for councillor at-large (three seats), councillor in Wards 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 and three seats on the school committee are available Tuesday, May 2 in the city election department at City Hall. The mayor's seat held by Tom Koch is not up since it's at the half-way point of a four-year term.

Nomination papers require at least 50 signatures from Quincy residents. Deadline to file nomination papers is July 25. Residents running for ward councillor must collect valid signatures from residents within their ward.

So far it's been relatively quiet on the election front. One race that is shaping up is in Ward 1. Incumbent Margaret Laforest is facing a challenge from former School Committeeman Dave McCarthy.

The election picture will become clearer as the weather becomes warmer (hopefully!) and nomination papers are available.

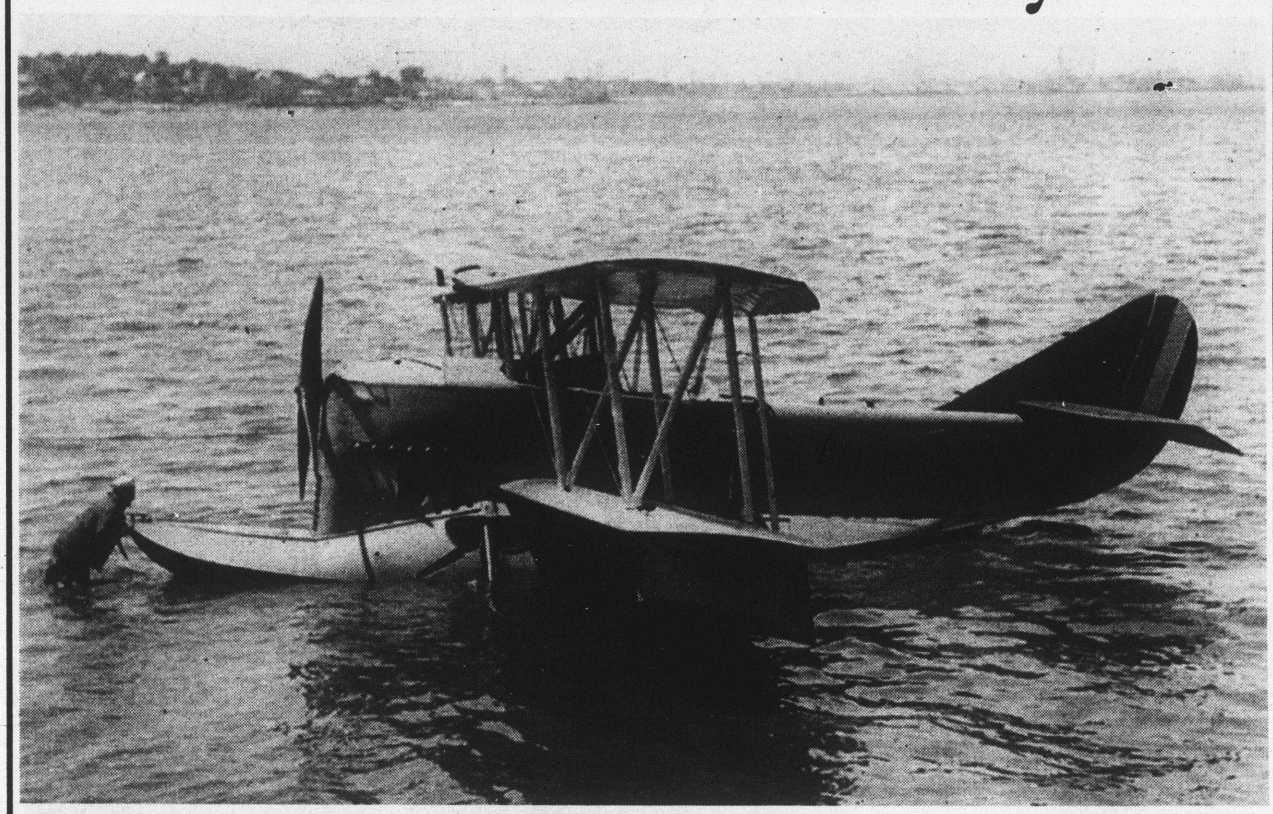
NICE TOUCH – If you attended the city's Saint Patrick's Day Luncheon at the Tirrell Room, Quincy Lodge of Elks, last Friday and left early, you missed one of the best parts of the afternoon.

The Boston Police Gaelic Column of Pipes and Drums stopped by the lodge and performed a few musical selections on the drums and bagpipes inside the hall.

Many of those who stayed held cell phones recording the distinctive musical performance by the 20-man outfit dressed in kilts and ceremonial attire. The Boston Police Bagpipe Band also made several other stops on Saint Patrick's Day including Franciscan Children's Hospital in Brighton.

Thanks to those responsible for making the Quincy visit possible.

Scenes From Yesterday



THIS IS A 1920s postcard view of the Loening OL-2 amphibious biplane in Dorchester Bay just off today's Marina Bay. This plane was selected by Rear Admiral Richard Byrd, pioneer aviator and polar explorer, for use in the famous 1925 MacMillan Arctic Expedition to the polar ice cap. Byrd, who was instrumental in establishing the Naval Air Station at Squantum, had three of the early versions of the plane shipped here and after extensive flight testing at Squantum they were disassembled and shipped by boat to the northern tip of Greenland. Once reassembled, Byrd himself piloted one of the planes and found to his dismay they were not suited for polar exploration. Their range was too short, failure of the single engine would be a disaster and they could not land on the jagged ice. Later versions of the Loening were used for other purposes, but Byrd didn't use them in his future Antarctica explorations. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Sale of Historic Site Proposed

Historic Moswetusset Hummock in Squantum, from where Massachusetts got its name, would be transferred to the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Council under a bill now pending in the State Legislature.

The K of C Council is seeking a site for a new home, which would have recreation and meeting facilities for outside groups.

The bill sponsored by Representatives Amelio Della Chiesa, Joseph E. Brett, James R. McIntyre and Charles L. Shea, is now before the Ways and Means committee.

The proposal met strong opposition from the Quincy Board of Managers of Historic Places and City Historian William Churchill Edwards who feel that a historic shrine should not be transferred by the MDC to any private organization. (Editors Note: It didn't happen.)

Greg O'Brien And Alzheimer's Disease: A True Hero

In 2014, approximately 150 people came to the Kennedy Center in Quincy to listen to Greg O'Brien, who had been diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease.

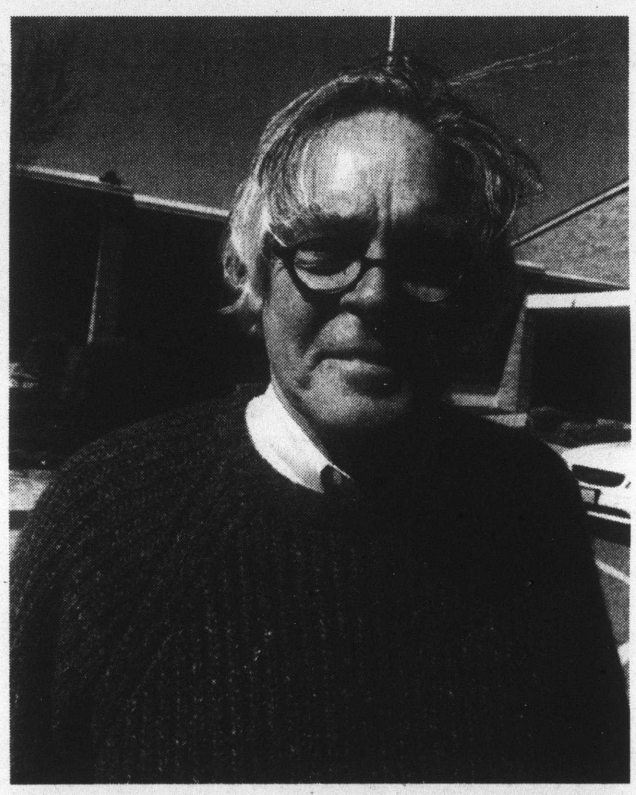
Greg spoke of his frustrations and the difficulties he faced along with his wife, Mary Catherine, and their three children. He sold about 80 copies of his book "On Pluto." He showed a documentary that eventually was shown on Chronicle.

When he finished speaking, there was not a dry eye in the gym.

On March 9, 2017, Greg O'Brien was again a guest speaker at The Kennedy Center. This time, however, was more solemn. It was a smaller crowd than the last time Greg spoke, but Greg was right on point.

He talked about his condition and what he did to try and remain "in the game." He encouraged those who may have some cognitive issues not to give up and told of his mom, who he was very close to. He did add humor, as only he could, about some of the situations related to Alzheimer's disease.

Every once in a while during his talk, Greg would turn to me and smile; sometimes with a comment other times just a smile. When we hugged before he left that day, I felt a sadness come over me thinking this could be the last time we embrace. I heard from my brother, Dick, the next day that Greg lost his place a few times while speaking and turned to me for comfort as he told Dick we look so much alike that when he saw me he knew he was ok as it reminded him of his good friend, Dick Koch.



GREG O'BRIEN outside the Kennedy Center in Quincy where he has spoken twice about living with Alzheimer's Disease.

I met Greg O'Brien for the first time at his presentation in 2014. I knew of him and had spoken with him over the phone. Greg was diagnosed with Alzheimer's at about the same time my husband, Tom, was diagnosed.

In hearing of my husband's diagnosis from my brother Dick, Greg offered to talk with my husband. He and my brother, Dick, came up to Quincy and met with Tom. Greg encouraged Tom to fight the disease. He told Tom to do what he could to prevent it from taking over his life. That is what Greg had decided to do after watching his mom fight it for as long as she could. Unfortunately, Tom didn't have the cognitive reserve that Greg had and is much more progressed in the disease.

Greg O'Brien is a true hero in choosing to share his experience as a person with what is referred to as a "horrible" disease. With candor and humor, he shared many things most would not. Even if only for a short period of time, he removed the stigma of Alzheimer's disease for those who would listen. Greg has traveled the world speaking to anyone who would listen including health professionals, pharmaceutical companies and just everyday people hoping some day there will be a cure for Alzheimer's.

8th Grader Thuan Nguyen School Champion

It may be cold outside but the competition was heating up in the Point Webster Auditorium.

The entire school gathered on March 10th at Point Webster Middle School for its annual National Geographic Geography Bee. The Bee was a school-wide event that took place in all of the Social Studies classes' grades 6-8.

The first few rounds the questions were about the United States and then quickly shifted to the rest of the world. The finals came down to the 10 contestants, two sixth graders and four from the seventh and eighth grade.

Eighth grader Thuan Nguyen was crowned the school champion. Congrats to all the competitors on a job well done.

Owls Of The World Program April 19

Mark and Marcia Wilson will return to the Kennedy Center with their family of owls on Wednesday, April 19th at 1 p.m.

The Wilsons will share the field marks, signs and naturalists skills used to find wild owls without disturbing them. Next they will introduce six live owls (from small to huge) up close.

Everyone participates in a "hooting" lesson and learns how to attract and protect owls.

This is a great intergenerational event for the school vacation week. Seniors are encouraged to bring their grandchildren, nieces and nephews, etc.

Tickets are $3 and can be purchased at the Kennedy Center.

For more information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Quincy Students Participate In Social Justice Summit

Diarmuid McGonagle and Joseph Henry of Quincy, juniors at Boston College High School, recently participated in the Ignatian Solidarity Network's High School Leaders Summit for Social Justice in Cleveland, Ohio.

The Ignatian Solidarity Network Arrupe Leaders invited emerging student leaders and faculty/parish chaperones from Jesuit high schools and parishes nationwide to deepen their understanding of "a faith that does justice," to share ideas and resources for social justice programming, and to become empowered to effect positive social change in their local and global communities.

Students and faculty were given opportunities to share social justice programming ideas and make connections with fellow social justice leaders from around the country.

Alzheimer's: Legal, Financial Concerns Topic April 6

Many families wait until it's too late to learn about legal and financial concerns related to Alzheimer's.

On Thursday, April 6th, at 9:30 a.m., Elder Law Attorney Eric Oalican will be at the Kennedy Center to discuss wills, durable power of attorney, protection of assets, health care proxy and what Medicare and Medicaid do and do not cover.

This program is sponsored by the Alzheimer's Association and is free of charge. While this program is not intended to substitute for a personal appointment with an elder law attorney, attendees will have the opportunity to hear about typical issues and problems that can be avoided or reduced by adequate planning.

Registration is required for this event. To register, call the Kennedy Center at (617) 365-1506.

Social Security Matters

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I'm totally confused after a conversation with some friends about Social Security and Medicare. All three of us are 68, but two of my friends are already collecting Social Security while I'm waiting to apply so I can let my benefit grow. The confusion came in when we talked about Medicare and the premium for Part B. My friends both say they have their Medicare premium deducted from their Social Security payment and are paying about $114 per month. However, my Medicare Part B premium, which I pay separately, is now $134 per month. It just doesn't seem fair. Why is their Medicare premium so much lower than mine? Signed: Confused

Dear Confused: Yes, it might seem unfair, but the difference in your Medicare Part B premiums has to do with something called the "hold harmless provision" of the Social Security Act. This provision essentially states that a beneficiary's Social Security benefit payment cannot decrease due to an increase in Medicare's Part B premium. This is an important provision because Medicare costs tend to rise annually often resulting in higher premiums. However to be protected by this provision, your premiums must be automatically deducted from your Social Security benefit payments. Since your friends' Part B premiums are deducted from their Social Security, they enjoy this "hold harmless" protection; since yours is not, you pay the standard Medicare Part B monthly premium.

About 70% of all Social Security beneficiaries enjoy this hold harmless" protection, which means that the other 30% (as well as others who are on Medicare but not collecting Social Security) bear the brunt of covering the total costs of the Federal Medicare program. Since your premium is $134 you are paying the "standard" premium that applies to anyone earning $85,000 per year or less. You may take some comfort in knowing that higher-earners can pay up to $428.60 per month for Medicare Part B coverage (these are 2017 numbers). When you eventually apply for your Social Security benefits and have your Medicare premiums deducted from your payments, you will automatically become protected against significant future Part B premium increases, because the hold harmless provision will prevent your Social Security benefit amount from going down. As a side note for awareness, it sometimes happens that when a Social Security Cost of Living Adjustment (COLA) is given, it is partially or entirely offset by an increase in the Medicare premium. So, even with hold harmless protection, while your Medicare premium may technically go up somewhat, your Social Security payment will remain the same.

A point of information: Any time you switch from one Social Security benefit type to another (e.g., from your own benefit to spousal benefits, from survivor's benefit to your own benefit, from spousal benefit to your own benefit, etc.), you are subject to your Medicare Part B premium amount being adjusted (increased) to the most current standard Part B premium amount.

Quincy's Joe 'Tex' Fasci Celebrates 90 Years Young

Quincy native Joe "Tex" Fasci who now hails from Texas celebrated his 90th birthday March 8 with friends and family.

Joe celebrated his birthday with his three children, three grandchildren, three great grandchildren from all over the country, as well as his friends from the local Marine League. His dear friend Deborah Hargiss also joined him at this surprise party.

Joe grew up in Quincy's Houghs Neck neighborhood. His father had immigrated from Naples. When Joe was 17, he joined the U.S. Navy and served as a Seabee in World War II. After the War, he married Claire LaPlume, from Adams Shore, and they had three children: Joe Jr., Kathryn, and Rosemary.

After a career as a machinist with General Dynamics at the Quincy Shipyard, Joe opened his own small business, Ultrasonic Test Engineering. His business was located in Quincy Center in the old Kincaid Building on Hancock Street.

Later in life, he visited his daughter Kathryn in Texas, and made a life decision to retire to Granbury, Texas. He has now lived there for more than 20 years.

When a Quincy native moves to Texas permanently, he gets a nickname. The staff at The Quincy Sun now knows Joe Fasci, Sr. as "Tex." Of course, he has had his favorite newspaper, The Quincy Sun, mailed to Granbury all this time. He hopes to have it delivered for the next 20 years.

Blueberry Muffins With Crumb Topping

By MARIE

If you are a fan of blueberry muffins you will love today's recipe that I recently found. It is made with cinnamon as one of the ingredients. Somehow anything with cinnamon in it gives it that extra zing. It is also unusual for a muffin to have a crumb topping so when I baked them last week they got raves.

RECIPE FOR THE MUFFINS:

1 ½ cups of flour
3/4 cup of sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons of baking power
1/3 cup of vegetable oil
1 egg
1/3 cup plus one tablespoon of milk
1 cup of fresh blueberries

RECIPE FOR CRUMB TOPPING:

½ cup white sugar
1/3 cup of flour
½ stick butter cut in cubes
1 and ½ teaspoons of cinnamon

Mix together sugar, flour, butter and cinnamon in a small bowl with a fork.

To prepare muffins: Preheat oven to 400 degrees

Grease 8 muffin tins or line them with paper liners

Mix together the flour, sugar salt and baking powder. Add oil and then stir in eggs and milk. Stir the milk mixture into the flour mixture until well blended and then fold in blueberries.

Fill muffin cups right to the top. Sprinkle with crumb topping mixture. Bake until tops are golden brown about 20 – 25 minutes.

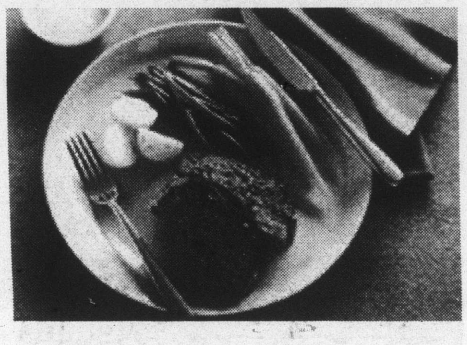
Vegetarian Meatloaf

By SUSIE

Here is a really delicious and healthy recipe for vegetarian meatloaf to try.

Its always a good idea to eat more vegetables, and less meat. You don't have to be a vegetarian to experiment with various dishes that contain no meat. This tastes great, and will be a hit.

You will be loading up with important nutrients and getting important fiber as well. Hope you love it as much as I do.



VEGETARIAN MEATLOAF

2 cups water
1 teaspoon sea salt
1 cup lentils
1 small onion, diced
½ cup shredded zucchini
1 cup quick-cooking gluten free oats
3/4 cup grated cheese of choice (cheddar or Monterey jack is great)
1 egg, beaten
4 1/2 ounces marinara sauce of choice
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 teaspoon dried basil
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 teaspoon herbamare or trocomare seasoned salt
2 teaspoons sriracha sauce

Add salt to water and boil in a saucepan.

Add lentils and simmer covered 25-30 minutes, until lentils are soft and most of water is evaporated..

Drain and partially mash lentils. Scrape into mixing bowl and allow to cool slightly.

Stir in onion, oats and cheese until mixed.

Add egg, tomato sauce, oil, garlic, zucchini, basil, parsley, seasoning salt and sriracha, mix well

Spoon into loaf pan that has been generously greased with olive oil

Smooth top with back of spoon.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30- 45 minutes until top of loaf is dry, firm and golden brown.

Public Campaign To Preserve Beloved Piece Of Kennedy History

$25,000 Fundraising Goal By April 19th

The John F. Kennedy Library Foundation announces a public campaign is underway to support the preservation of John F. Kennedy's iconic wooden sailboat, the Victura.

Purchased by the Kennedy family when JFK was 15 years old, Victura was a beloved family treasure and features prominently in historic photographs, film footage, and even documents on which JFK doodled pictures of the boat during some of the most trying times of his presidency.

Since 1980, Victura has been displayed on the lawn of the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum each year from May through November for all to bear witness its history. After several months' exposure to the elements, in the offseason, the antique boat must undergo meticulous preservation. In order to support this work, the John F. Kennedy Library Foundation has launched a GoFundMe campaign called "Preserve Victura at the JFK Library" with a goal of raising $25,000 by April 19th.

"President Kennedy loved the sea," said Steven Rothstein, executive director of the Kennedy Library Foundation. "From summers spent on the waters off the Cape, to his Navy service, and even to the Oval Office where he drew sailboats during meetings, the President's love for the sea can be seen in every stage of his life. And that connection was centered around one very special sailboat, the Victura. It is an honor to have this historic artifact in our care, and to be able to display it outside each year. We hope that as we celebrate the Centennial of President Kennedy's birth, others will find it meaningful to join us in our effort to continue to preserve this iconic piece of presidential history for the next 100 years."

The Victura was designed and built by Crosby Yacht Yard on Cape Cod, MA and is one of only about 200 Wianno Seniors ever built. JFK named the boat Victura, which means "she who is about to conquer" in Latin, a subject he struggled with in school. While in use, Victura had at least two known brushes with disaster: in 1936 it was struck by lightning; then in 1944, it was saved from a hurricane only when JFK himself dragged it ashore during the storm.

Victura sits on the JFK Library's lawn from May to November, pointing out to the Boston Harbor and the Atlantic beyond. Since it is displayed outdoors in all weather throughout the summer and fall months, the Victura is vulnerable to the variable New England weather, from scorching sunlight to driving rain. Each winter, the Victura is sent to Crosby Yacht Yard, where it was built, for protection from the harsh elements. While there, a skilled team of conservators works to make sure that any damage is reversed before it can cause long-term harm to the boat.

On average, Victura requires between 100 and 125 hours of preservation work each year. Such work can include everything from sanding and touching up paint to redoing the protective varnish coating. The work is critical to ensure that Victura will remain in its current well-preserved state for years to come to be enjoyed by the thousands of people, young and old, who visit the Kennedy Library each year or walk by the boat in its perch alongside Boston's Harborwalk.

The "Preserve the Victura" campaign is part of the Foundation's year-long celebration of the 100th anniversary of President Kennedy's birth. Gifts starting at $10 will receive special keepsakes or experiences.

The historic Crosby Yacht Yard in Barnstable built, repairs, and provides winter shelter for the Victura.

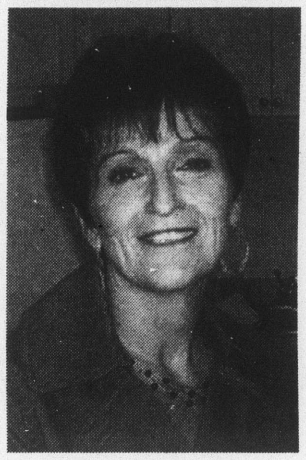
Sinusitis: Symptoms, Diagnosis, Treatments

A Message From The Quincy Health Department



RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

If you have ever woken up with a stuffy nose and blocked ears you may ask yourself why we have sinuses. The truth is, experts don't really know. One theory is that they help humidify the air we breathe in. Another is that they enhance our voices.

Our sinuses are a connected system of empty cavities in the skull. The largest sinus cavities are approximately an inch across while others are significantly smaller. Your cheekbones contain your maxillary sinuses which are the largest.

The center of your forehead is where your frontal sinuses are situated, while your ethmoid sinuses are found between your eyes. They're lined with soft, pink tissue called mucosa. Normally, the sinuses are empty except for a fine layer of mucus. The interior of the nose has ridges referred to as turbinates. Normally these structures assist in humidifying and filtering air. A thin wall, called the septum, divides the nose. Most of the sinuses drain into the nose through a small channel or drainage pathway that doctors call the middle meatus.

Acute sinusitis usually begins with cold-like symptoms such as a runny, stuffy nose and facial discomfort. It may begin suddenly and last 2-4 weeks. Subacute sinus inflammation usually lasts 4 to 12 weeks and chronic inflammation symptoms last 12 weeks or longer. Recurrent sinusitis occurs several times a year.

Roughly 35 million Americans have sinusitis at least once each year. You are more likely to suffer sinusitis if you have:

- Swelling inside the nose like from a common cold
- Blocked drainage ducts
- Structural differences that narrow those ducts
- Nasal polyps
- Immune system deficiencies or medications that suppress the immune system

For children, things that can trigger sinusitis include:

- Allergies
- Illnesses from other kids at day care or school
- Pacifiers
- Bottle drinking while lying on the back
- Smoke in the environment

The main risk factors for adults are infections and smoking.

Symptoms of Acute Sinusitis include:

- Facial pain or pressure
- "Stuffed-up" nose
- Runny nose
- Loss of smell
- Cough or congestion
- Fever
- Bad breath
- Fatigue
- Dental pain

It may be considered acute sinusitis if you have two or more symptoms, or thick, green, or yellow nasal discharge.

Symptoms of Chronic Sinusitis usually last for 12 weeks or more and can include:

- A feeling of congestion or fullness in your face
- A nasal obstruction or nasal blockage
- Pus in the nasal cavity
- Fever
- Runny nose or discolored postnasal drainage

Symptoms may also include headaches, bad breath, and tooth pain and accompanying fatigue is not uncommon.

To diagnose sinusitis, your healthcare provider will conduct a physical and obtain a history of your symptoms. They may examine and press your face to look for tenderness in the sinuses, and tap your teeth to see if a sinus near your nose is bothering you.

You may also need further tests such as a nasal endoscopy. A nasal endoscope is a tube-like instrument equipped with tiny lights and cameras. Doctors use it to see inside your nose and sinus drainage areas.

If you have a simple sinus infection, your doctor may recommend you use a decongestant and saline nasal washes. They may also prescribe antibiotics for up to 14 days. Usually the symptoms will disappear with treatment. Warm, moist air may be of benefit if you are suffering from chronic sinusitis. You can use a vaporizer, or you can inhale steam from a pan of warm water

There are some other things you can do yourself to alleviate the symptoms of chronic sinusitis:

- Warm compresses can ease discomfort in the nose and sinuses.
- Saline nose drops are safe to use at home.
- Over-the-counter decongestant drops or sprays can help. Don't take them longer than recommended as they can ultimately lead to more congestion.

In particular instances, your doctor may prescribe steroids along with antibiotics. It is also advisable to avoid any triggers associated with your sinusitis.

Some treatment options include:

- Antihistamines if you have allergies
- If a fungus is the culprit, your doctor may give you a prescription for an antifungal medicine.
- If you have certain immune deficiencies, your doctor may give you immunoglobulin, which helps fight the things your body reacts to.

There is no guaranteed method to prevent sinusitis. But there are some things you can do that might be of assistance.

- Don't smoke, and try to avoid people who are smoking or smoke filled environments.
- Wash your hands frequently, especially during cold and flu season, and try not to touch your face.
- Try to stay clear of things you know that you're allergic to.

If antibiotics and other remedies don't open the sinus, you may need surgery. Likewise, if the structure of your sinuses are defective, for example, nasal polyps blocking drainage, your doctor may suggest some type of procedure to correct it. Doctors usually use an endoscope to do these surgeries. Most people can get back to their normal activities within 5 to 7 days. Full recovery can take about 4 to 6 weeks.

There are a several procedures your doctor can perform in his office:

- A turbinectomy that shrinks the swollen tissues of the nose and only takes a few minutes.
- Balloon sinuplasty that opens up swollen sinuses, allowing them to drain mucus more freely. This procedure is very similar to a balloon angioplasty, in which a surgeon opens blocked blood vessels to the heart.

If Sinusitis is left untreated, most likely you will experience increasing pain and discomfort until it starts to resolved. In rare instances, untreated sinusitis can lead to meningitis, a brain abscess, or an infection of the bone. Talk to your doctor to discuss your concerns and examine treatment options.

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

DOVE Domestic Violence Ended

Quincy Community Reads To Turn the Page on Domestic Violence

What: Calling all Quincy Book Groups and Reading Circles!

Join us to read and discuss Leslie Morgan Steiner's Crazy Love (2009).

Leslie Morgan Steiner met the love of her life at age 22, soon after graduating from Harvard and starting her first job at Seventeen magazine in New York. She fell for his self-deprecating wit and street smarts - and especially his unabashed worship of her. They married and spent four years together. At first Leslie felt like the woman of his dreams.

Then she discovered her husband had been beaten as a child, taught by his parents that intimacy and rage dance together. He brought violence into their life, pouring coffee grinds over her hair, choking and threatening her with a gun during arguments. Several times, he came close to making good on his threats to kill her. Leslie's mistake is one millions identify with: she fell in love with the wrong man. It took one last terrifying attack to convince her that he would kill her one day if she let him.

Gripping and compelling, Crazy Love unravels the traps laid by love, mesmerizing listeners with insights into why smart women stay in unhealthy relationships - and how one found the courage to leave.

Sheriffs Briefed On State's Fiscal Shape

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti joined his colleagues from across the state at a Massachusetts Sheriffs' Association meeting recently to hear a presentation from the state comptroller.

The meeting, hosted by the Plymouth County Sheriff's Department, featured Comptroller Thomas Shack, who gave everyone in attendance the most up-to-date information available on the state's financial situation.

"We all are aware of the current fiscal climate, but it was valuable for us to hear a more detailed accounting," Bellotti said. "We are working with the Legislature and Governor Baker to keep the Massachusetts citizenry safe and secure."

Crane Public Library Member Of Mass Audubon's Library Partners Program

As a way to provide individuals and families in its service area with access to inexpensive, fun and educational outdoor activities, the Thomas Crane Public Library is participating in Mass Audubon's Library Partners program.

Mass Audubon offers many convenient opportunities for patrons of the Thomas Crane Public Library to explore and enjoy the nature of Massachusetts.

Library patrons can use the Thomas Crane Public Library's pass to visit Mass Audubon wildlife sanctuaries at the discounted rate of just $2 per person (for up to four people per pass). Explore Wellfleet Bay Wildlife Sanctuary where more than a thousand acres of salt marsh attract a wide array of birds and other wildlife, or Drumlin Farm in Lincoln where spring means bluebirds and baby farm animals, or Pleasant Valley in the Berkshires with beautiful landscapes that have inspired artists for centuries.

While Mass Audubon is engaged in many different environmental activities, the roots of the organization are in bird conservation. Bird watching is one of the fastest-growing outdoor activities in America, and as a patron of the Thomas Crane Public Library you can connect with this nationally renowned birding resource. Mass Audubon offers programs for beginning to expert birders, and many opportunities to volunteer and participate in citizen science to help protect wildlife and wild lands.

In Massachusetts, every season brings unique opportunities to enjoy the outdoors. Thanks to the Thomas Crane Public Library, patrons can enjoy discounted access to Mass Audubon's statewide network of wildlife sanctuaries, which stretches from the Berkshires to the Cape and Islands: more than 50 wild spaces where you can explore, escape and play.

Also, there are a few slots left for aspiring karaoke singers. For tickets, performing, and information, contact Patrick McDermott at 617-594-0640 or pmcdquincy@gmail.com.

ENC To Present 'The Watsons Go To Birmingham, 1963'

The Eastern Nazarene College Theatre Department will journey back in time to the civil rights movement of the 1960s when it presents its production of "The Watsons Go to Birmingham, 1963."

To be presented March 30 – April 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the Cove Fine Arts Center on ENC's main campus in Quincy, the play is based on the award-winning book of the same name that follows the African American Watson family of Flint, Michigan.

Ten-year-old Kenny chronicles the events of the fateful summer of 1963, when the Watsons – concerned that Kenny's teenage brother Byron is getting into trouble – decide to spend the summer with family in Birmingham, Alabama. They pile into the family car and drive south, unaware that they will soon be caught up in one of the pivotal moments of the civil rights era: the bombing of the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church that killed four young black girls.

ENC student Franceska Bruny, who is directing the production, said she was motivated to stage a production of the play after reading the book as a child and being inspired by its portrayal of what she calls a "real black family."

"It does not play into the stereotypes that black people are lazy, or don't work hard, or the dad always leaves," Bruny said. "This is the type of family I grew up in and I felt like I never saw us in the media. It wasn't until I read this book that I realized I was not alone. So I wanted others to see the play."

To tell the story, ENC's production will incorporate images and film clips to tell the story.

"The script is written like a film, so it felt right to do it this way, but also, I just love film and see myself as a filmmaker," said Bruny, who spent a semester in Los Angeles studying film. "I want it to feel like what the characters experience in the south in the 1960s is still happening today, so I am using images and clips from today's media stories as well as those from the past."

The Power Of Social Security

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

March is Women's History Month — a time to focus not just on the past, but on the challenges women continue to face. Nearly 60 percent of the people receiving Social Security benefits are women, and in the 21st century, more women work, pay Social Security taxes, and earn credit toward monthly retirement income than at any other time in our nation's history. Knowing this, you can be the author of your own rich and independent history, with a little preparation.

Social Security has served a vital role in the lives of women for over 80 years. With longer life expectancies than men, women tend to live more years in retirement and have a greater chance of exhausting other sources of income. With the national average life expectancy for women in the United States rising, many women will have decades to enjoy retirement. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, a female born today can expect to live more than 80 years. As a result, experts generally agree that if women want to ensure that their retirement years are comfortable, they need to plan early and wisely.

You can start with a visit to Social Security's Retirement Estimator. It gives you a personalized estimate of your retirement benefits. Plug in different retirement ages and projected earnings to get an idea of how such things might change your future benefit amounts. You can use this valuable tool at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator.

You should also visit Social Security's financial planning website at www.socialsecurity.gov/planners. It provides detailed information about how marriage, widowhood, divorce, self-employment, government service, and other life or career events can affect your Social Security.

Your benefits are based on your earnings, so you should create your personal my Social Security account to verify that your earnings were reported correctly. Your account also can provide estimates of your future retirement, disability, and survivors benefits.

Parent Group Pushes For Choral Music Teacher At Each High School

By TOM GORMAN

A school committee sub panel will be looking into a request from the Quincy Choral Boosters that the district provide a full-time choral music teacher at both North Quincy and Quincy High schools.

Organization member Lisa Johnson told the school committee March 15 that students who want to pursue a post-high school music education are at a disadvantage due to the lack of a full-time choral teacher. She noted that it has been seven years since each high school has had a full-time music teacher.

"Students at the high school level should have access to and benefit from a full-time choral, vocal and general music teacher assigned to each school," she said. "Students who want to earn degrees in choral arts after high school are not prepared to do so currently in the Quincy Public Schools because of the limited access to course materials and performance opportunities that the current structure allows."

Johnson opined that the school system is obligated to provide a robust music curriculum.

"Students and their parents should not have to find ways to get fundamental preparation on their own," she said. "Students need more options and more opportunities related to choral arts education."

Johnson also said that the high schools would benefit from the full-time choral teachers by being available to teach other music electives, direct high school musicals, assist in study hall and after-school programs. Additionally, with the full-time staffers, Johnson said such programs as a cappella, talent shows, chorale festival and ensembles could be offered.

"This is much more aligned with other schools that are comparable to Quincy in size and demographics that are already offering their students," she said.

Johnson thanked the committee for its continued support of funding high school students who audition and participate in a state choral festival. She noted that two Quincy students were accepted to participate in the festival at no cost to them."

According to Johnson, last fall the newly formed boosters surveyed the district's music faculty about the history of the choral arts music program and current needs.

"We found that the reduction in staff at the high school level has resulted in a combined drop of about 20 students participating in high school choir," she said.

Because of the reduction in the music program, Johnson said the choir rooms at both North Quincy and Quincy High are "dark" much of the time.

She noted that when an additional band director was hired, the band program saw an increase in student participation and has become "stronger, more vibrant and exciting."

Johnson opined the same result could be realized with a full-time choral teacher at each high school.

"An increase in choral arts education from added staff would likely result in increased enrollment and retention of students in choral arts," she said.

According to its website, the parent-led boosters was organized last fall to enhance choral arts education in the district. and "to reflect the interest of our students." The organization holds fundraisers to help provide additional resources and programs related to choral arts.

The boosters' website noted that a study showed that students who sing in choirs have better academic success and learn valuable life skills. The group also cited the study found "an alarming trend" of districts throughout the country reducing or eliminating choral arts.

Hearing April 3 On LBC Proposal

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council will hold a public hearing on a developer's plan to build 171 apartments in Quincy Center April 3.

The public hearing on the proposal by LBC Partners of Boston will begin at 6 p.m. that night in the Great Hall of the McIntyre Government Center, 1305 Hancock St.

LBC has proposed building the seven-story building – known as Nova Residences – along the 1500 block of Hancock St., where a several now-vacant single-story commercial buildings stand. The proposal includes 15,000 square feet of ground-floor retail space and 171 apartments on the six floors above, including 36 units on the second floor that could be converted to a hotel if market conditions supported doing so.

The council is being asked to consider a land disposition agreement submitted by Mayor Thomas Koch. Under the LDA, the city would sell a 10,196 square foot portion of the Hancock Lot to LBC. In exchange, the city would receive 5,657 square feet of land from the developer, plus cash. An appraisal for the land in question has yet to be made publically available.

The land acquired from LBC would be used to create an atrium at 1500 Hancock St. connecting the thoroughfare to the Hancock Lot – a new drain line serving a large portion of Quincy Center would be built under that area as well. It would also allow the city to widen the sidewalk in front of the proposed building to 18 feet – 10 feet wider than it currently is – to conform to the Urban Revitalization and Development Plan for Quincy Center.

The developer plans to rent parking spaces for the building in a new municipal garage planned for the Hancock Lot.

The Planning Board must also approve the project. The developers made a preliminary presentation to the board on March 15, and are set to appear again on May 10.

Council Bans Smoking At Adams Green

By SCOTT JACKSON

Smoking will be banned in the new public green space in Quincy Center either through a new ordinance proposed Monday night or enforcement of current regulations that prohibit smoking in city parks.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci introduced an ordinance Monday night that would designate city-owned land around City Hall and the Hancock Adams Green – the public park planned between City Hall and the United First Parish Church – a smoke-free area. The ordinance would allow the Quincy Police Department to issue a $25 fine to anyone caught violating the smoking ban.

"Smoking is bad," Palmucci told his colleagues Monday night.

The ordinance was referred to committee for review. A public hearing is required as part of the process.

In a statement Tuesday, Mayor Thomas Koch said the city has long planned to make the park a smoke-free environment.

"We're on the same page with the council. It's something that's been discussed at the planning level as we move forward with the final phases of the green," Koch said.

"Whether it's a new ordinance, increased enforcement of existing rules and regulations in our parks which already forbid smoking or some combination of the two, it's something we absolutely will be working with the council to make happen."

Palmucci's ordinance states that secondhand smoke is known to cause cancer – the American Cancer society reports secondhand smoke contains more than 7,000 chemicals, including at least 70 known carcinogens that can cause cancer.

Further, the ordinance says publicly maintained outdoor space should be free from secondhand smoke, and smoking should be banned on the Hancock Adams Green to encourage public use and enjoyment of the park.

Memo To Korean War Veterans From Quincy Veterans Services

By GEORGE NICHOLSON
Director
Quincy Veterans Services

If you served between June 25, 1950 and July 27, 1953 and your service was "boots-on-the-ground" in Korea, in the air over Korea or in the waters surrounding Korea (i.e. you were awarded the UN and Korean Service Medals), the Republic of South Korea would like to recognize your contributions by presenting you with the "Korean Ambassador for Peace Medal."

The Korean Consulate General for Boston will come to Quincy to make the presentation if we have 10 or more respondents. If you believe you qualify and would like to be a recipient of this attractive medal, you must contact the Quincy Veterans Services office to complete an application which, along with a copy of your DD214 or Separation paper will be forwarded to the Korean Consulate.

I will compile a list and if we get enough respondents, I will try to arrange for a ceremony at Quincy's Korean War Memorial on a date as close to the anniversary date of the start of the Korean War (June 25th) as possible.

The Quincy Veterans Services number is 617-376-1192 and it is located at 24 High School Ave.

Police Warn Residents About Mail Scam

By Lt. DANIEL MINTON
Quincy Police Dept.

Residents are receiving letters from "Roger," who identifies himself as "a banker with one of the top Private Banks in Switzerland."

In the letter, which has numerous grammatical errors (like Private capitalized above), it states that you, with your name in parenthesizes "William Cunniff" are the next of kin for the "Late Leo Rohner."

As improbable as this appears, it gets worse.

"Roger" then goes on to say the actual next of kin does not exist but only he knows this and since you have the same name, he will be able to get you the $ 9 million. This is fraud!

There are instructions for you to contact him to start the process, which most likely will cost you in upfront fraudulent charges. The charges will be for administrative fees, foreign fees, court costs, etc. and they will keep coming until you either run out of money or learn that this is a scam.

The mass mailings, which are postmarked Oakland, California, are costly but ultimately profitable for the scammer.

Some signs that the letter is fraudulent:

February 19th 2017

[redacted] St
Quincy, MA 2171
United States of America.

Hello William,

My name is Roger, a banker with one of the top Private Banks in Switzerland. I am communicating with you through this letter to discuss a very urgent and pressing matter with regards unclaimed funds in our organization from the proceeds of an unclaimed bequest. The information and request you are about to receive, though unorthodox, is 100% true and verifiable. For security reasons I have asked my friend of mine coming to The United States to mail this on my behalf, he is unaware of the contents of the letter.

As part of annual industry regulatory standards, dormant accounts exceeding a number of years are published, you can view the latest edition at (https://www.dormantaccounts.ch),this edition published a list of 2,600 dormant account holders which has the Late Leo Rohner listed as one of the depositors who happens to be an old customer of ours. Prior to this publication I had been mandated with the responsibility of sourcing for the next of kin of the Late Mr. Rohner and in the course of my investigation I found the names (William Cunniff) listed as his next of kin which coincidentally are your exact names. On further investigation through a private investigator I have discovered that the "William Cunniff" listed as the next of kin is non-existent but only I know this. This information is not documented which is why I am contacting you.

The deposit in question is 8,872,325.65 CHF (Swiss Francs) which is $9 Million USD equivalent and If you co-operate with me I can move the money into an account that is suitable for you to manage for us.

I know this comes across as daunting for you but please trust me on this as I have gambled with choosing you purely because I have no other option. Please note that there is no wrong-doing on your part as I am the sole architect of this project as all I need is for you to be on the receiving end with no risks on your part. By virtue of my position I alone determine who the inheritor is so please have no fears.

For now this is the information I can divulge and if you are willing please call me on my number on +41(44)-586-3677 or send me an email via (swissproject@consultant.com or swissproject2017@gmail.com) and I would provide further information with my full details if you assure me of your willingness to co-operate and bring this to fruition.

Regards,

Roger

- Roger has no last name
- lack of quality paper
- No bank name
- folded 4 times as opposed to three for envelope
- Spelling and grammatical errors
- Swiss to US dollars conversion is incorrect
- Setting up a joint account

BOTTOM LINE: never send money/money order or give personal information to anyone you don't know or trust.

Check with family members, friends, your local police department or an attorney to assist in determining if it is a scam.

Residential Building Proposed At Newport Ave. Site

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Norwood developer has proposed building a seven-story, 100-unit residential building on a Newport Avenue industrial site near the North Quincy MBTA station.

Arista Development's proposal for the new building at 1-13 Newport Ave. went before the Planning Board March 15. There was no vote on the plan that night, and the applicant will be back before the board on April 12.

The developer is seeking a site plan review from the Planning Board, as well as a special permits for a parking waiver and signage. Ed Fleming, Arista's attorney, said the project would also require approval from the Zoning Board of Appeals – a residential use is not allowed by-right on the parcel, which is zoned Industrial B – and the Conservation Commission because it is in a flood zone.

More than two-thirds of the units inside the new building would be either a studio or one-bedroom – 64 one-bedrooms and four studios. The remaining 32 units would have two bedrooms each. The developer's plan calls for 100 parking spaces on site, which would be located in garage space in the first two levels of the building.

Fleming noted the site – on the corner of West Squantum Street and Newport Avenue – is a short distance from the North Quincy MBTA station.

"We see this as a truly transit-oriented development – not within a half-mile of the T, not within three-quarters of a mile from the T, but directly across the street from the MTBA station," he said.

Fleming said the plan for one parking space for each residential unit is based on the Metropolitan Area Planning Council study of redevelopment in Wollaston Center near the MBTA station there, which called for dropping parking requirements in that area to a half space per each unit. Arista has also completed 80-unit residential developments near public transportation in Attleboro and Mansfield, and only half of the parking provided on site at those buildings is being utilized.

North Quincy MBTA Proposal Before Planning Board

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Planning Board has begun its review of a mixed-use development that would bring 610 residential units and 50,000 square feet of retail space to what is now the parking lot of the North Quincy MBTA station on Hancock Street.

The MBTA awarded two companies – Atlantic Development and Bozzuto Development – rights to develop the station's parking lot 11 months ago. The two companies would enter into a 99-year lease with the transit to develop the station site.

The first Planning Board hearing on the proposal was held March 15 – the developers gave an informal presentation earlier this year – and the applicants will be back before the board again on April 12.

The developers' plan calls for an 852-car garage – the same number of spaces currently in the parking lot – that would be located adjacent to the existing head house at the station. A total of 1,600 parking spaces are included in the plan. The current drop-off/pick-up areas off Hancock Street and West Squantum Street would be preserved.

The mixed-use development would wrap around the garage, blocking it from view. Much of the ground-level retail space would be located on the south side of the site, near West Squantum Street, with two smaller retail spaces on either side of the current Hancock Street entrance.

The developers focused on pedestrian and vehicular access to the site, as well as utilities, at the March 15 hearing. D.J. MacKinnon, the president of Atlantic Development, said the applicants would present the proposal "in pieces" over the course of several meetings.

"We are looking to transform what is today a parking lot into a vibrant mixed-use community, provide new convenient retail to serve the community along with promoting safe paths to and from the station with the pedestrian improvements along with a safe, covered and well-lit parking garage," MacKinnon said.

"This is going to be the entrance to the city of Quincy, and what you see right there right now when you look at it isn't what we want there, said Bob Harnais, the attorney representing the applicants. "This is the direction the city should be going in."

Josh Swerling, a civil engineer, said the developers want to improve pedestrian access from Hancock Street by widening sidewalks.

"We're maintaining and improving the pedestrian connectivity coming in off the existing driveway on Hancock Street," he said. "I was out there earlier today and saw a poor guy walking through a four-foot wide sidewalk with snowdrifts on either side. We're going to be building wider sidewalks and making it a lot more inviting for folks to enter the T facility from that location."

As part of the project, the developers plan to open a now-closed driveway on the northern side of the station on Sagamore Street.

"That's going to be opened up and allow a lot better connectivity to Squantum and Marina Bay and we envision that will become a nice aspect of the development," Swerling said.

The project would also improve drainage on site, Swerling said. Presently, 6.5 acres of the 7-acre site are paved and all the stormwater that falls on the lot empties in city drainpipes and into the Neponset River untreated. As a result of the proposal, only three acres of land would remain paved and all runoff would be treated before being released into drain lines.

The drain lines under the parking lot would be replaced by the developers, according to Swerling, along with tide gates on the drain lines.

MacKinnon said Quincy would receive $1.6 million annually in property taxes, plus $2 million in one-time permitting fees and a con-

GETTING TO THE ROOT OF LEG PAIN

In many cases, the cause of leg pain and discomfort is glaringly obvious, such as when there is an injury from a fall or accident. Other times, overuse injuries occur as a result of repetitive motion during exercise, which causes shin splints or stress fractures. There is also joint pain, which is most likely a symptom of arthritis. However, when leg pain and discomfort stem from other causes, it takes a bit more investigation to get to the root of the problem. In some cases, careful examination by the chiropractor reveals that leg pain may be due to "lumbar spinal stenosis," which is narrowing of the spinal canal that can exert pressure on the nerve roots that serve the legs.

At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we recognize that your choice of physician is driven both by the doctor's competency and personality. With chiropractic problems, you need a chiropractor who is experienced, understanding and supportive. To schedule an appointment for chiropractic care, please call 617-472-4220. One of the many techniques we use is called Koren Specific Technique or KST. This technique is very gentle, yet very powerful. Quite often improvement is noticed after the first few adjustments. We are located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Leg pain caused by lumbar spinal stenosis is often triggered by activity, but can be relieved by sitting down or leaning forward.

Friends Of Blue Hills Hikes Start April 11

The Friends of the Blue Hills will host its first Peek-a-Blue Hike of the year Tuesday, April 11.

The free, one-hour guided hikes created for babies and toddlers are offered every other Tuesday morning at 11 a.m. at Houghton's Pond, 840 Hillside St., in Milton. Free snacks and drinks are provided.

Although the meeting place is always the same, the hike route varies. Parents, grandparents, and child care givers are all welcome, and the hikes are stroller friendly.

There will be special activities at the kick off, including storytelling, songs and a scavenger hunt with prizes for all children at the end.

Peek-a-Blue Hikes are made possible by a grant from the Milton Junior Woman's Club, and L.L. Bean at Legacy Place in Dedham provides an experienced hiker to co-lead the hikes.

The hikes will continue through December, weather permitting.

For more information and the dates of the 2017 Peek-a-Blue Hikes, visit www.FriendsoftheBlueHills.org/peekablue.

Matching Hardwood Floors, Adding A Second Bathroom

I'm planning a kitchen remodel. The kitchen currently has a red oak hardwood floor while the living room floor is a darker walnut colored hardwood. There are also three steps up to reach the kitchen. Do I need to have the same flooring in the kitchen as the adjoining living room? Deidre

BARBARA GRACEFFA

For appearance sake, having the same flooring throughout your home always works. However, the kitchen floor is typically the exception as you might choose vinyl or tile, for example. In your case, if you want to keep the hardwood floor in the kitchen, I would suggest stripping it down and re-staining it the same dark walnut color as your main living space. P.S. The stairs should match the living room floor.

I live in an old colonial with only one bathroom upstairs. I'd like to add a powder room on the first floor. My only options are stealing some space from a hallway next to the kitchen or living room. Will I get a return on my investment and where should I locate it? Nancy

Ah, the convenience of an added bath! There's nothing like it. Honestly, neither location is ideal but definitely the living space trumps a location nearer the kitchen.

I checked a few sources and you can expect around a 50 percent ROI for a full bath, but I would estimate it might be more for adding a two-piece bath to compliment your one-and-only current bath. However, according to a 2015 National Association of Realtors report, a new bathroom addition gives you "a perfect Joy Score of 10 out of 10." And data from the National Association of Home Builders reveals that you will see a 10 percent increase in your home's value for a half bath addition (20 percent for a second full bath) and buyers prefer homes with the same numbers of baths as bedrooms.

O'Donnell: Weather Factor In Downturn In Norfolk County Real Estate Activity

A patch of bad weather and the loss of one critical business day, contributed to the downturn in the Norfolk County real estate and lending markets for the month of February 2017, according to Register of Deeds William O'Donnell.

"The inclement weather in the second week of February and the loss of one business day, with February 2016 being a leap year, were primary factors in the reduction of real estate activity," O'Donnell said. "We also noticed a reduced number of high-end sales which contributed to the decline in total volume and average sales price."

O'Donnell said the month of February "saw a two percent reduction in the number of deeds recorded year over year from 1,019 to 1,042. More striking was the total volume of residential and commercial sales coming in at $338 million, a 35 percent reduction from February 2016. Also, the average sales price, again both residential and commercial, fell 34 percent to $594,915. Overall, the number of land documents recorded at the Registry during February was 9,905, a seven percent reduction from the previous year."

The lending market also saw declines during February 2017. A total of 1,691 mortgages were recorded, a 12 percent reduction from the previous year. The total amount of mortgage borrowing also fell 48 percent to $700 million; the decline was significantly influenced by a $479 million mortgage recorded in February 2016.

Norfolk County homeowners continued to avail themselves of the benefits of the Homestead Act. A total of 674 Homesteads were recorded in February, a two percent increase year over year.

"The Homestead law provides limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000. I urge Norfolk County residents to consider this consumer protection tool," noted

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, March 12, at approximately 9:30 p.m., Officers Veronica Acevedo and Paul Murphy were dispatched to 40 Nelson St. for a report of an overdose.

Upon arrival, a male met the officers at the door and said his friend was unresponsive and slouched inside the bathroom. As Officer Acevedo entered the apartment and went through the kitchen, she observed blood on the kitchen floor. In the bathroom, she found a female face down in the toilet, unconscious and unresponsive, with agonal breathing. There was blood on top of the bathroom sink and vomit around the toilet area.

The officers grabbed a hold of the female's arms and brought her out of the bathroom and onto the kitchen floor. Officer Acevedo performed a chest sternum rub but there was no movement or response from the female. The officers noted she also had a laceration on the left side of her eyebrow as they awaited Brewster Ambulance.

Upon arrival, the EMTs administered one Narcan with no success. The Quincy Fire Department also arrived and they assisted Brewster Ambulance, but the female continued to be unresponsive. A search of the bathroom revealed one yellow pill on the floor.

During this time, Officer Murphy interviewed the male who led the officers to the female. He said she had an argument with her boyfriend, who left the apartment prior to the Officers arrival because he had an outstanding warrant. Officer Murphy noticed the male was bleeding from his fingers so he was treated by the EMTs.

Officer Murphy scanned the apartment and noticed blood in the bedroom as well as pills on the floor near the bed, matching the one pill that was found in the bathroom floor. At that time, Officer Murphy requested Sergeant Lencki to respond to the scene. Once the EMTs moved the female to the ambulance, Officer Acevedo further questioned the male, who said that around 8:30 p.m., he was in the living room when he heard the argument escalate so he went to their bedroom to see if he could intervene.

As he entered, he witnessed the boyfriend "head butt" the girlfriend in the forehead area which led to a wrestling match. He stated he tried to separate them but couldn't so he went into the bathroom. When he came out, he saw the boyfriend in the kitchen with a knife in his hand, swinging it around. He then saw the girlfriend grab a knife to defend herself. He watched as the boyfriend cut his girlfriend with the knife and then as the girlfriend retaliated by cutting her boyfriend on his left elbow.

The incident quickly calmed and then the boyfriend bandaged his elbow. They both went back into the bedroom and closed the door, so the male returned back to the living room.

The situation grew tense soon after when the boyfriend wanted to leave but the girlfriend got "very emotional." She then yelled out, "F@#$ this" and she went to the bathroom followed by her boyfriend. The male went to the bathroom to intervene again and saw the boyfriend sticking his fingers into his girlfriend's throat to assist her in making her vomit as she was becoming unresponsive after she ingested some pills.

Due to lack of response from the girlfriend, the boyfriend elected to leave the apartment. The male believed that the boyfriend threw the knife into the bedroom closet, called the police for his girlfriend's overdose and left the apartment. Officer Acevedo requested Communication put out a BOLO to the other officers that the boyfriend was wanted for Assault and Battery with a Dangerous weapon. In addition, it was confirmed that there was an arrest warrant from South Boston District Court for him, which explained why he didn't want to stay around after calling the police.

Meanwhile, Officer Murphy located a bloody kitchen knife on the kitchen counter. He also noted that the knife holder located on the kitchen counter had two knife slots that were empty. When asked about the bloody knife, the male said that knife was the one used by the girlfriend. The knife that the male said was in the bedroom closet was not found. Officer Murphy radioed to the searching officers that there was a possibility that the boyfriend still had a knife in his possession.

Brewster Ambulance transported the girlfriend to Quincy Medical Center. Sergeant Lencki had Officer Acevedo go to Quincy Medical Center and get a status check on the girlfriend. The officer spoke with doctors who stated the girlfriend was in critical condition, not breathing on her own and unresponsive after they administered two Narcan doses. Officers Paccioretti and Tait soon after located the boyfriend by Scotch Pond Place and took him into custody. A search of the boyfriend uncovered a folded box cutter in his possession that was clean. The second knife matching the empty slot from the knife holder was never recovered.

The 28-year-old Quincy resident was charged with assault & battery w/a dangerous weapon (ABDW) to wit a knife, domestic assault and battery of a household member and the outstanding warrant. The female victim was stabilized at the hospital.

Nice Work!

NICE WORK BY CVS: I happened to be in CVS Southern Artery last week when I saw the Manager, Moss Rodrigues, speaking with a customer who spoke broken English.

The Manager was attempting to convince the customer not to send $1000.00 by MoneyGram to a Doctor in Kenya. I identified myself as a Quincy Police Officer and listened in. According to the customer, his friend who works on a cruise ship is in a hospital in Kenya with serious injuries and may die. He received notification via Facebook from a Doctor in Kenya that he was to send money immediately to save his friend. The customer said that he already sent payments of $200, $300 and $600 to this Doctor. The Manager was trying to convey that this was a scam but the customer, who appeared upset, did not want to accept this and wanted to make the payment. I asked the customer if he heard from his friend and he said that he hadn't in over a month and has known her for about five years. I told the customer that he needs to ask this so called Doctor what hospital his friend is in and then call the hospital to confirm this. I also told him that he needs to research the hospital and the telephone number, not to take the Scammers word. The customer began to calm down and listen to reason. I told him that Nigeria is well known for its frequency of scamming Americans. As the customer walked away, I gave him my business card and offered to assist him further. I then thanked Mr. Rodrigues for intervening on behalf of the customer. He said that CVS provides training so that employees can identify possible scams and then proactively attempt to explain to the potential victim that wiring money to police stations, courts, hospitals, the Internal Revenue Service, National Grid, etc. is most likely a scam.

Mr. Rodrigues then told me of another incident where an Asian gentleman, not too familiar with scams, came in looking to pay $400 to National Grid because he received a telephone call stating that his electricity was about to be shut off for failure to make payment. The Manager examined the gentleman's bill and saw that he didn't owe any money. He informed the gentleman that he should call National Grid directly, using the telephone number on the bill. He was able to protect this person from being scammed multiple times, since this particular scam will reoccur once it is successful for the scammer. Thanks to CVS for looking out for the citizens of Quincy!

whether you are the place or not," she said.

The scouting crew came back several times and took additional pictures of the inside and aisles. A few weeks later, the couple received word that Hollywood was coming.

The day before shooting, the crew came by to begin preparing the store. The following morning, the entire cast and crew arrived en masse to begin their work.

Angie Phillips said the majority of the crew was local.

"Five or six people flew in from Hollywood," she said. "The rest were local individuals that they used for the rest of the massive crew."

All the filming was done inside the main store. The downstairs area was turned into a cafeteria where breakfast and lunch were served by a caterer.

"The producers and bigwigs sat a table that had a tablecloth," said Angie Phillips. "They didn't spare any expense."

The couple said the cast and crew were all very hospitable.

"They were all very nice people," said Nick Phillips.

The couple said Cena had a stand-in so the crew could set up camera and light angles.

"He looked exactly like John Cena," Angie Phillips said. "The muscles and everything."

The crew used storyboards – frames of sketches – that detailed scenes in accordance with the script. Scores of Hefty trash bags boxes were used as props. The boxes were left behind and given away.

This isn't the first time Hollywood came calling at

Tom Galvin Honored As Irishman Of The Year

City Historian, Activist

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy's official historian was recently named the city's Irishman of the Year in recognition of his many contributions to the local community.

Tom Galvin received the award during the 21st annual St. Patrick's Day Luncheon on March 17 at the Quincy Lodge of Elks. Mayor Thomas Koch presented the award to Galvin, and cited him for his involvement in the community, including not only his role as city historian but also the work he does as chairman of the Board of Cemetery Managers and his previous involvement with the former Quincy Partnership.

"Tom Galvin served for many years as vice president of Boston Gear Works. He is one of the founders of the Quincy Partnership, which a number of years ago used to be one of the co-sponsors of this event. He's our city historian. He serves on the Cemetery Board of Managers, currently as our chair. He is constantly involved and never says no. He is a real true keeper of Quincy history," Koch told the crowd of more than 200 attendees.

"He is constantly going out into the community to groups to give their history, whether it's Wollaston Beach or the granite industry. He gives tours at the cemetery, Mount Wollaston in particular, and speaks about most of the people who are buried in there – certainly the prominent ones, because there are more than 50,000 there."

Patrick McDermott, the Norfolk County register of probate and a longtime friend of the Galvin family, presented a plaque to the historian.

"This is a particularly great honor to do this presentation for Mr. Galvin. The Galvin family is a special family for me in my life," McDermott said. "Mr. Galvin served as a beacon of shining light for me as a local, young, elected official. He welcomed me into the Rotary Club a couple years ago. I couldn't be more honored to present you with this award."

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti said Galvin has worked to remind all Quincy residents they come from such a historic city.

"I met this gentleman many, many years ago. I remember the first time I actually saw you in person thinking this is what's great about Quincy. We all have so much pride in the city historically – not just the birthplace of two presidents, but the industries and the diversity over many, many decades," Bellotti said.

"You kept us so connected as a family, a community and a historical place. No one has done more, with the work he has done, to remind us all we come from a great city and we're going to go to greater places."

Galvin spoke about the legacy of two Irish immigrants – his grandfather William Galvin, who served in the U.S. Army during the Spanish-American War, and Michael Murphy, the grandfather of his wife, Judy. Their children settled in Quincy, and Galvin's five granddaughters are the sixth generation of his family to live in the city.

"I always like to talk about Quincy history, but I really prefer to talk about my granddaughters," he said.

Galvin introduced his granddaughters, four of whom were present for the luncheon.

Katelyn Galvin, the daughter of his son Tom, is a graduate of MCPHS and is a registered pharmacist who works for a leading-edge pharmacy company in New Hampshire.

Galvin's son Scott has three daughters – Jessica, Victoria and Julia Galvin. Jessica is a graduate of St. Anselm's College who is finishing post-graduate work to become a physician's assistant. Victoria – named after Galvin's great-grandmother – is senior at Sacred Heart University who is pursuing a doctorate in physical therapy. Julia is a senior at Archbishop Williams High School and was unable to attend the luncheon.

Shannon Galvin is the daughter of Galvin's son Sean. She graduated from Providence College with honors before heading to Boston College Law School. She was just accepted into BC's MBA program.

"I'm sure those Irish immigrants would be very, very proud to look down at their legacy," Galvin said. "Thank you, everybody. God bless America and God bless Quincy."

Pols Trade Jokes At St. Patrick's Day Luncheon

Proceeds Benefit Quincy Parks Conservancy

By SCOTT JACKSON

The corned beef and cabbage at Quincy's annual St. Patrick's Day Luncheon were boiled, but the true main course that afternoon was the roast.

More than 200 people attended the March 17 event at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, a lighthearted affair where Quincy's politicians came together to trade punchlines. Proceeds from the event, now in its 21st year, benefit the Quincy Parks Conservancy.

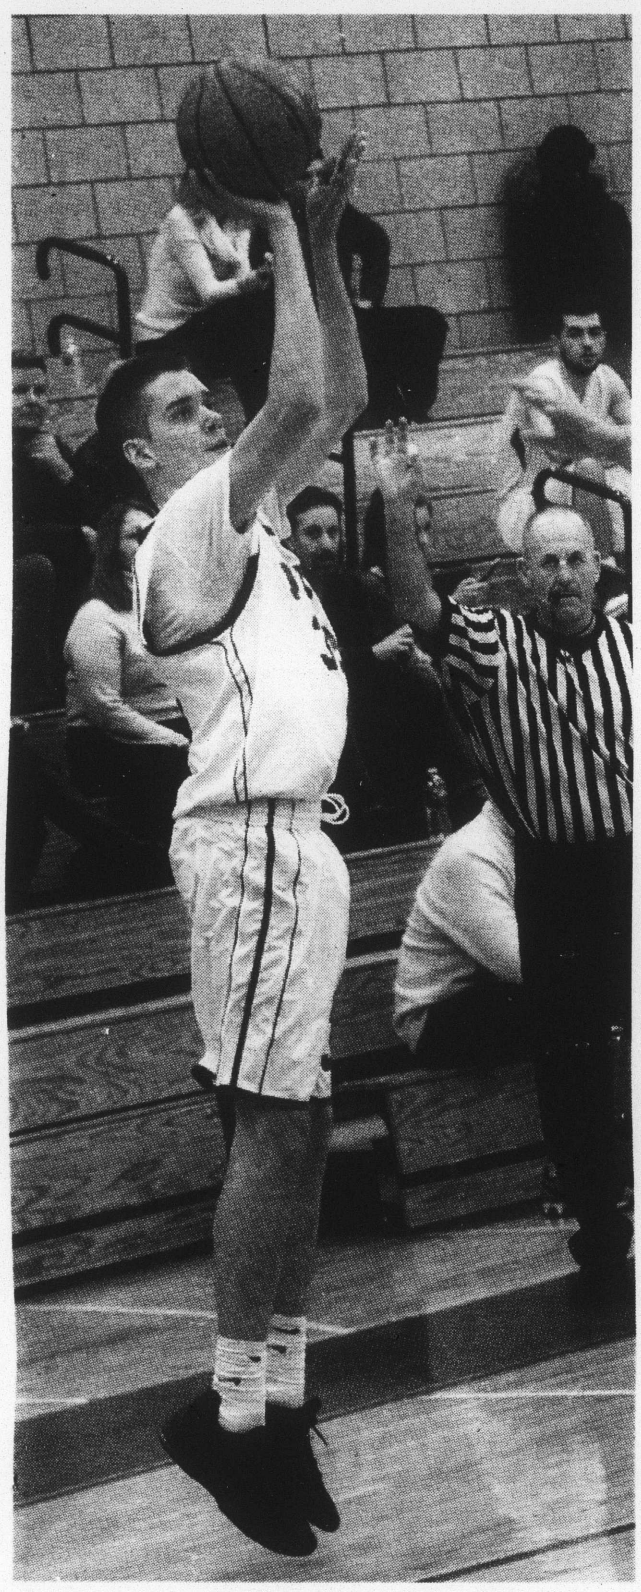
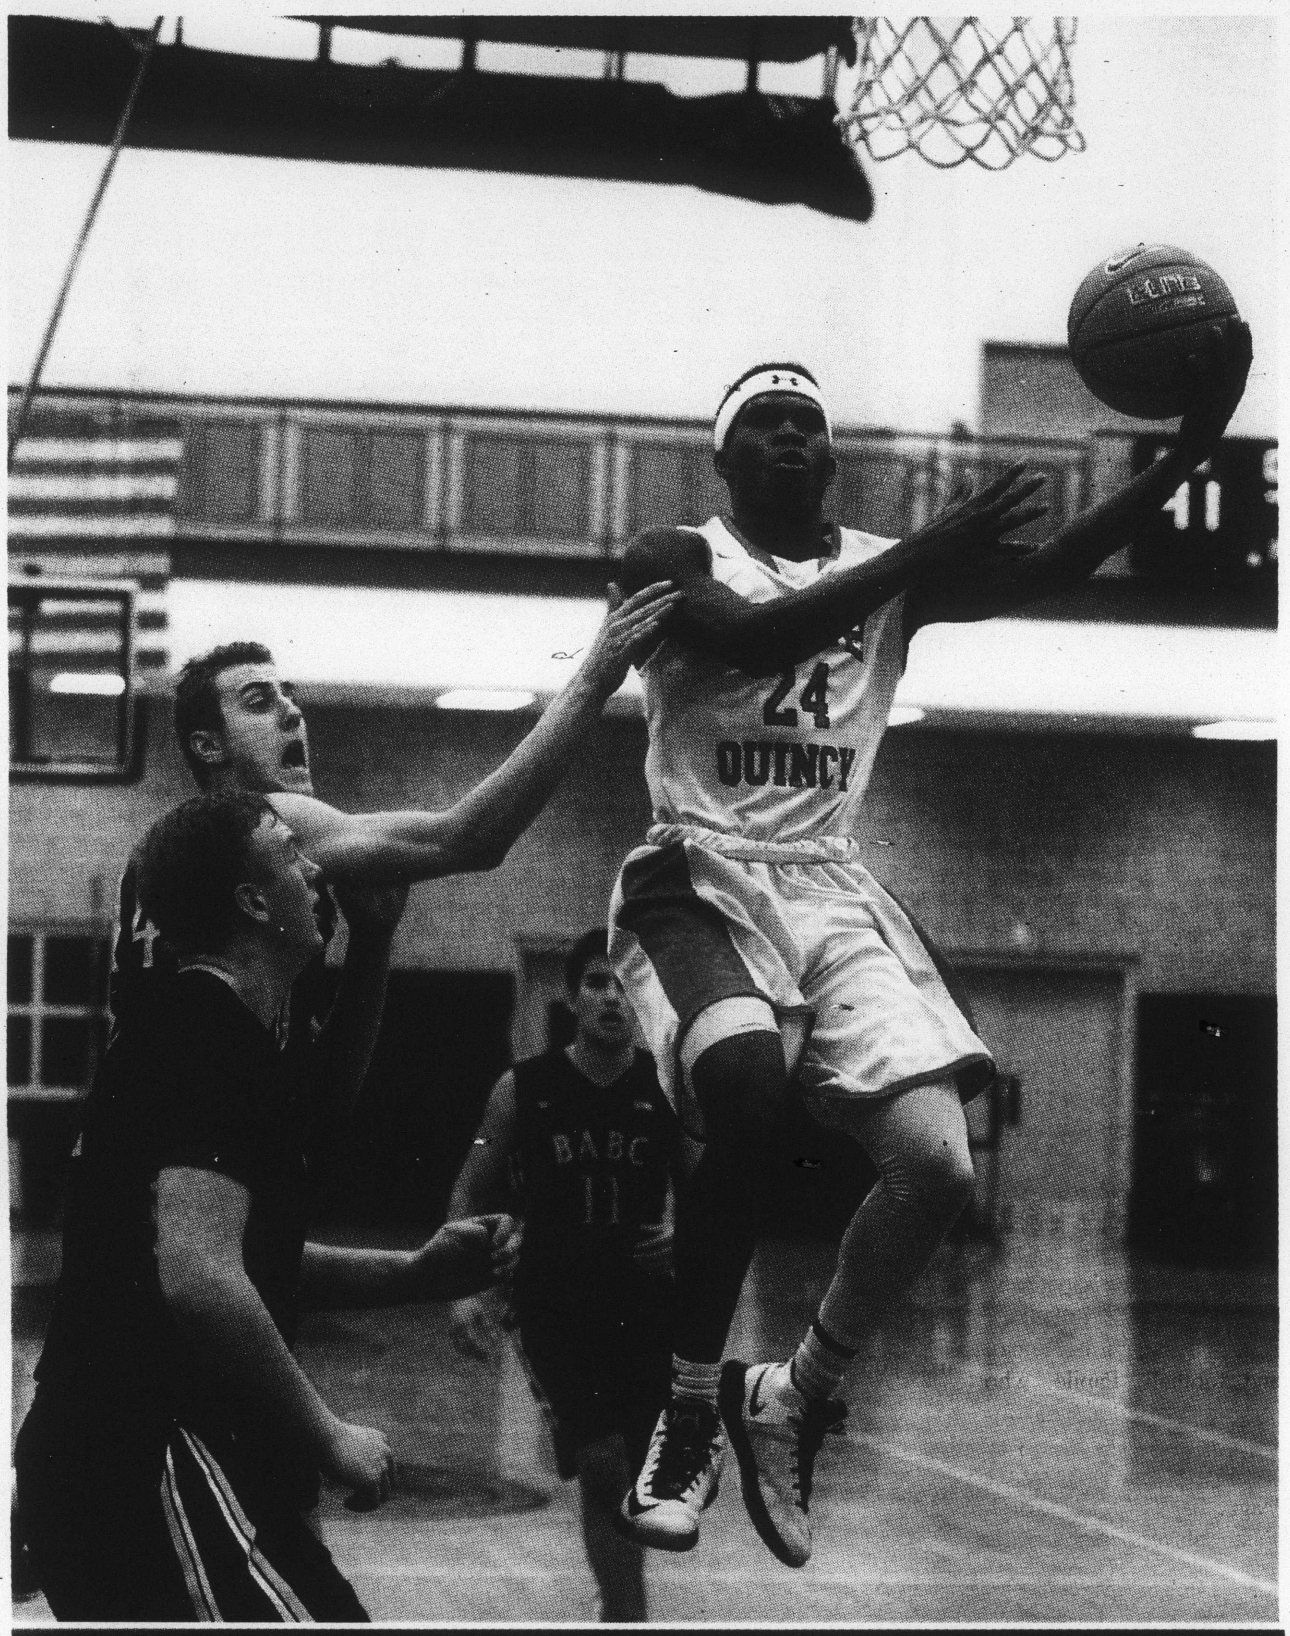
Local Hoopsters Compete In BABC Tournament





THE ANNUAL FITZY-NOLAN games showcased players from Boston Athletic Basketball Club competing against a select group of high school hoopsters including (clockwise from top) Quincy High School's Will Zarges, North Quincy's Jean Louis, Jr. and Quincy's Ugo Kamalu.

Will Zarges, Ugo Kamalu Jean Louis, Jr. Suit Up In Fitzy-Nolan Games

By JOE REARDON

Basketball doesn't come in spurts for North Quincy's Jean Louis Jr.

The talented junior plays football in the fall, but the rest of the year he works on improving his game on the court. And playing on the South Shore sophomore/junior team in the Boston Amateur Basketball Club against some of the best talent in the state can only make Louis Jr. better in the long run.

Louis Jr.'s talents were on full display last Thursday night when the Select Tour came to Quincy High. Playing against the BABC Select Senior squad, Louis Jr. had a productive night with 12 points, four rebounds and a steal. The soft-spoken hooper is focused on improving various areas of his game in preparation for the next year's high school season, particularly slowing his game down and not being overly aggressive.

"I really like the competitiveness," Lous Jr., said of the league. "I've been playing, going to the Y and working out. I play year round. I'm always working on my game. I work on my angles and I work on my physicality. This is helping me big time."

Sophomore Will Zarges finished up a stellar sophomore season for Quincy High with a trip to the tournament and a win over Brookline. Like BABC teammate Louis Jr., Zarges knows he can improve all aspects of his game and the intensity of the league, along with playing in the Patriot League is a big plus.

"It's a lot more competitive, but the Patriot League is a great league," he said. "We had two teams go to the semifinals and finals. I'm working on driving and going to the basket. I was shooting pretty well this season, but I need to work on that move to the basket and being able to finish. You work on everything because you can always improve."

Quincy High's Ugo Kamalu played on the senior team and had a solid night with 15 points and three rebounds. Kamalu is in the second year of the league and is focused on improving his play at the guard position, where he hopes to play in the future.

"I'm working on my handling to transition to a guard in my college years," said Kamalu. "Last year I played with the BABC and played with all these guys. It's a lot of fun."

The prestigious BABC league was founded by North Quincy native and legendary scout and coach Leo Papile. A North Quincy Hall of Famer in basketball and football, Papile, who also worked as a scout for the Boston Celtics, was looking to put together a league in 1977 for elite high school players in the Boston area. Since then, the league has become one of the best in the world and has produced 235 NCAA scholarship players and 19 all-time NBA players.

Papile likened the intensity of play in last Thursday night's Fitzy-Nolan Games to a postseason contest and was impressed with the three city players and the rest of the South Shore squad.

"That didn't resemble an all star game at all," Papile said. "That was a hard-fought tournament game. They're scholarship players. Absolutely. I see six scholarship players in D1 and D2 there. They're terrific. Look at the state tournament at how well the teams do. This area (South Shore) is terrific."

Knobby Nolan, who coached Papile at North Quincy, was ahead of his time as a basketball visionary, as was Paul Fitzpatrick. They ran basketball camps in the summer back in the 1960s during a time when camps were hard to come by.

"They were good friends," said Papile. "They did a lot of community work in terms of the offseason. They both had camps in the '60s when nobody had camps. Going to a camp was like going to heaven. The fact that those camps were available in the '60s we'd go away for a week. It was like dying and going to heaven. Back then our basketball was what playground you played for."

The BABC has become a family affair of sorts in the coaching ranks and certainly has a Quincy flavor to it. Papile's daughter, Britney, coaches the sophomore squad and captured a national title in 2014. The fresh-faced 29-year-old played three seasons at North Quincy before transferring to a private school after her junior year in 2005. She always thought of herself as a Red Raider and has nothing but fond memories of playing for North Quincy.

"It was great (playing at North Quincy)," said Britney. "There was a real Quincy atmosphere. A lot of folks know my dad so it was real comfortable being in this area. Everywhere you go there's somebody supporting you. It feels like a real big town, but with a small town personality - just warm. I have some of the best memories."

Britney is soaking in all the dynamics surrounding a team. And while the goal this season is capturing another national title, she sees herself in a different capacity down the line. Her ultimate goal is working for a professional team in personnel or operations.

"It's fantastic," said Britney. "I've been on this bench a really long time and now I get to lead my own team. We're going after the 10th grade national championship as we've done once before. My dad is a great mentor. He has a great resume and fantastic stories to tell. For a young person like myself it's a really unique opportunity. I'm able to learn it in a way that's very special."

Britney is in a unique position as a female coaching a male team, but the squad respects her knowledge of the game and background as a player. She grew up playing basketball with males and is comfortable around them. Britney credits them for much of her toughness when she was a player.

"That's how you get good," she said. "I think every Div. 1, 2 or 3 player would say they played with a lot of boys and her brother back in the day. That's what helped me get tough. To be a good all-around girls player you have to be comfortable playing with the guys."

Britney's background speaks for itself and the players respect her knowledge of the game.

"With these young men in this program, the program has such a great history and when they put the uniform on they have a high expectation," she said. "In the beginning they might see me as a little sister because I look like I'm 16, but once they realize I know what I'm talking about it really doesn't matter what my appearance is. Once they get that connection and all get on the same page, it's all about getting that W."

With the season underway, Britney is concentrating on getting the team to gel and build a sense of chemistry among the players. She doesn't expect it to take long and she stresses that every game is a learning experience and a building block toward the ultimate goal of competing for a national title.

"This was our second official game so we're just trying to build chemistry, support and being positive," said Britney. "I keep telling them every game is a classroom experience. We haven't gotten to the real show yet. Everybody's getting to know one another. Most of the kids are coming off real successful high school seasons. That's why you don't see everyone on the bench. Some of the guys are still in their championship season. With that success in the past we're trying to bring that to our future."

Ruggiero has amassed 583 career victories including more than 100 games at four different schools: Medfield, Bridgewater State College, Foxboro High School and Cohasset High where he currently coaches. The award was presented March 12th at a luncheon at Alba Restaurant in Quincy Center.

Quincy-Based U.S. A-Team Makes Cover Of Wooden Boat

The boat raced at The World Hydroplane Championship in Nottingham, England and owned by Squantum's Billy Allen, captain of the Quincy-based U.S. A-Team, recently graced the cover of Wooden Boat Magazine. This magazine, which boasts over 70,000 subscribers nationwide, is the premiere publication for handmade wooden boat enthusiasts.

The team will hold its annual fundraiser at The Nickerson Post in Squantum on Friday March 31st from 6-10 p.m. There will be music, barbeque and a video presentation of the team's 2016 Word Championship race last summer in Tallinn Estonia.

Arista is no stranger to North Quincy, Fleming said. The company oversaw the construction of the Walgreens at 324 Hancock St. and has received permission to build a TD Bank across the street from the pharmacy.

Steve Devine, a principal with KPF Architects, said units in the H-shaped building would range in size between 470 to 490 square feet for studios, 720 to 872 square feet for one-bedrooms, and 921 to 988 square feet for two-bedrooms.

Units inside the building will have Juliet balconies, essentially a set of doors that open up to a railing placed immediately outside the unit, Devine said.

The first floor of the building above the two parking levels will include a fitness center and meeting space for residents, Devine said. A deck is planned for part of the building's roof, and there would be courtyard space on the exterior of the structure.

Members of the Planning Board gave a warm reception to the proposal.

"It's good to see this area being developed," Maureen Glynn said. "It's a long time coming."

Board vice chairman Coleman Barry said he has long wanted the present building on site – currently used for industrial paint facility – to be razed.

"Having grown up in Montclair, I've been waiting for this building to be torn down my entire life," he said.

Barry asked the applicant to provide renderings showing of the proposed building from several different viewpoints, including what drivers would see when they enter Quincy via the Neponset Bridge, during a future meeting.

Residents had the chance to speak during the Planning Board's meeting.

John Rodophele said the plan should not go forward because the building would be located in a flood zone.

"Montclair has taken a tremendous hit on flooding. This is in a flood zone," he said. "We shouldn't be developing in a flood zone. We shouldn't be giving them any special permits."

Kevin Worley credited Arista for working with the city as it reconstructed the intersection of Hancock and Squantum Streets. He said Arista's residential proposal was a great project.

"I think it's a great plan," Worley said. "I believe when we can have development that comes into an area of the city – especially the north end of the city, where everything is being focused on Quincy Center and the redevelopment efforts going on down there – when you have an individual or company that wants to come to town and work with the city…and beautify the north end of the city, I think that's a great project."

North Quincy T Proposal Before Planning Board

tribution to the affordable housing trust. Lease payments to the MBTA over the life of the 99-year lease will total more than $200 million, in addition to $3.5 million to the state annually in income, sales and other taxes.

He said the project would create 150 permanent jobs and 1,100 construction jobs.

The retail component of the project would serve the surrounding area, MacKinnon said, and the developers have heard from area residents who have expressed a preference for a specialty grocery store or a restaurant.

"We're really trying to do the best we can to serve the neighborhood," he said.

Some of the parking on site would be reserved for customers of the retail establishments on site. Those parking spaces could be used free of charge, MacKinnon said, and the retail tenants would be responsible for monitoring those spaces to ensure no commuters were using them.

One resident – Bill Zamzow – spoke during the public hearing portion of the March 15 meeting. He said the Planning Board should be careful when considering the number of parking spaces on site, and how many of them would be shared between commuters and residents living on the property.

"Watch the parking," he said.

Council Approves $147,000 For Sea Wall Design, Permitting

wall along Quincy Bay.

Laforest said the design, engineering and permitting of the repairs could take up to 20 months to complete – the project requires numerous local, state and federal permits before work can begin. She plans to host a community meeting on the project sometime in the next month.

"I think these are funds very well spent in protecting thousands of homes in our coastal neighborhoods," Laforest said. "This is a very important project."

Deirdre Hall, an attorney for the Department of Public Works, said some sections of the sea wall set to be replaced have "substantial damage." That damage includes voids in revetments, which can cause problems with wave action; cracking in pre-cast concrete portions of the sea wall; washout behind cast-in-place portions of the sea wall that threatens stability; and granite blocks that are starting to fail because they were placed on unsuitable soils.

"The sea wall is pretty important in the sense that it protects not only the land but also a lot of critical infrastructure – we have sewer, water and gas utilities immediately adjacent to the sea wall," Hall said. "Also, [Sea Street] is an emergency artery for that part of town."

Councillor Joseph Finn, who chairs the body's public works committee, welcomed the appropriation because it allows the city to receive triple the funds it will spend for the design, engineering and permitting work.

"This is leveraging close to half a million dollars in resources," he said.

Auditor Susan O'Connor said the city had nearly $2 million available in the hotel tax account that could be spent on open space projects, which includes sea wall repairs. The city expects to receive up to $600,000 more in that account in tax receipts for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30.

New Push For Affordable Housing

ing on the councillors' proposal will be held on April 18 at 7:25 p.m. in the Great Hall of the McIntyre Government Center.

Quincy's Inclusionary Zoning Ordinance currently applies to all residential projects in the city that require a special permit, variance or site plan review from any board or commission and include 10 or more residential units. Under the zoning code, 10 percent of units in applicable projects must be made affordable – targeted at residents who make less than 80 percent of the median income for the area. Developers can also opt to make a payment into the affordable housing trust fund in lieu of building on site units.

Palmucci and Finn both said the affordable housing ordinance was amended to exclude downtown developments when the city was negotiating with previous master developer StreetWorks because the company wanted flexibility. Under its deal with the city, StreetWorks agreed to pay into the affordable housing trust fund more than would be required for similar developments elsewhere in the city, the councillors stated.

"This is not so much an amendment as it is a restoration – it is a restoration going back to the way it was," Finn said.

Four developments – West of Chestnut, Cliveden Place, Chestnut Place and Nova Residences – have been constructed or are in the pipeline for Quincy Center. Palmucci noted that none of the developers have been required to provide affordable housing or pay into the trust fund, despite it being listed as goal in the development plan for the downtown.

"Enough is enough in terms of ignoring affordable housing – workforce housing – downtown," Palmucci said. "That's what this ordinance seeks to change, just to create a level playing field for the downtown area – the same as it is on the streets of South and West Quincy and Ward 2 and Ward 1. Wherever it is, you have to follow this rule. We shouldn't be exempting the downtown."

Palmucci said he is concerned the middle class is being squeezed out of Quincy, and it would make sense to provide affordable housing in the downtown because of its proximity to the MBTA.

"If you're going to build it somewhere across the city is makes the most sense to be in our urban hub with access to public transportation," he said.

"Again, when we're talking about affordable housing we're talking about workforce housing as well. This is housing for folks like teachers, firefighters and policemen. This is – based on income levels – housing for the middle class, and I think we're at risk of not having enough of that in the city of Quincy, which to me is a problem."

"Look at the newspaper any day of the week and you see something in there that speaks to the loss of the middle class," Palmucci added, "whether it's the affordability of housing, whether it's wages not keeping up with inflation, or whether it's jobs and the economy.

"There is always something in the newspaper every single day about, quite frankly, the extinction of the middle class and I think we as politicians have to do our part to make sure that our city maintains what we know it to be in terms of its neighborhood character and the character of our city. We've always been a blue-collar city."

Finn said the city could be at risk of falling short of the thresholds set forth in Chapter 40B of Massachusetts law, which governs affordable housing in the state. In communities not in compliance with Chapter 40B, developers can propose projects that would be exempt from certain local zoning regulations.

"The state's affordable housing statute – 40B – is a very delicate balance and if we're talking about significant numbers of new residential rentals or properties that exist within the city of Quincy, that balance is affected in such a way that frees up developers to come in and do 40B projects, which gives them incredible control and has incredible impact on our community," Finn said.

"That balance with 40B is absolutely critical."

Additionally, Finn said the current exemption applies to all developers in Quincy Center regardless of whether they work with the city in its effort to revitalize the area. He added that the Affordable Housing Trust Committee works with developers in determining how they comply with the ordinance.

"There has always been a level of flexibility that understands that some of these things need to be negotiated and worked through," Finn said.

Palmucci said he is looking forward to next month's public hearing on the proposal, and would like feedback from people on both sides of the issue. He particularly wants to hear from developers either building or planning to do so in Quincy Center.

"I especially hope that developers come and speak," Palmucci said. "I would like to hear the reasons perhaps why we shouldn't do this…I think a good public hearing is when both sides weigh in and you get to learn something about perhaps the view that you don't yourself hold and you're able to understand a bit some of the other arguments."

Palmucci had proposed removing the exemption for downtown developers in 2015. That proposal died in committee when the council's session expired at the end of that year.

Mayor Thomas Koch, in a statement Tuesday, said he was happy to discuss the issue with the council moving forward.

"The city is making historic progress providing workforce housing throughout the city, and we're happy to continue that discussion with the council going forward," the statement said.

Quincy Development Staff Attend National Conference

Sean Glennon, Community Development director, and Melissa Pond, senior planner, from the city's Department of Planning and Community Development attended the Winter meeting of the National Community Development Association (NCDA), held recently in Washington, D.C.

During the conference, Glennon, who serves on the board of directors of NCDA, chaired a committee meeting on technology; moderated two sessions on environmental review and annual reporting; and sat on a panel regarding effective communication.

Pond, who sits on NCDA's technology committee and serves as NCDA's national social media coordinator, developed a social media guide for participants to use during and after the conference, and also produced a national database of Congressional social media accounts for reference. Pond also attended a meeting on Capitol Hill with staffers from the Massachusetts Congressional delegation to discuss the critical role that federal grants play in providing a better quality of life for Quincy residents.

TV Commercial Filmed At Adams Shore Super Market

the store. Several years ago, a scene for the movie "The Box" starring Cameron Diaz was filmed there. Pictures of her with the couple are featured on a board above the cash register.

Angie Phillips said the Hefty commercial filming was much more involved than "The Box."

"This was more intense than the movie," she said. "For the movie, they just concentrated on a small area of the store. This commercial, they were everywhere. Every aisle, everything was taken up."

A few years ago, a commercial for a bank was filmed in the store.

"They had someone standing on a ladder throwing money in the air," Angie Phillips said. "I never saw the commercial and they never revealed what bank it was for."

Asked why their store has been chosen for films, the couple thought it is because it's a neighborhood type store and they are accommodating to the producers.

"Are you going to get a big Stop & Shop to close down for two days?" she asked. "No way."

Added Nick Phillips, "There are not too many left like us," said Nick Phillips, noting that he and his wife have owned the store for 54 years.

This apparently won't be the last film shot in their store.

"They (producers) told us every year or six months they will use our store," said Nick Phillips.

The couple said it was a great experience and look forward to more films being shot in their store. They said they didn't mind the disruption or that parts of the store had to be rearranged for the shoot.

Looking around at the disheveled aisles, Angie Phillips said it was "back to reality and time to put Humpty Dumpty back together again" and get back to business.

O'Donnell: Weather Factor In February Downtown In Norfolk Real Estate Activity

O'Donnell.

A bright spot for February was the reduction in foreclosure activity. A total of 16 foreclosure deeds were recorded compared to 30 the previous February. In addition, the number of Notice to Foreclose Mortgage recordings, the first step in the foreclosure process, was down to 49 filings compared to 55 in February 2016.

"I remain optimistic that we are now finally turning the corner when it comes to the issues of foreclosure, a significant problem we have steadily faced for nearly a decade," O'Donnell said. "With that said, one foreclosure is one too many. We need to remain diligent that any homeowner facing a challenge with their monthly mortgage payments are getting the help and counseling they need.

The Registry continues to work with Quincy Community Action Programs, 617-479-8181 x376, and NeighborWorks SouthernMass, 508-587-0950 to help homeowners who have received a Notice to Foreclose Mortgage. Another option is to contact the Attorney General's HomeCorps program at 617-573-3333."

"While Norfolk County continues to be a destination location for individuals and families to live and work, there are two significant factors that will impact how the housing and lending markets take shape in 2017," O'Donnell said. "One key factor will be the amount of housing inventory available for consumers. The other major issue will be whether or not the Federal Reserve follows through on its promise to increase interest rates."

Prom Advice For Students, Parents

From The Better Business Bureau Of Eastern MA

By PAULA FLEMING

It's prom season and your high schooler has been dreaming of prom for months, but you're not sure your wallet will survive. Attending a prom can be expensive and requires preparation in advance; attire, corsages, transportation and more.

The Better Business Bureau serving Eastern Massachusetts, Maine, Rhode Island and Vermont offers prom goers and their parents advice for the big event.

Searching for prom dresses online is a popular and convenient way for teenagers to find the perfect dress. They can browse thousands of options and prices online, however, BBB warns not all online businesses and websites are reliable. According to BBB Scam Tracker, hundreds of online shopping scams have been reported in the last few months alone.

"Teenagers and their families can drop hundreds of dollars during prom season," says Paula Fleming, spokesperson for the local BBB. "BBB advises shopping with accredited businesses to avoid scams and hidden fees."

To ensure a memorable evening, BBB offers the following prom tips for parents and students:

Prom Attire. The average price for a prom dress or a tuxedo can range from $100 to $400, but designer dresses can easily cost up to $1000. If your daughter wants to wear a designer gown, buy it from a reputable retailer. What seems like a great deal may be a knock-off dress.

Beauty Services. The prom is a time to look glamorous, but beauty is expensive. The cost for tanning, nail salons, professional hair and makeup could range from $175 to $500. When scheduling appointments on prom day, be sure to leave extra time in case the hairdresser or nail salon is overbooked.

Transportation. The average cost of a limousine on prom night can range from $200 to $500, depending on the type of vehicle and the number of hours needed. Parents should make sure that they have a written contract that includes the hours of service, required fees including gratuities and maximum capacity allowed.

Flowers. Flowers for the prom can range from $20 for a simple corsage or boutonniere to $75 for a bouquet of roses. If you are ordering flowers, make sure you use a reliable local florist and have a written order that details delivery times and specific types of flowers.

Photography. You have to have special photos of such a special night. Depending on whether you use the official prom photographer or hire a professional photographer, the cost can range from $30 to $250. If you're hiring a professional photographer, make sure you have a written contract so that you understand what is included.

OBITUARIES

Emma R. Zenga, 86

A funeral Mass for Emma R. (Pacella) Zenga, 86, of Quincy was celebrated March 18 in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Zenga died March 12.

She was a woman loved by everyone she met. Mrs. Zenga enjoyed traveling especially to Italy, playing bingo and cards and cooking. Her main passion was her family and spending time with those she loved. She will be sadly missed but never forgotten.

Beloved wife of 43 years to Anthony Zenga of Quincy. Loving mother of Joseph Zenga and his wife Andrea of Tewksbury, John Zenga and his wife Teresa of Weymouth, Paul Zenga and his partner Stacey Kaplan of Holbrook and the late William Zenga. Cherished Grams of Nicole, Paul, Sarah, Tina Marie, Laura, Jason, Toni Lee, Dylan, Zachary and Jacob. Devoted DeDe to her 10 great grandchildren. Adored sister of Anthony Pacella and his wife Julie of Weymouth and the late Querino, Arthur, Michael, Angelo "Mario," John and James Pacella and her twin sister Mary Paola. Caring sister-in-law of Edward Zenga and his wife Donna of Melrose, Daniel Zenga and his wife Mindy of Braintree, Lorraine Lordan and her husband Bill Rosen of Quincy and the late Henry Zenga and his surviving wife Sandra of Tewksbury. Predeceased by her lifelong friend Anna Duhaime. Also survived by many nieces, nephews and extended family.

EMMA R. ZENGA

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105.

Dorothy Fall, 99

A funeral Mass for Dorothy (Osborne) Fall, age 99, a longtime resident of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in Holy Trinity Parish at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Fall died peacefully March 14 at the John Adams HealthCare Center, in the presence of her daughter.

She was born in Everett to the late John and Addie (Bailey) Osborne. Mrs. Fall was raised and educated in Everett and was a graduate of Everett High School. She had lived in Quincy for sixty-five years.

Mrs. Fall was a homemaker who was devoted to her family, especially her grandchildren and great grandchildren. She was a daily communicant of the former St. Boniface Church in Germantown for many years. Mrs. Fall was an avid walker and enjoyed traveling with her late husband, David.

Beloved wife of the late David I. Fall. Devoted mother of Wayne F. Jansen and his wife Paula of Braintree, Nora L. Reardon and her husband Robert of Quincy. Loving grandmother of seven grandchildren and ten great grandchildren. One of five siblings, she was predeceased by John Osborne, Adeline Bacon, Helen Sherman, and Frederick Osborne. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

DOROTHY FALL

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were made by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

Theresa C. Cowley, 89

A Mass of Christian Burial for Theresa C. Cowley, age 89, of Quincy was celebrated March 18 in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Ms. Cowley died peacefully March 8 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth. She had endured a long period of poor health.

Ms. Cowley was devoted to her family, and in particular to her sister Mary, with whom she lived for many years in the Montclair section of Quincy. Ms. Cowley was the youngest of eight in the Cowley family, having been predeceased by John, Mary, Anne (Desmond), Gertrude (Kowalik), Francis, Walter and Laurence. The Cowley family grew up in Dorchester, and then most migrated to Quincy, with the most intrepid (Walter, Anne and Gertrude) settling with their families in Braintree. Her parents were Francis of Enniscrone, Sligo and Mary (Cunningham) of Mohill, Leitrim.

Ms. Cowley valued education, and was a perfectionist in all of her endeavors. She graduated from the Dorchester High School for Girls in 1945, and thereafter pursued a variety of clerical jobs, including work at the Internal Revenue Service, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Social Security Administration, all in Boston. She was also employed as a legal secretary at prominent Boston law firms.

Having always regretted not pursuing college after high school education, Ms. Cowley later in life attended Bentley College, receiving an Associate's Degree in accounting in 1973, graduating with Highest Honors. From there, she pursued a Bachelor's Degree in business management at Boston State College, graduating with a 3.9 GPA. Ms. Cowley then pursued further graduate education, learning computer programming and becoming proficient in some of the early business languages in what was then a male-dominated field. Following that, she spent the rest of her professional life in the accounting field, working for major Boston accounting firms.

THERESA C. COWLEY

Ms. Cowley enjoyed corresponding with her family and others. She prided herself on her persuasive writing skills, and great attention to detail.

More than anything, she valued the family that surrounded her, and she was particularly grateful for the assistance in her later years of Gerard Kowalik and Paul Cowley, who always managed to be there for her when she needed them. Ms. Cowley leaves behind many other nieces and nephews as well.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

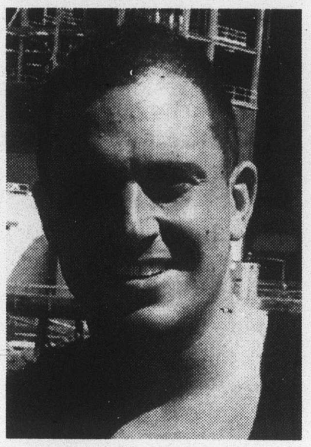
Eric M. Mannai, 35

A funeral service for Eric M. Mannai, age 35, of Quincy was held Sunday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mr. Mannai died March 9 after a long battle with addiction.

He was a loving son, brother, and friend who had a great sense of humor and would give the shirt off his back to anyone in need. Mr. Mannai was a talented carpenter, electrician, and plumber who was a hardworking man. He started working at 12 years old sweeping and mopping floors in a pizza shop; soon he was flipping pizzas at age 13. Mr. Mannai worked at Boston Ship Repair for Local S25. He also was an amazing artist.

He will be sadly missed by his mother Paula and father Jack Reardon. Loving brother of his adoring sister Marianne and brother Michael. Grandson of the late



ERIC M. MANNAI

Ned Mannai and the late Richard and Mary Reardon. Nephew of Frederick and Kathy Mannai of Florida, Michael Mannai of Pennsylvania, the late David Mannai, Maureen Brady of Weymouth and the late Michael, Paul and Ricky Reardon of Quincy. He also leaves many cousins and dear friends.

children play sports. He was so proud of them. And he was such a handy man; there wasn't a thing he couldn't fix. He was truly one-in-a-million. He was gentle, caring, always smiling and laughing, though he would be known to mutter "Vaffanculo" every now and then.

Words cannot describe how sorely he will be missed. Forever in our hearts.

Funeral arrangements were made by Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Angelina Aimola, 95

A funeral Mass for Angelina "Al" Aimola, 95, of Quincy, a housewife and former employee of Miller Golf, was celebrated Wednesday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Aimola died March 16 at Care One in Weymouth after a brief illness.

Born in March 1921, she was the daughter of Amelia and Antonio Bongiovanni of East Boston. She attended schools there and moved to Quincy when she met and married Anthony Aimola in February 1942. There they raised four children and shared 55 happy years together.

Lovingly known as "Nana," "Nana Banana" or "Little Nana," she cooked, baked, and helped raise her eight grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. Her passion in life was cooking and her social life was all about feeding and spending time with her large Italian family. At the age of 95, she still remembered each of her grandchildren's birthdays. Each child was special to her.

Her life will forever be remembered by her children, Anthony Aimola of Quincy and his companion, Joanne McGann, Ron Aimola and his wife Dawn of Abington, and Deborah Malvesti and her husband Robert of Quincy. She is also survived by her sisters-in-law, Esther Aimola of Rockland and Frances Barr of North Reading.

ANGELINA AIMOLA

Preceded in death by her husband, Anthony and her son Gregory; her brothers, John and Domenic Bongiovanni, and her sister, Katherine Capano. She was also predeceased by her daughter-in-law, Phyllis Aimola of Quincy, her brothers-in-law, Amando, Alfred, and Adolph and her sisters-in-law, Rachel Romig, Adeline Sacchetti, Agnes Aimola and Helen Aimola.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Sister of the late Evelyn Donovan and Kenneth Young. Aunt of Debbie Donovan Bayne and her husband David, Bob Donovan and his wife Mim, Edward and Jamie Young. Honorary aunt of Phred Henson and great aunt of Michael Henson.

Mrs. Lonergan was born and raised in Weymouth. She was a graduate of Weymouth High School and attended Katharine Gibbs School in Boston. Before having children she worked for the Veterans Administration and later became a secretary at Howard Johnson Corporation where she worked for many years before retiring. She lived in Norwell for 60 years and attended St. John the Evangelist in Hingham.

She enjoyed traveling to Bermuda, Florida, Hawaii and British Columbia. Mrs. Lonergan was an accomplished paint-by-number artist and an excellent cook and gardener. She will be missed by all who had the pleasure to have known her.

Interment will be at a later date in Washington Street Cemetery, Norwell.

Ellen A. Sullivan

A funeral Mass for Ellen A. Sullivan was celebrated March 18 in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Ms. Sullivan died peacefully March 14 at South Shore Hospital after a battle with cancer.

She was born and raised in Quincy and graduated in the second graduating class from Archbishop Williams High School. Ms. Sullivan worked in the banking industry for 32 years and started right after high school at the Norfolk County Trust Company in Quincy Square.

She enjoyed traveling with her good friend Gerry Murphy. An avid sports fan, she enjoyed watching all sports.

The beloved daughter of the late Warren and Ellen (Cahill) Sullivan, Ms. Sullivan was devoted sister of Mary L. Comlin of Weymouth. She was the loving aunt of Carol and her husband Paul Marble of Medway, Mark Comlin of Quincy, and Jeff and his wife Alissa Comlin of Holden. Also survived by four great-nephews, Craig Marble of Philadelphia, Christopher Comlin of Quincy and the twins Jake and Ryan Comlin of Holden.

ELLEN A. SULLIVAN

Funeral arrangements were made by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Peter G. Anastas, Jr.

A funeral Mass for Peter G. Anastas, Jr. of Quincy will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Thursday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. Anastas died March 17 surrounded by his loving family.

Caring son of the late Peter and Annabelle Anastas. Beloved husband of the late Marijane (Nee) Anastas. Cherished father of Traci Anastas of Quincy and Kerri Francis and her husband Matthew of Milton. Adored brother of Geri Gallagher and her husband Jack of Braintree, Dede Tramontozzi and her husband Frank of West Roxbury, and Chrissie Anastas and her fiancé Adrian Aleman of Dorchester. Dear brother-in-law of Jill Nichols and her husband Ricky of Rockland and Michael Nee and his wife Maureen of Milton. Also survived by many nephews and nieces, family and friends.

Mr. Anastas was born in Boston, grew up in Dorchester, and later moved to Quincy where he raised his family and was a proud resident for 38 years. He earned his degree in history from Boston State University and was a proud veteran of the United States Army. For many years, Mr. Anastas owned PJ's Mini Mart in North Quincy where he was admired in the community for his fun-loving and kind personality. He then became a parcel post carrier for the United States Postal Service for 20 years.

He enjoyed trips to Walt Disney World and Foxwoods, he loved playing his lottery numbers, and his sweet tooth could never be satisfied. Mr. Anastas loved the holidays and always made sure the entire neighborhood knew it with his festive outdoor decorations. A true patriot, Mr. Anastas loved his country; his sports teams (especially the Patriots); and, more than anything, he loved his girls, who were the cornerstone of his life. He will be dearly missed, but never forgotten.

Visiting hours were 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. A celebration of life service will be held there at 9:15 a.m. Thursday, prior to the Mass.

Interment at Cedar Grove Cemetery, Boston.

Ann Regan, 93

By GEORGE REGAN

ANN REGAN

A funeral Mass for Ann Regan, 93, mother of Regan Communications Chairman George Regan, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Regan died peacefully at her home at Marina Bay in Quincy on March 16.

Mrs. Regan was known to many as the "First Lady of Boston PR" after helping her son launch one of the most successful public relations agencies in the U.S.

Mrs. Regan's story is a quintessential Boston story. She was born Ann Theresa Kowalski on Aug. 27, 1924 and raised by her sister Mary in the South End after the death of their parents. The Great Depression was looming and she experienced numerous hardships during her childhood as her sister Mary studied to become an accountant while taking odd jobs to put food on their table.

Inspired by her sister's resolve, Mrs. Regan attended Cathedral High School in the South End where she discovered a passion for learning and gained the skills needed at the outbreak of WWII when men went off to war and the women went off to work.

Mrs. Regan got a job in the airline industry hiring and training flight attendants at Logan Airport. She had the opportunity to travel the world but told friends that "no other city compares to Boston." Boston was her home and Boston is where she fell in love. It happened in an instant while taking the bus to work one day. She met a man named George Regan, who was also on his way to work at the Boston Naval Shipyard. The two struck up a conversation and then rarely left each other's side in the decades that followed. The couple soon married and had three children: a son named George, and two daughters Marianne (Foley), and Patricia Ann.

The family bought a small home in Quincy and spent warm summer days with fishing rods in hand hoping to land a big catch. Mrs. Regan was the best fisherman in the family and landed the biggest catch of the all – a giant fish that earned her an award from the local Sears and Roebuck Store. Embarrassed by the attention, she placed the winning catch in her son George's name. Later during a ceremony at the store and with camera's flashing, a reporter asked little George what it was like to land such a big fish. The boy shook his head and pointed to his mother.

"I didn't catch the fish, my mother did," he said.

Her earlier embarrassment grew as the cameras and the attention turned to her. What she did not know then was that she had exposed her son George to the media and also to the need for good PR. George Regan is quick to share that story with anyone who asks how he got into the business.

Mrs. Regan was a strong supporter of her son's career, first as spokesman for legendary Boston Mayor Kevin White, and then as founder of Regan Communications Group. During her son's work for Mayor White, Mrs. Regan participated in the rebirth of her beloved city as the mayor transformed Boston with an historic urban renewal project. She celebrated Boston's bicentennial with the mayor and his wife, Katherine White, who became her close friends.

"In many ways, Ann Regan was the true heart of Boston," remembers Katherine White. "She had such passion for the city and the progress we were making. The mayor and I were very fond of her. I used to joke that Ann and my husband spent so much time together that I thought they were dating."

Former Mayor Ray Flynn said Mrs. Regan shared her concerns and hopes for Boston with him as well.

"She truly had the pulse of the city," Flynn said. "Ann would often comment to me about something positive that was happening in our neighborhoods. She had tremendous pride and bore much of the responsibility for making Boston a better place for families to live."

Mrs. Regan also served as a "den mother" to Boston's future leaders; former Boston and New York City Police Commissioner Bill Bratton, and former Congressman William Delahunt.

"Like the son she was so proud of and devoted to, she was a remarkable woman and loving mother," said Bratton and his wife, CBS News legal analyst Rikki Klieman.

"Ann Regan was a mother who throughout her life supported and loved her children," Delahunt added.

Mrs. Regan collected friends like many people collect coins. She enjoyed the company of others and was always in the middle of the best conversations at her son's many, many parties and fundraising events.

Mrs. Regan was also a huge New England Patriots fan, attending five Super Bowls, but more importantly, forming a friendship with team owner Robert Kraft and his late wife Myra.

"I was saddened to hear of Ann's passing," Robert Kraft said. "She was a strong, valiant lady with great character. Much like her son, she was very personable and had a magnetic personality. I always enjoyed my time with her and I know that she will be missed by all who knew her."

Former Massachusetts Attorney General Frank Bellotti shared that sentiment.

"She was a wonderful woman and had an amazing connection with her son George," Bellotti said. "This will be a tremendous loss for him. She devoted her life to him and he cared for her right up to the very end."

Mrs. Regan helped her son start his own company in the 1980s and served as his closest counsel, guiding him through difficult life and business decisions.

"My mother had a tough childhood and she instilled that toughness in me and my sisters Marianne and Patty," George Regan said. "If we screwed up, she told us so and when we succeeded at something, she told us not to get a big head. My mother always stressed to us what she felt was the most important thing in life, that was being good to the people around you."

Mrs. Regan, was predeceased by her husband George, their daughter Patricia Ann, and her sister Mary Kowalski. She leaves behind her son George Regan of Marina Bay, daughter Marianne Foley and husband Jerry Foley (owner of J.J. Foley's) of Wollaston, seven grandchildren and eight great-grand children.

Arrangements by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston.

Memorial donations may be made to MSPCA, Attn; Donations, 350 S. Huntington Ave., Boston, MA 02130.

OBITUARY

Angelo Cianfarani, 85

A graveside service for Angelo "Chuckie" Cianfarani, 85, of Quincy was held Tuesday in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Mr. Cianfarani died March 17 at Southwood at Norwell.

He was the husband of Jacqueline (Bouchard) Cianfarani.

Born in Quincy and a lifelong resident of the city, he was the son of the late Angelo and Constanza (DiBona) Cianfarani. For many years Mr. Cianfarani was employed as a shipyard crane operator and by Westinghouse Electrical Co. He was a longtime Red Sox fan.

Besides his wife, he is survived by several nieces and nephews. He was also the brother of the late Mary Trocchio, Edio DiBona and Anne Pellegrini.

Funeral arrangements were made by Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Evening Good Friday Service At United Methodist Church

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold an Evening Good Friday Service Friday, April 14.

The service is very brief and informal, and consists of Scripture readings, hymn, and prayers. It will start at 7:30 p.m.

For many years, the church has hosted an Ecumenical Good Friday Service, which is held at noon.

"Because of work commitments, many people cannot attend the noon service, although they would like to do so," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, church pastor. "To meet that need, Quincy Community United Methodist has been holding – in addition to the noon service – an additional evening Good Friday service."

The church is handicapped accessible through the front door nearest the flag pole.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Be careful about doing someone a favor when you don't know the full story behind the request. Don't rely on someone's unsubstantiated assurances. Insist on all the facts before you act.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That workplace problem still needs your attention before you finally can close the book on it. Meanwhile, a long-anticipated reunion gets closer to becoming a happy reality.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might be demanding more from others than they can give. Best advice: Have a long and frank talk to determine what the facts are. Tensions should abate as the week winds down.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Aspects are favorable throughout this week for making contacts that could be important to your career plans. Meanwhile, an old friend offers the advice you're seeking.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's time to stop licking your wounds from past mistakes. Get up and get going toward your future. Loyal friends will be there to help the Lion get back into rip-roaring shape.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Take time out to go over what's expected of you before you begin your new project. Otherwise, you run the risk of pushing yourself harder than you need to.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An unusual request could put you in an awkward position. Best advice: Deal with it immediately. The longer you delay, the more difficult it will be to get out of it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You should feel recharged and ready for whatever your workaday world holds for you. The same positive energy spills over into your personal relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A prospect might be less than it appears to be. Like the Archer in your sign, you always aim for the truth. And this is no time to settle for less than full disclosure.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Start doing some serious thinking about a career move that could entail more than just changing job sites. Some lifestyle changes also might be involved.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) With tensions easing at the workplace, a more positive environment once again encourages the free flow of ideas so typical of the always-innovative Aquarian.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Show some of that usually hidden steel-strong Piscean backbone, and stand up for yourself if you hope to make a case for that promotion you know you deserve.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy doing new things and staying ahead of the crowd. You would make a fine sports coach or military leader.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

When a bird's call warns others of imminent danger, could that be thought of as a flier alarm?

HOLLYWOOD
by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Now that the Oscars are over, nominees can get back to work. Best-actor winner Casey Affleck ("Manchester By the Sea") has "A Ghost Story," with Rooney Mara (which screened at Sundance Jan. 22). He's currently shooting "Light of My Life," which he wrote, directs and stars in, with Anna Pniowsky.

Ryan Gosling ("La La Land") has "Song to Song," with Michael Fassbender, Rooney Mara and Natalie Portman (which also screened Jan. 22 at Sundance) and "Blade Runner 2049," with Harrison Ford, due Oct. 6. He's currently shooting with "La La Land" director Damien Chazelle in "First Man," about Neil Armstrong, the "first man" to walk on the moon.

Andrew Garfield ("Hacksaw Ridge") has "Breathe," with Claire Foy and Hugh Bonneville, and the thriller "Under the Silver Lake," with Riley Keough (Elvis Presley's granddaughter) and Topher Grace, in post-production.

Best actress winner Emma Stone ("La La Land") is slated for "The Battle of the Sexes," about the tennis competition between Billy Jean King and Bobby Riggs, along with a reboot of "A Hundred and One Dalmatians" and "Love May Fail."

Along with "Song to Song," Natalie Portman ("Jackie") has "Planetarium," with Lily-Rose Depp (daughter of Johnny Depp); the sci-fi film "Annihilation," with Jennifer Jason Leigh, Oscar Isaac and Gina Rodriguez; and the Canadian drama "Death and Life of John F. Donavan," with Kit Harington ("Game of Thrones"), Jessica Chastain, Kathy Bates and Susan Sarandon.

Meryl Streep ("Florence Foster Jenkins") is set to play "Topsy" in "Mary Poppins Returns," out Dec. 25, 2018. Isabelle Huppert ("Elle") already has filmed five foreign films.

Best supporting actor Mahershala Ali ("Moonlight"), also in "Hidden Figures," has "Roxanne, Roxanne" (screened at Sundance) awaiting a release date and currently is filming "Alita: Battle Angel," with Oscar winners Jennifer Connelly and Christoph Waltz, coming July 20, 2018.

Viola Davis, best supporting actress ("Fences"), has no films set, but continues with "How to Get Away with Murder" on ABC. Denzel Washington ("Fences"), Viggo Mortensen ("Captain Fantastic") and Ruth Negga ("Loving") have not announced their next projects.

Tyler Henry, "The Hollywood Medium" (which returns on E Channel in mid-May for a third season), went back to his hometown of Fresno, California, to sign his book "Between Two Worlds" (Simon & Schuster), already on several best-sellers lists. Three thousand of his friends, neighbors and anyone he ever met showed up at Barnes & Noble, which was so overwhelmed it ran out of books. Tyler signed every book and talked to everyone he met there. Tyler must have seen that coming, but is too modest a guy to blow his own horn that way.

Q: When I was a youngster growing up in Illinois, I was quite the fan of Rin-Tin-Tin. I ate Nabisco Shredded Wheat since the company sponsored the television series. I have the "Adventures of Rin-Tin-Tin" board game and the magic brass-ring set. I am not interested in selling, but I have wondered what they might be worth. Incidentally, I had a dog that I named Rin-Tin-Tin. -- Carl, El Paso, Texas

A: Warner Brothers introduced The Wonder Dog in 1923, and the talented German Shepherd became an instant star and generated so much money that he actually saved the studio from bankruptcy. Rin-Tin-Tin starred in 19 films for Warner Brothers between 1923 and 1930. He was also featured on both radio and television.

Your board game is valued in the $50 to $150 range, depending on condition, according to Ted Hake, author of the "Price Guide of Character Toys." If your brass-ring collection is complete, Hake believes it could be worth as much as $600.

Q: I have a small bowl that I was given several years ago. The only mark on it is "Koeniz." Can you tell me anything about it? -- Sarah, Toledo, Ohio

A: Your bowl was crafted by Diane Koenig, a studio potter operating in the Hudson, Ohio, area. According to "The Encyclopedia of U.S. Marks on Pottery, Porcelain & Clay," by Lois Lehner and published by Collector Books, Koenig makes wheel-thrown graffito and slipware pieces, mostly in blue and white, black and white or combinations of those colors. She graduated from Bowling Green State University in 1976 and has worked as a potter ever since.

Q: I have two 78-rpm records, "Like a Dream" recorded by Caruso, and "Song of India" as cut by violinist Fritz Kreisler. Could you please tell me if they have any value and, if so, where I can sell them. -- Robert, Daytona Beach, Florida

A: Your 78s are worth about a dollar each. Despite rumors to the contrary, most of the Victor Red Deal recordings by Caruso have very little value. Serious collectors are more interested in his more scarce sessions, such as the ones he had at Zonophone.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was the 32nd president of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who made the following sage observation: "Government by organized money is just as dangerous as government by organized mob."

* You might be surprised to learn that Helen Keller, best known as the first blind and deaf person to earn a bachelor's degree, loved performing. She spent years on vaudeville tours, and in 1919 she starred in "Deliverance," a silent film about her life.

* In the Canadian town of Churchill, Manitoba, most people don't lock their car doors. The primary motivation for this practice isn't trust (although, of course, trust is required), but public safety: A pedestrian who unexpectedly encounters a polar bear will be able to find refuge in any car along the street.

* With warmer weather approaching, you might want to consider heading to Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, to witness an annual rite of spring. Students at Lake Superior State University gather on (or near) the first day of spring for the annual Snowman Burning. Started in 1971 by a campus club known as the Unicorn Hunters, the tradition involves setting alight a 12-foot-tall "snowman" -- usually built of recycled paper, wood and wire -- to celebrate the end of winter.

* If you haven't listened to any new music in a while, chances are you're over 33. Those who study such things say that's the age at which Americans would rather stick to what they know than try out new tunes.

* If winter seems to be dragging on endlessly, be glad you don't live on Uranus; there, winter lasts 21 years.

Now here's a tip!
by Jo Ann Derson

* "Here's my tip: Fasten all buttons, snaps, fasteners and zippers on your clothes before washing and drying. It will help them keep their shape. Turn socks insides out, too. It will help prevent them from getting fuzzballs." -- M.W. in Saskatchewan, Canada

* "If you are training a puppy or your fur baby has an accident on the carpet, here's how to prevent a reoccurrence in the same spot: Blot up urine, then saturate the spot with club soda. Allow it to sit for five minutes, then blot with paper towels." -- S.S. in Arkansas

* "In this day of recycling and reusing, before I discard an item, I look to see if any part of it can be reused. I removed wire from a broom that can now be used to hang a picture on the wall. I also remove any reusable screws or nails from items I toss. I put them in plastic jars." -- B.B. in Maine

* Here's one for hamster owners out there, from C.H. in Utah: "If your dwarf hamster makes much noise when running in its wheel (especially metal wheels), just lube it with a little olive oil. Just a drop or two will make the wheel turn smoothly and silently, without posing any harm to the little ones in case they lick it.

* "Put battery-operated lights on each wall in the main rooms for when there are power outages." -- M.W. in Iowa

* W.T. from "The Road" (he's an RV traveler) is looking for suggestions to remove the smell from the lid of glass jars to make them reusable -- say, salsa jars or peanut butter jars. If you have a solution for W.T., send it to me at Now Here's A Tip, c/o King Features Weekly Service, 628 Virginia Dr., Orlando, FL 32803.

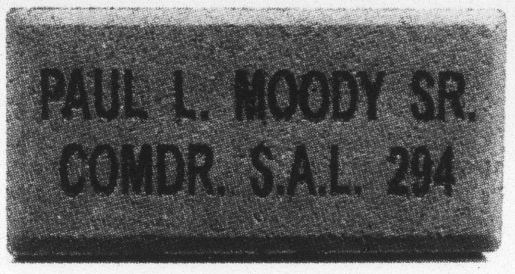
Bricks for Veterans Program



Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

the city should pursue doing so was the set up for several politicians' jokes.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci quipped that several local officials told him they would support becoming a sanctuary city, because they didn't know what it meant.

"Mayor Koch thought it would make Quincy a sanctuary of full employment for his entire family – and in that sense Mr. Mayor, aren't we already a sanctuary city?" Palmucci said.

"Jim Timmins, the city solicitor, was in favor of sanctuary for lawyers who can't win cases…Noel DiBona thought it was a sanctuary from having to speak intelligently. Kirsten Hughes thought it was a sanctuary from having to return constituent calls."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest joked Liang also wanted to discuss whether the city should replace Yakoo – North Quincy High's mascot.

"Councillor Liang says the Yakoo is derogatory to indigenous people, so I looked up some photos to see if I could find similarities and here's what I found. They both wear red, neither tribe has been winning lately, and they are both on a warpath against the Presidents," Laforest said, showing a picture of Elizabeth Warren, the Bay State's senior senator.

Hughes, the council president and chair of the Massachusetts Republican Party, asked those in attendance, "Who could forget the staggering debate about the debate about the discussion to have a discussion about being a sanctuary city?"

"We did want to talk about becoming a more welcoming, open city, but I've got to tell you, myself and the other five Republicans feel very welcome," she added.

Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain shared several "fake news" headlines: "Margaret Laforest Says Nothing During Council Meeting," "Brian Palmucci Finally Makes A Coherent Argument," "Russians Tamper With City Election – Koch Wins," and "Quincy Center Slated For $1.6 Billion Downtown Revitalization Project" among them.

Koch, one of the event's co-hosts, presented a series of celebrity doppelgängers. They included former city clerk Joseph Shea and Roy Orbison; Ward 6 Councillor William Harris and Homer Simpson; Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall and Frankenstein's monster; and Palmucci and a long-tailed weasel.

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti, who also co-hosted the luncheon, joked that he went on Ancestry.com to help his son with a project and began looking up some celebrity's DNA profiles – Matt Damon, for example, is 75 percent Irish, 15 percent Italian and 10 percent Polish.

He also looked up local officials, such as Bruce Ayers, who Bellotti quipped is 41 percent Irish, 33 percent Aqua Net, 21 percent Just For Men and 5 percent tipper; Koch, 42 percent Irish, 23 percent German and 35 percent mayor; Warren, 40 percent Donald Trump's nightmare, 50 percent everyone else's nightmare and 10 percent Foxwoods; and Gov. Charlie Baker, 55 percent Irish, 10 percent Italian, and (surprisingly) 35 percent Republican.

David Murphy, the president of the Quincy Parks Conservancy and Randolph's town manager, credited Koch and his administration for the diversity of development seen in the city.

"Some of the apartment buildings are tall, some of them are small, some of them are wide, some of the apartment buildings are green, some are blue. It's really been a very impressive level of diversity," Murphy quipped. "But we'll take them in Randolph any day if you get sick of them."

The Quincy Parks Conservancy helps support parks in the city. Murphy said the next project the non-profit will undertake is planting memorial groves at Passanageset Park at Broad Meadows Marsh.

"It's going to be a very exciting opportunity to memorialize a loved one," Murphy said, adding that more information on the project would be forthcoming.

Julianna Montminy Volunteer

Julianna Frances Montminy of Quincy, a student at Assumption College, spent spring break volunteering on one of the College's SEND Service Immersion Trips.

Montminy traveled to Pennsylvania. In Norristown, PA, students spent the break rebuilding homes for Habitat for Humanity of Montgomery County. Students also shared meals, prayers, and stories with the Religions of the Assumption sisters in Philadelphia, as well as spent time working with the Catholic Charities of Norristown Food Pantry, which is dedicated to helping community members in need of food assistance.

As part of the College's Campus Ministry Office's SEND Service Immersion Program, established in 1986, the students-accompanied by faculty, staff and alumni-have the opportunity to directly impact communities through volunteer work.

Koch Pitching Capital, Park Plans To Council

Include New Dog Park, Animal Shelter On Quarry St.; Acquiring St. Mary's School Site

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch will introduce a pair of bond measures to pay for numerous capital and park projects – including a new dog park and animal shelter on Quarry Street, the acquisition of the former St. Mary's School, a citywide parking and traffic survey, and the construction of Hancock Adams Green among other items – at next week's City Council meeting.

Koch, in a phone interview Tuesday, said he would submit the two requests at the council's meeting on Monday, April 3. The items will be referred to the finance committee, which is set to meet on April 10 and 24.

Student Achievement Initiatives Reviewed

By TOM GORMAN

School officials have reviewed the district's initiatives to improve student achievement and professional development for teachers.

Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro presented an overview of the Reset Renewal, Collaborative Connections and Principal's Path programs during the March 15 school committee meeting. Curriculum directors, teachers and several elementary and middle schools principals outlined details of the programs.

He explained that two years ago, officials looked at each school and implemented programs to address specific student achievement issues. The programs target both teacher training and student learning.

"Ultimately, all the initiatives that we are working with right now are really about improving the teaching and learning process," DeCristofaro said "That is the focus. It's the delicate balance we always talk about of a nurturing environment as well as high expectations of student achievement for each and every one of our students."

The Rapid Reset program was implemented last year at Bernazzani and Snug Harbor elementary schools and the Sterling Middle School. This year, the Collaborative Connections program began at Beechwood, Lincoln-Hancock and Marshall elementary schools and Broad Meadows Middle School. The Principal's Path was

Effective April 6th, the price of The Quincy Sun newspaper on newsstands and delivery by newcarriers will rise 25 cents to $1.00.

This will be the first increase in the newsstand price in about six years.

The increase is necessary due to escalating costs associated with producing and distributing the newspaper.

Substance Abuse Hearings Sought

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council might soon hold hearings on the opiate abuse epidemic that has affected Quincy and communities across Massachusetts and the U.S.

Councillors Noel DiBona and Brian Palmucci introduced a resolution calling for the hearings March 20. Their resolution asks the Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force, Quincy Police Department, Quincy Fire Department and Brewster Ambulance to attend future council meetings to help educate the public, discuss ideas to stem the epidemic, and recommend additional resources that may be needed.

"I'd like to bring this resolution to the City Council to help combat this substance abuse, opiate epidemic," DiBona said. "We need a full-scale, open communication of information from all departments and agencies in this City Council chamber, some public input and public hearings, community activists involved."

DiBona said he was on the School Committee when a series of seminars addressing substance was held at the city's two high schools. Former NBA player Chris Herren, whose career was derailed because of substance abuse and now speaks to students about the issue, was at the seminars along with local activists.

DiBona said the opiate epidemic now kills more people nationwide than traffic accidents, with more than 50,000 deaths reported in 2015.

Mayor Thomas Koch created the substance abuse task force in 2008, DiBona said, and one of its recommendations was the creation of the Quincy police's use of Narcan, a medication used to reverse opiate overdoses. The department's use of Narcan has received nationwide recognition.

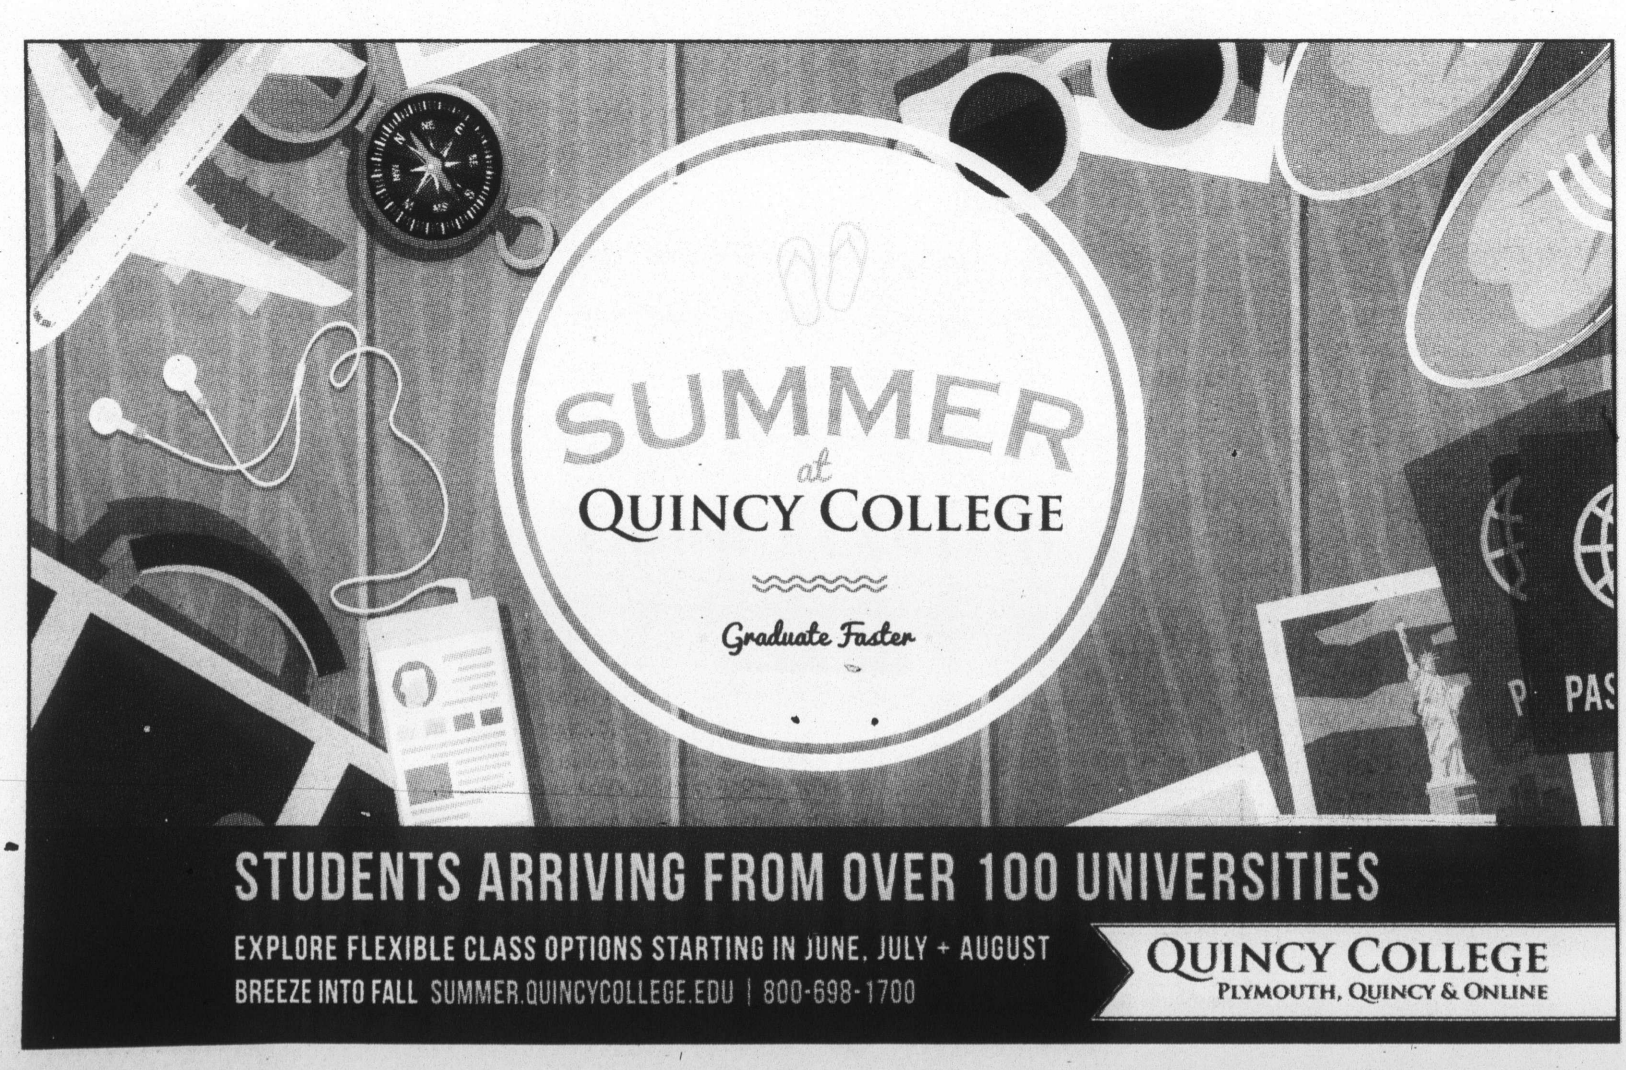
Lincoln Hancock Hosts Touch-A-Truck April 8

The Lincoln Hancock Community School, 300 Granite St. in West Quincy will host a Touch-a-Truck fundraising event on Saturday, April 8th from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the Water Street Parking lot side.

One hundred percent of the proceeds from this fundraiser will go towards the purchase of updating the playground structure on the school's grounds.

The event will feature raffle prizes, a teacher pie-face contest, hot dogs and snacks, and the ability to climb on, jump in, and learn about many unique vehicles from the people who drive them.

A donation of $5 per family is being suggested. The rain date is scheduled for Saturday, April 29th.



New Restaurant Replacing Villa Rosa

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new restaurant will open this summer in the Adams Street site that was long home to the Villa Rosa.

The Brick and Beam will take over the space at 705 Adams St. that served as the home of the Italian restaurant for 65 years. The Villa Rosa served its final meal last summer; it was initially closed just for renovations, before the owners decided to sell the restaurant's all alcohol license to partners who are operating the Brick and Beam.

The Board of License Commissioners approved the transfer of the liquor license at its March 21 meeting in a unanimous vote. Bob Harnais, the attorney representing the Brick and Beam's owners, said the new restaurant would open in June.

"They're planning on having an upper-class sports bar – it's a nice place to go," Harnais said. "They've invested a lot of money in redeveloping this property. They've invested a lot of money in redesigning this property into something they feel fits the neighborhood."

"The Villa Rosa was a great place, but it grew tired," he added. "It's going to be a higher-class place where families can go."

The Brick and Beam's manager is Brenton Kelly, who also owns the North Star on Friend Street in Boston's West End. Harnais said Kelly was in the process of the selling the North Star and would make the Brick and Beam his main job. Kelly's partners also have experience in the restaurant industry.

"We're looking forward to putting in a nice neigh-

Pouryard Opening On Washington St.

By SCOTT JACKSON

The owner of Cagney's plans to open a new restaurant next door to the Quincy Point barroom.

The Board of License Commissioners on March 21 granted Mark DiBona permission to open the Pouryard at 208 Washington St., which is now home to the Quincy Café, a breakfast spot. The Pouryard will seat 25 patrons; the Quincy Café had seating for four.

The new restaurant will also be taking over Cagney's 49-seat patio space, which the board gave DiBona permission to build last September. The patio space is located next door to the Pouryard.

DiBona told the board he wanted to open the new restaurant because it is adjacent to the patio space, while Cagney's was not.

"This will now give us sightlines to the patio," he said. "It will give the customers easier access to bathrooms, to facilities to wash up or whatever. It will give my staff a lot easier ways to service my customers because we would then put anything we would need in this new space."

GIVE NEW LIFE TO OLD PIECES

If you have inherited a piece of jewelry that has sentimental value but is too outdated to wear, consider giving it a redesign. You may want to remove the diamond from an old engagement ring and have it reset as a pendant. Or perhaps you have inherited a dazzling blue sapphire from an old pinky ring that you think may be better suited for use in a cocktail ring. In fact, rings can be transformed into bracelets, and bracelets can see new lives as necklaces. Brooches can become earrings, and a string of pearls can be smartly restrung into a more contemporary style. All it takes is imagination. A jewelry designer can help you explore the possibilities.

If you inherit a piece of jewelry, it is meant to be loved and not stored away in a drawer. Our jewelers can help make that heirloom shine again! Reshaping or resetting an heirloom can work within the timeline or budget that you specify. For more information, please call or visit our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center (617-773-3636). We can help you find a watch, necklace, bracelet, ring or pair of earrings that will show your special someone how much you care!

Happy Retirement, Paul Moody

Like many workers, Paul Moody was out of a job when the Quincy Fore River Shipyard closed in 1986.

Moody, who had helped build ships as an electrical supervisor for 20 years until General Dynamics ceased operations in Quincy Point, eventually began working for the City of Quincy in 1990 as a water meter repairman.

Today, more than 26 years later, Moody is a fixture in the Water Department. After working as a water main repairman until 2003, he became a leak detection investigator and then leak detection supervisor for the past nine years.

If there's been a water main break in Quincy over the last two and a half decades, chances are Moody's been called on to help find and fix it.

The affable, hard-working lifelong Quincy resident who is also active in veterans' causes will retire from the city April 28.

He is also a straight-shooter who gives a candid answer when you ask him a simple question.

"I'm retiring because I'm 70 years old and I see a lot of folks I know passing away. I want to enjoy some life before my number comes up. I don't want to work all my life. My father worked until he was 75 years old and the only reason he retired is because my mother got sick.

"That's what I don't want to see," he says matter-of-factly.

Moody's shoes will be hard to fill as leak detection supervisor. He has a fountain of knowledge about the city's 280 miles of water mains that largely go unnoticed until one of them breaks.

And when they did break during Moody's tenure, he was typically the guy called on to locate the leak before a repair could be made.

It's been anything but a typical 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. job.

"You never know when that phone is going to ring," Moody says. "You might get in the door (from a day's work) and the phone rings again. Or it could be 1 a.m. in the morning."

Moody was a 24-7 man working 60 or more hours some weeks. He's also coordinated snow removal efforts in the north end of the city for years.

He's seen a lot – the unusual, the unexpected, even the humorous – at some work sites.

"Just about everything that could happened has happened while working for the city. You just wouldn't believe some of them," he says. "People don't understand when they see a water main break what can happen behind it.

"You might see a big lake of water. Once we get the water main shut off, it looks great (water recedes). But 15 to 20 minutes later the whole road could collapse because the water was holding it up. People drive over these things.

"We've had people come down the street and drive right into the water. We've seen cars submerged. One day I saw a letter carrier walking down the street and the next thing you know his hat is floating in the water next to him. He fell right into the hole."

There's more.

"One day a kid came riding along on his bicycle and thought he was riding across a puddle. We had to fish him out. Some of this stuff is hilarious. You are trying to close down a street and there are people in cars who think they can ride through the water. They say, "I gotta get home that way.' We tell them, 'you better find another way home. You can't go that way.'

"We've seen cars go underwater. We've had some trying times," he adds his tone growing more serious.

Quincy's city-owned water mains range in size from 20 inches to 4 inches in diameter. The MWRA maintains 48-inch mains – one runs through North Quincy into Milton; another follows Furnace Brook Parkway into the Blue Hills near the old reservoir.

The old mains are cast iron – the new ones are ductile iron cement lined mains.

Factors causing water main breaks include age and the weather such as frost. But human error can also create a broken line.

He notes some contractors have tried to access water mains via hydrants. That can lead to trouble.

"When you open a fire hydrant, you have to open it slowly and close it slowly. Well, some contractors decide they want to slam a fire hydrant down. You get water hammer that way. It may not happen right away but some time after – 10 hours or two days – you get a break from a water hammer.

"You also have some age breaks. We're catching up with the aged pipes. This past year we've had about half as many breaks this winter as we had last winter. Could be the weather. There are a lot of contributing factors."

Paul Moody won't be going away from the City of Quincy entirely. He says he plans to work part-time after his retirement from full-time work. But don't expect to see him at work sites right away.

You would expect a leak detection supervisor to have a bucket list.

"I'm going to relax when I first retire before I do anything." He says he and his wife, Karen, will probably do a little traveling. They also plan to spend more time with their grandchildren: Gavin, Caroline and Aidan.

"The grand kids are all sports-minded so we'll be chasing them and now I can do it at my leisure without worrying about work."

Karen and Paul, by the way, will celebrate their 49th wedding anniversary June 29. They are the parents of two adult sons: Paul, Jr. who is a Quincy firefighter and Michael, a maintenance man with the Quincy Park Department.

Paul will also be more active as the commander of the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette Legion Post. He has served as commander of the 55-member group since 2009. One of his signature duties has been chief custodian of "Flags for Veterans Island" at Fort Square near School and Pleasant Streets.

Under Moody's stewardship, the traffic island has blossomed into a patriotic landmark. Twice a year, the

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1920 postcard is a view from in front of City Hall looking south along the fence of the Hancock Cemetery. John Adams was among a group of citizens who in 1809 bought the land used for this cemetery and donated it to the town. His ancestors had been buried there since early in the 17th century. The iron fence and gates on the right were installed just before this picture was taken. They replaced the original iron fence installed here in 1844. In the distance can be seen the marquee of the new Alhambra Theater. The church steeple in the center was on the old Bethany Congregational Church that was replaced in 1929 by the Granite Trust bank building. The poster just visible on the right was for the Brockton Fair. All those parking spaces on the left are now part of the new Adams Green. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

25-, 10-Cent MBTA Fares On Off-Hours

Fares on the MBTA South Shore Red Line are going down (April 2), but only at off-peak hours and only for 90 days, and, in one direction, the reduction is less than in the other.

If that sounds complicated, listen a moment while MBTA General Manager Joseph C. Kelly explains:

"The plan is simplicity in itself," he said. "Monday through Friday, between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., the fare will be 10 cents, instead of the usual 25 cents. The reduced fares must be paid at the collector's booth. The only exception to the 10-cent fare will be for people boarding at the three Quincy stations and riding into town. Here the basic fare of 50 cents will be reduced to 25 cents."

NIXON NAMES STEPHEN T. KEEFE FOR AIR FORCE BRIGADIER GENERAL

Col. Stephen T. Keefe, Jr., of 175 Rock Island Rd., Houghs Neck, a Quincy attorney who is currently assigned to the Pentagon as assistant deputy chief of the Air Force Reserve, has been nominated by President Richard Nixon to the rank of Brigadier General.

Col. Keefe, whose military service began as a private with the U.S. Army Air Corps in March 1942, is a former assistant city solicitor of Quincy, past president of the Quincy Bar Association and a director of the Shipbuilders Co-Operative Bank.

He saw active duty in North Africa in World War II, in Korea during the Korean War and was recalled to active duty during the Cuban Missile Crisis in 1962.

Col. Keefe is the father of three sons, David and twins, Michael and Stephen, who attend Boston College.

6% HOSPITAL RATE INCREASE PROBED

A special subcommittee of the Quincy City Council met to begin an investigation into a proposed six percent increase in rates at the Quincy City Hospital.

The rate increase was voted by the Hospital Board of Managers and would go into effect on April 1, 1973.

The committee chairman, Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, described the meeting as informational. Other committee members included Councillors John J. Quinn, Theophilus McClelland and Albert Barilaro. The increase would bring the top room rate to $92 a day.

QUINCYISMS

The Quincy Veterans Council's Past Commanders Club was making plans for its annual installation of officers to be held April 7 at the South Weymouth Naval Air Station. Incoming officers included Chairman Louis S. Cassani, Vice-Chairman Charles N. Ross, Adjutant Allen A. Kofman and Assistant Adjutant Thomas M. McDonald... The Quincy Sun Sunbeams Column noted that John J. Lydon of Wollaston began his campaign for Ward Five Councillor with a kickoff meeting at the Hollow Restaurant. (Editor's note: John "Jack" Lydon won election to the city council that fall, not as the Ward Five Councillor but as the Ward Three Councillor due to a realignment of the city's wards to comply with the "one man one vote" decision in the courts.)... Michael Vitagliano was on the honor roll for the fall semester at the University of New Mexico. He was the son of Michael J. Vitagliano of 755 Southern Artery, Quincy... St. Ann's Marianns of Wollaston were planning "A Night in Hawaii" theme in conjunction with their regular monthly meeting on April 4. Mrs. Norman Mahoney was chairman of the event... Gus Verra and John Calararese of Quincy were members of a committee planning for the 35th reunion of the Boston English High School Class of 1938. The event was scheduled at the Sidney Hill Country Club in Newton on April 27... Colpitts Travel Center, 1550 Hancock St., Quincy Center, was urging future travelers to "Take A Break To The Bahamas, The Caribbean Or Mexico, Low Season Rates In Effect After April 15"... The Quincy Emblem Club installed Mary Spalding as club president at the Elks Home. Other officers included: Mary Sances, vive-president, Marie Grabowski, junior past president, Geraldine Shepherd, treasurer, Marilyn Alcott, financial secretary, Susan McInnis, recording secretary and Dorothy DiBona, corresponding secretary... Joseph R. Harold of Quincy, Department Adjutant, Disabled American Veterans, was the principal speaker at a testimonial dinner honoring Florence E. Daley, State Commander of the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary.

Praises Palmucci, Finn For Affordable Housing Efforts

READERS FORUM

Kudos to Councillors Joe Finn and Brian Palmucci for renewing the push for affordable housing in Quincy Center. Affordable housing, like public art and strategically planned new public spaces, has fallen victim to piecemeal development in Quincy Center.

When a master developer was the plan for Quincy Center, the City of Quincy, through the original agreement at least secured a commitment for contributions to the city's affordable housing trust fund. That policy decision was designed to ensure our city maintained its future affordable housing stock.

Today, the building by building, project by project approach in Quincy Center that has manifested itself in the wake of Streetworks has allowed individual developers to avoid providing affordable and workforce housing in the downtown. Ironically, if these developers happened elsewhere in the city they would be required to do so. Keep in mind that the original exemption was only in play with the caveat of a contribution to the Affordable Housing Trust. Today, it's also much harder for the City Council to weigh in on by-right and zoning board projects that are done building by building. Everyone gets their own deal and consistency is out the window. So consequently, these new developments often are approved in a manner that isn't consistent with the City of Quincy's original downtown vision.

While it is a blessing to see redevelopment touch our downtown, we should continue to aspire to shape it in a manner consistent with our original vision. And affordable housing is an important piece of that vision.

Douglas Gutro
Former Quincy
City Councillor

And More Kudos For Councillors Palmucci And Finn

As I read about efforts by Quincy city councillors Brian Palmucci and Joe Finn who wish to require developers seeking to build new residential units in Quincy Center to comply with the city's affordable housing ordinance (New Push For Affordable Housing in Quincy Center, Quincy Sun, March 23), I support the amendment introduced to Quincy's Zoning Code to eliminate the exemption to the affordable housing mandate currently given to developers.

When the exemption was given to the previous developer down in Quincy Center, it was to encourage the building up of Downtown Quincy. However, like Palmucci and Finn, I think the exemption can be eliminated today because Quincy is hot real estate today and concessions to developers to do the right thing are no longer necessary.

As more rental and condo residences are planned to be built along Hanbcock Stereet in the retail district, it would seem important not to turn this area into another West End with a sea of luxury high-rises when "smart growth" along MBTA routes would benefit from mixed housing.

There are plans for more new housing down by North Quincy Station too. Like Quincy Center further designs on this area also need to be looking at mixed housing, luxury, affordable and workforce units.

The days of isolating folks by class are over. That system only creates issues. Getting people living with each other, shopping and dining with each other makes for a safer environment for all.

The City of Quincy is getting known statewide for its smart growth when it comes to business and housing. It is no longer a passageway to and from Boston but a new destination for folks looking for a pleasant alternative to living in Boston. It is becoming a great place to live with the convenience of being a short ride into Boston.

Thank you to City Councillors Palmucci and Finn for attempting to move Quincy forward as a city with great housing and opportunities. They both see the future and understand the road to take to get there.

April Children's Events, Activities At Crane Library

By JULIE RINES
Thomas Crane Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following events and activities for children during the month of April.

Spring Storytimes

Weekday storytimes for children ages 4 months through 5 years old began on Friday, March 24th. The library offers several programs by age. Stop by the library or check our website thomascranelibrary.org for details.

Music and Movement with Rubi

On Saturday, April 1st at 10 and 10:30 a.m. sing and dance with Rubi Lichauco! Rubi brings her popular preschool program to Quincy so put on your favorite dancing shoes and join us for this lively mix of music and movement for children ages 0-4 accompanied by an adult.

This program has become so popular there isn't room to move and dance as we would like so we have decided to split the group in two. No registration is required; when the 10 a.m. session fills we will close the doors. Please spend some time in the children's room choosing books or playing with our early literacy activities while you wait for the 10:30 a.m. session.

Thank you for your cooperation we really think two smaller groups will make this program more fun for everyone.

Homework Help

Students in grades 1-6 are invited to stop by the main Library children's room on Mondays and Wednesdays from 3 to 5 p.m. to get assistance with their homework from high school tutors. Students must be able to communicate with tutors in English.

Preschool Discovery @ Wollaston

Drop by the Wollaston Library with your preschooler any time between 10 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, April 6th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child. This program does not require registration

Dig up some dinosaurs this month! We'll sort dinosaurs, look at dinosaur footprints and diets, and try to dig up a (plastic) fossil or two!

Science Saturday – Science Is Not Always Pretty

Join Keith Michael Johnson on Saturday, April 8th at 10 a.m. for an amazing science presentation "Science Is Not Always Pretty."

Learn about everything from snake skins to simple machines, superstitions to Isaac Newton. Each topic builds upon the last until we realize:

1. Science is simply the way we describe why things happen and how stuff works.

2. We don't have to wait to become scientists before we can start enjoying science.

This is 50 minutes of audacious show and tell, outrageous facts, Scatology and more. Keith will have you learning about things you've never even thought of before in this high energy participatory trip through the world of science

We'll meet a famous scientist (Antoine Lavoisier), dissect an owl pellet to see what it ate for lunch, chemically conjure a batch of Slime (solid or liquid?) to see how well it flies, and break the sound barrier with an everyday machine that travels over 900 miles an hour.

Celebrate investigation and out-of-the-box questions in pursuit of a love of science. This program is suggested for families with children ages 4 and older. No registration is required.

Saturday Storytime with Denise Shaver

Join Denise Shaver for a family storytime full of stories, songs, rhymes and more our theme for this month will be April Showers. This program is for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult on Saturday, April 15th at 10 a.m. at the Main Library. No registration required

Book Clubs

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books.

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 will meet on April 13th at 7 p.m.

This month we will be discussing The Worry Web Site by Jacqueline Wilson.

Is anything bothering you? Problems in school or at home? Don't know what to do or where to turn?

With Mr. Speed at the head of the class, help is only as far as the nearest computer! All his students have to do is log on to the Worry Web Site and wait for the good advice they need. . . . Like Holly, who wants a wicked stepmom but learns to accept a nice new friend. Or Greg, who thinks his crush is hopeless until a school trip comes along. Or Samantha, who feels as if everything is wrong but finds a place where something feels right. No problem is too large or too small for the Worry Web Site—or for one special teacher.

Pick up your copy of the book in the Children's Room to read before the meeting. Any questions, call 617-376-2411 and ask to speak with Ms. Cronin.

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 will meet on April 11th at 7 p.m.

Our theme will be Poetry. This month we will celebrate National Poetry Month by reading poetry books and novels written in verse.

The Harry Potter Book Club @ Wollaston is for all ages, children, teens and adult.

Are you a Harry Potter fan? Have you read the books several times or are you just discovering Harry for the first time? Harry fans of all ages are invited to join us from January to July at 7 p.m. on the third Wednesday evening of each month at the Wollaston Branch Library as we discuss each Harry Potter book in turn. We will be discussing Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire on April 19th at 7 p.m. Stop by the main library to pick up a copy of the book to read before we meet.

Movie Matinee @ North Quincy – Trolls

Join us at North Quincy on Tuesday, April 18th at 2 p.m. for Trolls.

Enter a colorful, wondrous world populated by hilariously unforgettable characters and discover the story of the overly optimistic Trolls, with a constant song on their lips, and the comically pessimistic Bergens, who are only happy when they have trolls in their stomach.

DreamWorks' Trolls is a fresh, broad comedy filled with music, heart and hair-raising adventures.

Rated PG Runtime 90 min.

Dungeons and Dragons Encounters

New and experienced players ages 10 and older are invited to join us on Tuesday, April 18th at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Children's Room for this introduction to D&D 5th edition game play. Take on the role of a fantasy hero in this monthly Dungeons and Dragons game. We will help you customize an Adventurer's League D&D character you can use both in our monthly adventures and at other D&D Organized Play.

Your group of adventurers will start out at level one and take on the module from the 5th Edition D&D Starter Set. Unravel the mysteries of the Lost Mine of Phandelver and what monsters and treasures lie within!

Harry Potter Day

Would you like to attend Hogwarts?

Muggles ages 10 and older are invited to visit Hogwarts (at the main library) on Wednesday, April 19th from 1 to 4 p.m. Find out if you have what it takes to become a wizard, to test your wizarding aptitude you will be sorted into houses and assigned three timed tasks, a History of Wizarding quiz (trivia), Potions lab, and a scavenger hunt.

Weather permitting there will also be a Quidditch demonstration on the front lawn.

The afternoon will end with snacks and prizes at the Yule Ball. Anyone sorted after 1:15 p.m. will not be able to compete for House points.

Parents, this program is only for children in middle and high school there will be a Harry Potter event for younger fans this summer.

This special event is sponsored by the QPS middle school PTOs and the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Harry Potter Movie Matinee @ Adams Shore

Join us on Thursday, April 20th at 1:30 p.m. at the Adams Shore branch for the fourth in our Harry Potter film series, "The Goblet of Fire."

It's Harry Potter's fourth term at Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry! Harry, Ron and Hermione look forward to the international Quidditch finals. Harry dreams of spending time with the alluring Cho Chang. He wants to be a normal 14-year-old wizard . . . But Harry is not normal--even by wizarding standards.

This term, for the first time in hundreds of years, a competition will be held between three schools of wizardry, and contestants will be magically chosen for the very dangerous event. Now, as Harry's lightning scar burns, indicating the evil presence of Lord Voldemort, the Goblet of Fire makes its final selection for the competition--Harry Potter.

Rated PG-13 Runtime 157 minutes

Children's Movie Matinee – Moana

Join us on Friday, April 21st at 10 a.m. in the large meeting room at the main library for Disney's newest film "Moana."

Moana Waialiki is a sea voyaging enthusiast and the only daughter of a chief in a long line of navigators. When her island's fishermen can't catch any fish and the crops fail, she learns that the demigod Maui caused the blight by stealing the heart of the goddess, Te Fiti. The only way to heal the island is to persuade Maui to return Te Fiti's heart, so Moana sets off on an epic journey across the Pacific.

Rated PG Runtime 110 minutes.

Puppet Show with Diane Kordas

Join Puppeteer Diane Kordas on Saturday April 22nd at 10 a.m. for The Hungry Caterpillar and Forest Folktales a family puppet show for ages 3-8.

Hungry Caterpillar and Forest Folktales puppet show includes 3 family friendly stories. Meet a bear who learns not to disturb the bee family, a rabbit who wants to go to the moon and a hungry caterpillar named Carlos who gets big, makes a chrysalis... and well you know what happens!

Beautiful bright puppets, fun action and participation make this show a family favorite!

Saturday Storytime @ North Quincy

Join children's librarian Cathy deVeer and Quinn Z. Bear at the North Quincy Branch, on Saturday, April 22nd at 10 a.m. for Pirate Tales.

This program is for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult No registration required.

BID Hospital-Milton Offers Community Health Grants

Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Milton (BID-Milton) is offering community health grants in amounts ranging from $500 up to $2,000 to local service agencies, non-profit organizations, boards of health, coalitions and community groups to address specific public health needs outlined in the hospital's 2016 Community Health Needs Assessment.

During the last seven years, BID-Milton has distributed more than $40,000 in community health grants to 35 local organizations. Last year the hospital provided grants to five organizations, including Let it Out, Quincy; South Shore YMCA's Germantown Neighborhood Center, Quincy; Girl Power, Milton; Old Colony Hospice, Randolph and Joanna's Place, Weymouth.

Applicants for the grants should submit proposals which use proven or promising practices that address at least one of the hospital's community health priorities:

• Health Risk Factors – This includes health awareness, education, prevention and screening activities that can reduce health risks and improve the community's overall health. Examples of prevention activities could include increasing access to healthy foods and opportunities for physical activity as well as reducing tobacco use;

• Physical/Chronic Disease Management and Prevention – There are a broad range of chronic and infectious diseases prevalent in BID-Milton's service area, including heart disease, diabetes, hypertension and cancer. Examples of appropriate programs include improving chronic disease management, continuing chronic disease screenings or increasing provider capacity;

• Behavioral Health – The burden of mental illness and substance abuse is substantial, and hospitalization rates for these conditions are higher in many of the hospital's service area towns/cities when compared to the rest of the state. Examples of program goals could include increasing awareness of behavioral health issues, reducing the burden of opioid use, increasing awareness of hoarding and increasing crisis management within the community;

• Healthy Aging – Older adults are much more likely to develop chronic illnesses and related disabilities. BID-Milton has identified improving the quality of life for older adults as a community health priority. Examples of programs due funding consideration might include education on falls prevention, reducing the isolation of older adults as well as supporting older adults and caregivers to age in place.

Applications must be for programs in BID-Milton's market area of Milton, Randolph, Quincy, Dorchester, Hyde Park, Canton, Braintree or Weymouth, and are due Friday, April 28 at 5 p.m.

Grant applications may be downloaded from the hospital's website at www.bidmilton.org. For more information, call Robert McCrystal at 617-313-1590.

Owls Of The World At Kennedy Center

Mark and Marcia Wilson will return to the Kennedy Center with their family of owls on Wednesday, April 19th at 1 p.m.

The Wilsons will share the field marks, signs and naturalists skills used to find wild owls without disturbing them. Next they will introduce six live owls (from small to huge) up close.

Everyone participates in a "hooting" lesson and learns how to attract and protect owls.

This is a great intergenerational event for the school vacation week. Seniors are encouraged to bring their grandchildren, nieces and nephews, etc.

Tickets are $3 and can be purchased at the Kennedy Center.

For more information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Swing Band Performance April 21

The Olde Kids on the Block swing band is bringing its Big Band Era sound to the Kennedy Center on Friday, April 21st from 1-3 p.m.

The band comprised of retired and semi-retired musicians inspires their audiences to dance, tap their feet or just sit and enjoy the wonderful music.

Tickets are $5 and are available at the Kennedy Center. For more information, call (617) 376-1506.

Sarah Norton Advocates For Greyhounds

Quincy resident Sarah Norton is raising awareness for April's National Adopt-a-Greyhound month.

Norton serves as Board President for The Greyhound Project, a volunteer, non-profit organization. The mission of The Greyhound Project is to promote the welfare and adoption of greyhounds by providing support and information to adoption organizations, adopters, and the public.

The need to place ex-racing greyhounds into loving homes is more critical than at any point in recent history.

Only 19 greyhound racing tracks across six states remain in the U.S. Facing continued financial pressures, the number of gentle greyhounds in need of homes could swell by the thousands. These wonderful, elegant dogs are being cared for by adoption groups as they wait to be adopted into permanent homes.

ThroughNational-Adopt-a-Greyhound Month, Sarah and The Greyhound Project are spreading the message of greyhound adoption awareness to ensure that 100 percent of these greyhounds find caring homes.

Visit www.adopt-a-greyhound.org for more information.

Scallops & Tomato Sauce Over Linguini

By MARIE

With Easter close by, but being in the midst of Lenten season, you might be wondering what to cook for those Friday night meatless dinners.

Today's recipe is for a scallops and tomato sauce served over linguini. And wait until you see how easy it is to prepare and what a wonderful, delicious entrée this is to make during Lent or any time at all.

First of all, I did not defrost the six scallops that I had in the freezer. I also did not use garlic or onion because since I used homemade tomato sauce those ingredients were already in it.

The amounts of ingredients I used in the recipe were the amounts I needed and had available that day, but you can use as much as you want and adjust the ingredient amounts accordingly depending on the crowd you are feeding.

RECIPE

6 scallops
1 and ½ cups of tomato sauce
2 tablespoons of cottage cheese (that's the cheese I had in the house at the time.)
Salt and pepper to taste
Parmesan cheese for the top (optional)
2 tablespoons of olive oil
1 tablespoon of butter
½ pound of linguini or any favorite pasta

In the hot oil and butter slowly sauté the scallops, add the tomato sauce cover and cook for a few minutes. Now add the cottage cheese mixing well and cook until done.

Cook pasta according to directions, drain and place them in the same pan as the scallops and mix well. If you like, top with Parmesan cheese.

Healthy Cream Of Broccoli Soup

By SUSIE

Here is a delicious and healthy version of cream of broccoli soup.

Cream of broccoli soup usually has cream or milk and flour to thicken. My soup uses cream made of cashews which is not only delicious, but much easier to digest, loaded with nutrition and very versatile since it can be used as a substitute for dairy.

Many (if not most) people have a hard time digesting dairy and there is no reason to consume much of it anyway from a nutritional standpoint. We are able to get important nutrients for our bones including but not limited to calcium from many foods.

Enjoy this healthy and delicious version!

RECIPE

2 bags frozen broccoli florets (normally 10 oz. per bag, or about six cups fresh broccoli)
3 cloves minced garlic
1 small onion, chopped
5 cups broth (I used vegetable)
3 tablespoons butter, coconut oil, or olive oil
1 cup cashew cream
Sea salt and pepper
Cashew Cream:

Place 1 cup of raw cashews rinsed and drained in bowl. Boil 3 cups of water and pour over cashews and let soak for 30 minutes. Drain but reserve 3/4 cup of the soaking water and place in blender with the cashews. Process until smooth and creamy, much like Greek yogurt.

Saute' onion and garlic in oil of choice until fragrant. Simply add broth, seasonings, and broccoli and bring to boil. Cover and simmer until just tender and still bright green. Uncover and spoon in cashew cream. Use immersion blender and blend until all pureed.

Adjust seasonings and serve hot.

Jack 'n' Jill Child Care Centers Recognized

Quincy Students Participate In Youth Government Conference

Matt Brandi and Colman Gillis of Quincy, sophomores at Boston College High School, were two of the 21 BC High students who recently participated at the annual YMCA Youth in Government Conference at the Massachusetts State House on Beacon Hill.

Brandi was successful in having his bill passed and signed into law.

Gov. Charlie Baker was the keynote speaker. Many state representatives and senators joined the students at the opening ceremonies.

The Youth in Government Club, moderated by faculty members Elise Wilson and Michael Chapman, is part of a Greater Boston YMCA program which allows high school students to learn about state government and participate in the process of the State House with other students from throughout Massachusetts. Students take on various roles in the state government including the legislative, executive, and judicial branches as well as lobbyists and the press corps.

Youth & Government is one of the YMCA's oldest programs established in 1936. The program teaches young people about state government, while at the same time helps them to develop their own character through learning values stressed by the YMCA - caring, respect, honesty, and responsibility.

Kristen Woodbury Vice President Rehab, Recovery Division At SSMH

South Shore Mental Health announces Quincy resident Kristen Woodbury, LMHC, has been named vice president of the nonprofit's Rehabilitation and Recovery Division.

KRISTEN WOODBURY

Woodbury previously served as the agency's director of Community-Based Flexible Supports (CBFS), a community- and residential-based program offering therapeutic services to adults living with serious mental illness.

In her new role, Woodbury will oversee the CBFS program as well as the agency's comprehensive day treatment program, and Community Outpatient clinic within the Quincy Mental Health Center. She will also oversee South Shore Mental Health's Peer-To-Peer program, which offers support to clients on evenings, weekends, and holidays.

"I am delighted that Kristen has accepted the position of vice president of the Rehabilitation and Recovery Division," said South Shore Mental Health Executive Vice President Stephen Wojcik. "She has been instrumental in the success of our community-based programs, and we look forward to her continued contributions as part of our leadership team."

Woodbury holds a Master of Arts degree in counseling psychology from Framingham State University and a Bachelor of Arts degree in women's studies from the University of South Florida

Spring Cleaning Your Personal Finances:
7 Tips From Credit Counseling Agency

Spring's arrival prompts many folks to embark on ambitious spring cleaning projects like purging closets and pantries. But spring cleaning should go beyond living spaces—your finances can likely use a facelift, too.

"It's easy to get lost in the paper trails, tasks and consistent budgeting that's required to maintain a solid financial outlook," said Mike Sullivan, a personal finance consultant with Take Charge America, a national nonprofit credit counseling and debt management agency. "It's critical to be organized and develop goal-oriented action plans in order to achieve financial independence."

Sullivan offers seven tips to de-clutter your finances this spring:

1. Refresh your budget – A realistic and balanced budget is the No. 1 tool in your financial arsenal. Take a close look at what you spend now, how much you make and your financial goals. How can you adapt spending patterns to free up more money? Is your budget filled with wants or needs? Document your budget on a simple worksheet or online, and review monthly to ensure you're on track.

2. Try out a mobile app -- Mobile apps like Mint, PocketGuard or Level make it easy and convenient to improve your personal finance habits. Each has different features based on your needs—some help with budgeting and bill pay, while others assist with paying off debts or monitoring your credit score.

3. Establish a bill-paying process – Enlist in auto-bill pay programs or create a calendar to track bills and due dates. An established process is especially important for families, couples or roommates who may need to split bills. Define each person's role and set reminders to help ensure bills get paid on time.

4. Create a plan to pay off your debt – Don't let fear or procrastination get in the way of a debt-free life. Adjust your budget and make a commitment to paying off credit cards and student loans. You can develop the plan yourself, or contact a nonprofit credit counseling agency for free resources and an action plan.

5. Review your insurance policies – Chat with your insurance providers about the possibility of securing lower rates on auto, life or home insurance. A lower monthly payment frees up more money in the rest of your budget.

6. Shred old financial documents – The IRS recommends keeping tax returns and other important documents for at least seven years after you file the return. Go through your tax files, shred older files and create a system that keeps your paperwork organized so it is easily accessible. Check out Bankrate's reference sheet to determine how long you should keep various types of financial documents.

7. Stop clutter before it starts – If you thought it was impossible to avoid credit card and loan solicitations, think again. You can opt out of most by calling the national credit bureau's hotline at 1-888-5-OPTOUT (67-8688).

Multiple Myeloma: Signs & Symptoms

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Multiple myeloma is a cancer that forms in a type of white blood cell called a plasma cell.

Plasma cells assist you in fighting infections by producing antibodies that identify and attack germs. Multiple myeloma causes cancer cells to accumulate in the bone marrow, where they crowd out healthy blood cells. The cancer cells produce abnormal proteins rather than producing helpful antibodies, which can result in kidney complications.

With this disease if you're not experiencing signs and symptoms you may not require treatment however, if signs and symptoms arise, a number of treatments can help control your multiple myeloma. Signs and symptoms of multiple myeloma can vary, and initially in the disease, there may be none.

When signs and symptoms do appear they can include:

- Bone pain, especially in your spine or chest
- Nausea
- Constipation
- Loss of appetite
- Mental fogginess or confusion
- Fatigue
- Frequent infections
- Weight loss
- Weakness or numbness in your legs
- Excessive thirst

It is well known by healthcare professionals that myeloma begins with one abnormal plasma cell in your bone marrow, the soft blood-producing tissue that makes up the center of the majority of your bones. This abnormal cell rapidly multiplies, and because cancer cells don't mature and die as normal cells do, they accumulate, eventually overpowering the production of healthy cells.

In the bone marrow, myeloma cells overcrowd healthy white blood cells and red blood cells, resulting in fatigue and an inability to combat infections. The myeloma cells persist in trying to produce antibodies, as healthy plasma cells do, but the myeloma cells produce abnormal antibodies that the body can't utilize. Inevitably, the abnormal antibodies (monoclonal proteins or M proteins) build up in the body and cause difficulties, such as damage to the kidneys.

Certain factors that may increase your risk of multiple myeloma include:

- Increasing age. Your risk of multiple myeloma increases as you age, with most people diagnosed in their mid-60s.
- Male sex. Men are more likely to develop the disease than are women.
- Black race. Blacks are about twice as likely to develop multiple myeloma as are whites.

Complications of multiple myeloma include:

- Frequent infections because myeloma cells inhibit your body's ability to fight infections.
- Bone problems leading to bone pain, thinning bones and broken bones.
- Reduced kidney function including kidney failure. Higher calcium levels in the blood related to eroding bones can interfere with your kidneys' ability to filter your blood's waste. The proteins produced by the myeloma cells can cause similar problems.
- Low red blood cell count (anemia), as myeloma cells crowd out normal blood cells.

If you receive a diagnosis of multiple myeloma, you'll likely be referred to a hematologist, a doctor who specializes in treating blood and bone marrow disorders or an oncologist who specializes in treating cancer.

Tests and procedures used to diagnose multiple myeloma can include:

- Blood tests. Laboratory analysis of your blood may reveal the M proteins produced by myeloma cells. Another abnormal protein produced by myeloma cells called beta-2-microglobulin may be detected in your blood and provides your doctor with indications about the aggressiveness of your myeloma. Additionally, blood tests to assess your kidney function, blood cell counts, calcium levels and uric acid levels can give your doctor clues about your diagnosis.
- Urine tests. Analysis of your urine may show M proteins, which are referred to as Bence Jones proteins when they're detected in urine.
- Examination of your bone marrow. Your doctor may remove a sample of bone marrow for laboratory testing. The sample is collected by performing a bone marrow aspiration and biopsy with a long needle inserted into a bone.
- Imaging tests. Imaging tests may be recommended to detect bone problems associated with multiple myeloma. Tests may include X-ray, MRI, CT or positron emission tomography (PET).

If tests suggest you have multiple myeloma, your healthcare provider will use the information gathered to classify your disease as stage 1, stage 2 or stage 3. Stage 1 indicates a less-aggressive form of the disease and stage 3 indicates an aggressive disease that may affect bone, kidneys and other organs. Your multiple myeloma may also be assigned a risk category, which additionally indicates the aggressiveness of your disorder.

Multiple myeloma stage and risk category help your doctor to comprehend your prognosis and identify your treatment options. Though there's no cure for multiple myeloma, with appropriate treatment you can usually return to near-normal activity.

Standard treatment options include:

- Targeted therapy. Targeted drug treatment focuses on specific abnormalities within cancer cells that permit them to survive. These drugs are given intravenously.
- Biological therapy. Biological therapy drugs use your body's immune system to attack myeloma cells. These medications are taken in pill form.
- Chemotherapy. Chemotherapy drugs kill rapidly growing cells, including myeloma cells. Chemotherapy drugs can be given both intravenously or in pill form.
- Corticosteroids. Corticosteroids, such as prednisone and dexamethasone, regulate the immune system to control inflammation in the body and also are active against myeloma cells. Corticosteroids can be taken in pill form or intravenously.
- Stem cell transplantation. A stem cell transplant is a procedure to replace your diseased bone marrow with healthy bone marrow.
- Radiation therapy. This treatment uses beams of energy, such as X-rays, to damage myeloma cells and halt their growth.

Complications of multiple myeloma can be numerous and may also necessitate treatment. These complications may involve, bone pain, kidney complications, infections, bone loss and anemia. Unfortunately, though no alternative medicines have been found to be successful in treating multiple myeloma, these remedies may help you cope with the side effects of myeloma and manage myeloma treatment.

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

QCAP, Bank Of Canton Homebuyers Workshop

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) in partnership with Bank of Canton, will host a comprehensive workshop designed for first time homebuyers next month.

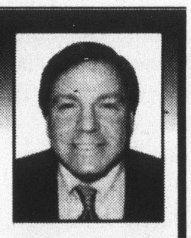
DENTISTRY for the 21st Century



by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

CARING FOR DENTURES

While dentures are not subject to decay, they do accumulate plaque, tartar, and stains. With this in mind, it is important to care for dentures much the same way natural teeth are cared for (except dentures are cleaned outside the mouth). This entails brushing dentures with a non-abrasive cleanser at least once a day. They should then be soaked in a mild soaking solution and thoroughly rinsed in water before being placed back in the mouth. Dentures should never be soaked in products containing bleach or placed in boiling water, which can cause them to deform. It should also be pointed out that a little dental adhesive goes a long way. Only two to three pea-sized dollops are needed.

Every day, people look back on their decision to get dentures as a way to improve their smile and overall health and are happy they made the choice. If you're considering dentures, we can walk you through every step of the way. To schedule an appointment, please call 617-479-6220. If you are looking for a cosmetic dentist, we would love to welcome you to our office as a new patient. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf St. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained staff and a qualified anesthesiologist.

P.S. Denture wearers should take a break from wearing dentures to minimize gum irritation.

Benefit Payment Schedule And Payment Method

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I'm approaching my full retirement age and about to apply for my Social Security benefits, but I would like to time receipt of my payment to the first of the month when I make out my bills. I've asked a number of friends when they get their Social Security and each one seems to have a different answer, so I'm wondering if I can specify when I apply what date I want to get my payment. Also, though some of my friends get their payment by check, I'd really like to have mine deposited directly into my bank account. Can this be done? Signed: Newbie to Social Security

Dear Newbie: Well, I'm sorry to disappoint you, but you don't get to choose when you receive your Social Security benefit payment. Rather, it's determined by Social Security's payment schedule, which is now normally based upon the day of the month you were born. I say "normally" because there are certain exceptions which need to be explained.

Social Security's payment schedule prior to May 1997 was that all OASDI (old age, survivor & disability insurance) payments were processed on the 3rd day of every month. But in May of 1997 a new payment schedule for newly enrolled OASDI beneficiaries was enacted so that anyone who applied for benefits on or after May 1, 1997 received their payment on either the 2nd, 3rd, or 4th Wednesday of the month, depending upon which day of the month they were born. People born between the 1st and 10th of the month are now paid on the 2nd Wednesday, those born between the 11th and 20th are paid on the 3rd Wednesday, and those born after the 20th are paid on the 4th Wednesday.

Those whose benefits started prior to May 1997 are grandfathered into their benefit payment date of the 3rd of each month. To somewhat complicate matters, people who receive both SSI (Supplemental Security Income) and OASDI benefits also receive their OASDI benefit payment on the 3rd day of every month and there are a few other obscure conditions which might cause OASDI payments to be made on the 3rd. So you can see why you may encounter people who receive their benefits at different times, but the normal is now based upon the day of the month you were born. It's important to also note that anytime a payment date falls on a weekend or Federal holiday, the benefit will be processed on the first business day preceding the weekend or holiday. To see the benefit payment schedule for 2017, go to https://www.ssa.gov/pubs/EN-05-10031-2017.pdf.

Now the easy part: Yes, you can choose to have your benefit automatically deposited into your bank account instead of receiving a printed check. In fact, the Social Security Administration encourages direct deposit and allows you to easily set that up during the online benefit application process.

Girl Scouts, QCU Partner For World Thinking Day Fair

As part of their continued effort to support financial education and our community, Quincy Credit Union partnered with the Quincy Girl Scouts at this year's World Thinking Day Fair.

World Thinking Day is a worldwide effort to rally the Girl Scout sisterhood, promote growth and learn various ways to earn leadership badges.

QCU teamed up with Amy Trillcott of Troop 74120, who is working to earn her Girl Scout Gold Award through a "Finance for Life" Project. QCU Financial Literacy Specialist Lauren Pedretti presented various workshops, activities and resources available from QCU on money management and making sound financial decisions.

In April, as a kick-off to financial literacy month, Pedretti will return to visit troops and educate the scouts so they are able to earn the various financial literacy badges.

New President, Merger For Eastern Nazarene College

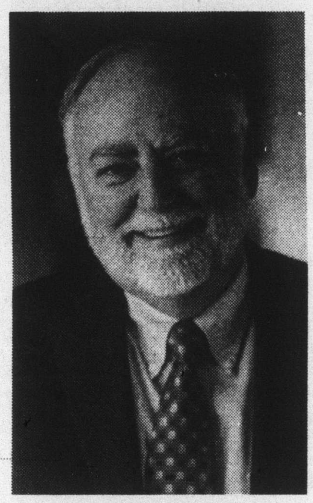
The Eastern Nazarene College Board of Trustees voted unanimously March 24th to elect Dr. Dan Boone as the college's 14th president and approve a Memorandum of Understanding that begins a formal three-year exploration of merger with Nashville's Trevecca Nazarene University.

The vote by ENC's board of trustees follows a similar vote last week by the Trevecca Nazarene University board, which also gave unanimous approval to the agreement.

Under the terms of the agreement, Trevecca President Dan Boone will serve as president-elect of Eastern Nazarene College effective immediately and until Sept. 1, when he will be formally installed as ENC's 14th president. Boone succeeds Dr. Corlis McGee, who is stepping down in May at the end of this academic year after 12 years as president.

Boone will continue to serve as the president of Trevecca.

"We're delighted to welcome Dr. Boone to the ENC community," said Russell Long, chairman of the ENC Board of Trustees. "We are confident that this new partnership with Trevecca will strengthen both institutions' shared mission of providing a Christian liberal arts education centered on service and leadership."



Dr. DAN BOONE

Boone will work with a group of ENC and TNU administrators and trustees to fully engage this exploration. He was on ENC's Quincy campus last week to meet with faculty, staff and students following the board's vote.

A graduate of Trevecca, Boone holds a master's degree from Nazarene Theological Seminary and a doctorate from McCormick Theological Seminary. He is author of 16 books, past chair of the Tennessee Independent Colleges and Universities Association, and present chair of the NCAA Division II GMAC President's Council. In addition to serving in pastoral ministry for more than 30 years, he has taught at the university and seminary level, becoming Trevecca's 11th president in 2005.

"Today is a historic day that marks a new partnership between two great Christian educational institutions. I am humbled by the challenge of serving as the president of both," said Boone. "In a changing world, it is our duty to find ways to meet the needs of students seeking the formative influence of Christian higher education.

"This collaboration will allow both Trevecca and ENC to do that for years to come. As an institution experiencing historic growth and financial stability, we are delighted to explore a new model of Christian higher education in partnership with ENC."

College officials believe that this process, when fully implemented, will result in significant learning and co-curricular opportunities for students on both campuses, as well as increased operational cost efficiencies, shared program resources and expanded impact. Both institutions expect to use technology to expand course offerings, with students and faculty participating in classes and academic exchanges.

It is the intent of the exploration process to maintain the name and identity of Eastern Nazarene College. During the three-year process, the two institutions will continue to operate as independent institutions under their respective accrediting bodies and boards of governance.

This exploration of merger comes at a time when Trevecca is experiencing dramatic growth. Founded in 1901, the 116-year-old university is the fastest growing university in Middle Tennessee, adding 581 students to total enrollment in the last year for a total enrollment of 3,221. Trevecca's School of Graduate and Continuing Studies achieved a 47 percent year-over-year increase in adult studies and graduate students from Fall 2015 to Fall 2016. With students from 43 states and 16 countries, Trevecca offers 15 associate degrees, 84 undergraduate majors, 19 master's programs, and two doctoral programs, as well as specialist and certificate programs.

Pouryard Opening

Cagney's, located at 214 Washington St., and the restaurant space next door are in two separate buildings and there was no easy way to connect the two, DiBona said, which is why he sought a second all alcohol license rather than operate them both under the same one.

Under Quincy's regulations, the patio will be allowed to open between Patriots Day in April and Columbus Day in October. The hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily, with final food orders taken at 10 p.m. The board had imposed several conditions in September to limit noise on the patio – DiBona was not allowed to have live music or televisions in the space, but could play background music – that will carry over after the transfer.

DiBona said he would go before the Zoning Board of Appeals for permission to install sound barriers to further limit noise.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest supported DiBona's request for the liquor license. She said he's been responsive to her and members of the board, and noted Cagney's has not had a single liquor violation since DiBona opened it in 1991.

"He has really been true to his word and what's great about him as an operator is if a question does come to me I call him and he's very responsive immediately, and I know many of the board members have had that same experience," Laforest said.

"In 25 years, it's pretty rare that a business has never had a liquor violation… that's outstanding for an operator in our community."

Two nearby businesses submitted letters in favor of DiBona's request. One was from Sean Kenealy of Key Realty at 144 Washington St. and the other was from Frank Calabro, business manager for Laborers Local 88, whose union hall is at 170 Washington St.

Paul Chenette, who owns the building at 204 Washington St. that includes a plumbing shop and three apartments, opposed the request. Chenette said his tenants living at 204 Washington St., which is next door to the patio, called him to complain about noise on the patio when it was open for a special event last October, though the police were never called about the noise complaint.

"My tenants have a right to a safe, quiet environment," Chenette said.

Chenette's attorney, former city solicitor Jay MacRitchie, said he was concerned that the 25-seat restaurant could be granted permission to use a patio with nearly twice as many seats.

"Two-thirds of the total licensed seats are going to be outside," he said.

Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca said the total number of patrons on the liquor license could exceed the capacity of the physical restaurant in such a case.

Concerns were also raised regarding parking – the restaurant has no parking lot.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, the board's chairman, said DiBona could count on on street parking because he is operating a business in an area zoned as Business B.

"Not every building has parking because it's an old city," Duca added. "This is not a new building – this is an existing building – so there is a different set of rules and circumstances."

Police Chief Paul Keenan said the board was only being asked to consider adding a restaurant with 21 new seats, because the patio is already in place.

"The deck is there. Cagney's is there. We're adding 21 seats," he said. "That's really what's at issue here,"

Fire Chief Joseph Barron said DiBona should continue to work with Chenette to address his concerns about noise, but supported the request.

"I don't see any groundswell of opposition to this," he said.

The board voted 4-0 to grant DiBona's request.

Red Cross Lifeguard Training Course

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Course at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool during April School Vacation, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The course is open to participants who are at least 15 years of age and capable of passing a pre-requisite water skills test.

The prerequisite swim test will be given to all candidates on Thursday, April 13 at 7 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Class will be held on Tuesday, April 18th through Friday, April 21st from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Registration for the course is limited and can be done online at QuincyRec.com, by phone at (617) 376-1394, or in person at the Quincy Recreation office, One Merrymount Parkway, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The cost of the program is $140, which includes all books, supplies, and Red Cross fees.

Upon successful completion of the course, an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Certificate, CPR for the Professional Rescuer and First Aid Skills will be issued.

For more information visit QuincyRec.com or call 617-376-1394.

First-Time Homebuyers Workshop April 11, April 13

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. to offer first-time homebuyer workshop in Quincy

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. will offer a two-part workshop for first-time homebuyers, to be held from 5 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, April 11 and Thursday, April 13 at the Winter Gardens apartment complex (lower level community room), located at 45 Winter St. in Quincy.

Sponsored by Dedham Institution of Savings, the workshop will give participants an opportunity to meet and hear from real estate brokers, insurance agents, attorneys and loan originators.

Attendees also will have an opportunity to learn about the South Shore Home Consortium's down payment assistance programs, which may provide qualified buyers with up to 9 percent of the purchase price toward their down payment and up to an additional 1 percent toward closing costs on homes purchased in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Holbrook or Milton.

Workshop participants will also be able to speak to a lender about different mortgage options.

The registration fee for the workshops is $20 per person.

To register and pay online, visit www.nwsoma.org or call Elvira Caldeira at (617) 770-2227 x34 for more information.

Anyone wishing to donate items may drop them off at the church on Friday, March 31st from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Merchandise can also be picked up. Call Nancy at 617-479-6441 for assistance.

New Restaurant Replacing Villa Rosa

borhood, family-friendly [restaurant]," Kelly said. "Everyone is going to feel welcome."

The new establishment will seat 145 people, the same capacity as the Villa Rosa. The Brick and Beam will also have a 1 a.m. closing time, just as the Villa Rosa did.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, the chairman of the licensing board, said he had fielded a number of calls from residents after the Villa Rosa closed last year. Those same neighbors, he said, welcomed the new plans for the venue.

"When I did speak with neighbors they actually praised the gentlemen that were purchasing it. They were very much relieved to know that's what it was going to be," Scheele said.

Several residents spoke at the meeting.

John McHugh, who lives on Victory Avenue, said several residents on his street had concerns about noise.

"We're concerned about noise – this is a neighborhood," he said.

McHugh asked about outdoor seating and whether the restaurant's windows would open, allowing noise out. No outdoor seating will be offered, and Kelly, the restaurant's manager, said the owners opted not to install windows that can open up because of neighborhood concerns.

Wallace Road resident Don Donahue said his neighbors were looking forward to the new restaurant.

"All I can ask of you folks is to be respectful of our neighborhood," he said. "I think most of us on Wallace Road look forward to a first-class establishment."

In other business March 21, the board approved a common victualler license for Baja Box, which will open in April at 793 Quincy Shore Drive.

The restaurant is taking over the space that housed the Ice Box, and is owned by Bryan Schwanke, who owns both the Ice Box and neighboring Clam Box, and Thomas Holloway. Baja Box will be open seasonally starting in April and will offer tacos and related food in addition to ice cream and beverages.

The board also granted 16C, located at 16 Cottage Ave., permission to serve alcohol starting at 10 a.m. on Sundays. Owner Kerry Delaney plans to offer brunch inside the restaurant.

BC High Confers Saint Ignatius, Shields Medals

William Kemeza, president of Boston College High School, recently presented St. Ignatius Awards, the highest honor bestowed on a graduate of BC High, to James Lane of Easton, a 1983 graduate, General Joseph Dunford, Jr. of Quincy, a 1973 graduate and James McInnis of Brewster, a 1953 graduate. He presented the Thomas & Mary Shields Medal, an honor bestowed on a non-graduate of BC High to Patricia Casey of Newton.

The awards, acknowledging those who have exemplified the ideals of B.C. High School through high moral character and selfless service to the community, were presented before more than 1,600 BC High students, faculty, staff, past recipients and invited guests in the McNeice Pavilion. Their wonderful acceptance speeches urged the students to practice humility and gratitude and remember that it is better to serve than to be served.

"Let both your good decisions and not so good decisions guide you. If we knew the outcomes we wouldn't need faith," Jim Lane advised the students. Lane went on to remark how B.C. High took him out of his comfort zone, but that was what he needed at the time, a message that most students can relate to.

General Dunford exemplifies the ideals of BC High through his high moral character and selfless service to his country. Presently, General Dunford, is the 19th chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the the highest ranking military officer in the U.S. Armed Forces. The Congressional Medal of Honor Society in 2015 presented him with its highest award, the Patriot Award, for his dignity, compassion and courage.

Jim McInnis is a man with a steadfast commitment to serve God and his people through his lifelong goal of improving urban education and his unwavering support of programs designed to benefit inner city populations. Jim established and administers the O'Brien Foundation which subsidizes individuals and non-profit organizations who seek to educate underserved youth. The Foundation has been able to award over $17 million in scholarships and funds for educational programs.

The Shields Medal is the school's highest award for a member of the community who is not a graduate. This award also honors the moral character and selfless service that the recipient exemplifies in their lives. This year, Trustee Pat Casey was honored for her on-going work to better BC High through enrollment, research and planning. Casedy remarked that every time she visits BC High she is renewed by the energy and purpose our students exhibit in their daily lives.

Combined Garden Clubs Annual Meeting April 5

Tthe Houghs Neck Garden Club will host the Combined Annual Meeting of the three Quincy Garden Clubs - Houghs Neck, Seaside Gardeners of Squantum, and Wollaston – Wednesday, April 5.

This is a long-standing tradition and the speaker at the even is Art Scarpa presenting Art Scarpa's Traveling Cactus and Succulent Show. Scarpa will bring over 100 plants and his presentation will cover the plants' native habitat and cultural requirements.

The meeting will take place at the Thomas Aquinas Hall on Darrow Street, Quincy, beginning at 6:45 p.m.

The club announces the acceptance of its entry in Art in Bloom to be held at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, April 29 – May 1, 2017. HNGC member, Cynthia Lewis, assisted by Susan Boudreau, will create a floral arrangement, inspired by one of the museum's artworks, which will be on display during the event.

The club's main annual fundraiser will be held on Saturday, June 10th. This community event, "Springtime by the Sea," will be a garden tour of Houghs Neck. More details to follow in future issues of The Quincy Sun.

The HNGC will be granting scholarship awards this year to qualifying Quincy high school seniors. See the Guidelines printed separately (below). The application deadline is May 1.

The Club is a member of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts and National Garden Clubs, Inc.

To find out more about the Club visit our website at: http://hngc123.wix.com/houghsneckgardenclub/.

Garden Club Student Award

The Houghs Neck Garden Club (HNGC) is granting awards to graduating high school seniors who have been residents of Quincy for the last two years and who have been accepted to a school of higher learning.

Additionally, applicants must plan to concentrate in one of the following the fields: conservation, horticulture, botany, oceanography, forestry, city planning, landscape design, land management, environmental studies, or an allied field.

Applications are available from local high school counselors or by contacting a member of the HNGC. Completed, signed applications must be delivered to Carol Johnston, 46 Bay View Avenue, Quincy, MA, 02169. The deadline for submitting applications is May 1, 2017.

Upon timely receipt of completed applications, accompanied by a written statement of each student's educational goals (students should not write their names on the essay page), the HNGC Student Awards Committee will review and consider materials. Student(s) granted an award will be notified by phone or mail by May 15, 2017.

ISS To Host South Shore Walk, Race April 29

Depression. Addiction. Anxiety. These illnesses affect one in five adults every year.

On April 29, participants in Interfaith Social Services' South Shore Walk & 5K race will lace up to challenge the stereotypes of these illnesses as they run and walk to raise funds for Interfaith's New Directions Counseling Center.

"It shameful that there are stigmas associated with addiction, depression and other mental health issues," said Rick Doane, executive director of Interfaith Social Services. "People talk openly about their struggles with ailments like diabetes and cancer. However, many keep mental illness under wraps."

Interfaith is inviting participants take part in their 5K race to take a stand against these stigmas. "This race gives us an opportunity to proclaim that there is no shame in mental illness," said Doane. "Walkers and runners fill the streets of Quincy. We walk, run and rally with family, friends and others to show those who are suffering that they can hold their heads high, their community stands with them."

Registration is now open for the race, a scenic and challenging 5K course through Quincy's Squantum and Marina Bay neighborhoods. The Boston skyline and Dorchester Bay serve as a picturesque backdrop on this sometimes hilly but well-paved course, which starts at The Kennedy Center in Quincy.

Families are encouraged to join runners and walkers after the race for a Family Fun Celebration at The Kennedy Center. The celebration will include a kids' Fun Run, music, a bounce house, face painting and more. The New England Revolution Battalion (the street team for Revolution Soccer) and Dave & Busters will provide additional games and prizes. Pizza and snacks will be available for all participants as well as chilly treats from New England Ice Cream. Runners can relax with a neck and shoulder massage from Body Benefit Massage Therapy. Visit InterfaithSocialServices.org/WalkAnd5k to register.

All race proceeds benefit Interfaith's New Directions Counseling Center, which is in its 70th year of offering compassionate and skilled counseling to the South Shore. New Directions is a safety net for the community, ensuring that anyone can receive care, regardless of health insurance status or income. While Massachusetts has one of the highest rates of insured residents in the nation, there are still nearly 9,000 South Shore residents without health insurance. New Directions serves this population and all of the other underinsured residents, who cannot afford the copays by their carriers.

"Regardless of income, insurance status or diagnosis, Interfaith's therapists stand ready to serve anyone who comes to us for assistance," said Doane. "All proceeds from the South Shore Walk & 5K Race go directly to providing care for those with no place else to turn for help."

The South Shore Walk & 5K Race is supported by many local businesses, including platinum sponsors: Arbella Insurance and BMC HealthNet Plan, and gold sponsor Quincy College. For more information contact Interfaith's Director of Development Paula Daniels at 617-773-6203 ext. 28 or pdaniels@interfaithsocialservices.org.

Quincy Man Pleads Not Guilty Of Murdering Ex-Wife

Yan Long Chow Indicted After 6-Month Investigation; Prosecutors Say Defendant Drove Over Woman Purposefully Four Times In Driveway

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A 55-year-old Quincy man is being held without bail after pleading not guilty to murdering his ex-wife in the driveway of the home they shared in Wollaston last September.

Yan Long Chow was arraigned March 23rd in Norfolk Superior Court, for the murder of Zhen Li. Prosecutors said Chow purposefully ran over his Li, his ex-wife, four times in the driveway at 21 Phillips St., Wollaston, on the afternoon of Sept. 2, 2016.

Chow pleaded not guilty before Judge Beverly Cannon. He was held without bail and has been ordered to return to court for a pre-trial conference May 8.

In a six-and-a-half page indictment prosecutors said Chow struck Li while operating a 2015 Toyota Sienna and then drove over her four times in the driveway causing fatal injuries. Li, age 52 at the time of the incident, was pronounced dead at the scene.

Investigators said the minivan was in sound working condition with no malfunction with the braking, steering, or acceleration of the vehicle. A rear back-up camera mounted within the front interior of the vehicle in the middle of the dash area "was fully functioning" at the time of the incident.

Prosecutors described a gruesome scene upon arrival to the driveway. They also said the motive may have been a domestic dispute over the defendant's gambling and the victim's desire to leave the city to return to her native China.

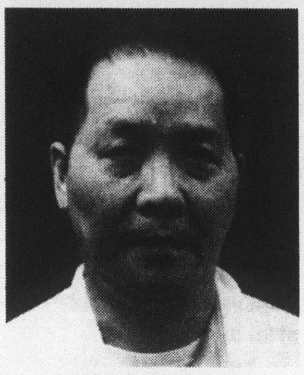
Chow and Li resided together at 21 Phillips St. and were formerly husband and wife.

The following account was given by the Norfolk County District Attorney's office at Chow's arraignment March 23. Some of the statements and descriptions relative to Ms. Li's injuries are graphic.

Quincy Police were dispatched to the home at 2:26 p.m. on Sept. 2 to a report of a single vehicle collision within a private driveway at 21 Phillips St. The crash involved a single pedestrian, identified as Zhen Li, and single vehicle, the Toyota Sienna van. The van was operated by its registered and sole occupant, Yan Long Chow, the defendant, at the time of the collision.

Upon arrival, Quincy Police Officer Jim Whedbee and Sgt. James Flaherty observed the victim, Ms. Li, lying face down in the driveway in front of the van, with her left hand behind her back and her right hand under her head.

The officers' arrival was preceded by Brewster Ambulance paramedics, Ron Eddy and Robert Law, who located the victim in essentially the same condition and had attempted to turn her body over. Upon doing so, the paramedics observed that the upper half of Ms. Li's body rolled while the lower half did not. Upon their examination of Ms. Li, the paramedics observed a large hole on the right side of her head near her ear, exposing her skull and brain. They also observed her exposed, eviscerated organs – her heart and partial liver – next to her on the ground.



YAN LONG CHOW
Quincy Police Photo

Ms. Li had no pulse and was pronounced dead on scene.

Her body was located upon the arrival of the paramedics with her head to the left of the driveway, on a grass portion adjacent to the driveway, and her feet toward the middle of the van. The van was located at the bottom of the driveway, just before the victim's body.

The defendant complained on scene of chest pains and was evaluated by paramedics. He was then transported to Quincy Medical Center where he was treated and released within hours of his arrival.

According to prosecutors, the driveway led to a residence at 19-21 Phillips St., a multi-family dwelling owned solely by Ms. Li, as a result of a quitclaim deed from Mr. Chow to her years before. The couple resided together on the second floor at 21 Phillips St., while tenants of theirs occupied 19 Phillips St. on the first floor. An additional tenant resided in the attic area of the home.

The driveway between 19-21 Phillips St. is shared with the next door neighboring home at 17 Phillips St. The driveway is composed of dark asphalt that had been recently paved.

There was a stockade fence between the driveway and the residence of 19-21 Phillips St. The driveway is straight on its right boundary, as viewed from the street looking into the driveway, however, it jogs slightly to the left on its left boundary, behind 19-21 Phillip St. There is a portion of fencing that divides the parking at the top of the driveway, farthest from the street, creating sufficient room for two vehicles to park there side-by-side, on the left of said fencing, in front of a two-car garage for 19-21 Phillips St.

According to investigators, there was a car, registered to the attic tenant, parked to the right of said spacing in front of the garage. None of the tenant occupants of 19-21 Phillips St., nor the neighbors at 17 Phillips St., were home at the time that the incident occurred.

Both family members and neighbors told police the defendant would always park the couple's vehicle at the bottom of the driveway, near the street, and that typically when leaving the residence, the defendant would enter the driver's side and the victim would enter the front passenger's side of the van.

Both Officer Whedbee and Sgt. Flaherty photographed the scene and took measurements. They analyzed the scene, the vehicle, certain evidence from the surface of the driveway as well as the vehicle itself, both on scene that date and at a subsequent inspection of the vehicle.

They reported that the vehicle had no indication of fresh damage to it. Sgt. Flaherty drove the vehicle onto a flatbed tow truck and observed no malfunctions with the braking, steering, or acceleration of the vehicle. The sergeant further noted a fully-functioning rear backup camera mounted within the front interior of the vehicle in the middle dash area.

The officers noted two parallel drag marks in front of the van extending several yards up the driveway, with a slight jog to the right, heading away from the van. Directly in front of the van, they observed a large blood stain with clumps of the victim's hair in it, as well as a piece of her belt and some clothing buttons. They further observed two additional small pools of blood draining away from this stain and leading away from the front right of the van, they noted evenly spaced bloody tire marks. Inside the van, the officers located the victim's purse, as well as some bloody napkins.

Mr. Chow was transported from the scene by ambulance to QMC at his request. He was interviewed at the hospital by the officers and stated that he pulled forward from the bottom of the driveway to pick up Ms. Li, who had just exited the house from a side door near the top of the driveway when he claimed he felt dizzy and blacked out.

Mr. Chow further stated that although he knew he had run over Ms. Li, he backed up, hit her again, but did not see anything, so he pulled forward again, and then backed up the vehicle to the bottom of the driveway, where he found the victim in front of the van.

According to prosecutors, the defendant stated he and his ex-wife were leaving the home to go to East Boston to pick up signs for their business. Mr. Chow indicated he called 911 and attempted to render aid to the victim. He also stated he moved Ms. Li's shoes and purse and placed them within the van. Mr. Chow also told police he had wiped blood from his hands with some napkins and placed them within the victim's purse in the van.

The defendant's medical records from QMC were later obtained and indicated Mr. Chow reported no dizziness, shortness of breath, or diaphoresis while there. He said he and the victim had no marital issues and had been married for 30 years before divorcing in 2005.

Ms. Li's body was transported from the scene to the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner in Boston. An autopsy revealed Ms. Li had sustained multiple skull fractures, multiple jaw fractures, her torso and rib cage were crushed, she had part of an organ within her mouth, several abdominal organs had been pushed into her chest, her heart and liver were eviscerated from her abdomen, her pelvis had been fractured in several places, she had a break in her right humerus, and her right hand had suffered numerous fractures as well. In addition, the victim had sustained several abrasions, contusions, and lacerations throughout her entire body.

Investigators later learned the defendant and victim had been married in China prior to moving to the U.S. together. Much of the defendant's family also lived locally within the U.S. The victim had one brother living locally, while the remainder of the family still resides in China.

Mr. Chow and Ms. Li had two adult children – one son and one daughter – and shared ownership interested in a restaurant in Boston, where they both worked. In 2005, the couple was divorced while living in New Hampshire.

Despite the divorce, Mr. Chow and Ms. Li continued to reside and work together until the victim's death six and a half months ago. Police also later learned through interviews with family members and neighbors the couple argued often, with the primary issue being the gambling of the defendant. They said victim had indicated to her mother that she was upset with the defendant, the day prior to her death, as the defendant had not returned home for two successive days as he was gambling in Boston, police said.

From their investigation on scene, inspection of the vehicle, and subsequent investigation, police say Mr. Chow drove over Ms. Li four separate times in the driveway. Further, they believe the defendant drove forward from the left side bottom of the driveway and traveled up the driveway, turning slightly right, as evidenced by a foil pack of cosmetics, from Ms. Li's purse, being run over and the contents being forced out in the direction of travel, striking the victim with the vehicle.

Ms. Li was run over, according to investigators, as evidenced by an impression of her shoes' heels left in the driveway, and became lodged under the vehicle. Mr. Chow, prosecutors said, then manually shifted the vehicle into reverse and backed up, dragging the victim as he went and straightening the vehicle's wheel so as to avoid contact with either the stockade fence or the house as he returned to the bottom left of the driveway.

Ms. Li "became dislodged from the bottom of the vehicle as the van reached its initial starting point, her body now in front of the van," the indictment stated. "At this point, Mr. Chow drove forward over Ms. Li again, with the front and rear wheels crushing her, as evidenced by blood marks left in the driveway evenly spaced identical to the track width of the vehicle's tires.

"Mr. Chow," the indictment further states, "then proceeded to reverse over the victim once again, returning the vehicle to its initial starting point. At this point, based on the large blood stain, the officers determined that Ms. Li's head was located to the right front of the van. However, upon their arrival, her head was on the grass to the left side of the van, with the defendant beside her.

"In addition, the defendant had moved both the victim's shoes and purse and placed them within the van as well."

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey said, "Members of our motor vehicle homicide response team joined Quincy Police investigators at the scene that day on what was initially claimed to be a fatal accident. The Quincy Police, including their collision reconstruction officers, and State Police detectives attached to my office have been investigating since that time. As a result of that investigation, a Norfolk County Grand Jury issued a first-degree murder indictment March 22, 2017."

Chow was arrested March 23 at the Quincy Police Station by Quincy and State Police.

"I thank the Quincy Police and their Traffic Reconstruction Unit, the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner, State Police detectives from my office and Assistant District Attorneys Adam Lally and Michael A. Pirrello for months of work culminating in this indictment," Dist. Atty. Morrissey said.

"Rock Solid Security"

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, March 19, at approximately 12:30 p.m., Officer James Parisi was dispatched to 215 Quincy Ave. (Old Bradlees/Dollar Tree lot) on a complaint of vehicles parked in the fire lane. As the officer pulled into the parking lot, he saw that it was full and with vehicles searching for spots.

As the officer approached the storefronts, he saw three cars parked in a row in the fire lane. The fire lane was clearly marked with pavement markings and signs on every support column that abutted it.

Officer Parisi parked his cruiser behind the first car in line and began to reach for his ticket book. He then saw a female come out of the Dollar Tree and enter the first car in line, so he approached the driver and informed her that he would be writing her a parking ticket. She pointed to the car in front of her and said, "You're not going to write him a ticket?" He told her that he would be and instructed her to wait where she was.

Officer Parisi informed the other two drivers that they were to wait while he wrote out a ticket for the parking violation. As the officer was standing outside his cruiser attempting to write the female a ticket for the parking violation, she got out of her car, stood in the travel area of the parking lot and began a tirade against the officer. She accused the officer of have nothing better to do than harass people, claiming that she was only in the fire lane for "two seconds," that she went into the store to get a card for her daughter and she wanted to get to her daughter's play. She called the Officer "An a$$%^&* and then said, "You're only doing this because you didn't get any last night!"

The officer told the female to get back in her car and wait. She eventually complied but continued screaming.

She was only in her car a few moments when she got back out and again stood in the travel area of the parking lot while repeating her earlier statements and insults. Officer Parisi told her that the more she yelled the longer it would take for to write the ticket because he had to pay attention to her. She kept saying that the officer could mail her the ticket and she was leaving. Since mailing out parking tickets is not an option, the officer told her repeatedly she was not to leave. At this time, a citizen approached the officer and volunteered to be a witness against the female for her irrational behavior. The officer thanked the citizen and continued to write out the ticket. The citizen remained on scene.

LT. DAN MINTON

As the female continued her tirade, people who had been going about their business stopped to watch her. Several people inside the Dollar Tree stood on the inside of the door and stared out. The female got back into her vehicle after numerous requests were made and then yelled to the officer to mail her a ticket. Officer Parisi told her several more times that she was not to leave. She then put the car in reverse gear. She was ordered to stop and shut the car off but she initially refused.

Concerned that she was about to drive off in an agitated state through a crowded parking lot, the officer again ordered her to shut the car off and turn over the keys. She turned the car off briefly, then took the keys out and put them back in the ignition a few times all the while continuing to make personal verbal attacks at the officer. As the officer demanded the keys, the female saw a woman standing on the sidewalk.

Without warning, the female quickly stood up out of her car almost hitting the officer with the door. She called out to the woman, "You're a witness." The lady quickly replied, "I'm not a witness for you. He is being nice," referring to the officer. The female's disruptive behavior was not subsiding and she was now directly involving people who but for her actions would otherwise have no contact with her. Based on all the warnings and failed compliance, the Officer placed the female under arrest for disorderly conduct.

Officers Steve Cleary and Robert Connell arrived on scene and assisted in placing the uncooperative female in the backseat of the cruiser. The female was told twice to lean back so a seatbelt could be put on her, but she refused.

The female, a 37-year-old Quincy resident, had her vehicle towed and was issued a parking ticket along with the criminal charge. The other two cars in the fire lane were not cited because the female's actions occupied the officer's attention and time.

Nice Work!

NEXTDOOR: Recently, a citizen wrote in NEXTDOOR that he heard from the Police (did not say what department) that car owners should lock their doors manually because there are devices that can remotely unlock your car doors, providing access to criminals.

Although these devices exist, they are not used to randomly go down a side street unlocking car doors in hopes of finding valuables. They are more often used by professionals to gain quiet entry into a rare or expensive vehicle to steal it.

So how are criminals getting into cars? Almost all of the car breaks in Quincy are because people leave their cars unlocked. For the victims who say that they are sure they locked their car doors, the lack of evidence of a forced entry leads back to the car being unlocked. If there is a rash of car breaks in an area and all were left unlocked, then it is likely that the owner forgot to lock their doors. In the rare case where a window was broken to gain access to the contents of a vehicle, it is usually for one of two reasons; valuables are left in plain view, like a lap top or a purse, or because it is personal, such as retaliation or domestic violence.

Also in NEXTDOOR, a citizen reported seeing a male hanging around on a side street at 2:00 a.m., which he thought was unusual and perhaps suspicious. NEXTDOOR is a great site to exchange information but it is not a timely method for law enforcement because it is not monitored by the Police 24 hours a day. In fact, the only way the Department knows about what is on NEXTDOOR is through Officers who live in the area. The Quincy Police Department urges you to call us at "911" if someone is hanging around your neighborhood at that hour and let us check him/her out, for your sake and that of your neighbors.

island is decorated with 400 American flags representing U.S. veterans who served, are still serving or died in action. There is also a new brick walkway leading to the island's main flag pole. Bricks are engraved with the names of veterans and their branch of service.

A second phase of bricks is underway at the island as well. These will be put down near the flower bed located at one end of the island.

Through the sale of bricks and flags the Sons have raised more than $9,000. The money is donated to veterans' causes including The American Legions's Child's Welfare Foundation and Operation Comfort Warriors. The money is also spent on events and outings for area disabled and hospitalized veterans.

Although not a service veteran, Paul Moody has answered the call to help veterans throughout the city and beyond. You could say this call was engrained in him from his parents who were both World War II veterans. His mother, Anne, was a lieutenant and an Army nurse. His father, James, served in the U.S. Army Engineers.

"I've always told people that I feel that I came from a military family because my father's three brothers, and my mother and father, were all in the service at the same time during World War II. I have cousins that all went into the service. And I went to work at the Fore River shipyard building Navy ships for 20 years."

Paul says he is looking forward to spending more time caring for Flags for Veterans Island at his own leisure. He says the island will be decorated earlier this year for Memorial Day.

"The flags will be going up on Patriots Day, Monday, April 17. We will probably take them down a little earlier, too – probably after Flag Day in June instead of waiting until after the Fourth of July," he says.

With Moody winding down his full–time career with the City of Quincy, he reflects on what he'll miss and who has helped him along the way.

"I'll miss the people - more than the job itself. But I enjoyed coming to work. I enjoyed doing my work. You have your good days and you have your bad days. I did enjoy coming to work every day."

He credits two former employees as his mentors.

"I had two good teachers. When I first started with the meters I had Paul Earl. He was a mentor. And then there was a road boss named Peter Gavin. I learned an awful lot from him, too. They are both retired now.

"As they say, 'you got to listen to learn.' And that's what these guys always told me. They would show me something and then say 'remember what I just showed you.'

"Paul Earl worked the emergency truck for many years. He knew this city. He pointed out a lot of things to me that I still remember today. I know where to shut things down without any plans."

Paul Moody is old-school with an Ivy League pedigree.

"People ask me, 'where's my computer?' And I tell them, 'My computer is right here," he says gesturing to the side of his head. "It's upstairs here."

Happy Retirement, Paul Moody.

You deserve it.

Quincy Yacht Club Rebuilding Nearly Complete

Five Years After Fire, Structure Upgraded With Renovations; Club Seeking New Members

By SCOTT JACKSON

Renovations to the Quincy Yacht Club's building on Sea Street are nearly complete, more than five years after a two-alarm fire caused serious damage.

The February 2012 fire at the yacht club, located at 1310 Sea St., spread through the walls and floors of the building and took more than five hours to extinguish. Club members have spent the last five years renovating the structure to bring it into compliance with building codes.

"It was really unexpected," QYC member Christopher Fox said recently. "Obviously, no fire is ever expected, but we didn't realize what was going to happen because once we had the damage from the fire assessed it impacted the plumbing, it impacted the electrical, it impacted the structure of the building, and once you start touching those things you now have to make everything code compliant.

"The size of the building is substantial, and we needed to invest substantial amounts of money in shoring up the building from below as well as structurally. All new electrical, all new plumbing, heating, cooling, the whole nine yards."

Fox, who is chairman of the club's membership committee, said much of the first floor is now complete. It hosted a Christmas party last December as well as a meeting of the Quincy Bay Race Week organizing committee earlier this year.

"We have all of our licenses from the city, obviously, and our permits. We have what is called a temporary occupancy permit, so we're able to operate under very close scrutiny of the city," Fox said. "They've been very supportive and want to make sure we're following the rules that were put forward."

The Nash Hall, located on the second floor, still awaits renovations. The club also plans to paint its exterior – now grey – red, to match its original color. Marty Aikens, QYC's commodore, said the club is in the process of finalizing financing to finish the work.

"We are working with Quincy Bay Credit Union to secure financing for the final phases, which includes the Nash Hall," Aikens said. "Once we opened the first floor the calls have been coming in daily to book the Nash Hall; it's hard to have to tell people whose hearts are set on using the QYC for their reception or special event that we have not yet completed work on the Nash Hall.

"We have a contractor ready to start once we secure the financing. It's very exciting to have part of the club open and we are very eager to commence work and have the entire club finished."

The Quincy Yacht Club was founded in 1874. When the club held its first regatta that August, it had already reached 69 members and 37 yachts. James Slade, the secretary of the Quincy School Board, was the club's commodore.

The club was based out of Quincy Point – where it had a ramp and float – until it moved to Manet Beach in 1888. Its members over the years have included Quincy mayors Charles Francis Adams III – who would later serve as secretary of the Navy under Herbert Hoover – and Thomas Burgin. Henry Faxon, who gave Quincy the land now known as Faxon Park, was also a member.

Today, the Quincy Yacht Club has approximately 150 paying members, plus numerous lifetime members who have been with the organization for at least 30 years. To help boost its ranks, the club is launching a membership drive in April.

"The club has been a presence in Quincy since 1874," Fox said. "Like Quincy, it has had its ups and downs, but the people who are members of the club are resilient, they've worked for the past four years to build upon the past and make the club stronger and better, and now we're looking to bring in new members who will help carry on that tradition of being a good neighbor as well as enjoy boating and the boating lifestyle"

During the membership drive, the $500 initiation fee will be reduced to $250.

"For the month of April we're going to do 50 percent off the initiation fee," Fox said. "People can come down to the club, meet with members of the membership committee or members who

NQ's Ryan Manning Selected For Shriners All-Star Football Game

North Quincy High School senior Ryan Manning, a standout for the Red Raiders football team, has been selected to play in the prestigous Shriners All-Star Classic Football Game.

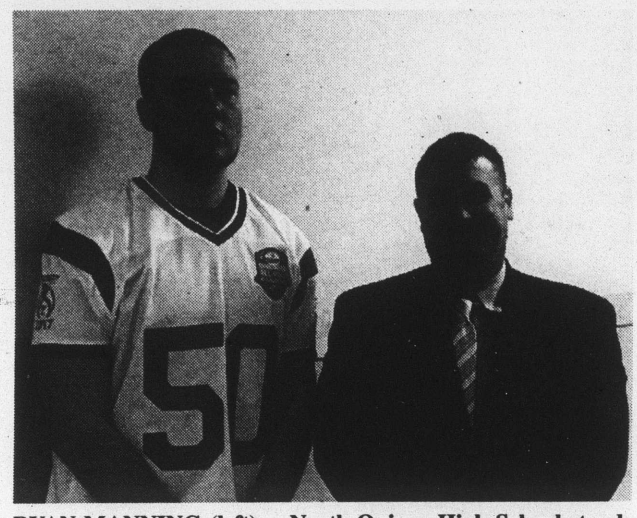
This year's game is set for June 17th at 4 p.m. at Bentley College.

The lone representative from the city's two football programs, Manning will be the first Red Raider to suit up in the Shriners game since Antoine Allen three years ago.

NQ head football coach Mark Nutley praised Manning as a hard-working leader on and off the field.

"Ryan has been a three-year starter for us on the offensive line; the first two years he played center this past season we moved him to right tackle. Ryan's junior and seniors seasons he was a two-way starter, along with his o-line duties he also was one of our team leaders in sacks on defense at the defensive end and tackle positions.

"Ryan was voted by his teammates as a captain his senior season," Nutley continued. "I couldn't have asked for a better leader for a relatively young football team. Ryan was awesome in the off-season for us. He was one of first to arrive in the weight-room and he was the last to leave.



RYAN MANNING (left), a North Quincy High School standout football player, has been selected to play in the Shriners All-Star Classic Football Game June 17 at Bentley College. With him is Red Raider Football Coach Mark Nutley who nominated Manning for the prestigous honor.

"He just didn't do it for North Quincy on the football field. He also excels in the classroom. Ryan carries a full course load of honors classes. At our end-of-the-year banquet Ryan won the Peter J. Zoia, Jr. award which is awarded to the senior that has the highest GPA on the football team. Ryan's GPA is 3.6.

"He was voted a Patriot League All-Star by the other coaches in the league. I nominated Ryan for the Shriners All-Star Football game because I felt that he is one the best lineman in the South Shore if not eastern Massachusetts and he deserves to be recognized for the hard work that he has put in over the past four years. By being selected to play in this game he will have a chance to alongside and against some of the best players in Massachusetts," Nutley added.

The South All-Stars will be practicing at the new Creedon Field behind North Quincy High School June 5-9 between 4 and 7 p.m. and then June 12-16 from 4 to 7 p.m.

Liana Cunningham, Allison McMorrow Named Patriot League Hoop All-Stars

Quincy High School girls basketball junior point guard Liana Cunningham and freshman forward Allison McMorrow were selected Patriot League All-Stars.

This was Cunningham's third year as a varsity starter and her first year as a captain for the Presidents. This season, she took her play and her leadership to another level scoring 11.9 points per game to go along with 74 assists. Her career total of 279 assists broke the previous school record of 206 held by QHS alum and current freshman coach Marybeth Torpey.

Freshman Allison McMorrow erupted onto the scene this season, leading the Presidents in scoring with 12.2 points per game to go along with 99 rebounds. Highlights included a 22-point performance against Milton, 21 versus Duxbury, and 26 against Whitman-Hanson.

The girls competed along with 10 others from the Patriot Keenan Division in the All-Star game held recently at Whitman-Hanson High School. Other league awards for the Presidents included the Individual Sportsmanship award to senior captain Joelle Robinson and the Scholar Athlete award to senior Shauna McColgan.

QHS's James O'Leary Awarded Steven Barrett Scholarship

Presidents' Golf Dinner Honors

At the recent Quincy High School Golf Dinner held at the Furnace Brook Golf Club, senior James O'Leary was the recipient of the annual Steven V. Barrett Memorial Scholarship.

The award was presented by Steven's sister Christine Barrett, current principal of Point Webster Middle School, to a graduating senior golfer who plans to attend college and best exemplifies the qualities of hard work, dedication and love for the game that defined Steven as a three-sport Captain at Quincy High School.

O'Leary was a co-captain of the golf team in his senior year and maintained a 4.3 GPA in his academic classes. He was also the recipient of the Patriot League Scholar-Athlete Awardfor Golf.

O'Leary plans to attend UMass-Amherst next year.

Senior Co-Captain Michael Tervakoski was presented with the Patriot League Sportsmanship Award. He plans to join the U.S. Marine Corps upon graduation in June.

QHS SENIOR James O'Leary receives the Steven V. Barrett Memorial Scholarship from Steven's sister, Christine Barrett, principal of Point Webster Middle School.

CURIOUS CASES OF NERVES

"Fibromyalgia" is a chronic disorder of unknown origin. It is characterized by tenderness at specific points in the body, including the neck, shoulders, back, hips, and upper and lower extremities. Fibromyalgia sufferers also experience fatigue, headaches, sleep disturbances, and a variety of other symptoms. Many researchers now believe that repeated nerve stimulation causes the brains of people with fibromyalgia to change in such a way that there is an increase in levels of certain chemicals in the brain (neurotransmitters) that signal pain. In addition, the brain's pain receptors seem to develop a "memory" of the pain and become more sensitive, which leads to overreaction to pain signals. Chiropractic treatment may help by normalizing nerve flow.

Patients have been turning to chiropractic care to treat the neck pain, back pain and leg cramps that often accompany fibromyalgia. Many have found that a few adjustments to the neck and spine can greatly relieve the chronic pain that they live with. Registry Of Deeds Internet Research Available

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds consumers the Registry's land records are available online via the Registry's internet-based document research system at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

"Consumers can see up to 6,000,000 scanned land document images dating back to the founding of Norfolk County in 1793. These documents are available via our internet-based document research system. We are bringing the Registry records into people's homes and businesses," O'Donnell said.

"Providing secure, accurate and accessible land record information, coupled with our on-site customer service center, is critical to our success at the Norfolk County Registry of Deed," he added.

Elaborating on the Registry's research capabilities, O'Donnell said, "Land record information can be researched by multiple options, including the name of the property owner and property address. Consumers can access our internet-based document research system for many endeavors such as, to determine property ownership, to research land titles, to review land

Ask Barbara Graceffa:
'Secretary Of The Interior'

Interior, Exterior Design Tips; Softening Straight Lines

BARBARA GRACEFFA

Do the same design tips work for both interior and exterior? Betty

Excellent question and the answer is yes! Whether indoors or out, good design takes into account about a dozen different elements: scale (or proportion), balance, line (vertical, horizontal, diagonal or curved), contrast, color, unity and repetition, variety, size, shapes, textures, pattern (think outdoor curtains or seat cushions), even a focal point and some added whimsy.

In fact, these same design features are used in a lot more art forms from fashion to quilting.

A lot of famous designers have penned a list of the top features of a successful room. Although only famous among Quincy Sun readers (ha!), here are mine: a room should be functional, harmonious, uncluttered, reflect your personality, and built with love.

In my newly purchased condo, the bones of the living room are all straight lines – in the square windows, ceiling beams, and vertical striped wallpaper – all of which I plan to keep. Any ideas on how to soften the look and feel of the room? Michelle

Although it is a balancing act to marry unity and variety, many home owners figure it out with experimentation. To answer your question, remember these two maxims: "variety is the spice of life" and "opposites attract." In your living room, introduce curved lines wherever you can. Examples include a round mirror, an oval coffee table, and even fabric or artwork with obvious circles, curves, or swirls will not only add interest but softness, too. Another idea would be to paint the ceiling beams the same color as the ceiling and the window trim to match the wallpaper so they seem to fade into the background and not stand out as much.

Koch To Pitch Capital, Park Plans To Council

improvement bond would be "significant," but did not have an estimate for its full cost. The park bond is expected to be in the range of $25 million, including $15 million for the next phase of construction of the Hancock Adams Green, which will connect City Hall to the United First Parish Church and could be finished as soon as June 2018.

The capital improvement bond will be paid off in future years from a line item for debt service in the city's general fund budget. Koch said a large bond currently being paid for by that line item is coming off the books in fiscal year 2019 or 2020, and the plan is to keep spending on debt service consistent.

"We're trying to keep a steady line in our budget so we don't have spikes," the mayor said. "We're trying to be consistent with our budget and with our attempts to keep up with our capital assets."

"We have a lot of municipal buildings and infrastructure," he added. "If you don't keep up with them, then down the road it costs a lot more money."

The park bond will be paid from the city's hotel tax receipts – the tax charged to guests who stay in one of Quincy's hotels.

"It doesn't come out of taxpayers' pockets," Koch said.

The capital improvement bond includes money for repairs at municipal buildings throughout the city, such as firehouses and libraries, Koch said. Additionally, the capital improvement bond will set aside money for the design of a new municipal building that would serve as the headquarters for the Quincy Fire and Police Departments, and could also include other city departments.

The acquisition of the former St. Mary's School on Crescent Street would also be paid for through the capital improvement bond. Koch said the city is still negotiating with the Archdiocese of Boston on a purchase price, and the two sides could reach an agreement this week. The mayor has targeted the site of the former school, which closed in 2010, for the future home of an elementary school to serve West Quincy.

Funding for a citywide study of parking and traffic, which will include recommendations to address concerns raised by residents and officials regarding those issues, will also be included in the capital bond.

The capital improvement bond will include funding for construction of a new animal shelter, and the park bond has money for the design and construction of a dog park; the city has also received a grant that would pay of portion of the dog park. The two would be located next to each other at 51 Quarry St., a 22-acre parcel of land adjacent to the Avalon Quincy apartment complex.

The majority of money in the park bond – $15 million – would pay for construction of Hancock Adams Green. Koch said the city has selected Halifax-based WES Construction to build the second phase of the park project linking City Hall to the United First Parish Church. Most of the new park will be included in this phase, except for the area adjacent to the MBTA station.

The section of the park will include a promenade, water features, trees and bronze statues of the two men for whom it is named, John Hancock and John Adams, commissioned for the project and cast in Italy. Two statues already located in Quincy Center – one of John Adams and the other of Abigail Adams and a young John Quincy Adams – will also be located in the new public park, inside an area meant to resemble Peacefield, their family home.

Koch previously told The Sun work on that section could begin in the late spring and would be completed in time for a June 2018 dedication ceremony. He plans to invite Gov. Charlie Baker and Pulitzer Price winning author and historian David McCullough – author of the 2001 biography of the second president, entitled "John Adams – to speak at the dedication.

Also included in the park bond will be money for the design and permitting of improvements to Merrymount Park. Koch plans to design a series of walkways and footbridges to connect the 80-acre park – the city's largest – with nearby open space. The mayor said "a couple million" would go towards the permitting and design phase – which could take two years to finish.

"That will take some time," he said Tuesday. "There is a long permitting process for park projects, particularly one near the water."

Koch said the park pond would include money for four parcels of land in Houghs Neck he hopes to acquire as the city constructs a new Houghs Neck Maritime Center. He is asking the council to purchase three homes adjacent to the maritime center's parking lot, as well as the parking lot on Sea Street now owned by Louis restaurant.

Additionally, Koch said the park bond would include funding for projects in other city parks across Quincy.

plans (only plans which are recorded at the Registry) and finally to confirm that documents affecting a person's property- such as a mortgage discharges - have been duly recorded."

The Registry's website also provides information on how to obtain copies of land documents. The Registry copy charges are $1 per page, plus an additional $1 per document for postage.

"Providing first-class customer service is a core objective of the Registry," O'Donnell said. "Norfolk County residents and businesses deserve a Registry of Deeds that provides them with access to land record information in an easily accessible and consumer friendly manner. The Registry website www.norfolkdeeds.org does that by bringing the Registry records into your homes and businesses."

Student Achievement Initiatives Reviewed

initiated at Central Middle School and the Squantum and Wollaston elementary schools.

Rapid Reset involves a design team, comprised of staff members of the school's each grade level, that meet afterschool to look at refocusing action steps to address specific academic achievement issues based on assessment results.

A new program this year, Collaborative Connections, allows staff to work in smaller groups to hone in on specific grade level needs. Principal's Path is specific programs designed by each principal to target achievement needs in their respective school.

The superintendent explained that each initiative has several key elements embedded including curriculum assessment, educator evaluation and professional development. He said that teachers and administrators worked in a collaborative way to provide consistent and appropriate student and staff support as well as frequent monitoring of students and curriculum assessment.

The principals talked about improvements at their respective schools as a result of the initiatives. They said that there has been an increase in parent involvement, more specific in-house teacher collaboration and training, and targeted academic support programs for struggling students.

Central Middle School Principal Rick DeCristofaro Jr. explained that one program initiated at his school is aimed at the new MCAS 2.0 exam. The afterschool program, dubbed RAMcas 2.0, provides specific training for students on the new, online exam that will be administered this spring.

"They receive extra exposure to the new type of assessment questions, they learn new testing strategies and additional support in their academic areas," he said.

Broad Meadows principal Dan Gilbert explained that his school assesses each student and makes comparisons to classmates. He noted that the initiatives have helped provide better support for math students as well as on-site teacher training.

"It's made a tremendous difference in what we can do," he said.

Lincoln-Hancock principal Ruth Witmer said that the new Collaborative Connections and the work of the design team has increased parent engagement at her school.

"Our kindergarten team has increased family fun days," she said, explaining that Tuesday afternoons parents are invited to participate in an activity with their child."

She also said English Learner families have been invited to do activities with their children, and that bilingual parents translate invitations to English Learner parents. Witmer also said that academic mini-lessons are offered to parents prior to PTO meetings.

Witmer praised the new initiatives.

"Lincoln-Hancock has benefited and moved forward in our mission to help children grow," she said.

Committee member Anne Mahoney said the initiatives are important to keep with ever-changing state and federal education requirements.

"You have to change with it," she said.

In other matters, DeCristofaro informed the committee: That a music camp will be held for students in grades 3, 4 and 5 during April vacation under the direction of music teacher Tracy O'Sullivan and elementary curriculum Director Beth Hallett. The camp is scheduled for April 18 and 19.

The Grade 5 Student Council Leadership summit was held March 9 at the Tirrell Room with 75 to 80 students participating. Eight class officers from North Quincy High and Quincy High joined representatives from local organizations who spoke to the students during the event.

The facilities subcommittee will hold a meeting on April 11 to provide details to the community about improvement projects at the Beechwood, Merrymount, Atherton Hough and Wollaston elementary schools this summer. That same evening, the Beechwood School will be holding its own meeting for parents about the project that includes new doors, windows, roof and handicap accessibility upgrades. The Massachusetts School Building Authority is reimbursing the city about 66 percent of the cost through its accelerated repair program for the four schools.

OBITUARIES

Sophie Ranieri, 97

A funeral Mass for Sophie (Marinelli) Ranieri, age 97, of Weymouth, formerly of Braintree and Quincy, was celebrated March 25 in St. Francis of Assisi Church, Weymouth.

Mrs. Ranieri died peacefully March 21 at Care One at Weymouth.

She was born on Nov. 10, 1919, in Casale, Italy, to the late Dominic and Antonia (Marinilli) Marinelli. Mrs. Ranieri immigrated to the United States as a child and was raised and educated in Quincy. She had lived in Weymouth for six years, previously in Braintree for fifty-eight years.

She had been employed for twenty years as a sales associate for Kmart, working in the Weymouth and Rockland stores. Mrs. Ranieri was devoted to her family and especially to her grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Beloved wife of the late Diodato "Dito" Ranieri. Devoted mother of David A. Ranieri and his wife Christine, and Dale A. McCosker, all of Braintree. Loving grandmother of Michael D. Jean Duxbury, 92

A memorial service for Jean Duxbury, 92, of Plymouth and formerly of Quincy, was held Wednesday in Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Mrs. Duxbury died peacefully in the early morning hours of March 16, after a long battle with Alzheimer's disease.

She was the beloved wife of the late Harry Duxbury.

Born and raised in Liverpool, England, it was there that she met and married Harry, a private serving in the U.S. Army during WWII. In 1946, after the war's end, the two moved to the U.S., where they settled in Quincy and started their family.

To support her family following her husband's untimely death in 1972, Mrs. Duxbury took a job as a customer service rep with the former Quincy Savings Bank, retiring after 20 years. She was a longtime volunteer at the former Quincy City Hospital, the Thomas Crane Library and at the polling stations during elections. She had long been an active supporter of many civic causes and fundraisers in the city, and served as a deacon for many years at Quincy Point Congregational Church, where she was also active in the Merrymaker's Group and serving meals at 1000 Southern Artery.

JEAN DUXBURY

Mrs. Duxbury enjoyed bowling in various leagues around the South Shore, gardening, reading and knitting but her favorite times were those spent with her children and grandchildren and traveling each summer to England to visit her family.

Loving mother of Jennifer D. Hart-Brokmeier and her husband Paul Brokmeier of Kingston and Steven H. Duxbury and his wife Sandra of Buzzards Bay. Dear sister of Doreen Huston and Margaret Davis, both of Liverpool, England, and the late Wyn Edwards. Cherished grandmother of Katelyn Hart and Steven, Christine & Catherine Duxbury.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

John R. Poutree

A memorial service for John Robert Poutree of Brunswick, Maine, was held Feb. 25 in Brackett Funeral Home, Brunswick.

Mr. Poutree died peacefully Feb. 17 with his loving wife, children and niece by his side.

Born Feb. 11, 1945, in Quincy, the son of Theodore R. and Dorothy L. Randolph Poutree. In 1966 he married Lauralee Abair of Brunswick, Maine. He spent 24 years on active duty in the United States Navy, retiring as chief in 1986. Following his career in the navy he enrolled at the University of Southern Maine in the industrial technology program earning his bachelor's degree. Upon completion of his degree he worked for the Department of Labor as a veteran's outreach counselor for 11 years retiring in 2005.

In his remaining years he enjoyed hunting, fishing and time with his family. He also spent 30 years as a member of the Brunswick Zoning Board, periodically acting as chairman. He loved the town of Brunswick.

Mr. Poutree is survived by his wife of nearly 51 years, his children Norma Jean of Brunswick and Robert and his wife Shera of Apopka, Florida. His shining stars are his grandchildren Sarah Poutree of Brunswick, Ben Poutree, and Stella and Charlotte of Apopka, Florida.

JOHN R. POUTREE

Also survived by his sisters Jeanne Astino and her husband Joe of Cohasset, Anne Mooney of Quincy, and brother David and his wife Jan of Rising Sun, Maryland. He is also survived by many cousins, nieces and nephews. Predeceased by his parents, his older brother Douglas and sister Meredith Drummond.

Memorial donations may be made to the Brunswick High School Music Boosters, Brunswick High School, 116 Maquoit Road, Brunswick, Maine 04011.

Virginia A. Flynn

A Mass of Christian Burial for Virginia A. (Kiley) Flynn, of Quincy, formerly of Dorchester, was celebrated March 25 in St. Gregory Church, Dorchester.

Mrs. Flynn died March 21.

Beloved wife of the late William A. Flynn. Loving mother of Michael Flynn and his wife Mary Beth of Dorchester, Mary Ellen Flynn of Quincy, Tom Flynn and his wife Dawn of Milton, John Flynn and his wife Nancy of Dedham, Jane McSweeney and her husband Stephen of Mansfield, Virginia Flynn of Milton and Elizabeth Duddy and her husband Thomas of Quincy. Sister of Patricia Casey of Quincy and the late Anne Joyce and Thomas Kiley. Cherished grandmother of Michael, Mary Kate and her husband Phil, Matthew, Meaghan and her husband John, Brendan, Bridget, Liam, Samantha, Ryan, Christopher, Grace, Brendan, Kiley, Mark, Andrew and Joseph.

Mrs. Flynn was born and educated in Boston. She was an active member of St. Gregory Church and Woman's Sodality. She enjoyed knitting and ceramics in her younger years. Most of all she loved and cherished her family who were the cornerstone of her life. She will be missed by all who had the pleasure to have known her.

Interment Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester.

Funeral arrangements were made by Dolan Funeral Home, Dorchester Lower Mills.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Diabetes Association, PO Box 15829, Arlington, VA 22215.

James F. Adams

James F. Adams, lifelong Quincy resident, except for his honorable European service during World War II, died peacefully at Milton Hospital.

Mr. Adams was 90 years old and is survived by his step-daughter Leslie with her husband Jeff Graham as well as his niece Mary with her husband Larry Bratten in Texas and Mr. Adams' older sister Edith with her husband Dick Kershaw of Randolph and their daughter Christina with her husband Bill Palmer and their three sons Thomas, James and Timothy in Easton. Also mourning are the Adams and Glover family members with Charlie delaFuente in Texas, and Lee Ashfield of Vero Beach, Florida. Mr. Adams was sadly widowed by Anna in 1967 and by Doris in 1989.

He was a proud employee at the young Polaroid Corporation where he served as an experimental machinist and model-maker working closely with Dr. Land as he developed instant photography and polarization among numerous other innovative technologies. Mr. Adams told some great stories about being there and coming up with design models for some of the inventive products we all take for granted today.

Honorably discharged from the infantry with a Purple Heart at war's end. Mr. Adams attended college at Wentworth and Northeastern where he earned an engineering degree. After a year teaching machine work at Wentworth, he went on to spend his next 35 years at the Polaroid Corporation.

JAMES F. ADAMS

From a very young age, Mr. Adams' life revolved around sailing. Born in a home in North Quincy near the beach, he owned many small boats and hand-built his own trailer for getting across the road and down the beach. He was invited "off the beach" to join Wollaston Yacht Club as a junior member where he was happily both crew and skipper in countless competitions throughout the entire Massachusetts Bay area. Although he did own a few different motor boats over the years, Mr. Adams was always happiest as captain of a sailing vessel and skippered his own and many others throughout the years. He served executive positions at Wollaston and Gull Point Yacht Clubs and later became a member of Quincy Yacht Club.

Mr. Adams requested no service or viewing. Just a simple, quiet interment at the Adams family plot in Mount Wollaston Cemetery near his dear father Robert, mother Polly and wives Anna and Doris.

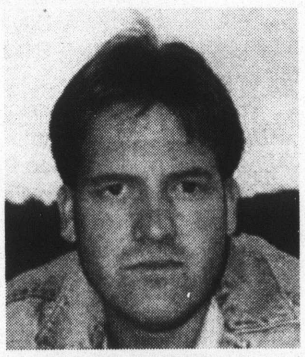
Expressions of sympathy will be forwarded to the family if sent to Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy MA, 02169.

John F. Abbott, 45

A celebration of life service for John F. Abbott, 45, of Holbrook, originally from Quincy, will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mr. Abbott died unexpectedly on March 22.

The beloved son of Maureen (Sullivan) Riley and the late Dennis Abbott. Life partner of Kristen Munn of Holbrook. Cherished father of Deanna Schmieder of Webster and Daniel Abbott of Abington. Brother of Dennis Abbott and his wife Lisa of Braintree, Jason MacKinnon of Whitman, Colleen Riley and her partner Mike Solis of Malden, Caitlin Riley and her partner Steve Korman of Quincy. Grandson of Claire Sullivan of Quincy and Margaret Abbott of FL. Stepfather of Patrick Bent, Jr., Alyssa, Debra and Zachary Bent all of Holbrook. He is also survived by many aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.



JOHN F. ABBOTT

Mr. Abbott grew up in Quincy and graduated from Quincy Voc-Tech High School. He served in the United States Marine Corp. After his military service, Mr. Abbott worked as a carpenter for many years. He enjoyed the simple things in life for example the beach and following the New England Patriots. The most important aspect in his life were his children; he adored them and cherished his role as their father. Mr. Abbott will be sadly missed by all those who were blessed to have known him.

Visiting hours are 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday in the funeral home.

Memorial donations: New England Center for Homeless Veterans, 17 Court St., Boston, MA 02108.

Giovanni Cardarelli, 88

A funeral Mass for Giovanni Cardarelli, age 88, a longtime resident of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Cardarelli died March 21 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

He was born to the late Pasquale and Ninfa (Cecilli) Cardarelli in San Donato Val di Comino, Province of Frosinone, Italy, where he was raised and educated. As a young man, Mr. Cardarelli worked for the Vatican and also in France before immigrating to the United States in 1958. He had lived in Quincy for fifty-nine years.

Mr. Cardarelli was a talented marble worker, working on monuments, statues, and headstones. He was employed with the former Freeport Marble and Tile in Dorchester for many years and later with Progressive Marble and Tile in Randolph.

Mr. Cardarelli was a member of Gruppo Etnico Sandonatese in Newton and was also a member of Club 92 on Liberty Street in Quincy. He was devoted to his family, especially his grandchildren.

Salvatore G. Buonopane, Sr., 93

A funeral Mass for Salvatore G. "Sully" Buonopane, Sr., age 93, of Rockland and formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

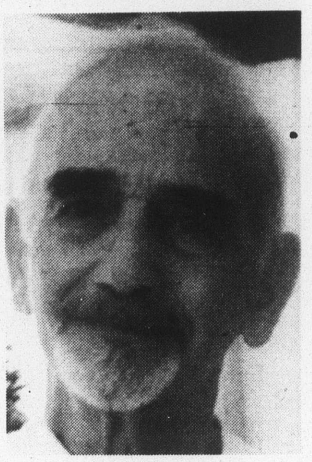
Mr. Buonopane died peacefully March 22 at South Shore Hospital, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born and raised in Boston and had lived in Rockland for thirteen years, previously in Quincy for over thirty years. Mr. Buonopane was employed as a truck driver with the Teamsters Union Local 25 for many years. As a young man, he had worked as a bricklayer and had a talent for laying tile.

Mr. Buonopane was a proud U.S. Coast Guard veteran of World War II. He participated in both the European Theatre and the Asiatic Pacific Theatre and served aboard several ships, including the USS Campbell, the USS H. A. McClure and the USS Hoquiam. He received the European African Middle Eastern Campaign Ribbon and the Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Ribbon.

He enjoyed the ocean, fishing and cooking.

Devoted father of Linda Zarella of Braintree, Salvatore G. Buonopane,



SALVATORE G. BUONOPANE, SR.

Jr. and his wife Zulma of Weymouth, Sandra DiBonaventura and her husband Chad of Norwell. Loving grandpa of Corine, Christopher, Ella, Joseph and Ryan. Beloved wife of the late Thomas J. Caliri. Loving and devoted mother of two children: Thomas R. Caliri and his wife Joanne of Marshfield and Richard M. Caliri of Marshfield and his beloved soulmate Christine A. Escott of Weymouth. She is survived by her sister Gloria Guarino and her lifelong companion Van Chumacas of Milton and predeceased by eight brothers and sisters. Also survived by two grandchildren, Mollie A. Caliri of Quincy and Michael C. Caliri of Marshfield, and many nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Caliri graduated from the Dorchester School for Girls in the early 1940s. She began a career in the banking and investment industry, working initially as a teller for the First National Bank of Boston. After taking time off from work to raise her family she worked for the investment firm Thompson McKinnon Securities and later worked for many years as a receptionist at Merchants Cooperative Bank in Boston.

Mrs. Caliri greatly enjoyed cooking for her family and relatives and was famously known for her delicious Italian dishes.

She was also active as an entrepreneur in the hotel/restaurant industry and used her cooking skills and knowledge to help run the Village Tavern hotel in Woodstock, Vermont, with her siblings in the 1950s and '60s and later as part owner/operator of Ship's Haven Restaurant in Quincy. She was also a volunteer at Quincy Hospital where she brought her bright smile and nurturing personality to the patients there.

Mrs. Caliri loved spending time at her "beach house" near Humarock, particularly with her two grandchildren whom she especially adored and the family dog, Skip, whose antics always brought a smile to her face. Her final years were spent at the Eventide Home in Quincy, which recently moved to Weymouth as the Dwyer Home where she brightened everyone's day with her charming personality and fun-loving attitude.

Visiting hours are 4 to 8 p.m. Thursday in Dolan & Chapman Funeral Home, Milton Village.

Interment Milton Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the Dwyer Home, 25 Stonehaven Dr., South Weymouth, MA 02190.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Avoid having someone else take credit for the project you started by finishing it yourself. Then it will be you lovely Lambs who will be wearing those well-deserved laurels.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The facts about a new opportunity are still emerging. Wait until they're all out in the open, and then use your keen business sense to help make the right decision.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might feel confused, even hurt by a friend who suddenly puts distance between you. If she or he won't discuss it, don't push it. An explanation should come in time.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your willingness to be part of the team opens doors that had been shut to you. Keep them open by keeping your promises even when your commitment seems to be wavering.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Congratulations. You're really getting things done to purrfection. And don't forget to take a catnap now and again to keep those energy levels up and bristling for action.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your "plain-talking" honesty is admirable. But sometimes sharp words can leave painful scars. Be careful that what you say doesn't come back to hurt you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A stress-filled period takes a positive turn as you deal with the underlying problem. Act now to avoid a recurrence by changing some basic rules in your relationship.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your rising energy levels make it easier for you to achieve some important objectives. This could lead to a big boost in how you're perceived, both at home and on the job.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A changing picture begins to emerge as you learn more about an offer that seemed so right but could be so wrong. Look to a trusted adviser for guidance.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Spiritual aspects are strong. Take time to reflect on the path you're on and where you hope it will lead you. It's also a good time to reach out to loved ones.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You could be assuming far too many responsibilities, whether it's at work or in personal matters. Be careful that you're not weighed down by them.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're getting closer to your goals. And since nothing succeeds like success (or the promise thereof), don't be surprised to find new supporters swimming alongside you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are always the first to try new ventures and confront new challenges. You inspire others with your courage to follow your bold example.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- What does earning a best-picture Oscar nomination mean? Here are grosses, after the Oscars, for the nine films nominated: "La La Land" benefited the most (thanks to best actress Emma Stone and best director Damien Chazelle's wins), vaulting $28 million to $397 million. "Hidden Figures" won no big awards, but still climbed $23 million to $195 million.

"Moonlight's" best picture and Mahershala Ali's supporting-actor win afforded it a $16 million surge to $42 million. "Lion," with best supporting nods for Dev Patel and Nicole Kidman, saw a $14 million boost to $103 million. "Hacksaw Ridge," with Andrew Garfield and director Mel Gibson's nominations, had a bump of $11 million to $175 million. "Manchester by the Sea," despite Casey Affleck's best actor and director Kenneth Lonergan's original screenplay wins, rose only $8 million to $67 million, and Viola Davis' supporting actress win didn't help "Fences" beyond a $2.5 million rise to $61 million.

"Arrival" and "Hell and High Water" (with Jeff Bridges supporting actor nomination), are out of theatres but had their DVD and Blu-Ray sales elevated from the attention. The real reason for having nine best-picture nominees instead of five is because it pays to advertise, and the Oscars have the biggest audience to do that!

Host Jimmy Kimmel, perpetuating his "fake news" feud with Matt Damon, claimed, on the Oscars, that Matt's film "The Great Wall" was a flop. True, it cost $150 million to make and only earned $41 million in the U.S. and Canada, but it also made $279 million in China and other territories worldwide, for a total of $320 million.

"Feud: Bette & Joan," the campy eight-part series on FX, takes certain liberties with what actually happened, which sometimes makes for better drama. I got this straight from Bette Davis, who explained how her feud with Joan Crawford began.

"MGM dropped Crawford's contract in 1944 because they were going younger with their contract people, and she slithered over to see Jack Warner, at my studio, Warner Brothers, under the guise of giving her services free for "Hollywood Canteen," the film John Garfield and I were making to benefit the Hollywood Canteen. She managed to talk Jack Warner into a four-picture deal. My people, in the script department, always tipped me off about books bought for filming, and when I asked Jack about "Mildred Pierce," he told me he'd promised it to Crawford. I wasn't thrilled and was less thrilled when she won an Oscar for it."

We'll have more on their famous "Feud," next time. And you thought "Family Feud" was fun!

Q: I have inherited some china and am curious if it has any value. The pattern is Eggshell Georgian and manufactured by Homer Laughlin. -- Barbara, Sonoma, California

A: During the late 1930s, Homer Laughlin China Company produced Eggshell lines of dinnerware. The Eggshell wares were different from all of the previous designs in that the pieces were much lighter in weight due to the new precision machines and tools that had been installed by the company at its main plant in Ohio. The Eggshell Georgian is the second pattern issued in this series. Advertisements in trade journals promoting the new china were published as early as October of 1935.

For a complete history of this pattern and others manufactured by Homer Laughlin, I highly recommend The Collector's Encyclopedia of Homer Laughlin by Joanne Jasper (Collector Books). I found several copies available at amazon.com for $18.96, used copies $12.50. Typical prices listed in this excellent guide are an Eggshell Georgian 10-inch plate, $9-$12; tea cup, $3-$6; teapot, $45-$65; and salad bowl, $15-$30.

Q: I have a collection of books and would like to know how much they are worth. I am enclosing a list. -- Matthew, Hudson, New York

A: I get dozens of book questions each month, and my answer is generally the same. If you've written me recently about books, this answer is for you. For those who have access to a computer, one of the easiest ways to find out current prices is to visit www.abe.com. Type in the title and author of each book, and in most cases other copies being offered for sale will soon appear on your screen. Copyright dates and condition are both extremely important when making comparisons.

Q: I have a high-fidelity tape recording of President John Kennedy's funeral. Also on the tape is a dance recital and "Santa, 1962." How much do you think the tape is worth? -- Lee, Lancaster, New York

A: Your tape probably is a home recording, and as such its value would be minimal. I do not think it would be of interest to collectors. For a second opinion, contact antique dealers in your area.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was vice president Adlai Stevenson who made the following sage observation: "All progress has resulted from people who took unpopular positions."

* We're in no danger of it happening these days, but once, in April of 1930, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported that there was no news that day. Instead of an announcer reading reports, they played soothing piano music instead.

* According to pollsters, during the year 2016, both head lice and cockroaches were more popular than the U.S. Congress.

* Before he became the beloved novelist Americans know and love, a 15-year-old Jack London worked in a pickle factory earning 10 cents an hour. Desperate to get out of the closed-in, steamy cannery, he decided to join the ranks of an entirely different profession: oyster pirates. Pacific coast oyster beds that had been accessible to the public had recently been turned into private oyster farms, off limits to the working-class fishermen who had relied on them. This created an underclass of pirates who would fill bags with oysters under cover of night -- and London, who borrowed the money to buy a sloop called the "Razzle Dazzle," quickly became one of the best. His prowess and daring earned him the nickname "Prince of the Oyster Pirates."

* You may not realize it, but if you've ever spent a winter in the northern climes, you've probably made a sitzmark (or at least seen one). That's the mark made when someone falls backward into the snow -- like a snow angel.

* If you live in or travel frequently to Las Vegas, keep in mind that in that city, it's against the law for a man with a mustache to kiss a woman.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "A convenient way to measure oil and not have to wash out the measuring cup: Mark a glass jar with kitchen labels for 1/4, 1/3, 1/2, 2/3 and 1 cup quantities. So easy." -- J.K. in Vermont

* "After baking cookies, place a half to a whole piece of any kind of bread in with them. Even if the cookies were made a couple of days before, it will really soften them right up. It works every time." -- N.O. in Colorado

* "Recently, my cellphone got wet and had to take a rest in a bag of rice for a day. It turned out OK, but I was reminded during that day off from having a smartphone that gone are the days when we know all our friends and family members' phone numbers by heart. Take a minute to fill out a good old-fashioned address book, or write a list of your most important numbers so that you'll always be able to access them." -- JoAnn

* Give kids a garden: Grab a container (a large flowerpot, or even a baby pool that has a hole in it), and let the kids fill it with soil and plants. Then they can decorate it with small toys to make a wonderland. Maybe it will be a miniature forest for fairies, or an off-road truck race track. It's good to get kids outside being creative.

* "We recently lengthened the pull chain for our ceiling light to accommodate our 7-year-old. To remind him to "use a light touch," we taped a colorful feather to the end. He uses his fingertips to pull the chain so he won't crush the feather instead of getting a fistful. It's working!" -- L.O. in Florida are at the club at that time and they can get an application, fill it out and then we go through a formal process."

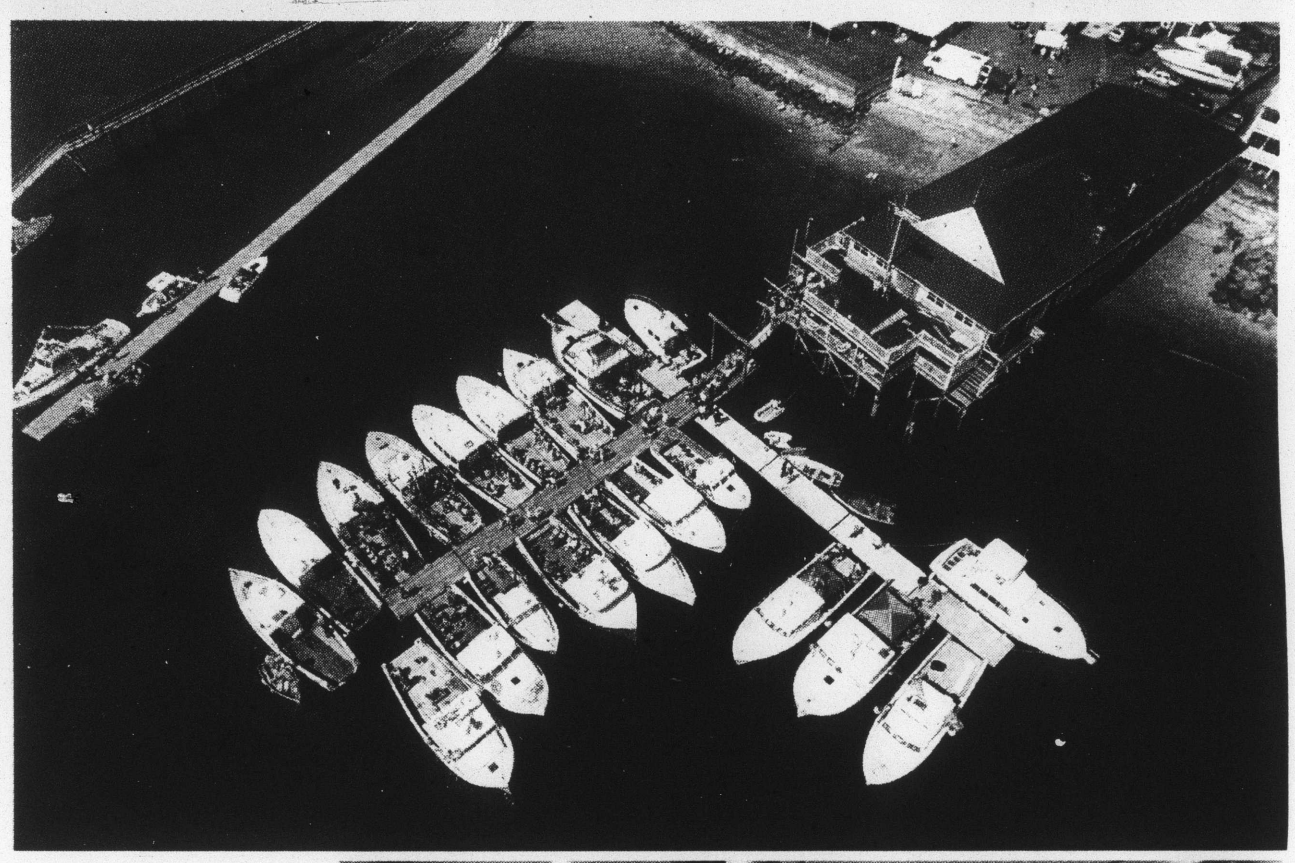
The club includes a members room on the first floor, a deeded mooring field, docks and boat storage space. It also has a gas facility set to open later this spring, which the public can also use.

"You're part of the Quincy Yacht Club," Fox said when asked about the benefits of membership. "You have access to the building. You have access, once it's open to the Nash Hall – you can rent it at a club rate. There is boat storage based on availability, so you could store your boat based on a very reasonable rate compared to commercial lots. You can put your boat out on a mooring. We have a tender that members can use to get out to their boats…We have docks, a large horseshoe docks, that allows members to come in with their boats and bring their friends to their boats."

"The Quincy Yacht Club is manned 24 hours a day during boating season making it a reliable safe harbor for local boaters," Aikens added. "During regular operating hours boaters in need of fuel could count on the QYC gas dock. We are working on getting the gas system up and running."

The Quincy Yacht Club also participates in a number of activities with other clubs. Those include parties on Peddocks Island and poker runs and invasions.

"We go from club to club, and at each club you get a card," Fox said, describing a poker run. The boater with the best hand at the end of the day wins half the days pot – the other half goes back to the club.



ABOVE PHOTO: Not all Quincy Yacht Club members own boats, but those who do have various makes, models and sizes. Right photo: July 13, 2016 was the 60th year that Harvey's Saltwater Fishing Club, Quincy Yacht Club along with more than 18 local lobstermen took 200 disabled veterans out on the water for a day of fishing. This photo offers a birds-eye view of Vets Fish Day at the Quincy Yacht Club. Lobster boat captains and their crews along with the Quincy Marine Unit and U.S. Coast Guard ensured the veterans had a safe and memorable day on the water.

"It's just a fun activity where we go and visit the other clubs, they host us for a couple hours and then we go to another club and they host us for a few hours. Then on the other hand clubs invade us and we host them for a few hours. It's just kind of a fun round-robin thing that happens throughout the boating season."

Fox credited other yacht clubs in the community for helping the Quincy Yacht Club in its time of need.

"Luckily we have a very rich boating community. The yacht clubs in the area opened their arms to us and allow us, because of reciprocal rights, to enjoy the summers at their clubs and we did events at our club as we could, but we weren't allowed in the building because it was under construction," Fox said.

"All these other clubs were really supportive of our club over the past four years. Members were allowed to go there, socialize, bring their boats and do things from a reciprocal perspective."

Wollaston T Closing For Renovation

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Red Line station in Wollaston will be closed for 20 months as the state begins a $38 million renovation project to bring the facility into compliance with modern building codes and accessibility standards.

MBTA officials on Monday presented the City Council with updates on work slated to start at all four of Quincy's Red Line stations, as well as the Braintree station, within the next nine months. Other projects include plans to mitigate the loss of parking spaces at the North Quincy station when construction of a mixed-use development begins on site early next year and the demolition of the Quincy Center station's garage, which

Temporary Home For Public Buildings Department Sought

City officials hope to purchase a historic home on Greenleaf Street to serve as the administrative headquarters for the Department of Public Buildings before it moves into the new municipal office building planned for Sea Street.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest held a community meeting on the plan to acquire the home at 74 Greenleaf St. March 30 in the Coddington Building. Laforest said she wanted to meet with residents before her colleagues on the council consider the proposal later this month.

Public Buildings Commissioner Paul Hines said his department's administrative employees – himself and eight others – are now housed in three separate

$52M Sought For Parks, Projects

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch on Monday night submitted bond requests for a combined $52.16 million to undertake numerous park and capital improvement projects – including the new Hancock-Adams Green, a new dog park and animal shelter on Quarry Street and the design of a new public safety headquarters.

Koch submitted three separate bond orders at Monday night's City Council meeting. The first request was for $27 million for park improvements, to be paid for by money from the city's hotel tax receipts – the room tax visitors to the city pay. The second request is for $23.86 million for capital projects and the third request was for $1.3 million to acquire the Bryan Post on Broad Street. Both of those would be paid for from the city's general fund budget.

"All those dollars we're talking about are investments in our city's future, in our buildings, in our parks and in our infrastructure" the mayor said. "We need to do these things to provide the best services, the best opportunities and really maintain and go forward to the next generation – hand them over a city we can all be proud of."

The council's finance committee will discuss the items further, starting with a meeting April 10.

The largest item requested in the bond measures is $15.7 million for the construction of the promenade section of the Hancock-Adams Green, which will include water features and trees. The money would come from the park bond. Construction of that portion of the park is set to start this year and be finished in time for a June 2018 dedication.

"It will be, in my opinion, a world-class park that respects our history," Koch said. "It's something I think the city is long overdue for and truly deserves."

Also included in the park bond is $2.4 million for the design and permitting of improvements to Merrymount Park. Koch wants to connect Merrymount Park, which at 80 acres is the largest in the city, to several nearby open spaces through a series of walking trails and boardwalks. It could take several years for those improvements to be permitted because of the park's proximity to Black's Creek and Wollaston Beach.

The park bond includes $2.75 million to acquire four

Second Graders Raise $260 For Heifer International

At Beechwood Knoll School

Mrs. Gina Amaral's second grade class at Beechwood Knoll School recently donated $260 of their own money to Heifer International.

Heifer International is a global nonprofit organization working to eradicate poverty and hunger. The children voted to purchase a goat, a colony of bees, chickens, a share in a fish farm and a share of a cow. Heifer International states that giving an animal is like giving someone a small business.

Animal donations provide families mired in poverty a hand up, increasing access to a sustainable livelihood.

At the beginning of this project, the children listened to the book, The Lace Snail by Betsy Byars to help them understand what it means to be a giving person. In the story, the snail starts making a trail of lace and then she generously makes things for the animals of the forest.

The last animal is a hippopotamus. She gently tells the hippo, "You deserve lace as much as anybody." The class discussed, during "Lantern Time," the reaction of each character to the Lace Snail's giving spirit.

They made Lace Snail banks to collect their money along with a puppet of each character. They also read the story, Flora and the Runaway Rooster by John Claude Bemis which taught them about how the gift of an animal keeps giving!

SECOND GRADE students at Beechwood Knoll School display their hippo character puppets from the book, The Lace Snail.

Quincy Police Joining Pilot Program On Domestic Violence

By SCOTT JACKSON

Police in Quincy and three other Massachusetts communities will take part in a pilot program to provide local law enforcement officers with tools to support survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault.

Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito announced the pilot program during a March 30 visit to the Quincy Police Department headquarters on Sea Street, joined by police chiefs and prosecutors from throughout the Bay State. The police departments in Foxborough, Greenfield and Woburn are also taking part in the initiative.

Polito said police officers responding to domestic violence or sexual assault calls will use a worksheet to gather information from the victim. Officers in the four communities will be trained on how to gather the necessary information this month.

"[This] is to make sure that on that first interaction that a law enforcement officer has with a victim of domestic, that there is a standard way of assessing that relationship and making sure we are recording the history involved – whether there has been a prior assault, whether there is a high risk of injury and re-harm – to assess that at that critical point so there is a document and data and information that is accumulated in a coherent, consistent manner," Polito said.

"The thinking is that this tool – this assessment – can then be used later on when you go to court," she added. "If you think about everyone of these interactions, if they are approached in a uniform manner with the same questions asked and the worksheets completed… we will truly knit together a safety net for the victims of domestic violence."

The lieutenant governor said she hopes Quincy and the other three communities inspire other departments to follow suit; eventually all police departments in Massachusetts could follow the same procedure when responding to domestic violence calls.

"It's my hope that after this pilot program is underway that you will be an example and an inspiration to other police departments to take these risk assessment tools and embed them in their police departments, work with the district attorneys and the courts and have more evidence, more information to be able to better

DPW Announces Rain Barrels Available At Discounted Price

The City of Quincy is partnering with the Great American Rain Barrel Company in Hyde Park again to offer rain barrels to residents as part of a conservation and sustainability program.

"We are distributing rain barrels to help manage water costs, save vegetation from drought conditions and help our community protect its aquifers," said DPW Commissioner Dan Raymondi. "We urge residents to use rain barrels because they are an effective way to collect and save water."

A single rain barrel can collect as much as 1,500 gallons in a season. This will save existing or new landscaping when a dry spell hits and supplement outdoor water usage, which spikes during the growing season.

Rain barrels are also important to reduce runoff. Runoff from homes and developments can harm existing water sources because they flood storm drains and discharge pollutants. Rain barrels are chlorine free and an excellent source of water for plants and gardens.

Barrels are easily connected to the downspouts and fill quickly. In this region there is typically 16 inches of rain between May 1 and Sept. 30. For every inch of rainfall, a 1,000 square-foot surface can collect 620 gallons of water; that means that an average roof of 2,400 square feet could see more than 20,000 gallons of fresh rainwater splashing over its surface during that time period. That is a significant source of water that homeowners could be tapping into for free, officials said. Just keeping a small 10-foot by 10-foot garden irrigated during the summer months can mean using up to 1,700 gallons of water. Based on the average roof size, more than two 60 gallon rain barrels would fill for every 1/5" of rainfall.

The Great American Rain Barrel Company recommends one barrel for every 100 square feet garden. Multiple barrels are easily linked together for additional collection and storage.

Great American Rain Barrels are durable and functional. The barrels are offered in three colors: Forest Green, Earth Brown or Nantucket Gray at a discounted cost of $79 – 40 percent off the retail price of $119.

To take advantage of this offer visit www.greatamericanrainbarrel.com, search Community Programs and look for your town or contact via email info@tgarb.com, or phone (800)251-2352.

Prepaid barrels will be available for pick up on Thursday. May 18th between 5 and 7 p.m. at the Quincy DPW, 55 Sea St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Deadline for purchase is Thursday, May 11th at 5 p.m.

THE PERFECT SETTING

Since its introduction in 1866, the six-prong Tiffany setting has been hailed as the setting that most fully unleashes the beauty of a diamond. Since then, four- and six-prong styles with little metal "fingers" grasping the girdle of the stone have become the settings of choice for engagement rings. Their huge popularity stems from the fact that, of all the mountings, the prong leaves the most stone exposed. As a result, the stone is set to receive the most light, which shows it off to its best advantage. The highest quality prong settings have smooth ball heads that sit flush with the stone. For added security, V-shaped prongs are used to hold the points of marquise and pear-shaped stones.

If you love classic lines and timeless appeal, an engagement ring with a Tiffany setting is a great option. This simple and sophisticated setting highlights the enduring beauty of your diamond. QUINCY'S ERIC MORESCHI (left) will be running the Boston Marathon in support of the Melanoma Foundation of New England. At right, Eric with some of his MFNE teammates during a training run this past winter.

In less than two weeks, Eric Moreschi of Quincy will be among the thousands of runners who will make their way from Hopkinton to Boston in the 121st Boston Marathon.

Eric's race will have more to do than just lacing up his sneakers and grinding out the 26.2 miles on Patriots' Day, Monday, April 17.

He's among some 40 runners who will be raising significant dollars for a very worthy cause: melanoma awareness and prevention.

His participation as a runner for the Melanoma Foundation of New England is personal, too. One of his uncles is a melanoma survivor.

"When I realized I wanted to run Boston, I wasn't sure which one to run for at first. Different family members have run for different charities in the past," Eric says.

"But one of my uncles is a melanoma survivor. He had a scare several years ago and he got involved in his foundation. He kind of recruited me for them and got me in touch with the right people. The foundation interviewed me and got my story and realized I was a good fit.

"Once I committed to the fundraising I was good to go," he adds.

The Melanoma Foundation of New England is among the more than 30 charities that are part of the Boston Athletic Association's official Charity Program. Runners like Eric run the marathon to raise thousands of dollars for the specific charities. In many cases it's the only way ordinary runners are able to secure an official entry into the marathon.

But even joining a charity team has become more competitive over the years as runners agree to raise thousands of dollars. And some will commit to higher than the minimums just to be assured of a spot on a charity team.

In Eric's case, he is committed to raise at least $7,000 and he's almost at his goal as the days before the historic race wind down. He's raised about $6,400 and has no qualms about making up any shortfall himself.

"I went into this thinking if I didn't reach my goal I have no problem reaching into my own pocket and coming up with the rest. It's for a great cause and I don't know how many times I'll be able to do this in my life," he says.

He considers himself fortunate to be part of the Melanoma Foundation of New England running team. Being accepted on a charity team is a process that's become more difficult in recent years.

"The process was a little different years ago but nowadays it's very intense and they take it very seriously. Going into the fundraising portion when they accept you they are screening you. You have to commit to $7,000 and here's my credit card number so if I don't reach it the foundation is good to take my money."

Eric is thankful for all the fundraising support he has received and continues to receive. He held a successful fundraiser in Squantum last month that generated some $2,000 towards his goal. He also appreciates the support he's received from Quincy residents as well as folks and friends from Mass Maritime Academy where he received a business degree in 2011.

For those who want to support Eric and the Melanoma Foundation of New England, visit his fundraising webpage at: https://www.crowdrise.com/MFNEBoston2017/fundraiser/ericmoreschi.

Money raised will help support the foundation, a nonprofit organization that works to reduce the incidence of melanoma, the deadliest form of skin cancer. According to statistics, the disease kills one person every 50 minutes. Melanoma is the second most common cancer in teens and young adults ages 15-29.

MFNE, according to its website, is "dedicated to skin cancer awareness and early detection." It also provides "a variety of free educational programs targeting the prevention of skin cancer for children, teens and adults."

MFNE also assists patients and their caregivers struggling with melanoma by offering support groups, educational programs and Billy's Buddies, a one-on-one patient advocacy and support program. The programs are all free.

Boston will not be Eric's first marathon. He ran the New Jersey marathon five years ago finishing in just under four hours – 3 hours and 58 minutes. He is hopeful he can run Boston in 3 hours and 30 minutes but knows Boston will be a more formidable challenge than running on the flat terrain near the Jersey shore.

"I had a good experience running the New Jersey marathon but I would also have to say it was a good experience because it was in May – 70 degrees – and the course was entirely flat along the Jersey shore. I don't want to say it wasn't an accomplishment but as far as marathons go it was probably easy as they come.

"With Boston, you don't know what the weather will be like. There are a lot of ups and downs. I think this will be a lot more challenging and I'm five years older so that doesn't help," the 28-year-old says flashing a wide grin.

While his fundraising has been serious so too has Eric's training.

He's been running three or four times a week since last fall. He logs about 6 to 10 miles each run but also turns in 12 to 15 miles a few times a month. He did a peak run of 21 miles on March 25 along a portion of the marathon route with fellow Foundation runners and has navigated 12 miles or so in the Newton, Heartbreak Hill and Chestnut Hill areas.

Locally, he says, running in Squantum has been good training ground.

"Squantum has a lot of ups and downs and quite a few hills which get you ready for the uneven slope of the marathon course," says the 2007 graduate of North Quincy High School. He played defense for the Red Raiders hockey team and pitched for the Red and Black's baseball squad.

Fortunately, he hasn't suffered any physical setbacks with his training. "Just the morning after soreness – that comes with the territory," he says.

After he completes the Boston Marathon, Eric says he'd like to continue helping the Melanoma Foundation of New England even if he doesn't run Boston again.

"It's a great group of people and I plan to stay involved with them whether it's marathon related or just foundation related," he says.

This year's marathon will mark the fourth anniversary of the 2013 bombings near the finish line on Boylston Street. The bombings killed three spectators and injured several hundred more.

Asked if he has any trepidation running this year, Eric answers:

"I wouldn't say I'm nervous. That incident was a game-changer. After that Boston has security through the roof. I won't say I'm guarded but as I approach that point in the marathon I will definitely get chills knowing the history of what happened."

He says he is looking forward to the steps he'll take along one of the most famous marathon routes in the world.

"I've always been a pretty active guy. I think part of the motivation to run Boston is I'm from around here and the history of the area, the city and the marathon. The Boston Marathon is considered one of the biggest in the world. You have people from pretty much every continent coming here to compete and to try to win it all or just be part of the tradition."

Eric Moreschi will become part of that tradition April 17th. But his impact in raising money for melanoma will last much longer than marathon day.

Good luck, Eric, and all the runners on Marathon Monday. You are all making a difference.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 19, 1775, the American Revolution begins when 700 British troops march into Lexington to find 77 armed Minutemen waiting for them on the town's common green. Suddenly, the "shot heard around the world" was fired. Eight Americans lay dead or dying and 10 others were wounded.

• On April 20, 1841, Edgar Allen Poe's story "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" first appears in Graham's Lady's and Gentleman's Magazine. The tale, widely considered to be the first detective story, describes the extraordinary "analytical power" used by Monsieur C. Auguste Dupin to solve a series of murders in Paris.

• On April 21, 1865, a train carrying the coffin of assassinated President Abraham Lincoln leaves Washington, D.C. on its way to Springfield, Illinois, where he would be buried on May 4. The train traveled through 180 cities and seven states, stopping at each town for a ceremony.

• On April 18, 1906, an earthquake estimated at close to 8.0 on the Richter scale strikes San Francisco, toppling buildings, igniting fires and breaking water mains. An estimated 3,000 people died and 30,000 buildings were destroyed.

• On April 22, 1945, Adolf Hitler, learning from one of his generals that no German defense was offered to the Russian assault at nearby Eberswalde, admits to all in his underground bunker that the war is lost. He committed suicide a week later.

• On April 17, 1964, the Ford Mustang is officially unveiled by Henry Ford II at the World's Fair in Flushing Meadows, New York. The new car debuted in Ford showrooms on the same day, and almost 22,000 Mustangs were immediately snapped up by buyers.

• On April 23, 1987, the Chrysler Corporation purchases Nuova Automobili F. Lamborghini, the Italy-based maker of high-priced, high-performance cars, for a reported $25 million. (c) 2017 King Features Synd., Inc.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1943 real photo postcard is a view of the old City Home that was located on the City Farm on Sea Street across from Mount Wollaston Cemetery. The Town of Quincy had erected an almshouse on this site in 1814 as a "refuge for the indigent." This building erected in 1898 replaced the original. The Home was managed for many years by the city's Welfare Department until it was demolished in 1968 to make way for a new Registry of Motor Vehicles office. The Registry had been in cramped quarters on Hancock Street across from the Woodward School. The city built and leased the new building to the Registry until they moved to the renovated Sears Roebuck Store in Quincy Center. In 1989 the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition acquired the Registry building to once again house the indigent on this site as Father Bill's Place which still operates here 200 years after the almshouse was built. The old City Farm property is now home to the Quincy Public Works Department. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quinn Predicts No Increase In The Tax Rate

The City Council Finance Committee has been wrestling with the city budget for the past 90 days. Finance Committee Chairman John Quinn predicted additional cuts of about $1.5 million and no increase in the tax rate.

The budget covers 18 months instead of the usual 12 because all Massachusetts cities and towns are converting from a calendar year to a fiscal year, starting July 1st to June 30th.

The current tax rate is $152.40 per thousand.

PETITION DRIVE UNDERWAY AGAINST SOUTH QUINCY M.B.T.A. STATION

A petition drive with a goal of 20,000 names is underway in opposition to the proposed South Quincy M.B.T.A. station and parking facility.

The petitions being circulated by the South Quincy Civic Association will be presented at a public hearing on the proposed station, to be held April 26 at Sterling Junior High School.

The station would have a 1,750 car parking garage and a new expressway ramp system connecting the station with Routes 3 and 128. Cost of the project is set at $15.8 million.

Commends Quincy Choral Boosters, School Committee

It was good to see the front page photo and caption of the Quincy High School choir members – a group of vocal artists gathered around the piano at Quincy High School auditorium in the Quincy Sun March 9th and follow up article in March 23rd edition. These students recently performed in the Massachusetts Music Educators Association District Concert.

Thank you Quincy Sun!

In the same edition, I was pleased to read Tom Gorman's report on teacher training needs in math and reading initiated by the Quincy Public Schools Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. In addition, Quincy Choral Boosters President Stacy Barker addressed the committee requesting a sequential and standards based music program be available for all students K through 12th grades.

I totally agree and commend Ms. Barker and the Choral Boosters for bringing these facts to the attention of our School Committee.

As a community member and a taxpayer, I want to commend the Quincy Choral Boosters for their efforts to correct the present inequity by working with the School Committee to bring about change. Also, I want to thank the Quincy School Committee for recognizing the value of music and choral programs not only financing the students' participation in citywide, district and state performances, but also taking on the issue of an additional choral arts instructor and department head to service our high school students who wish to pursue music studies after graduation.

Another Side To The Landlord - Tenant Issue

This is in response to the ordinance against absentee landlords. Having owned a multi in North Quincy for 40 odd years, I feel I need to respond to this. You are painting a broad brush against landlords.

There are two sides to all stories; you make it like the landlords are destroying or not keeping up the property. Once you give the keys to a tenant you have a pretty hard time controlling what is happening.

Tenant rights exceed many things and make it difficult to deal with. If they stop paying rent, you, the landlord, have to go to court, pay court fees, lawyer fees, and then are told that they will pay you $50 a month – not.

You cannot go into an apartment without permission and you cannot force the tenant to do anything; they tell you they have rights.

Sometime it would be nice to have you take the side of the landlord. If these properties you talk about are so bad, cite them now. Why take an ordinance out for all landlords when they are a small percentage?

I pay my taxes, water bills and keep up the property. I really do not think I should be charged a permit fee. You state that buildings with property management companies would be exempt. Who benefits here? This seems to be aimed as the small house owners. There are so many huge projects going up and I think your time should be spent regulating them.

Thanks for listening and I hope paying attention.

F.W. Parker School Hosts Family Literacy Event

F.W. PARKER SCHOOL recently hosted a family literacy event for parents. Parents began the morning with a coffee social where they got to meet with the school's literacy teachers and English Language teachers. Then they visited the classrooms, where they observed a reading lesson, and read the book "From Seed to Plant" with a student. After that, they participated in a science activity and planted seeds with their child. At the end, each family received a copy of the book and a seed packet to take home. Parents enjoyed the event and learned several literacy tips to help their child at home. Photos Courtesy Scott Perfetuo

Quincy Knights Of Columbus Recognizes Founder's Day

Brother Knight and Mayor Tom Koch recently presented a proclamation to Grand Knight Patrick McDermott in celebration of Founder's Day for the Knights of Columbus.

Late-19th century Connecticut was marked by the growing prevalence of fraternal benefit societies, hostility toward Catholic immigrants and dangerous working conditions in factories that left many families fatherless.

Recognizing a vital, practical need in his community, Father Michael J. McGivney, the 29-year-old assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church in New Haven, Conn., gathered a group of men at his parish on Oct. 2, 1881. He proposed establishing a lay organization, the goal of which would be to prevent Catholic men from entering secret societies whose membership was antithetical to Church teaching, to unite men of Catholic faith and to provide for the families of deceased members.

As a symbol that allegiance to their country did not conflict with allegiance to their faith, the organization's members took as their patron Christopher Columbus — recognized as a Catholic and celebrated as the discoverer of America. Thanks to Father McGivney's persistence, the Knights of Columbus elected officers in February 1882 and officially assumed corporate status on March 29.

In his proclamation, Mayor Koch recognizes the Greater Quincy Council for continuing the traditions and extolling the virtues of Charity, Fraternity, Unity, and Patriotism as originally put forth by Father Michael J. McGivney.

The Knights support numerous local charities in Quincy including various youth sports teams, DOVE, the former Quincy Teen Mothers Program, Father Bills, Interfaith Social Services and others. The members also host monthly middle school dances which help raise money for local charities.

The Greater Quincy Council is located at 340 Hancock Street in North Quincy. For information on membership in the Knights of Columbus, contact Grand Knight Patrick McDermott at 617-594-0640 or pmcdquincy@gmail.com.

Sausages, Peppers Cooked With Beer

By MARIE

We have all heard of using beer when cooking certain dishes and some of us do just that when steaming clams for a better flavor – especially when making clam chowder.

But here is a surprising way to use beer – and that is when you are cooking sausages in preparation for the ever popular sausage and peppers casserole.

Recently my granddaughter, Jennifer, had a sizable buffet and I commented how tender and flavorful the sausage and peppers were. She revealed she had used beer in the dish and the results were delicious!

RECIPE

Here is the recipe for 2 pounds of sausage, but you can adjust accordingly. For instance, if you are using 6 sausages use one can of beer.

2 pounds of pork or chicken sausages
2 8- ounce cans of beer (any kind)
6 bell peppers, red green or both
1 medium onion, chopped
1 cup of tomato sauce

Heat Oven to 350 degrees
Make fork cut in every sausage
Cut peppers in pieces and set aside.

In large skillet place beer and sausages and cook on medium heat until sausages are tender. When cooled cut into pieces.

Add the sliced peppers and tomato sauce and cook for a few minutes. Now, in a slightly greased roasting pan, add all of the mixed ingredients and bake covered in 350 degree oven for about 25 minutes or until peppers are tender.

Healthy 'Pudding Pops'

By SUSIE

When the warm weather finally arrives, ice cream will be on your children's list as well as your own as a must have for those longer evenings.

Here is an absolutely delicious and easy recipe taken from the Against All Grain blogger Danielle Walker. These taste exactly like the "pudding pops" that many of us grew up with and loved so much. These are good for you, taste amazing, and will be a hit with everyone. I promise.

Please do not substitute any other milk, because they will come out to" ice" and not creamy. ENJOY!!!

INGREDIENTS

2 1/4 cups full-fat coconut milk, divided (do NOT get "Lite")
2 1/2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin powder (I use the Vital Proteins brand which I get online from pasture raised cows)
1/2 cup pure maple syrup
1/4 cup natural cocoa powder
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Dash of sea salt

Instructions:

1. Place 1/4 cup of the coconut milk in a medium heat-proof bowl. Sprinkle the gelatin overtop and set aside to bloom for 5 minutes.

2. Heat the remaining 2 cups of coconut milk, maple syrup, cocoa powder, vanilla extract, and sea salt in a saucepan over medium-high heat for 5 minutes. Whisk the softened gelatin into the saucepan and continue whisking until all of the gelatin is dissolved.

3. Pour the liquid into popsicle molds and refrigerate to cool for 1 hour before placing into the freezer for 6 hours, or until set.

Brilene Faherty Named Director S.S. Chamber Of Commerce

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce announces that Brilene Faherty, a financial advisor with Stoddard Financial, LLC, has been named to the Board of Directors for a two-year term.

In this role, she will work with Board of Directors Chairman Alan Macdonald and CEO Peter Forman, along with her fellow directors, to help shape and guide the Chamber's growth and positions on key issues affecting the region. Her responsibilities also will include serving on a committee that explores additional opportunities that the Chamber can create for members and business people in the region.

Faherty, a Quincy native who now resides in Weymouth, recently completed a two-year term as president of the Rockland Chamber of Commerce, an affiliate of the South Shore Chamber. She is active in numerous organizations, including the South Shore Workforce Investment Board (SSWIB), where she serves as treasurer. She is also a member of the Advisory Board of the Quincy Young Professionals, and a member of the South Shore Young Professionals.

Faherty previously served as an ambassador for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Board of Directors of the Quincy Lions Club and the nonprofit Vital Impact; and a member of the Advisory Board of the Quincy Chamber Millennials.

Faherty earned her Masters of Business Administration at the University of Massachusetts, Boston. She graduated, cum laude, from Fairfield University with a Bachelor of Arts in political science and English. Help For Those With Heroin Addiction

Those with loved ones who are using opiates or heroin have a new risk. Drug dealers across the United States have begun to mix drugs with an extremely powerful and dangerous drug known as Fentanyl.

The drug Fentanyl can be from 50 to 100 times more powerful then heroin, making the risk of a fatal overdose much higher. Drug dealers have been using this drug to increase the potency of their heroin at a lower cost.

Now more than ever it is essential to get those you know who are addicted into treatment. Having a relationship with a person who has an addiction to opiates is often stressful. Although you just want to help the addicted person, they many times fight against you as if you were the enemy.

Addicts can be very difficult to get into treatment and it is important to ask for help when you need it. There are professionals who can help you handle your loved one before it is too late.

Fentanyl has made the risks of being a heroin addict even higher than it already was. Get yourself educated. If one of your loved ones is struggling with addiction, get them into treatment. Don't wait until it is too late.

There are many different approaches to the challenge of how to help addicts. For free information, visit http://www.narconon-newliferetreat.org/blog/fentanyl-laced-heroin-worsening-overdose-crisis.html or call 1 800-431-1754 to get help for your loved ones.

Hearing Loss: An Environmental Threat

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Hearing empowers us and helps us lead our everyday lives without constraints. It makes it possible for us to communicate, socialize and work. It also assists us in staying connected to the outside world and it keeps us protected by alerting us of potential danger.

Loud noise exposure is a common environmental hazard in the United States that can lead to hearing loss and deterioration of other conditions such as sleep disturbance, cardiovascular disease and diabetes. Unless your hearing is tested, it's extremely difficult to know if it's damaged.

Recent CDC surveys found about one in four U.S. adults who say their hearing is good or excellent actually have hearing damage. The latest CDC report demonstrates that much of this damage is from loud sounds encountered during everyday activities at home and in the community.

Almost 58 million Americans are exposed to loud noises at work and home at least 4 hours per day, for several days a week. Surprisingly, less than half of those exposed, used hearing protection. Additionally, for the almost 35 million Americans who use firearms, only 58 percent use hearing protection.

Excess noise exposure at home or in the community from things like using a leaf blower or attending loud concerts can impair a person's hearing just as much as working in a very noisy place. Approximately 40 million Americans show some hearing damage from loud noise, with nearly 21 million reporting no exposure to loud noise at work. This can be disturbing for not only those people affected, but also their loved ones.

CDC researchers analyzed more than 3,500 hearing tests conducted on adult participants in a 2012 survey. They found that 20 percent of people who reported no job-related noise exposure had hearing damage in a pattern typically initiated by noise. This damage, revealed by a distinctive drop in the ability to hear high-pitched sounds, emerged as early as age 20. The report found:

- About 53 percent of adults with noise-induced hearing damage reported no job exposure to loud sounds. This damage shown by a distinctive drop in the ability to hear high-pitched sounds, appeared as early as age 20.
- Almost one in four adults ages 20 to 69 who reported good to excellent hearing already have some hearing loss.
- Almost 1 in 5 adults who reported no job exposure to noise displayed hearing damage indicative of noise exposure.
- The presence of hearing loss increased with age, from about 1 in 5 (19%) among young adults ages 20-29 to more than 1 in 4 (27%) among adults ages 50-59.
- Hearing loss is more common among men and people over the age of 40 years.

It is more expected that older people will have hearing loss however this study finds some young adults are already losing some hearing, so this is a problem for all age groups. Questioning patients about their hearing, and offering tips for reducing exposure to loud noises, can help assist patients preserve and sustain their hearing.

As the U.S. population ages, researchers report that millions more will confront the prospect of losing their hearing. Among American adults 20 and older, hearing loss is expected to increase from 44 million in 2020 (15 percent of adults) to 73.5 million by 2060 (23 percent of adults). The increase will be greatest among older adults, according to the researchers from Johns Hopkins Medicine in Baltimore.

In 2020, 55 percent of all adults with hearing loss will be 70 or older. In 2060, that rate will jump to 67 percent. In the approaching decades, there will be an amplified demand for affordable interventions and access to hearing health care services.

Difficulty with hearing is the third most frequently reported chronic health condition in the U.S. About 40 million Americans ages 20 to 69 have hearing loss in one or both ears that may be the end result of noise exposure. A few recent studies have shown an increase in the number of young people exposed to loud sounds through portable devices and at entertainment venues.

Research has shown that untreated hearing loss is linked to anxiety, depression, loneliness and stress. In addition to hearing loss, chronic noise exposure has been associated with worsening of heart disease, increased blood pressure, and other unfavorable health outcomes. The relevance of the necessity of more studies on exposure to noise in early life and its relationship to hearing loss as people age is very evident.

The cost for the first year of hearing loss treatment in adults ages 65 and older is projected to reach an estimated $51 billion by 2030. Beyond the cost, hearing loss can take a toll on a person's quality of life and ability to communicate, work and remain involved in social and family activities. Hearing loss has been associated with a decrease in mental ability; reminding us of how essential it is to have a provision for hearing care for our population. Its significance will continue to intensify.

Healthcare providers can assist their patients to slow the progression of hearing loss from noise exposure. The CDC encourages primary care providers to question patients concerning their exposure to loud noise and difficulty hearing. When patients display or convey concerns regarding hearing problems, providers should examine their hearing, and/or refer them to a hearing specialist. Health care providers should actively identify patients at risk and encourage the use of hearing protection in all patients. At routine health care visits, providers also should clarify how noise exposure can permanently damage hearing and educate patient's ways to protect their hearing.

People concerned about their hearing can follow some common sense tips:

- Avoid noisy places whenever possible.
- Use earplugs, protective ear muffs, or noise-canceling headphones when they are exposed to loud noises.
- Keep the volume low when watching television, listening to music, and using earbuds or headphones.
- Request a hearing test form your healthcare provider at your next checkup.

Sausages, Peppers Cooked With Beer

By MARIE

We have all heard of using beer when cooking certain dishes and some of us do just that when steaming clams for a better flavor – especially when making clam chowder.

But here is a surprising way to use beer – and that is when you are cooking sausages in preparation for the ever popular sausage and peppers casserole.

Recently my granddaughter, Jennifer, had a sizable buffet and I commented how tender and flavorful the sausage and peppers were. She revealed she had used beer in the dish and the results were delicious!

RECIPE

Here is the recipe for 2 pounds of sausage, but you can adjust accordingly. For instance, if you are using 6 sausages use one can of beer.

2 pounds of pork or chicken sausages
2 8- ounce cans of beer (any kind)
6 bell peppers, red green or both
1 medium onion, chopped
1 cup of tomato sauce

Heat Oven to 350 degrees
Make fork cut in every sausage
Cut peppers in pieces and set aside.

In large skillet place beer and sausages and cook on medium heat until sausages are tender. When cooled cut into pieces.

Add the sliced peppers and tomato sauce and cook for a few minutes. Now, in a slightly greased roasting pan, add all of the mixed ingredients and bake covered in 350 degree oven for about 25 minutes or until peppers are tender.

Healthy 'Pudding Pops'

By SUSIE

When the warm weather finally arrives, ice cream will be on your children's list as well as your own as a must have for those longer evenings.

Here is an absolutely delicious and easy recipe taken from the Against All Grain blogger Danielle Walker. These taste exactly like the "pudding pops" that many of us grew up with and loved so much. These are good for you, taste amazing, and will be a hit with everyone. I promise.

Please do not substitute any other milk, because they will come out to" ice" and not creamy. ENJOY!!!

INGREDIENTS

2 1/4 cups full-fat coconut milk, divided (do NOT get "Lite")
2 1/2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin powder (I use the Vital Proteins brand which I get online from pasture raised cows)
1/2 cup pure maple syrup
1/4 cup natural cocoa powder
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Dash of sea salt

Instructions:

1. Place 1/4 cup of the coconut milk in a medium heat-proof bowl. Sprinkle the gelatin overtop and set aside to bloom for 5 minutes.

2. Heat the remaining 2 cups of coconut milk, maple syrup, cocoa powder, vanilla extract, and sea salt in a saucepan over medium-high heat for 5 minutes. Whisk the softened gelatin into the saucepan and continue whisking until all of the gelatin is dissolved.

3. Pour the liquid into popsicle molds and refrigerate to cool for 1 hour before placing into the freezer for 6 hours, or until set.

Hearing empowers us and helps us lead our everyday lives without constraints. It makes it possible for us to communicate, socialize and work. It also assists us in staying connected to the outside world and it keeps us protected by alerting us of potential danger.

Loud noise exposure is a common environmental hazard in the United States that can lead to hearing loss and deterioration of other conditions such as sleep disturbance, cardiovascular disease and diabetes. Unless your hearing is tested, it's extremely difficult to know if it's damaged.

SS Science Festival Returns To Quincy April 22

Volunteers Still Needed

By KATHY DULLEA HOGAN
Co-Chairman

Budding scientists and engineers will be happy to hear that once again the South Shore Science Festival, Quincy, will be the place to go on Saturday, April 22.

The festival will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Eastern Nazarene College's location at 180 Old Colony Ave. (behind Central Middle School).

Intrigued by drones? Enjoy games with Legos? Is hula hooping one of your favorite games? Curious to find out more about genes? Concerned about climate change?

Enjoy music? Ever wonder how an eye doctor can figure out what kind of glasses you need? Interested in Quincy's 19th century industries? Think it would be fun to connect a story with science and art? Want to try a coding game? Like to look at gems through a microscope? Curious about 3D printers?

If your answer is yes to any of these questions, you will find lots of things you'll enjoy hearing about and, most of all, trying out for yourself as you stroll through the Quincy Center for Innovation. These are only a few of the fun things for you to explore. As we firm up more offerings, you can read updates about them later.

More volunteers are needed, too, to make this year's science festival better than ever. The festival is part of MIT's Cambridge Science Festival. Volunteers are needed in three ways:

1) To be part of the different booths or presentations,

2) To help set up before the festival, and

3) To help with various general duties the day of the festival.

And volunteers can work a combination of these three ways, of course.

It is so important for children to have early experiences with Science, Technology, Engineering, the Arts, and Math (aka STEAM) to help them discover their talents. Will it be you and/or your group that will guide a child to this discovery?

In addition, sponsors are needed for in-kind donations.

Social Security Matters

Ex-Spouse Benefits - When You Don't Get

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I am very confused about where I stand with Social Security. I have been divorced twice. First husband is 79; I was married to him for 10 years. He is remarried and collecting Social Security. Second husband is 69; I was married to him for 33 years. He is not remarried and is still actively working. I'm not sure if he collects yet. Both husbands were professionals who had very high incomes.

I am 75 and have been collecting Social Security from the age of 63 based on 21 active years of teaching in the city school system, and my Social Security benefit is about $1334. I have been working part time ever since but not making more than around $5000 a year. I have been to my local Social Security office three times and have been told each time that I cannot collect any of my ex-spouses' Social Security until they die. Is this correct information? Signed: Confused

Dear Confused: As an ex-spouse you are eligible for spousal benefits if you meet certain criteria, which include being at least 62 years of age, not currently married, married to your ex for at least 10 years (and divorced at least 2 if the other spouse is eligible for Social Security but not yet collecting). However in order for you to collect, your benefit amount as an ex- spouse must be greater than the benefit you are already receiving on your own work record.

The benefit you are entitled to as an ex-spouse is 50% of either of your ex-husbands' Primary Insurance Amount (or PIA, the amount they were entitled to at their full retirement age). While both of your ex-husbands may be (or may have been) high-income professionals, they only paid Social Security FICA taxes on whatever the payroll tax limit was for each year in their respective careers ($127,200 in 2017 but less in preceding years). There is also a maximum PIA amount which beneficiaries can earn in retirement benefits. For 2017 that maximum is $2687, but it was less in previous years. So let's explore the possibilities:

Husband number 1 is now 79 years old, was a high-earner and was born in 1938. Assuming he contributed the maximum amount to Social Security over his career, his PIA at his full retirement age of 65 years and 2 months in 2003 could not have been higher than about $2,450. As his ex-spouse (or spouse) you would be entitled to 50% of his PIA, or about $1,225.

Husband number 2 is now 69 years old, also a high-earner, and was born in 1948. Again assuming he contributed the maximum amount to Social Security over his career, his PIA at his full retirement age of 66 in 2014 could not have been higher than $2,533. As his ex-spouse (or spouse) you would be entitled to 50% of his PIA, or about $1,266.

Since your Social Security monthly benefit on your own work record is $1,334, and since that is more than 50% of both ex-husbands' PIA, you cannot get a "spousal boost" from their Social Security record. The reason Social Security said that you cannot collect anything until one of your ex-husbands die is because as a surviving ex-spouse (or spouse) you are entitled to 100% of either the deceased PIA or, if they waited beyond their full retirement age to start benefits whatever they were collecting (or were eligible to collect) upon their death. And obviously 100% of either ex-spouse's benefit would be more than your benefit from your own work record.

Temporary Home For Public Buildings Department Sought

buildings. Hines is at City Hall while the other employees are located in 50 and 58 Saville Ave.

"From an administrative and economies standpoint, it's a nightmare having the three locations for this team and there is all the duplication of expenses – copiers, heat, air conditioning, light bills, the whole nine yards," Hines said of the current situation.

The home at 74 Greenleaf St. is currently owned by Work Inc., which operated an adult group home on site until it had to shutdown because the structure is not in compliance with safety codes. Because it is owned by a non-profit and was used as a group home, the property is not on the city tax rolls, Hines said.

Mayor Thomas Koch in January asked Hines to come up with a way to save the building once Work Inc. notified him it would put the property up for the sale, with the city given the right of first refusal.

The home was built in 1880, according to the city assessor's online records, and was added to the National Registry of Historic Places in 1989. The house is known as the George Barker Home; Barker's family was one of the foremast leaders in the Quincy granite industry, according to Hines.

The property is in a Residential C district, and Hines said a developer could construct a six-story, eight-unit building on site if the building were demolished, which the mayor did not want to see happen.

"He was very much concerned that the property was going to fall victim to the wrecking ball," Hines said.

Under a proposal pending before the City Council, the city would purchase 74 Greenleaf St. for $700,000 and spend about $75,000 to renovate the building and its grounds. The money for the purchase would come from a capital asset account, which can only be used for acquiring property and under state law cannot be transferred to the general fund; Hines said the state requires municipalities to keep money in such an account to prevent them from selling off parks and buildings to balance their budgets.

Hines said he had spoken to a realtor who said 74 Greenleaf St. would be listed for $859,000 if it did hit the open market.

"We're getting it well below its market value," Hines said. "I think if it really went to market…there's going to be a bidding war, so that's the starting point - $859,000 – and it's going to go up."

If the city were to purchase 74 Greenleaf St., it would also put 50 Saville Ave. on the market. Hines said it would likely be sold to the highest bidder and the city expects to get at least half the cost of the acquiring and upgrading the Greenleaf Street house.

The house at 58 Saville Rd. would stay under city ownership, but would no longer be used by the Public Buildings Department.

The renovations planned for 74 Greenleaf St. would include demolition of the existing two-and-half-car garage on site and repaving the patio in the rear to provide nine parking spaces for the nine employees who would work in the building. The city would also install a privacy fence to separate it from the residence to the rear, and refurbish the interior.

Hines said his department would stay in the Greenleaf Street home for about five years while the new office building is designed and built. The new municipal building on Sea Street would be located near the current police station and would house both the Quincy Police and Fire Departments.

After moving to new municipal building, 74 Greenleaf St. would then be sold. Hines said the city, as the property owner, could then take steps to ensure the building would not be demolished. The city could not do so unless it owns the property.

About ten residents attended the community meeting, and several said they would support the request to purchase 74 Greenleaf St. property and move Hines' department there temporarily.

Residents, however, did have questions about the move. Diane Kelsch asked if Hines was certain he would be able to provide parking for all nine employees on site.

"I can't see how they're going to get in and out without getting stuck, if they all want to come and go as they want," she said.

Hines said the employees have times when they report to the office at the start of the day and leave in the afternoon. Five of the employees, he stated, stay at their desks during the day while two or three others report there in the morning and then work at various city buildings throughout the day. Additionally, the house has a shower in it and Hines said some of his employees might decide to ride bicycles to work when weather allows it.

David McCarthy, who is running against Laforest for her seat on the council, asked Hines if maintenance workers would be coming and going from the Greenleaf Street home throughout the day.

Hines said those employees would not be doing so. They are currently based out of Sterling Middle School and will move to a location on Broad Street later this month during school vacation as the building is prepped for a partial demolition set for this summer as part of the construction of a new facility on site. The maintenance workers would be based out of the Broad Street location and get their work orders there.

In response to another resident, Hines said the Public Buildings Department does not receive visitors during the day. The administrative offices would not be open to the public.

Hines was also asked about signage on the building; he said the city would install a small, unlit sign with both the name of the house – the George Barker Home – and his department on it.

'Giving While Living' Topic At Library April 22

The Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation will present "Giving While Living" Saturday, April 22 at noon in the library community room, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The program will address the tax benefits and characteristics of charitable donations in various types of financial planning. Topics include direct donations, charitable trusts, donor advised funds, and distributions from IRAs and other investment accounts.

Featured speakers are Marylou Ruch, vice president, Wealth Management Advisor, Merrill Lynch; and Attorney George Brooks, CMA, CIA.

Those attending may bring a lunch or can purchase lunch at the adjoining café. Coffee and water will be provided.

Police Joining Pilot Program On Domestic Violence

protect victims of crime," Polito said.

Mayor Thomas Koch credited Polito and Gov. Charlie Baker for the work their administration has done with communities throughout Massachusetts.

"This is yet another program advanced by the administration that's going to make a big difference in the lives of people all over Massachusetts," Koch said.

Woburn Police Chief Robert Ferullo Jr. said the tool kit used during the pilot program would allow his department to better assist victims and prosecute the offenders.

"This tool kit is going to give us the opportunity to standardize victim information, which will allow us to more effectively prosecute," he said. "I believe with the implementation of this tool kit it will give us an opportunity to close the circle, provide services for the victims, prosecution of the perpetrators and allow us to move forward in a standardized, consistent way."

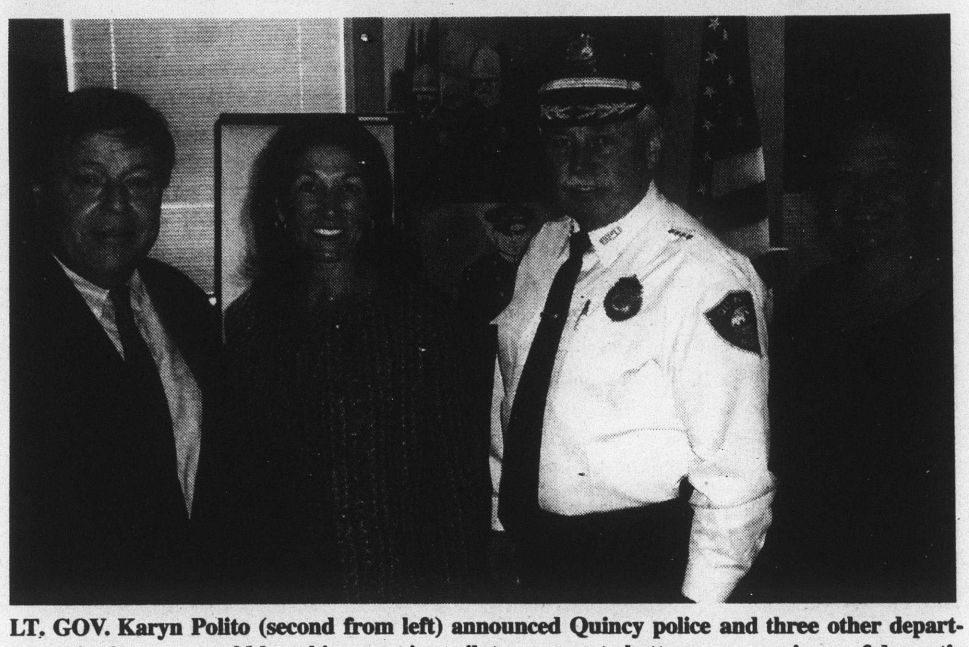
Northwestern District Attorney David Sullivan, whose district includes Greenfield, said the safety of victims is his top priority and the top priority of his fellow prosecutors. The tools being rolled out during the pilot program, he said, reflect that.

"It really figures out what's going on in the present but also looking back and establishing ways to protect those individuals and also to move forward for offender accountability," he said of the pilot program. "As a prosecutor, the more information that we have, the better we can set bails, the better we can set parameters for disposition. It's a really great step forward."

Dan Zivkovich, the executive director of the Massachusetts Municipal Police Training Committee, said the tools and training offered during the pilot program were developed through a collaborative effort between police, mental health experts and domestic violence advocates. Feedback gathered during the pilot program from both officers and survivors will be used to make changes to the initiative before it rolls out to more communities and eventually the entire state.

Sue Chandler, the executive director of DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), said her organization has worked with the Quincy Police Department since its founding nearly 40 years ago. DOVE has a civilian advocate who works out of the department headquarters and contacts survivors of domestic violence after they have spoken to police.

"We know that a law enforcement and police-based response is absolutely not the only response in this issue, but when it happens it is so important that it be done well and we could not ask for a better partner than QPD and are thrilled to be part of this pilot," Chandler said.



LT. GOV. Karyn Polito (second from left) announced Quincy police and three other departments in the state would be taking part in a pilot program to better serve survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault during a visit to Quincy Police Department headquarters. Joining her at the announcement (from left) were Mayor Thomas Koch, Police Chief Paul Keenan and Sue Chandler, executive director of DOVE. Quincy Sun Photo/Scott Jackson

Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan said two officers from his department would receive training from the state and then train their fellow officers.

"We want to get the training done as quickly as we can because it is an important issue," he told The Sun.

Keenan believes the new tools being implemented as part of the pilot program would have a positive effect.

"We've been on the forefront of this issue and this is formalizing what we do and formalizing it in other communities so everyone is on the same page and we get better information and better statistics and hopefully make a difference," he said.

'Caring For Planet Earth' Festival

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program, the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Quincy Climate Action Network will host a free two-part environmental festival on April 18 and April 29.

The theme is "Caring for Planet Earth: Local Stories of Inspiration and Hope."

On April 18, the festival begins in the Community Room of the main library at 6:30 p.m. where local environmental groups and city departments will display their activities. Free tickets for door prizes will be distributed to everyone who arrives before 7 p.m. At 7 p.m. several elected officials and local environmental groups will speak briefly about their accomplishments.

A drawing for the winners of the door prizes including a rain barrel, an energy efficiency kit, t-shirts, a ride in a hybrid electric vehicle to view a home charging station, a personal guided tour of the Quincy coast with a naturalist, and much more will be held at 7:30 p.m. The evening will conclude with the screening of Ocean Frontiers III, a just released hour-long film about various groups working together to plan for potentially conflicting uses of the North Atlantic Ocean, from Virginia to Canada.

In addition to parking in the library lot, participants may also park at Coddington Hall, 34 Coddington St., across from the library that evening.

On Saturday, April 29 Steve Perdios and Maureen Mazrimas will lead a free guided walk around Marina Bay describing citizen efforts to preserve open space in Quincy from acquisitions with the hotel/motel tax to the Community Preservation Act. Participants should meet at 2 p.m. at the Kennedy Center parking lot, 440 E. Squantum St.

For more information and rain date rescheduling, call 617/472-0799.

Wollaston MBTA Station Closing For Renovations

will begin this summer at the MBTA's expense.

The $38 million project to renovate the Wollaston station is set to begin this July and has a June 2020 completion date, according to Joe Cheever, a project manager for the MBTA. The 20-month closure of the station, during which trains will still pass through the facility but won't make stops, could begin sometime this fall. Shuttle buses will run between the Wollaston and North Quincy stations during that time; Cheever said the MBTA would put up temporary bus shelters on both sides of Wollaston station to accommodate commuters.

The Wollaston station, which opened in 1971, is the only Red Line station not in compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act. Plans for the station include three elevators – one will be included in an expanded lobby under the station and the other two will connect the platform to the parking lot via a new walkway over the tracks. The project is also meant to alleviate concerns about flooding at entrances to the lobby below the station, which will remain open as a pass through for residents following completion of the renovations.

"We're doing a full station upgrade," Cheever said. "From the existing station to the proposed, it's going to look significantly different."

Cheever said the MBTA looked into six different scenarios on how to complete the renovations before settling on the plan to close the station for 20 months. Doing so, he explained, will allow the T to finish completion sooner while saving the cash-strapped agency money.

"The amount of time the station is actually under construction is less, which, from a customer experience perspective, is hopefully something they would value," Cheever said.

"It's also 25 percent less cost and it's really important to know it's a lot less temporary construction…when you try to keep the station open, you extend the platform to the north, extend the platform to the south or do some sort of plywood barriers to get folks on and off the train. All those things go away with closing the station during construction."

Cheever noted the MBTA has previously closed stations – Science Park, Orient Heights and Government Center – during renovation projects. Those stations, however, were closed for shorter periods of time. He said the renovations would be substantially completed – and the station code compliant – when it re-opens after the 20-month shutdown.

At the North Quincy station, the T has awarded a pair of firms – Atlantic Development and Bozzuto Development – rights to construct a $200 million mixed-use development with 610 residential units and 50,000 square feet of retail space on site. The project awaits approval from the Quincy Planning Board.

Scott Bosworth, the MBTA's chief strategy officer, said the first phase of the project would entail construction of a garage on site with 852 spaces – the same number of spaces the parking lot has currently. Construction of the garage could commence as soon as January 2018 and would take about a year to finish.

"During this time there will be some parking interruptions," Bosworth said. "We are working with the contractor and will continue working with the contractor to limit the number of spaces that are out of commission during that time, but there will be spots taken offline."

The T is looking at several options to make up for that loss of spaces. The first priority is to redesign the current lot to provide more spaces on site, or use MBTA land near the station on Commander Shea Boulevard.

Bosworth said the MBTA has also reached out to nearby apartment complexes to see if they could provide spaces during the daytime, as well as the businesses on Enterprise and Heritage Drives. The T might also be able to use the parking lot at North Quincy High School over the summer of 2018 when classes are out of session. The fallback option if parking cannot be found elsewhere is to use the parking lot at the state-owned Squantum Point Park.

To make Squantum Point Park a viable option, Bosworth said the MBTA is working with city officials to extend Commander Shea Boulevard to the parking lot and the agency will pay for the $2.1 million project. The extension of Commander Shea Boulevard would allow access to Squantum Point Park without driving through private roads in Marina Bay.

Squantum Point Park was home to a pilot ferry program last year. Quincy undertook the pilot program in partnership with Winthrop, which paid operational costs of the service. Bosworth said the state wants to see the ferry up and running this year, and Transportation Secretary Stephanie Pollack has offered to help subsidize the service provided it works for Quincy – city officials are still working through details on the program.

"We are committed to working with the city to help make sure that runs again this season, to the point where Secretary Pollock has offered to subsidize part of that. That commitment is as long as that schedule works for the city of Quincy," Bosworth.

Additionally, Bosworth said the Massachusetts Department of Transportation would fund a study on the feasibility of permanent service at Squantum Point Park. The study would be done specifically for Quincy and not all of the other communities in Greater Boston.

The T will also provide funding for police details to direct traffic at the Neponset Circle during the time Wollaston station is closed as a further mitigation measure, Bosworth said.

The MBTA closed the 870-car Quincy Center garage without warning in July 2012 because of concerns over its structural integrity. The T will begin demolition of the garage this July, according to project manager John McCormack. The demolition work is projected to cost $25 million, which the T is paying for, and is expected to be completed by December 2018.

The Quincy Center station will remain open during demolition, McCormack said.

City officials have begun the process of designing a replacement for the garage and are also eyeing a mixed-use development for the station. McCormack said the city has received a $4.2 million federal grant to build a new busway on site. The busway will be moved to the

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On March 25, at approximately 6:10 p.m., the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit were working in plain clothes and operating unmarked police vehicles while conducting surveillance in the Quincy Point/Quincy Square area of the city due to recent complaints regarding drug activity.

Detective Duran was situated on Spear Street and observed a male walk out of one of the buildings. He recognized the male from past incidents and knew that he is a crack cocaine user. A few months earlier, the male was involved in an incident where detectives believed a drug transaction had occurred. On that day, it is believed that he ingested crack cocaine upon seeing the police and admitted that he was awaiting a delivery of crack cocaine.

The male walked up the street by Detective Duran and waved to him, then continued walking towards Coddington Street. About five minutes later, Detective Duran observed a black Toyota Camry come to a stop at the intersection of Francis Avenue and Spear Street.

The detective queried the license plate that showed the Camry was registered to a male from Brockton. A check of the owner's record showed 45 entries on his adult criminal record, with several of the entries being drug related. The Camry drove off briefly and then returned to the area. Detective Duran then radioed other Detectives in the area and informed them of the vehicle.

Detective Powers and O'Brien immediately recognized the vehicle and license plate as one they received past drug complaints about. The detectives were aware that a substance abuser lives in the area where the Camry was lingering about. In addition, the detectives had received numerous anonymous complaints that drug activity was occurring there too. Detective Duran kept surveillance on the Camry as it travelled down Francis Avenue. The Camry had tinted windows but there only appeared to be one occupant (driver) in the vehicle. As the Camry reached the intersection of Francis Avenue and Newcomb Street, it stopped on the side of the road.

Within two minutes the Camry drove off onto McGrath Highway. The Detectives lost sight of the Camry, however, in less than 10 minutes, the Camry returned to the area and stopped at an apartment building on Spear Street. Once stopped, Detective Duran watched as the male who waved to him earlier exited the passenger seat and walked into the building on Spear Street he previously walked out of. The Camry drove off towards McGrath Highway. At that time, the detectives involved in this investigation believed that the operator of the Camry and the male engaged in a street level drug transaction.

Since the male had already had entered his residence, the decision was made to keep the Camry under surveillance as it travelled through Quincy to see if it engaged in another drug transaction. The Camry was followed onto Quarry Street where the driver went from the left lane to the right lane without signaling, which caused Detective Coen to apply his brakes so as not to collide with the Camry. Officer Paul Foley, in a marked unit, pulled the Camry over on Quarry Street nearby Hall Place.

Officer Foley approached the passenger side of the Camry and informed him that he was being stopped because of the unsafe lane change on Quarry Street. Officer Foley asked the driver where he was coming from and he said that he just dropped a friend off in the area of TJ MAXX (100 Granite St.) because his friend works nearby. All officers involved knew this statement was not truthful. Officer Foley conferred with detectives Powers and Coen about the lie. Detective Coen then walked to the passenger side of the Camry and observed the driver place his right hand to his mouth and drink from a water bottle. Detective Coen knew that drug dealers will often have a bottle of water readily available. If stopped by the Police they can destroy the evidence by swallowing the drugs with the assistance of the bottled water.

LT. DAN MINTON

Detective Coen notified Detective Powers, who was now at the driver's side of the vehicle, of his observations. Detective Powers instructed the driver to unlock his door and exit the vehicle. The driver stalled by questioning why, but then exited the Camry. Sergeant Tapper, Detectives O'Brien and Duran arrived on scene. The driver was then escorted to the sidewalk.

When asked why he was being detained, the driver was told it was a drug investigation. He responded, "I got nothing on me. You can search me" as he turned around and placed both hands on the fence behind him without being prompted to do so. Detective Coen then searched the driver and found three folds of money ($220, $100 and $2) in his sweatpants. Detective Coen also located one empty plastic sandwich bag in the same pocket. DCU Detectives know from their training and experience that plastic sandwich bags are often used to package drugs for sale.

Detective Coen smelled the plastic sandwich bag and immediately recognized the distinctive odor of Cocaine emanating from the bag. Detective Coen brought this to the driver's attention and he said, "I got nothing on me. I swallowed it." Concerned that the driver may need medical attention, Detective Coen asked him how many he swallowed and he said, "two" while refusing medical attention. The driver then asked, "Am I going to be arrested?" Detective Coen advised the driver that the investigation was ongoing and that a drug detection K9 was going to perform a scan of his person and vehicle.

At this time Officer Paul Foley and his drug detection K9 partner "Charlie" were deployed on the Camry. K9 Charlie showed a change in behavior indicating a drug odor outside of the Camry at the driver's door, to the area of the driver's seat and to the area surrounding the driver. Officer Foley then directed K9 "Charlie" to sniff Detective Coen's person as he had the plastic sandwich bag seized from the driver. K9 "Charlie" showed a change in behavior and showed a positive alert as he continued to detect a drug odor from Detective Coen's front sweatshirt pocket.

Detectives O'Brien, Powers and Duran searched the vehicle and found two empty sandwich bags in the headliner of the Camry. Detective O'Brien noticed the corners of the plastic sandwich bags were missing and had been cut away. DCU Detectives know from their training and experience that plastic sandwich bags are often used to package drugs for street level distribution. Detective O'Brien also located a pair of scissors in the middle console which are often used in drug distribution. Detective Powers also located two cell phones inside the Camry. The plastic sandwich bags, scissors and cell phones were later seized as evidence.

As the Detectives were searching the Camry, Detective Coen stood next to the driver who then asked, "Is this going to be much longer? I need to take a sh@#." Detective Coen noted that the driver appeared very nervous so he told him that he was going to search him and once again asked him if he had any drugs on his person. The driver said no. Detective Coen then led the driver to a remote area for privacy. The driver, without being instructed, started to reach into his undergarments. Detective Coen advised him to keep his hands out of his pants. Detective Coen pulled the driver's waistband of his sweatpants and underwear forward to visually inspect inside and immediately observed a knotted plastic bag containing Crack Cocaine. Detective Coen removed the drug and handed it over to Detective Duran. Detective Coen advised the driver he was under arrest and was assisted by Officer Foley placing him in handcuffs. Detective Coen told the driver a further search of his person would be conducted at QPD Headquarters. The driver then said, "I got a lot more on me but I'm not trafficking."

Back at the station, Detective Coen and Detective Sergeant Tapper escorted the driver to a private cell to conduct a further search. He was allowed to remove his own clothing and as he did this two individually packaged knotted plastic corner bags containing Crack Cocaine fell to the ground from his crotch area. The driver then pulled out a plastic sandwich bag containing 11individually packaged knotted plastic corner bags of Crack Cocaine. A total of 14 bags were seized from the driver. Detectives involved in this investigation believed the bags were packaged in a manner intended for distribution.

The driver, a 39 year-old Dorchester resident, was charged with possession of Class B (crack cocaine) with the intent to distribute (subsequent offense) and marked lanes violation. He was previously found guilty of possession of Class B with the intent to distribute in Suffolk Superior Court in 2012.

The Camry was towed to the station for further searching however no other contraband was located in the vehicle.

A total of $322 U.S. currency and the two cell phones were seized pending civil forfeiture. Detectives involved in this investigation believe the money is proceeds from drug sales and the cell phones were used to facilitate such sales.

Nice Work!

Leasing Launched At New Marina Bay Apartment Development

Hines, a real estate investment firm, announces leasing has launched for Meriel Marina Bay, a new luxury residential building in Quincy located at Marina Bay.

Meriel Marina Bay is a mixed-use development comprised of two, five-story buildings featuring 352 luxury apartments (studios, one, two and three bedrooms) with garage parking and approximately 20,000 square feet of premier ground-level retail space.

Each apartment home includes open layouts with over-sized windows and wide plank flooring throughout the main living areas. Kitchens feature stainless-steel appliances, center islands with breakfast bar, quartz countertops and European-style soft close cabinets. Apartments also include walk-in closets, soaking tubs, walk-in showers, and a full-size washer and dryer. Many apartments feature dual-sink vanities and a majority of the apartment homes have either oversized balconies or private patios.

Meriel Marina Bay offers a multitude of high-end amenities such as state-of-the-art fitness centers with separate cardio and yoga studios; a sundeck and a heated swimming pool.

Meriel Marina Bay also includes three courtyards overlooking the marina that includes areas equipped with an outdoor kitchen, BBQ grills, wet bar and fire pits. Indoor amenities include two club rooms with a flat screen TV with catering kitchens and lounge seating, cyber café with Wi-Fi, two conference rooms, a separate games and entertainment lounge, and storage areas for bikes and kayaks.

Pets are also pampered at Meriel Marina Bay with the Bark 'n' Bubbles pet spa and grooming station.

Boasting views of the Boston skyline, Marina Bay, and Dorchester Bay, Meriel Marina Bay is move-in ready and features an assortment of apartment homes ranging from approximately $2,100 to $4,600/per month.

"Meriel Marina Bay is extremely unique in that it offers residents the best of both worlds - a pristine oceanfront home with easy access to Boston in under 30 minutes," said David Perry, senior managing director at Hines. "As the last major development planned for Marina Bay, we aimed to exceed market expectations in both the design of this property and the range of amenities. It is an extraordinary waterfront location deserving of a best-in-class residential community."

Meriel Marina Bay is managed by The Bozzuto Group, a residential real estate company.

For more information about Meriel Marina Bay, or to schedule a tour, visithttp://www.merielmarina-bay.com/ or call 617-459-4040.

Register Of Deeds On Quincy Access TV

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will appear on Quarterly Updates with QATV's Mark Crosby.

O'Donnell will speak about many different aspects of the Registry. He will be discussing the first quarter real estate activity for both Quincy and Norfolk County, foreclosure activity, deeds scams, Homestead Law and mortgage discharges.

The Register will also encourage people to sign-up for its free anti-fraud program called Consumer Notification Service.

Another topic to be discussed is the Registry's Suits for Success program. This program accepts donated clothing at the Registry of Deeds. The Registry in turn donates the clothing to human service agencies to help people who are trying to transition back to the workforce.

Additionally, O'Donnell will also be talking about a couple of the Registry's latest ground breaking initiatives, its "History Comes Alive" transcription program praised by noted historian David McCullough and another vehicle to be launched later this year called Notable Land Records.

The program will be aired on QATV Channel 8 on the following dates:

Friday, April 14th at 7 p.m., Saturday, April 15th and Sunday, April 16th at 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Victoria Kay's Marathon Run To Support Playworks New England

As a second year medical student at Tufts University School of Medicine, Victoria Kay, 24, of Quincy, knows how important physical activity is not only for your health, but for social and emotional development.

For this reason, she chose Playworks New England as her school Community Service Learning project. For the last two years, she has lent her photography skills to the organization during its signature events, playground beautification projects, and student celebrations. Now, she is lacing up to hit the pavement for the nonprofit in what will be her first time running the Boston Marathon.

Playworks New England is a regional branch of a national nonprofit working to bring play and physical activity into elementary schools as a means to improve the health and well-being of children and to enhance learning. Through onsite direct-service coaching and training school faculty and staff, the organization integrates physical activity and social and emotional learning into organized activities during recess. The goal is to create a space where students feel included, are active, and build valuable social and emotional skills needed to thrive in the classroom and beyond Entering its 11th year, Playworks New England serves 50,000 students in more than 100 elementary schools across Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire. To date, the nonprofit has served 160,000 youth.

"Growing up, playing handball and kickball with my peers during recess created some of my fondest memories," says Kay. "In hindsight, I took the time and the space we had for healthy play for granted. It played a critical role in my development as a friend, teammate and leader. The Playworks' mission really aligns with my mission as a future doctor by providing youth with the opportunity to develop healthy habits of exercise while building social and interpersonal skills that will carry on into adulthood."

As she prepares to run the Boston Marathon April 17, Kay is committed to helping Massachusetts youth develop safe and healthy habits through Playworks New England.

As an undergraduate at the University of Notre Dame, Kay began to run and participated in her school's famous half-marathon, the Holy Half, all four years. The self-proclaimed novice runner now averages clocking in up to 20 miles a week in preparation for her first marathon, the historic Boston Marathon.

"In my family, I never saw myself as an athlete. Rather, I was book-smart," says Kay. "I really surprised myself running those four half-marathons followed by a mini triathalon. Each time, I set bigger goals and took baby steps to achieve those goals. If I can do it, anyone can!"

In the weeks leading up to the Boston Marathon, Kay, alongside the rest of the Playworks New England team, will participate in a number of fundraising initiatives, including selling Playworks t-shirts, hosting raffles at grocery stores, and hosting events. On March 10, the team hosted a fundraiser at Harpoon Brewery.

"I want my kids to have a healthy future like the one I've been afforded," says Kay who hopes to raise $7,500 for the nonprofit. "That is why I am running for Playworks New England."

High School Science Fair Winners Honored

By TOM GORMAN

The top winners of the Quincy High School STEM fair and North Quincy High School science fair were recognized by the school committee.

Quincy High's second place winner Dash Chin and third place finisher Alexander Ireland along with North Quincy High top winner Tamara Liang, second place winner Grace Kelliher and third place winner Luke Molloy each explained their projects to committee members on March 15. Quincy High's first place winner Rachel Shen was not able to attend.

"We have some real scientists with us this evening who worked very hard," School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said.

Quincy High science department Chairman Edward Smith and North Quincy High's science head Ken Panaro introduced their respective students.

Chin said that he and his project partner, Klei Hamzallari, the latter who was not able to attend the school committee meeting, experimented with ways to mitigate oil spill disasters. They developed a bacteria solution that breaks up oil compounds.

"It will efficiently clean up oil spills," said Chin.

Ireland constructed a model of mini pods where people could take shelter in the wake of a natural disaster. He got the idea after the 2011 Japan tsunami that wiped out thousands of coastal homes leaving nearly 250,000 homeless.

He showed his model of the pods that are stacked to help save space and provide temporary shelter during and after a tsunami or similar disaster.

"People can live in the pods during a disaster until the city is rebuilt," Ireland said.

North Quincy's Liang explained her project on potential health effects from wi-fi radiation. Exposing 75 fruit flies to wi-fi waves resulted in some deformities.

"A lot of them had white eyes and curved, serrated wings," she said.

Kelliher experimented with different amounts of trypan blue, a stain used to detect dead cells, in pond water to determine various shifts in fluorescence.

"The more concentrated the trypan blue, there was more fluorescence," she said, explain that the procedure could be used as an aid to determine the viability of water.

Molloy tested various materials for sound proofing. As a musician, he explained, it is important to him to have a soundproof room in his home to record his music.

"I tested the sound absorption of (various) acoustic panels and found the fiberglass panel absorbs sound the best," he said.

Smith said that 120 students participated in the 10th annual Quincy High STEM (Science Technology Engineering and Math) fair on Feb. 15. North Quincy High's Panaro said that nearly 80 students entered project in the school's 59th consecutive science fair on Feb. 4.

Each school had about 14 students who went on to the South Shore Regional Science Fair at Bridgewater State University on March 11. Four Quincy High students and five North Quincy students were selected by the regional judges to compete at the state science fair at MIT on May 5 and 6.

Smith said that Shen, who participated in the regionals, will be among his students going to the state competition.

Quincy Boy Scouts Help Dedicate Thomas Kershaw Atrium

Restaurateur Who Inspired 'Cheers' Honored For Contributions To Scouting, Youth

The Boy Scouts Spirit of Adventure Council recently dedicated the Thomas A. Kershaw Atrium & Scouting Heritage Display in honor of Hampshire House Corporation Chairman Thomas A. Kershaw, who is an Eagle Scout, Distinguished Eagle Scout and First Inductee into the Eagle Scout Hall of Fame.

The new Thomas A. Kershaw Atrium & Scouting Heritage Display is located at the Egan Center in Milton, which is owned and operated by the Spirit of Adventure Council, Boy Scouts of America.

A reception and dedication was held at the Egan Center to unveil the space and new display in honor of Mr. Kershaw. WCVB-TV meteorologist Mike Wankum served as master of ceremonies, and Boy Scouts from Troop 42 in Quincy led the crowd through the Pledge of Allegiance and Scout Oath.

The Egan Center is located on the property of the Camp Sayre Scout Reservation in the Blue Hills, and is home to New England Base Camp, which opened its doors to the public in October, 2015. Mr. Kershaw recently donated $100,000 to support Spirit of Adventure Council youth development programs.

Attendees included:

Hampshire House Chairman and Cheers Founder Thomas A. Kershaw; WCVB-TV Meteorologist Mike Wankum, event MC and himself a former Scout; Century Bank Chairman Marshall Sloane; State Senator Walter F. Timilty; State Representative William J. Driscoll, Jr., Boy Scouts Spirit of Adventure Council Chief Executive Chuck Eaton, Seaport Hotel & World Trade Center GM Jim Carmody, Boy Scouts Spirit of Adventure Council President Jack Klinck.

Thomas A. Kershaw, Chairman of the Hampshire House Corporation, has been the dynamic force behind the growth of the Hampshire House since 1969. Kershaw's vision and energy have enabled the Hampshire House to retain its original grandeur while accommodating Bostonians and tourists for special events, private parties, weddings, and corporate functions.

Just after he purchased the property, he installed the authentic English-style Bull & Finch Pub (now known as Cheers Beacon Hill) in the basement of the Hampshire House. In 1982, Hollywood came to Boston and found Kershaw's distinctive pub in the heart of historic Beacon Hill. Since then, this neighborhood pub has become a landmark on the map of Boston - the inspiration for the setting of the TV series Cheers.

Recognized for his contributions within the restaurant and tourism industries, Kershaw has received numerous awards and distinctions including Restaurateur of the Year, Humanitarian of the Year Award (Project Triangle), Massachusetts Tourism Leadership Award and the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award given by the Spirit of Adventure Council, Boy Scouts of America. He has a long history of providing generous support to Scouting programs that benefit our youth and families.

.New Faces For NQ Boys Volleyball

By TOM JOYCE

After reaching the quarterfinal of their sectional playoff bracket last season, the North Quincy boys' volleyball team is amid a youth movement.

Since last year's squad was led by a strong senior class, this year, the team has some new faces seeing significant varsity playing time. Even among those Red Raiders who started or had varsity roles last season are young; their starting lineup is composed of sophomores and juniors.

With that sort of youth on his team, Red Raiders head coach Jason Cai feels good about his team's future.

"It's a bright outlook," he said. "They're doing a great job. I couldn't ask for more

Emily Bryson Excelling In College Running Transition

Two All-American Seasons In Cross Country At Brandeis

By JOE REARDON

Emily Bryson could be the poster girl for how to make the transition from high school to college running as smooth as silk.

Just a year and a half into her college running career, the Brandeis sophomore has more than found her groove and flourished as a Judge with a pair of All-American seasons in cross country.

The 19-year-old biology major more than proved her versatility and all-around talent after a stellar indoor campaign.

Racing the mile in the John Thomas Invitational on Boston University's lightning-fast track, Bryson chopped a stunning 10 seconds off her personal best in the mile to win her heat in 4:52.18 for 13th overall against Div. 1 and open competition.

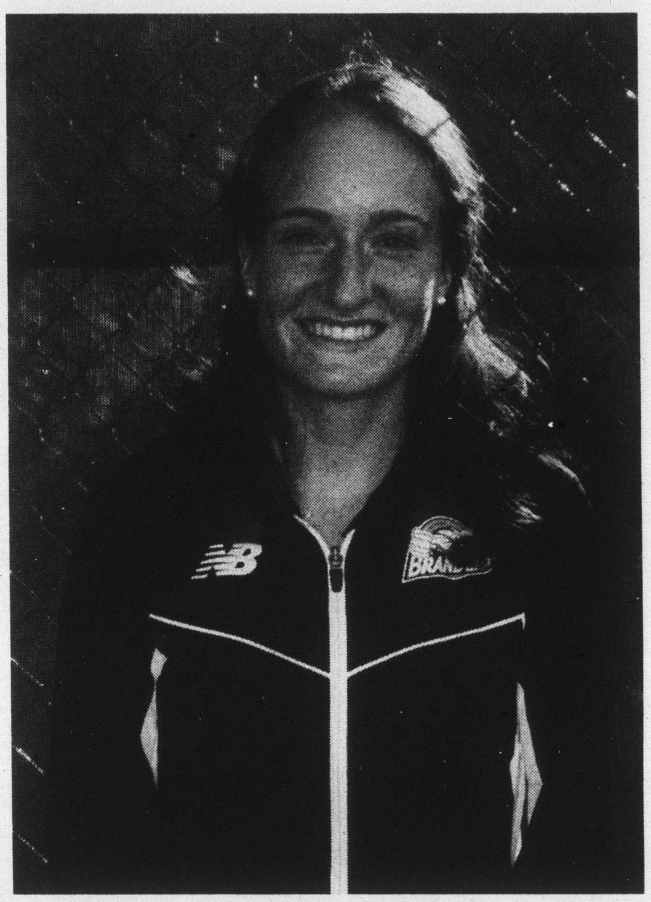
That time easily eclipsed the former indoor mile mark of 4:54.82 set by Grayce Selig back in 2011. At the time, Bryson's new personal best was the top-ranked mark in Div. 3 and the best in the University Athletic Association by a full five seconds.

The race was a classic example of stiff competition maintaining a fast pace throughout and putting pressure on Bryson the entire way. "It was definitely one of the most satisfying races I've ever had," she said. "Just to see I was at that level was really exciting. It's great because you get pulled along. They're always fast."

Known in high school as a fearless front runner who had the reputation of taking the kick out of her competitors with a punishing early pace, Bryson morphed into an athlete who also had the strength and speed to put together a kick of her own in the closing stages of races. That strategy played a big part in Bryson moving to the next level in the mile.

"I went through the 800 in 2:28 and I felt really good," she said. "With about 600 to go I started moving and ran a negative split my last 800."

Bryson went on to compete in the mile at the Div. 3 Indoor National Championships at North Central College in Naperville, Ill, where she was hoping to add a third All-American finish. The strategy played true to form early. Bryson ran conservatively in her preliminary heat and clocked a 5:00.91 to easily advance to the final. That's where Bryson remembered just how unforgiving the sport can become.



EMILY BRYSON

There was plenty of jostling for position in the final and Bryson found herself boxed in on the outside. She made several moves to break free of the elbows and spikes and the effort took its toll. Bryson was spent on the final lap and finished ninth overall in 4:57.02, missing All-American status by one agonizing place.

As crushed as Bryson was with her finish, she was relativity pleased with her performance and chalked up the race as a learning experience. "I ran well and I felt really good," she said. "Not all of my races are going to end the way I hoped. I ran well and I felt really good, but I was running more on the outside than I really should have been. I was constantly trying to move around people. On the last lap I had nothing left."

Overall, the indoor season was a huge success. Bryson had not only destroyed her personal best in track's most intriguing event, but also ran a best of 9:43 in the 3000 at the Valentine Invitational in February. And after being eliminated after her preliminary heat in the miles at nationals her freshman year, Bryson advanced to the final as a sophomore.

With the indoor season in the rear view, Bryson is back to her regiment of packing in 60 miles per week in preparation for the outdoor season. She upped her miles last summer, putting in as many as 65 miles per week to strengthen herself for the cross country season. Bryson admitted the added mileage took some getting used to during the fall, but the strength work made a big difference in her indoor track performances.

"Over the summer it (mileage) definitely took my body some time to get adjusted to it, but I felt it really kicked in during indoors," said Bryson. "At the end of the day I'm a distance kid."

Bryson is planning on running a 1500 and 5000 in her first two outdoor meets and decide after that just what event she wants to focus on. "The training is very different," said Bryson. "It's something we're figuring out right now."

She's expecting to debut this spring at the Amherst Invitational and has an ultimate goal of running under 4:30 in the 1500 and to break 17:00 in the 5000. A trip to the nationals and a top-eight finish would be a nice way for Bryson to finish up her season.

"It's (All-American) definitely really important to me," she said. "It's just a validation of all the work I put in."

Presidents' Boys Volleyball Rebuilding, Bow To Braintree

By TOM JOYCE

This year's Quincy boys volleyball team looks a lot different than last year's squad.

Graduation was tough on the Presidents last spring. They lost a deep and talented senior class and because of it, experience is no longer in their favor.

The Presidents return just three varsity players, one of whom is missing time with an injury to start the season. Chris Situ and Kenny Chan are the healthy varsity returners while Christ Pham is currently hurt.

On March 31, the Presidents hosted Braintree and bowed to the Wamps losing in three straight sets (17-25, 14-25, 10-25).

In the first set, the Presidents had the score tied 4-4, but then got a little aggressive which helped the Wamps to a 5-0 run. The rest of the set was nearly even-matched, so the Presidents took a 17-25 loss.

The Presidents were also tied 4-4 to start the second match of the day, but the Wamps were too strong in the second half of the set, outscoring the Presidents 9-2 before as they took a 14-25 loss.

Although the Presidents scored the first two points of the final set, they once again struggled to contain the Wamps and lost the set 10-25.

"Braintree is a really good team," Presidents head coach Jacqui Niosi said. "They're fast. They're tall. We weren't scared, at least, just a little outmatched."

Albeit they took a loss, Niosi said she was happy with how hard the team played.

"I think we got a little more aggressive swinging today," she said. "In our first game, we didn't do that so much. Curtis Ajavon is someone I thought played pretty well today. He took some good swings. Hopefully once he's comfortable and confident, he'll be a big threat for us."

In the loss, Peter Le had a team-best three digs while Kevin Phu and Chris Situ each added a pair. Situ also had the team's lone ace of the day.

Curtis Ajavon had a team-best seven kills and Stephen Andrews finished second on the team with three.

As a younger team, the Presidents are working to fine-tune their game. This early in the season, however, they are still learning.

"We need to just control our unforced errors," Niosi said. "There was way too many. We also have a lot of people playing out of position and we're trying to figure a few things out. We're a young team and hopefully we'll figure things as we go."

Among those players who are playing out of position, Niosi said she is impressed with what she has seen from Peter Le at libero and Brendan Corbett at outside hitter.

"You can't complain when someone hasn't played that position before or on varsity before," she said. "They didn't back down. You've just got to get in the right positions."

Coming off a loss, the Presidents know what they have to work on in order to excel not only this season, but also in the future -- being a team who will not lose a ton to graduation this year.

"We've just got to communicate better," Niosi said. "We've got to limit our unforced errors and get used to playing with each other. We have a really big learning curve which is awesome and looks good for the future. But we're definitely thrown into the fire right away.

"We're getting there," she added. "We're still learning where to jump and where to block on certain hitters, so it's definitely a work in progress."

PRODUCTIVE THINKING

After suffering a back-related injury, any responsible worker wants to get back to work quickly. While bed rest was once recommended, that strategy has been largely discounted in favor of getting back to normal activities as soon as possible. As the injured worker does this, it is important to restore his or her confidence so that no further harm will result. Chiropractic can help in the recovery effort by addressing underlying structural misalignments that give rise to muscle spasms and other soft-tissue stresses. It is essential to address pain-related immobility in the early stages of disability so that imbalances do not lead to chronic problems. Chiropractic's proactive approach gets patients back on their feet and back to work.

It has been said that a body in motion stays in motion and a body at rest stays at rest. Whether at rest or in motion, your lifestyle choices impact the health and function of your joints. Chiropractic care provides a safe and natural option to locate, correct and prevent joint dysfunctions. It can play a vital role in keeping your body balanced, flexible and functioning at its best. To schedule an appointment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. Our practice is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Injured athletes are more apt to "work through" back pain because they are highly motivated and not depressed in the way that some injured workers are.

Apaches Induct Legends Desmond, Carter Into Hall

Host 66th Annual Awards Gala

By SEAN HALPIN

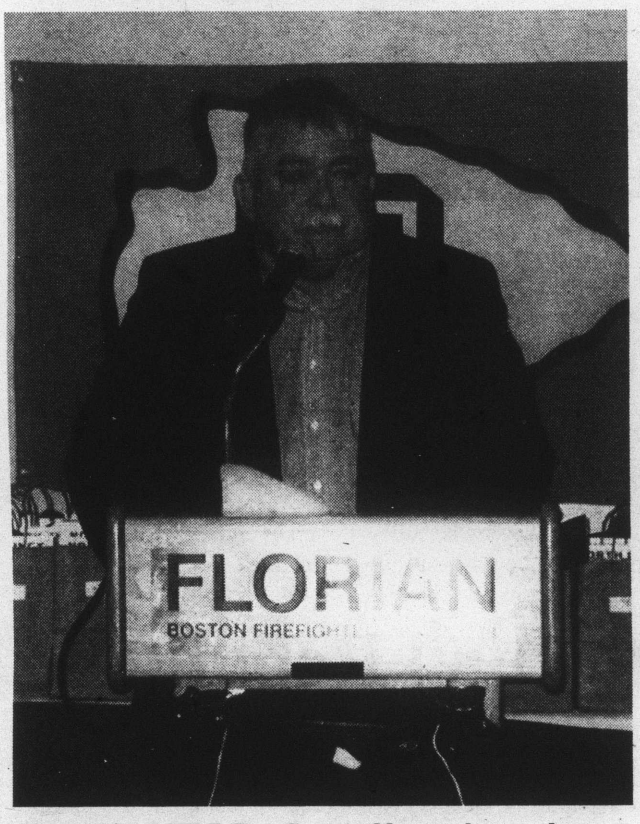
The North Quincy Apaches Football and Cheerleading program rolled out the Red Carpet for their 66th Annual Awards Banquet.

It was the largest banquet in the team's history. The event combined all levels of the Apaches program under one roof: tackle football, cheerleading and flag football. A capacity crowd of 450 people attended the Gala Event at Florian Hall in Dorchester.

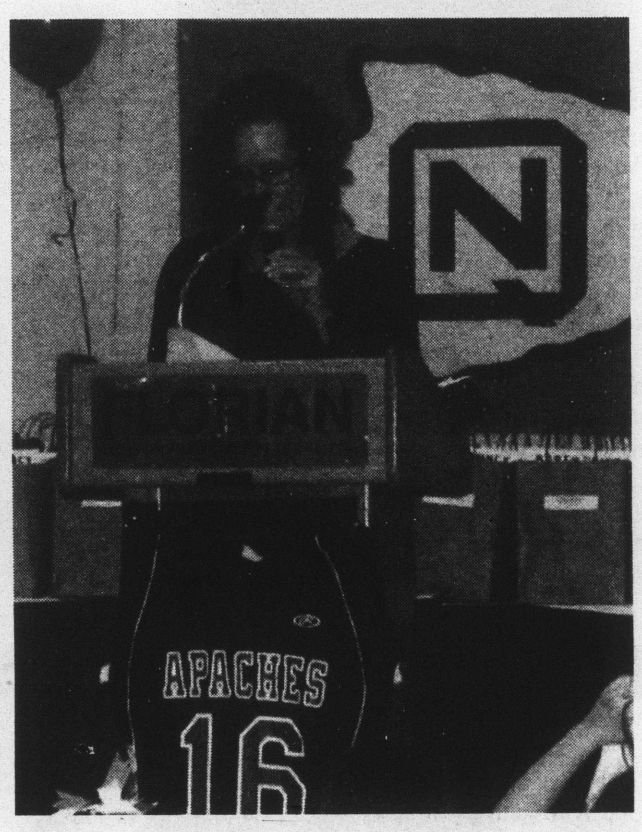
For the second year, as part of the banquet festivities, the Apaches inducted two individuals into its Hall Of Fame. Apache Hall of Fame commissioner, Paul "Doc" Doherty, presided over the ceremony. This season, the Apaches honored two legends of their Program's history: Joseph Desmond and Thomas Carter.

Mr. Desmond was inducted posthumously. He served the Apaches program as treasurer and franchise holder for 42 seasons from 1961-2002. His organizational skills and leadership were directly responsible for the longevity of the Quincy Youth Football League and Apache Programs. Mr. Desmond's daughter, Maureen Cronin, gave a great speech and accepted the induction on his behalf.

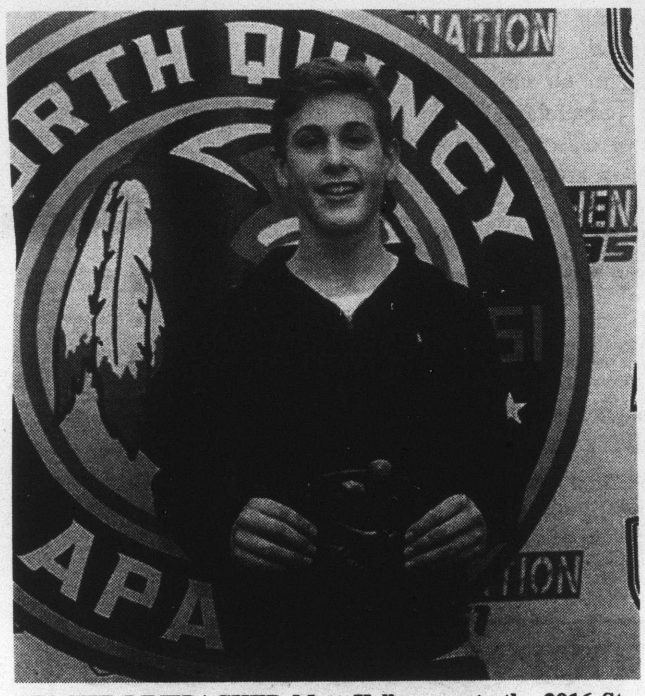
Coach Tom Carter was on hand to accept his induction. He served as head coach of Apaches football for 15 seasons, from 1972-1986. His coaching tenure was the most successful of any in Apache history, as he won nine QYFL championships in an 11-year span. Tom Carter continues to coach as an assistant at North Quincy High School and is a member of the Quincy/North Quincy Football Hall of Fame. Carter continues to be a dedicated to the Apaches, each week he finds time to work with the young Apache linemen at Cavanagh field.



APACHES LEGEND Tom Carter addresses the crowd accepting his induction into the Apaches Hall of Fame.



JOSEPH DESMOND is inducted posthumously into the Apaches Hall of Fame by his daughter, Maureen (Desmond) Cronin at the 66th Annual Banquet.



APACHE LINEBACKER Matt Kelly accepts the 2016 Stephen Koski, Unsung Hero award on the Red Carpet at the 66th Annual Apaches Banquet.

It was a great evening for the players and cheerleaders of the Apaches as many awards given out to each level of football and cheerleading.

Freshmen cheerleaders receiving awards were: Ava Le (Best All-Around), Riley Greene (Best Facial Expressions), Audrey Plumb (Most Improved), Nora Ganno (Best Cheer) and Nora Geary (Most Dedicated).

The freshman football awards were: Max Gaudiano (MVP), Kobe Nguyen (Defensive Player of the Year), Liam Lee (Offensive Player of the Year), Ronan Brown (Unsung Hero), Tommy Wirtz (Coach's Award), Noah Baker (Lineman of the Year) and Nick Depalma (Rookie of the Year).

ing awards were given to Brighid Burke (MVC), Angel Le (Most Dedicated), Ava Coffey (Best All-Around), Emma Cramond (Most Spirited) and Alexandra Darcy (Most Improved).

The junior varsity football awards went to Matthew Craig (MVP), Tony Le (Defensive Player of the Year), J.C. Petrongolo (Offensive Player of the Year), Brandon Riley (Unsung Hero), Patrick McDonald (Coach's Award), Matt Whooley (Lineman of the Year) and Ruben Parilla (Rookie of the Year).

The varsity cheerleading squad won the 2016 QYFL Varsity Cheer Competition. A special presentation was given to the Varsity Coaches Abby Gilmartin and Katherine Scanlan. The varsity cheerleading awards went to Nicole Hartnett (Desmond Leadership Award), Kaylee Sleiman (MVC), Ryleigh Gilmartin (Best Dance), Courtney O'Brien (Most Spirited), Charlotte Trevisan (Most improved), Maeve Dugan (Best Facial Expressions) and Mindy Chan (Best Cheer).

The varsity football was the runner-up for the QYFL championship. The varsity awards went to Dan Scolaro (Joseph Desmond Award), Tyler Le (MVP), James Ward (Offensive Player of the Year), Jamal Maximillien (Defensive Player of the Year), Matt Kelly (Unsung Hero), Brian Gutro (Coach's Award), Connor Plante (Tommy Gilmartin Memorial, 12th Man Award), Declan Geary (Lineman of the Year) and Alex Demeritt (Rookie of the Year).

It was a great evening celebrating the accomplishments of the 2016 season. Each player and cheerleader received an Apaches jacket and winter hat as well as a trophy from their perspective squad.

The Apaches will be gearing up for the 2017 season and actively seeking players and cheerleaders entering grades 1 to 8 in the fall. An Early online sign-up (10 percent discount) will open on April 15th and a QYF League wide Sign-up Day will be held on Saturday, May 20th (10 a.m. to 2 p.m.) at Pageant Field Pavilion.

Seven Residents Running Marathon For Dana-Farber Cancer Institute

Seven Quincy residents are running the Boston Marathon April 17th to help raise money for the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

Local members of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge team include: Maureen Bolton, Michelle Bower, Maggie McManama, Brendan Nee, Christopher Nix, Kristin O'Connor and Mary Regan. Along with more than 500 Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge teammates from across the United States and around the world, they will run Massachusetts' historic marathon route from Hopkinton to Boston to collectively raise $5 million for cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

This year marks the 28th annual running of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge (DFMC) team. One hundred percent of the money raised by the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge goes to Dana-Farber's Claudia Adams Barr Program in Innovative Basic Cancer Research, which supports promising scientific research in its earliest stages. The Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge has raised more than $80 million for the Barr Program to date.

In 1990, Dana-Farber was among the first charity organizations to be recognized by the Boston Athletic Association (B.A.A), which organizes the Boston Marathon. The Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge team offers its members extensive fundraising support, training guidance from 1976 Boston Marathon men's champion Jack Fultz, and team training runs, plus volunteer opportunities for non-runners. Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge runners who are not time-qualified for the Boston Marathon receive an invitational entry into the race.

Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge runners include cancer survivors and patients, and family and friends of those who have been affected by cancer. Each team member must fulfill a basic fundraising commitment:

• Invitational runners receive their entry from Dana-Farber and have a fundraising commitment of $5,000.

• Own entry runners join the DFMC team after obtaining their own race entry and have a fundraising commitment of $4,000.

A cornerstone of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge is its Partner Program. Each year, approximately 50 current and former pediatric cancer patients of Dana-Farber's Jimmy Fund Clinic are paired with DFMC runners as "Patient Partners." For the young patients, their partnerships with the runners provide a unique and friendly focus outside their illnesses. Another two dozen Patient Partner Program families are paired with runners through the "In-Memory Program" in remembrance of their children's brave struggle with the disease.

To contribute to the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge or support a runner, visit RunDFMC.org or contact the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge office at (617) 632-1970 or dfmc@dfci.harvard.edu.

Jaimie Shaughnessy's Marathon Run Supports Franklin Park, Stone Zoos

Jaimie Shaughnessy of Quincy will be running in the 121st Boston Marathon on April 17 in support of Zoo New England's Franklin Park Zoo and Stone Zoo.

For Shaughnessy, a 24-year-old resident of Quincy, this April will mark her sixth marathon and her fifth consecutive Boston Marathon. She ran her first Boston Marathon in honor of a close friend who lost his battle to leukemia, and she hasn't stopped running since.

A lifelong visitor of Franklin Park Zoo, Shaughnessy cherishes the learning experiences that the zoo has offered since she was a small child.

"I have always loved learning about and being around animals, so growing up near the Franklin Park Zoo was such a treat for me!" says Shaughnessy. "This year is especially exciting because I get to incorporate two of my favorite things, the Boston Marathon and my love for animals. It's important to support organizations like Zoo New England, which are committed to conservation and preserving species."

Aside from running the Boston Marathon, Shaughnessy enjoys staying active through teachingcardio sport classes, yoga, skiing, and hockey. She is also a volunteer at Boston Public Schools.

Shaughnessy, who is participating in the 2017 John Hancock Non-Profit Program, has committed to raising $10,000 to support Zoo New England through her Boston Marathon run. To learn more about Shaughnessy, visit www.zoonewengland.org/marathon.

PALM SUNDAY, HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Palm Sunday Service At United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold a Palm Sunday Service Sunday, April 9.

The service, which will begin at 10:30 a.m., will open with the traditional Scripture reading. The congregation will then sing the opening hymn, and, as the congregation sings, volunteers will walk up the church's center aisle carrying palms. Later in the service, the palms will be given to the congregation.

The service will continue with Scripture lessons, hymns, and the dispersal of palms. It will conclude with a ceremony that is traditionally a part of the Maundy (Holy) Thursday worship service: the stripping of the altar. In this ceremony, which symbolically depicts the Passion, all candles, flowers, altar cloths, and even the Bible are removed from the altar area. Everyone will be invited to participate.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church invites everyone to share in its life: whoever you are, and wherever you may be on your journey of faith, you are welcome at Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

The church is handicapped accessible via the entrance located near the flag pole.

Each week a coffee hour follows worship.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Pot Luck Supper, Movie To Commemorate Holocaust April 29

In commemoration of the Holocaust, Quincy Community United Methodist Church will show the movie "Paperclips," Saturday, April 29.

The church is located at 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. with a Pot Luck Supper. Bring an appetizer, main course, salad or dessert to share. The movie will follow.

The event is free and sponsored by the Quincy Community United Methodist Church's Youth Group.

"Paperclips" is a powerful film that tells the story of a middle school class in Whitwell, TN, and how they learned about the Holocaust. Their method of learning about diversity an inclusion began with the symbol of a paper clip, invented in Norway, during World War II. Norwegians used paper clips as a symbol of solidarity against the Nazis. The students Paper Clip Project culminated in a memorial that touched and changed many people's lives.

The church building is handicapped accessible on Beale Street. Follow the path nearest the flag pole to the handicapped entrance.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Easter Vigil Service At Community United Methodist Church

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate the Easter Vigil Saturday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m.

"With the exception of the Episcopalians, very few Protestants have had the opportunity to experience the Easter Vigil," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, church pastor. "I think this is really unfortunate. The vigil is one of the most ancient and certainly one of the most dramatic celebrations of the church year. It's my very favorite worship service."

Dating from the earliest years of the Christian Church, the vigil literally leads the congregation from Lent to Easter. It does so through word, song, and most importantly, symbols that refer to Scripture. Because many people today are unfamiliar with symbolic interpretation, explanatory notes are provided in the text of the Vigil service.

"I hope people will take the time to read the explanations," said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden. "The vigil is a rich, wonderful service on its own, but when a person understands the meaning behind the ritual, it becomes even richer."

People planning to attend the Easter Vigil should expect the unexpected, because the vigil is a service unlike any other. For example, everyone planning to attend the Easter Vigil is asked to bring a flashlight and wear comfortable walking shoes.

"I realize that a flashlight sounds like an odd thing to bring to a worship service," said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden, "but believe me, a flashlight is pretty essential. It's simply a modern version of the traditional candles.

"Quincy Community United Methodist Church has chosen to use flashlights for safety reasons," the pastor continued. "There will be some available in case anyone forgets to bring one. Comfortable shoes are also important, because of walking is involved – a short staircase. People who have the option of continuing with the traditional Vigil, which includes more walking and stair climbing, or the non-traditional in which people remain seated in one place.

"Both groups then together for the major portion of the service."

The Easter Vigil is very much a participatory worship experience and the more a person puts into the Vigil, the more that person will get out of it, said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden.

The church building is handicapped accessible through the front door located nearest the flag pole.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Passover Seder April 13

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will host a Passover Seder Supper Thursday, April 13. The reading of the Hagadah will begin at 6:30 p.m.

The church has been holding the event for more than a decade.

"A Seder is a way for Christians to learn about and to honor Christianity's Jewish roots," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, church pastor. "Quincy Community United Methodist Church encourages the participation of everyone, and so the Hagadah – the reading – used is very 'hands-on.' Everyone who wishes to do so has the opportunity to read and to lead the group," she said.

The meal is pot luck. Everyone is asked to bring a salad, main course, or dessert to share. To ensure the table is set properly, reservations are required. Reservations may be made by calling the church office at 617-773-3319. Deadline is Sunday, April 9.

The church building is handicapped accessible through its front entrance at the door nearest the flag pole.

PALM SUNDAY, HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Passover Activity Day, Open House Sunday At Beth Shalom Blue Hills

To prepare for and learn about the upcoming Jewish holiday of Passover (Pesach), Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills and its Rabbi Weistrop Religious School will hold a Passover Family Activity Day and Open House from 10 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. on Sunday, April 9, at the synagogue in Milton.

All interested families in the area, including non-members, are invited to attend this free program.

The Activity Day features a Parent As Partner Program for adults with Rabbi Alfred Benjamin, entitled "Putting Joy, Not Oy, in your Seder." The traditional symbolic signing and sale of Chametz can also be completed by adults. Meanwhile the entire religious school and visiting children will participate in group activities including searching for Chametz, making homemade Bedouin Matzoh, and burning of Chametz.

Visitors can also participate in the Open House, meet Rabbi Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Mollitor as well as other temple members and officers, and learn about the congregation's activities, religious services, holiday celebrations, and the Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School.

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is an egalitarian congregation which welcomes inter-faith families. It is located at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton. There should be ample free parking, and overflow parking is available on nearby Pleasant St. No parking is allowed on Lodge or Maitland Streets.

For more information, call the synagogue office at 617-698-3394, Email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org or visit www.BethShalomBlue Hills.org.

'Camp Sunday' April 23

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual "Camp Sunday" service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, April 23.

The church's Worship Committee developed a recyclable program for the service, which includes information about the United Methodist Church's three camps in New England, as well as favorite camp songs. Participants are asked to call out the name of their favorite camp song, and it is then sung during the worship service. Among the songs sung at the service is "On Top of Spaghetti."

The service will be held in the church's Fellowship Hall, which is on the basement level, and people are encouraged to dress in camp gear.

The church building is handicapped accessible through the front door behind the flag pole.

For more information call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Quincy Community Holy Week Services Planned

The Quincy Evangelical Clergy Association invites the entire Quincy community to join together for special Holy Week services.

On Good Friday, April 14, at noon, a worship service will be held at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Quincy. Local pastors and church musicians will take part in leading the worship which commemorates the death of Jesus Christ on the cross.

On Easter Sunday, April 16, the annual Easter Sunrise Worship Service will be held at Wollaston Beach near the Wollaston Yacht Club, on Quincy Shore Drive. In case of rain the service will be held inside the Squantum Yacht Club.

The service will begin at 6:30 a.m. and will be led by members of the Clergy Association with music from the brass band of the Quincy Corps of The Salvation Army.

All are welcome to attend both of these services.

Palm Sunday Service First Baptist Church

Palm Sunday Worship Service begins at 10:30 a.m. at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave.

All are welcome.

Pastor David Choi will conduct the service, palms will be distributed and there will be special music by the First Baptist Church Singers under the direction of Nancy Conrad, Music Director.

Eight people will be welcomed into church membership by baptism, declaration of faith or letter transfer. A reception in the chapel will follow the service so that all may extend to them the right hand of fellowship.

All areas of the church are handicap accessible.

Evening Good Friday Service At United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold an Evening Good Friday Service Friday, April 14.

The service is very brief and informal, and consists of Scripture readings, hymn, and prayers. It will start at 7:30 p.m.

For many years, the church has hosted an Ecumenical Good Friday Service, which is held at noon.

"Because of work commitments, many people cannot attend the noon service, although they would like to do so," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, church pastor. "To meet that need, Quincy Community United Methodist has been holding – in addition to the noon service – an additional evening Good Friday service."

The church is handicapped accessible through the front door nearest the flag pole.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Robert G. Wilson, 90

A funeral Mass for Robert G. Wilson, Quincy Police Department, Retired, age 90, a longtime Braintree resident, formerly of Milford, was celebrated March 31 in St. Thomas More Church, Braintree.

Mr. Wilson died peacefully March 28.

He was born in Milford on June 1, 1926, to the late William and Mary (McGuire) Wilson. He was raised and educated in Milford. Mr. Wilson later received an associate degree in criminal justice from Quincy College. He had lived in Braintree for fifty-six years.

Mr. Wilson was appointed to the Quincy Police Department on Sept. 17, 1957, and retired on July 5, 1988, after thirty-one years of service. He was the last of the "old-time" motorcycle officers.

Mr. Wilson was a proud veteran of both World War II and the Korean War. During World War II, he served in the U.S. Navy as specialist fire fighter 3/c aboard the USS Sampson and received the Asiatic Pacific Theatre Medal. He re-enlisted in the U.S. Air Force in 1947 and served as a corporal during the Korean War. Mr. Wilson participated in the Berlin Air Lift and received the Berlin Air Lift Device and the Occupation Medal, with Clasp (Germany).

He was a member of the Mass Police Association and the Braintree VFW Post #1702. Mr. Wilson enjoyed fishing and woodworking. He was well known for making colorful windmill wooden garden decorations. He was dedicated to his family and especially to his grandchildren and great grandchildren, supporting all their activities and accomplishments.

Paul T. McDonough

A funeral Mass for Paul T. McDonough of Quincy was celebrated Tuesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. McDonough died March 30.

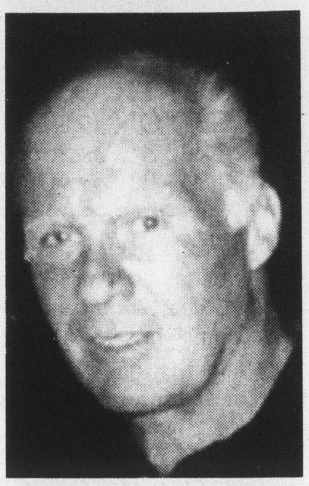
He grew up in Dorchester and moved to Quincy over 50 years ago. He was a veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps and served during the Korean War. Mr. McDonough was a Boston police patrolman and later served as a detective for 29 years. One of his highlights was being chosen for security when Pope John Paul II came to Boston.

His passions in life included his family, his job, and his beloved Boston sports teams, especially the Patriots and Red Sox. Mr. McDonough was quite the athlete and enjoyed afternoon walks and golf.

In his early years he was a hall of fame football player for Boston English High School. After receiving many Division I offers out of high school Mr. McDonough accepted a full scholarship to play football at Xavier University. He later played for the Boston Park League.

He enjoyed the simple pleasures in life; time with family and friends, afternoons by the pool, and attending his grandchildren's numerous activities.

Beloved husband of Marie A. (Mayer) McDonough of Squantum. Loving father of Liesl Radzik and her husband Rick of Quincy, Erin Boylan and her husband Eddie of Squantum, and Paula Glynn and her husband Barry of Squantum. Cherished brother of Thomas McDonough and his wife Patricia of Readville, Ann Higgins of Plainville, Jack McDonough and his wife Mary of Milton, Jane Murphy and her husband Joe of Braintree, and the late Robert "Emmett" McDonough. Brother-in-law to Kathy McDonough of Braintree, Jean Green of Squantum, and the late John Green. Devoted "Pa" to Alison and Alexa Radzik, Shannon, Kathryn, and Emma Boylan, and Brendan and Paul Glynn. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.



PAUL T. McDONOUGH

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Quincy Animal Shelter, PO Box 690088, Quincy, MA 02269.

Gerald F. Crimmins

A memorial service for Gerald Francis "Jerry" Crimmins will be held Saturday at All Soul's Unitarian-Universalist Church, Braintree, preceded by a release of doves at 2 p.m.

Mr. Crimmins died Feb. 21 following a valiant struggle with metastatic cancer.

Beloved son of the late Mary A. (Charnley) and George F. Crimmins. Brother of Maureen Crimmins of Quincy and the late Kathleen Crimmins Gardner. Also survived by his sister-in-law, Kathleen C. Whooley, and niece, Julie Hong, both of Quincy.

Born in Cambridge and reared in Watertown, Mr. Crimmins spent every summer in Houghs Neck, Quincy. He moved to North Quincy in 1998, and in later years relocated to Waltham. An avid Boston sports fan, "J.C." was an excellent bowler for Waltham's Sons of Italy candlepin team. Bowling, devouring daily newspapers and news broadcasts, Topsfield Fair visits to meet the Flying Wallendas, and annual "pilgrimages" to Lake Winnipesaukee were among his favorite pastimes. His proudest achievement was earning a bona fide diploma from Watertown High School in 1982.

Memorial donations may be made to Renewal House, 10 Putnam St., Roxbury, MA 02119.

Arrangements were made by Lydon Chapel for Funerals, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Sharon Jarvie

A memorial service for Sharon (Provost) Jarvie, of Quincy, formerly of Weymouth, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mrs. Jarvie died March 31.

Her life revolved around her loving husband Paul, of 44 years, and their three children. Mrs. Jarvie was a kind and gentle soul who improved the lives of all the people who were fortunate enough to know her. She was a beloved teacher in Quincy for 20 years and possessed the sensitivity and patience to work with young children.

Despite the many challenges of her illness, Mrs. Jarvie remained positive and stoical in the face of unrelenting symptoms and was always finding ways to continue to cope and live life fully. She and Paul took several weekend getaway trips each year to enjoy each other and make the most of the time they had together. Mrs. Jarvie had a passion for knitting, art, reading and music.

SHARON JARVIE

Beloved wife of Paul Jarvie of Quincy. Loving mother of Alexander Jarvie of Braintree, Carolyn Marshall and her husband Jack of Quincy, and Michael Jarvie of Quincy, and grandmother to Grace Marie Marshall. Cherished sister of Carolyn Ahern and her husband David of RI, William Provost and his wife Janet of Scituate, Nancy Harris and her husband Dexter of Hingham, and the late Robert Baker. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

The Rev. Donald P. Hammond officiated the services.

Interment Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

William C. Bissett II, 49

Memorial services for William Cameron "Bill" Bissett II, age 49, were held March 30 at St. Johns Family Funeral Home in St. Augustine, Fla.

Mr. Bissett died March 27 at the Bailey Family Center for Caring in St. Augustine.

He was born in Quincy to John T. Bissett and Ellen Bissett-Kemper on June 18, 1967. Mr. Bissett attended St. Johnsbury Academy in St. Johnsbury, Vermont, where he played football, ran track on the state championship track team. He loved the Boston Red Sox and New England Patriots. He worked at the Patriot Ledger for 25 years in the circulation department.

In 2010, he moved to St. Augustine where he worked at Arcadia Home Care and Staffing where he developed a passion for aiding Alzheimer's patients. He also enjoyed spending time with his friends at the Orioles Nest #324.

He was preceded in death by his grandparents; Rev. William and Marjorie Bissett, and Eugene and Anne Langstaff. Survivors include, mother, Ellen (Robert) Bissett-Kemper; father, John T. (Carol) Bissett; and his sister, Heather Anne Bissett.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association.

Gertrude L. Connolly, 89

A funeral Mass for Gertrude L. (Thompson) Connolly, 89, of Quincy was celebrated Monday in St. Francis Xavier Church, Weymouth.

Mrs. Connolly died March 27 surrounded by family following a brief illness.

The youngest child of the late William and Julia (Larkin) Thompson of Charlestown, she became the closest of friends with her siblings: Marion Severie, William, Muriel, Joseph, Robert, Monica, and Frederick Thompson. After attending Girls' Latin School, she worked as a long-distance operator with New England Telephone Company.

In 1948, she married William G. Connolly. Mrs. Connolly was a homemaker while her husband worked for Boston Gas Company. After raising their family, they moved to Quincy where she became an award-winning leasing consultant with Corcoran Management Company.

Mrs. Connolly enjoyed travel to far-off destinations and Sunday drives closer to home. She was an avid reader, trivia champion, PBS enthusiast, talk radio listener, crossword ace, and New England football fan. A patriotic and generous person, she was a longtime supporter of the Disabled American

Veterans charity.

Predeceased by her husband and siblings, Mrs. Connolly was the loving mother of William M. Connolly and his wife Kathleen, and Paul Connolly and his wife Karen. "Nana" to grandchildren Jennifer Connolly and her husband Stephen Miley, William J. Connolly, Nicole Connolly, and Lauren Connolly and "Nana-Nana" to great-grandchildren Laurel Miley and newborn Connor Miley. She leaves behind dear friends Marjorie O'Connor and Joan Murray.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

$52M Sought For Parks, Projects

parcels – three homes and the Louis restaurant parking lot – near the Houghs Neck Maritime Center to provide parking for boaters; $1 million to upgrade Kincaide Field on Water Street, which Koch said would tie into the completion of the new Sterling Middle School; $800,000 to continue making improvements featured in the master plan for Faxon Park in Quincy Point; $500,000 to replace the artificial turf at Veterans Memorial Stadium; and $150,000 for tree plantings.

The bond also has $3.2 million set aside for general city park improvements. Koch said that would include permitting for improvements to Merrymount Beach, where construction magnate Jay Cashman would donate a boathouse and pay for related upgrades such as piers. It also includes money for improvements to Fore River Field and new lights at the Quarry Hills athletic fields, among other items.

Koch wants to construct a 40,000 square foot dog park on Quarry Street adjacent to Avalon Quincy, where the city owns a 22-acre parcel of open space. The park bond includes $500,000 to pay for the dog park.

Koch plans to build a new animal shelter adjacent to the dog park and set aside $7.2 million for that project in the capital bond; the mayor said he hopes to offset some of those costs with outside funding sources. The animal shelter would provide a new home for the city's animal control officer and the Quincy Police Department's K-9 unit.

The capital bond includes $500,000 for the design of a new public safety headquarters, which would be located on Sea Street in the vicinity of the current police station. The current police station was built in 1926 and renovated in the 1980s.

"A new building probably should have been built," Koch said of the decision to renovate it in the 1980s. "It has been problematic from day one with leaks, with HVAC issues, etc."

The public safety building would house both the Quincy Police and Fire Departments. Additionally, Koch is considering moving several departments – Inspectional Services, Health, Public Buildings and Veterans Services – now scattered throughout the city to the new facility, and storing city records there.

The Bryan Post would be acquired to make way for the new public safety building. In the interim, it would serve as a home for maintenance workers with the Department of Public Buildings now located inside Sterling Middle School.

Koch has proposed purchasing the former St. Mary School on Crescent Street for $2.4 million as part of the capital bond. He hopes to place a new elementary school on site to serve students in West Quincy; the mayor noted students who live west of I-93 attend Montclair in North Quincy.

"The travel distance for them far exceeds any other part of the city," Koch said.

The capital plan also includes $2.3 million for a two-year parking, traffic, pedestrian and bicycle study. Koch said the last such study took place in the 1980s.

"It's been a long, long time since the city has looked at a major traffic study," he said. "We're going to be looking at everything – intersections, signalization, pedestrian safety, bike lanes, signage, residential parking permits in neighborhoods – all of that is in the mix."

As part of the study, Koch said he would work with councillors to host a series of community meetings. The study is set to take place over two years, but certain recommendations might be implemented while it is still ongoing.

Also included in the capital plans are dozens of projects in schools citywide at a combined cost of $3.86 million. Among those items are a survey and conceptual design of an addition to Beechwood Knoll; new gym bleachers and auditorium seats at North Quincy High; and asbestos removal at various buildings.

The city's libraries – the main branch in Quincy Center and satellite branches in Adams Shore, Wollaston and North Quincy – would undergo $2.9 million of repair under the capital plan.

The city's firehouses would also be repaired at a combined cost of $993,000. Koch said some of the firehouses are so old they were designed for horse and buggies, and require structural and other upgrades.

Software upgrades – totaling $1.88 million – are included in the plan. Those include new tree management software, a new email system, public buildings management system, as well as radios for the Police and Fire Departments.

The capital bond request also includes $500,000 for a drainage study and $1.4 million for various other improvements, such as a new heating plant at the Kennedy Center and repaving school and firehouse lots.

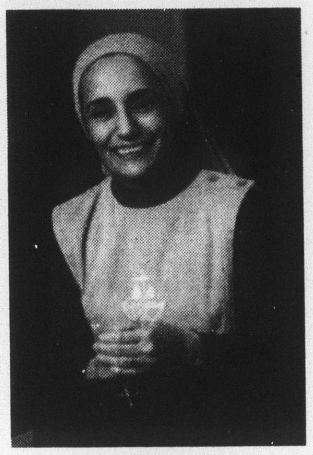
Mother Olga Prayer Breakfast Speaker

May 4 Event To Benefit Salvation Army, Quincy Crisis Center, ISS

The Quincy Prayer Breakfast will be held Thursday, May 4 at 7 a.m. at the Tirrell Room, Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St., Quincy.

This year's keynote speaker will be Mother Olga of the Sacred Heart.

Mother Olga was born and raised in Iraq. While living through four wars she decided to dedicate her life to service. From helping prisoners to serving young people across different cultures, Mother Olga reaches out to those in need around the world. She has received a Humanitarian award from the Iraqi government and has worked to forge ties between Christian and Muslim communities



MOTHER OLGA

For a number of years Mother Olga served in the campus ministry of the Catholic Center at Boston University. In April, 2011, Cardinal Séan Patrick O'Malley entrusted Mother Olga with the mission of establishing a new religious community of sisters in the Archdiocese of Boston, Daughters of Mary of Nazareth. The sisters now call Quincy their home.

The Quincy Prayer Breakfast program will also include prayers and musical numbers from various houses of worship and religious leaders from across the city of Quincy. The Prayer Breakfast is held on the first Thursday in May every year in solidarity with the National Day of Prayer.

Proceeds from the breakfast benefit the Quincy Salvation Army, Interfaith Social Services and The Quincy Crisis Center.

Tickets are $25 each or $250 for a table of 10. To purchase tickets, call 617-847-6967.

New Faces For NQ Boys Volleyball

of them so far. It's a good outlook. Hopefully, we'll have the same exact team next year."

Despite their youth, the Red Raiders played a competitive match against the Greater New Bedford Vo-Tech Bears on Monday afternoon at home. Ultimately, the Red Raiders fell, 3-1 (24-26, 17-25, 25-18, 19-25) but as the score would indicate, it was competitive throughout.

The Red Raiders lone victory came in the third set and while much of the early going was a stalemate, they went on a 5-1 run to give themselves a 14-9 lead. After that, it was a close set yet again, but the Red Raiders won it, 25-18.

In the final set, the Red Raiders quickly fell behind 1-3 and while being at disadvantage early is tough, they were also down a set in what would be the final set, so momentum was not favoring them.

Even if they did not outscore their foe, the Red Raiders showed their offensive capability in every set and overall, Cai was pleased with his team's performance,

"I thought we did pretty good," he said. "We played hard. We have a really young team, so we couldn't close it out. If we took the first set, we probably would've had a better charge going forward. But it's a game of momentum and they took bigger momentum swings than us. I thought we played great. Everyone did what I wanted them to do. They're a tough team, so it was a good game."

Greater New Bedford was the top seed in the boys' volleyball south sectional playoffs last season.

Tim Chiu led the team with 11 kills and had five digs while Chris Nguyen finished second on the team with 10 kills while his 12 digs were a team-high.

Junior Alex Pham had a team-best 27 assists to go along with his four digs. Tommy Nguyen's three aces led the team and Jimmy Huynh added five kills.

Coach Cai said Chiu and Nguyen, both junior outside hitters, were impressive against Greater New Bedford. He also said Pham, a junior setter, has stepped up for the team and done a nice job. Prior to the season, Pham was third on the depth chart at his position, but ineligibility and injury pushed him to the top.

As the season rolls on, Cai said his team's biggest focus will be improving their defense and passing skills.

"Everything starts with a pass, so no matter how good our offense is, we can't go anywhere if we don't have passes," he said. "We've still got to work hard there."

Although they are a younger team, the Red Raiders are not letting their age interfere with their hopes for the season.

"We're trying to win big," Cai said. "We want to go deep in the playoffs. We want to keep going deeper--the sectional semifinals and the sectional finals. We just want to keep going as far as possible."

Wollaston T Station Closing For Renovations

Burgin Parkway side of the facility, and the firm selected to redevelop the site will assist with its design.

The garages at the Quincy Adams and Braintree stations will undergo renovations starting this year. The $42 million project to renovate the Quincy Adams station will start in September and take 39 months to finish, McCormack said, while the Braintree project will be completed at cost of $31 million over 23 months, starting this summer.

Both garages will remain open, McCormack said, though some parking spaces at each could be closed off during the work. Blocks of 25 spaces or so would be lost during weekdays, with larger loss of spaces on weekends.

McCormack said the ramp to the Quincy Adams garage would remain open, though it will be partially closed on some weekends while work is underway.

McCormack said the MBTA will also prepare the long-closed pedestrian entrance to Quincy Adams on Independence Avenue for a potential re-opening, though the city will make the final call on whether to re-open it. Chris Walker, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the city would gather public input before a decision is made.

Jeffrey Gonneville, the MBTA's chief operating officer, provided councillors with updates on new vehicles and equipment coming to the Red Line.

The MBTA is purchasing 252 new cars for the Red Line at a cost of $458 million. The new trains will come into service over a five-year period starting in 2019. Gonneville said the new cars will have wider doorways and reconfigured interior layouts meant to reduce the amount of time it takes passengers to enter and exit. That could reduce the time each train stays at a station from one to two minutes currently, down to 45 seconds, which is the industry standard.

Starting this November and continuing through June 2023, Gonneville said the MBTA will spend $186 million to replace the signal system along the Red Line; the system in place now is an analog system dating from the 1970s. The T is also in the process of upgrading the five traction power substations along the Braintree Branch of the Red Line at a cost of $20 million; that work should be completed by mid-2018.

Gonneville said the roll-out of new cars and signal system improvements will allow the T to increase capacity on the Red Line, which serves more passengers than any other in the system. Trains will be able to run on three-minute headways – the time between each train – in the future, down from five-minute headways now.

"That will give us about a 50 percent increase in train capacity per hour, which is significant and is something we're really excited about," Gonneville said.

Fatal Fire Fueled By Home Oxygen

By SCOTT JACKSON

Investigators have determined a fatal February house fire that claimed the lives of Thelma Powers, 67, and her 19-year-old grandson, William Powers, was accidental and spread by oxygen cylinders present in the home.

William's father, Michael, escaped the fire by jumping from a second floor window.

The Feb. 12 fire at 13 Bell St. in Houghs Neck started in the first floor living room of the single-family home, where one of the victims had experienced past fires falling asleep while smoking, State Fire Marshal Peter J. Ostroskey, Quincy Fire Chief Joseph Barron and Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan said March 28. The victim also used home medical oxygen and there were several cylinders in the room that failed during the fire.

The release of the oxygen fueled the fire that raced up the stairwell trapping the second floor occupants. When oxygen is used in the home, the amount of oxygen in air, furniture, bedding, clothing and hair goes up, making it easier for a fire to start and spread. When more oxygen is in the air, fires burn hotter and faster.

"This is the second fatal fire this year most likely caused by smoking and fueled by home medical oxygen," Ostroskey said. "There simply is no safe way to smoke around home oxygen. Turning off the oxygen is not enough because your clothes, hair, bedding and the tubing are oxygen-enriched."

"This was a terrible fire for this family and the extended community," Barron said. "Using medical oxygen at home is a growing practice and it is important to understand the fire safety risks that come with it for patients, their families, and caregivers."

The fire was jointly investigated by the Quincy Fire and Police Departments, and State Police assigned to both the Office of the State Fire Marshal and the Office of Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey. Assistance was received from the Code Compliance Unit of the Department of Fire Services and State Police Crime Scene Services. Morrissey confirmed that at this time the deaths do not appear suspicious.

The Department of Fire Services has an educational campaign for patients and families, physicians and care givers, and firefighters and housing authorities: Breathe Easy: Using Home Oxygen Safely. Materials in English, Spanish and Portuguese are available on the DFS website mass.gov/dfs. Type "home oxygen" in the search box.

State Fire Marshal Peter Ostroskey said, "This tragic fire is a reminder that we want smokers to live long enough to quit. There is no safe way to smoke around oxygen."

The marshal offered these fire safety tips for using oxygen in the home: Keep oxygen and tubing 10 feet away from heat sources such as candles, matches, lighters, heaters, woodstoves, electric razors, hair dryers, cooking stoves, and smoking materials; do not use petroleum-based products such as oil-based lip balms or lotions because they catch fire easily; and If you are going to smoke, disconnect the oxygen, wait ten minutes and go outside to smoke, allowing oxygen time to come off your hair and clothes, and lowering the danger of fire.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The Lamb loves to be surrounded by flocks of admirers. But be careful that someone doesn't take his or her admiration too far. Use your persuasive skills to let him or her down easily.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This is a good time to begin setting far-reaching goals and connecting with new contacts. Aspects also favor strengthening old relationships – personal and/or professional.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A personal disappointment should be viewed as a valuable learning experience. Go over what went wrong and see where a change in tactics might have led to a more positive outcome.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't leave projects unfinished or personal obligations unresolved, or you might find yourself tripping over all those loose ends later on. A relative has important news.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Expect a challenge to the usual way you do things. Although you might prefer the tried-and-true, once you take a good look at this new idea, you might feel more receptive to it.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Much work has yet to be done to polish a still-rough idea into something with significant potential. Expect to encounter some initial rejection, but stay with it nonetheless.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) There still might be some communication problems in the workplace, but they should be resolved soon. Meanwhile, that "tip" from a friend should be checked out.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A new relationship appears to need more from you than you might be willing to give right now. Best advice: Resist making promises you might not be able to keep.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) That restless feeling encourages you to gallop off into a new venture. But remember to keep hold of the reins so you can switch paths when necessary.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A demanding work schedule keeps the high-spirited Goat from kicking up his or her heels. But playtime beckons by the week's end. Have fun. You earned it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're beginning to come out from under those heavy responsibilities you took on. Use this freed-up time to enjoy some much-deserved fun with people close to you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Before you get swept away by a tidal wave of conflicting priorities, take time to come up for air, and reassess the situation. You might be surprised by what you'll find.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your leadership qualities are enhanced by a practical sense of purpose that keeps you focused on your goals.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD – "Feud: Bette & Joan" is the most-watched FX show since "The People vs O.J. Simpson," which only proves people still love old movie stars. Joan Crawford wanted to work with Bette Davis since their Warner Brothers Studios days in 1945. Joan knew the two of them together would be box-office magic. But Davis' no-nonsense Broadway training was the opposite of Crawford's Hollywood hype and phony press-release practices.

In 1962, Crawford scrambled to make a comeback, and she sent the book, "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane," to producer Robert Aldrich, as a vehicle for her and Bette Davis. But she didn't count on the studio deliberately fueling a fire between them to get more heat for the film. When it opened in New York City, the studio provided a tour bus for them to travel to the 26 theaters, but Crawford wouldn't ride in the bus saying, "Stars don't ride in buses!"

This infuriated Davis. I wrangled my way onto the bus, and when I asked where Crawford was, everyone pointed to the back of the bus. I finally saw her, through the back window, following the bus in a limo. Bette ranted the entire time, from theater to theater!

Even though the film returned $8 million on its investment, Davis was sure she'd never work again and took out an ad in The Daily Variety: "Situation wanted, mother of three, divorced, American, 30 years' experience as an actress in motion pictures and more affable than rumor would have it. Wants steady employment in Hollywood. (Has had Broadway). Bette Davis, c/o Martin Baum, REFERENCES UPON REQUEST." We'll tell you what happened next, next time.

"Beauty & the Beast" director Bill Condon has been signed by Warners to develop a Broadway version of "A Star Is Born," despite the fact their upcoming film version, directed by and starring Bradley Cooper and Lady Gaga, doesn't hit screens until Sept. 28, 2018. Clint Eastwood (originally set to direct the film with Beyonce) and Jon Peters (producer of the 1976 Barbra Streisand version) are onboard to help Cooper through his first directing project.

They don't call Dwayne Johnson "The Busiest Actor in Hollywood" for nothing. He has "Baywatch" (which he also produced) set for a May 26 premiere, "Jumanji 2" (reteaming him) with Kevin Hart, as well as Jack Black and Nick Jonas, due Dec. 22. He's also producing "Rampage" (based on the video game) and "Fighting with My Family," with Vince Vaughn and Lena Headey, which will take him back to his WWE roots to play wrestling superstar Paige. Johnson started producing films so he could get a bigger piece of "The Rock."

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

Q: I have an early copy of the Book of Mormon that is more than a century old. Could you tell me the value of it, or direct me to where I can find out? –Betty, Leadure, Illinois

A: I contacted several established book dealers about your book. The consensus seems to indicate that it is worth in the $25 to $50 range if, and this is a big if, you can find a buyer who is interested. Religious books are difficult to sell. For example, copies of the Bible from the 19th century are fairly common and despite their antiquity, often sell for less than $50. In order to get a second opinion, I suggest you search for the edition of your book at abe.com. It will take a little time, but it will reveal what various editions are selling for throughout the country.

Q: I have an accordion from the 1950s. It is a 120 key and was made by Stanell & Bernelli, an Italian company. I still have its original case and all of the papers and documents that came with it. Where can I sell it? – Pat, Godfrey, Illinois

A: Reverb is a company that buys, sells and consigns accordions, and that might be a good place to contact first. The toll-free contact number is 888-726-2728. Call for details.

Q: I have a board game titled "Peanuts: The Game of Charlie Brown and His Pals." Although my brother and I played the game a couple of times, it is in excellent condition. What is it worth? -- Sam, Kileen, Texas

A: Your game was issued by Selchow & Righter in 1959. It generally sells in the $20 to $35 range depending, of course, on condition and assuming it is complete.

Q: I have a Canada Dry plate issued in 1958 to mark the golden anniversary of the company. It looks to be in pristine condition. I have been offered $35 for it. – Cody, Lakewood, Colorado

A: I checked with several sources and they all seem to agree that your plate is worth somewhere in the $20 to $35 range. In other words, take the offer.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was vice president Adlai Stevenson who made the following sage observation: "All progress has resulted from people who took unpopular positions."

* We're in no danger of it happening these days, but once, in April of 1930, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported that there was no news that day. Instead of an announcer reading reports, they played soothing piano music instead.

* According to pollsters, during the year 2016, both head lice and cockroaches were more popular than the U.S. Congress.

* Before he became the beloved novelist Americans know and love, a 15-year-old Jack London worked in a pickle factory earning 10 cents an hour. Desperate to get out of the closed-in, steamy cannery, he decided to join the ranks of an entirely different profession: oyster pirates. Pacific coast oyster beds that had been accessible to the public had recently been turned into private oyster farms, off limits to the working-class fishermen who had relied on them. This created an underclass of pirates who would fill bags with oysters under cover of night -- and London, who borrowed the money to buy a sloop called the "Razzle Dazzle," quickly became one of the best. His prowess and daring earned him the nickname "Prince of the Oyster Pirates."

* You may not realize it, but if you've ever spent a winter in the northern climes, you've probably made a sitzmark (or at least seen one). That's the mark made when someone falls backward into the snow -- like a snow angel.

* If you live in or travel frequently to Las Vegas, keep in mind that in that city, it's against the law for a man with a mustache to kiss a woman.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "Use an old, fine-tip paintbrush or makeup brush (natural bristles, not plastic) to remove mistakes in nail painting. Dip brush in remover, and paint around the edges of freshly painted nails to remove overpaint with precision. Make sure to rinse brush immediately, and mark it so that you don't accidentally use it to apply makeup or anything." – E.I. in Ohio

* To "hang" a sturdy file sorter inside a low cabinet, use stick-on hooks. You can use it to store cutting boards or pot lids. Also, when hung in a mid-level cabinet, you can create a wrap dispensing station with aluminum foil, waxed paper and plastic wrap.

* A dryer sheet can be used to safely clean dust from your TV screens.

* N.B. in Tennessee writes in response to using toothpaste to camouflage a nail hole in the wall: "I have found that white chalk is much better, because it hardens just like Sheetrock." To use the chalk, make a paste from chalk shavings and water, and apply as you would spackle. Let dry 24 hours.

* "When traveling, let your host or hostess know of any serious health problems or allergies you may have, and what to do in case of an emergency." – M.W. in Saskatchewan, Canada

* With spring in full swing, here's a fun activity to keep the toddlers in your life occupied while you take care of the gardening. Give your kids a bucket of water and a paintbrush, and let them "paint" a wooden fence or even the side of a cement-block house.

A Job Well Done

PHONE CALLS FROM THE IRS? A recent wave of telephone calls, mostly on landlines are hitting the Quincy area. There are numerous telephone numbers showing up in caller ID. The caller, in a stern voice recording, states that they are from "The Tax Fraud Investigation Department" and that you owe money. He strongly advises the victim to call the above number as there is a pending arrest warrant out for the recipient. A call back to the numbers reported to me resulted in a busy tone or not accepting calls at this time.

REMEMBER – the IRS, any law enforcement agency or National Grid will not demand payment for debt or past bills. They will not demand that you make payment and threaten with consequences. Never buy Itunes cards, etc. to pay any of the above bills. When in doubt, call me at 617 745 5719 or email dminton@quincyma.gov

Interfaith Social Services South Shore Walk, Race April 29

Depression. Addiction. Anxiety. These illnesses affect one in five adults every year.

On April 29, participants in Interfaith Social Services' South Shore Walk & 5K race will lace up to challenge the stereotypes of these illnesses as they run and walk to raise funds for Interfaith's New Directions Counseling Center.

"It shameful that there are stigmas associated with addiction, depression and other mental health issues," said Rick Doane, executive director of Interfaith Social Services. "People talk openly about their struggles with ailments like diabetes and cancer. However, many keep mental illness under wraps."

Interfaith is inviting participants take part in their 5K race to take a stand against these stigmas. "This race gives us an opportunity to proclaim that there is no shame in mental illness," said Doane. "Walkers and runners fill the streets of Quincy. We walk, run and rally with family, friends and others to show those who are suffering that they can hold their heads high, their community stands with them."

Registration is now open for the race, a scenic and challenging 5K course through Quincy's Squantum and Marina Bay neighborhoods. The Boston skyline and Dorchester Bay serve as a picturesque backdrop on this sometimes hilly but well-paved course, which starts at The Kennedy Center in Quincy.

Families are encouraged to join runners and walkers after the race for a Family Fun Celebration at The Kennedy Center. The celebration will include a kids' Fun Run, music, a bounce house, face painting and more. The New England Revolution Battalion (the street team for Revolution Soccer) and Dave & Busters will provide additional games and prizes. Pizza and snacks will be available for all participants as well as chilly treats from New England Ice Cream. Runners can relax with a neck and shoulder massage from Body Benefit Massage Therapy. Visit InterfaithSocialServices.org/WalkAnd5k to register.

All race proceeds benefit Interfaith's New Directions Counseling Center, which is in its 70th year of offering compassionate and skilled counseling to the South Shore. New Directions is a safety net for the community, ensuring that anyone can receive care, regardless of health insurance status or income. The South Shore Walk & 5K Race is supported by many local businesses. For more information contact Interfaith's Director of Development Paula Daniels at 617-773-6203 ext. 28 or pdaniels@interfaithsocialservices.org.

Lions Club Evening For Sight Fundraiser

The Quincy Lions Club recently hosted an Evening for Sight Fundraiser to raise funds as part of the club's continued efforts to help support the community of Quincy.

"Funds raised at this year's Evening for Sight will allow Lions to meet needs in our community, especially the KidSight and Scholarship programs," said Club President Amy Huber. "Lions members thank everyone who contributes to this important work, you are truly helping Lions make a difference in our community. Pancake breakfasts are a huge part of Lions culture and tradition because they help bring the community together at a fun event, while raising awareness about the services that the Lions Club provides to our neighbors."

Janet M. Batson was honored by the club with The Francis X. McCauley Community Service Award. The Quincy Lions Club has honored a member of the community who, while not a member of the Lions Club, represents the Lions Club Motto, "We Serve."

Batson was recognized for volunteerism and her corporate citizenship.

Lions Charles Phelan and Michelle Lydon were presented with Melvin Jones Fellowship Awards. The Melvin Jones Fellowship Award is one of the highest forms of recognition for Lions membership. This award is selected by the club and a donation is made in that member's name to Lions Clubs International Foundation to continue the humanitarian work of Lions.

Lion Sean Glennon was recognized as Lion of The Year by President Amy Huber. Glennon was recognized for his continued support of the club, and its engaging speakers program.

Key sponsors for this year's Evening for Sight included The Rural Masonic Lodge A.F & A.M, Eastern Bank, Red Door Realty/ Uncle Sam and Jean Rounseville, Galvin Construction, Tiles By Perfection, Honorable Mayor Thomas P. Koch, Commonwealth Building Inc., Granite Print LLC., Holmes & Edwards Architects, Keohane Funeral Home, Lydon Chapel, NorthEast Community Bank, Quincy Credit Union, Quincy Memorials, Inc., Rockland Trust and Mr. and Mrs. David Sawyer.

The Quincy Lions Club is comprised of members of the community who identify needs within Quincy and work together to fulfill those needs. For more information email quincylionsclub@gmail.com or www.quincylionsclub.com.

Koch Could Divide Up $27 Million Park Request

Several Councillors Concerned Over Single Up-Down Vote

By SCOTT JACKSON

City officials will consider making changes to a request to borrow $27 million in hotel tax money for park improvements across Quincy after several city councillors raised concerns about having to take single up or down vote on the entire package.

Chris Walker, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, told councillors Monday night the administration was open to changing the request to address their concern. On Tuesday, he told The Sun options on the table include resubmitting one bond request with different line items for each project or submitting separate bond requests for each item. The administration will discuss the matter both internally and with councillors, he said.

"We're happy to entertain any suggestion, but no determination has been made," Walker said.

The $27 million request, introduced April 3, includes $15.7 million for the construction of the next phase of the Hancock-Adams Green in Quincy Center, $2.4 million to design and permit improvements to Merrymount Park, and $500,000 for a new dog park on Quarry Street, among other items.

The $27 million would be paid off using hotel/motel tax receipts – the tax paid when someone stays at a hotel or motel in Quincy. Under the city's laws, 85 percent of hotel/motel tax money can be used for park,

Support For LED Streetlights

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council could approve a plan to convert 6,500 streetlights to energy-efficient LED bulbs as early as next week – a plan city officials say could save $15 million over the lifespan of the LEDs.

The council's finance committee on Monday voted 8-1 in favor of borrowing $3.62 million to pay for the purchase and installation of the new LEDs. A final vote of the council is needed to approve the request, which could take place as soon as next Tuesday.

The city plans on entering into a contract with Siemens to replace the streetlights with LEDs; 80 percent of the lights at traffic signals citywide would also be converted. The $3.62 million would pay for purchase and installation of the LED bulbs. The city expects to receive about $1 million in reimbursements and grants to offset nearly a third of those costs.

MBTA Unveils Quincy Center Garage Demo Plan

18-Month Project Begins In July; Station To Remain Open

By TOM GORMAN

MBTA officials have unveiled their plan to lop off the top three levels of the five-story Quincy Center T parking garage and prepare it for redevelopment.

About 50 residents attended a public meeting hosted by T officials at city hall on April 6. The $25 million, 18-month plan calls for demolition work to begin in July and be completed by the end of 2018. The project also involves some upgrades to the station including replacing the existing elevator and providing an accessible entrance at the Burgin Parkway side.

According to project manager John McCormack, the top three floors of the garage will be removed and the second level will remain, bringing the structure to the same level as the Burgin Parkway side.

He noted the Quincy Center station would remain open and fully operational during construction but there will be some temporary changes relative to parking and drop-off.

The garage, which rises above the station platform and tracks, was built in 1971. It was shut down in July 2012 due to structural issues, namely when pieces of concrete began falling from the deck.

"The demolition is being done out of necessity," said MBTA community relations Director Rick Colon. "It's a safety issue. Buses and cars can no longer be on that structure."

McCormack noted the garage's structural support – the girders and columns – are sound and that the issue lies with the deteriorating concrete decks.

In addition to the demolition of the garage, the station will receive a facelift.

"(The station) actually will be improved and we will bring the station up to current codes and compli-

Concerns Raised Over Wollaston T Station Closing

20 Months For Major Renovation

By TOM GORMAN

The MBTA's plan to shut down the Wollaston T Station for 20 months to undergo a major renovation beginning in July and use shuttle buses to transport passengers to and from the North Quincy station is raising concerns among some residents.

During a public meeting on April 4 at Tobin Towers, nearly 70 residents listened to T officials lay out their $38 million plan to temporarily shutter the Wollaston station and transform it into a modern, fully accessible facility. Officials said the main goal is to make it fully accessible for the physically challenged along with some needed upgrades.

ABOUT 70 RESIDENTS at Tobin Towers listen as MBTA Project Manager Joe Cheever outlines the Wollaston MBTA Station renovation project during a public meeting April 4.

"This is a full station upgrade to make it ready for the next 40 to 50 years," MBTA project manager Joe Cheever told the gathering.

The T is planning to close the station in July and reopen a newly improved facility in June 2020.

He explained that the project is "challenging" given the configuration of the tracks and platform and several options were considered to carry out the project while keeping the station open. Cheever said the only way to carry out the scope of construction in a safe, timely and cost-effective manner is to close the station.

"The bottom line is, in terms of safety to our customers and customer experience, closing the station during construction is really the best option," Cheever said. "We can tear 19 months off the schedule by closing it. I know there's going to be some impacts to our customers who use Wollaston every day."

Cheever said the train will still run through the Wollaston station, but no passengers will board or

QEN Faxon Park Hike To Mark Earth Day April 22

The Quincy Environmental Network (QEN) invites residents to celebrate Earth Day with a family-friendly hike in Faxon Park Saturday, April 22.

Meet at the pavilion in the park at 3 p.m. See the interior of the 70-acre park and the extended properties protected in 2008. New hikers can take easy paths while more experienced hikers will blaze new trails.

Learn about the ongoing efforts to expand and enhance Faxon Park. Participants will also learn more about the history of the QEN and the group's 17 year advocacy record. Although the group has been less active in recent years, there have been several exciting ongoing, long term projects that have never ended. Learn about what's been going on in Quincy's environment, future endeavors, and efforts to encourage protection of our natural spaces and environmental health.

A short meeting will be held at the pavilion after the hike for anyone who wishes to assist the QEN in its ongoing efforts to make Quincy's environment an amenity for all.

Light refreshments. For questions, call the QEN at (617) 877-5975.

'Church Of The Presidents' Opens Tourist Season Monday

The Church of the Presidents announces the 2017 History and Visitors program season will open Monday, April 17th.

The History and Visitors Program offers guided tours of the historic United First Parish Church and the crypt of the Adams Presidents Monday – Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 .pm., and Sundays noon to 4 p.m.

United First Parish Church is located at 1306 Hancock St. in Quincy Cetner , directly across from the old City Hall and the Hancock Cemetery. Completed in 1828, this historic church is the fourth home to the first and longest continuously functioning congregation in the community.

The building was designed by Alexander Parris, and is constructed with Quincy granite, much it donated from the Adams family quarry. The building was designated as a National Historic Landmark in 1970, and is considered one of the finest examples a Greek Revival style church in New England.

The Church of the Presidents is the only building in the United States to house the final resting place of two Presidents. President John Adams, First Lady Abigail Adams, their son President John Quincy Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams are interred in the family crypt underneath the front entrance to the building.

Fo more information about the History and Visitors Program tours or about volunteering as a tour guide with the program, contact Bob Damon at 617.773.0062 or email at visitorsprogram@ufpc.org.

Council Backs Request For New Squantum School

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city is hoping to partner with the state to replace or renovate the 98-year-old Squantum Elementary School, and officials believe that process could begin as soon as next year with construction commencing in 2021.

The City Council on April 3 unanimously approved sending a statement of interest to the Massachusetts School Building Authority, the first step in securing state funds to pay for construction of the new school or renovations of the existing building. The School Committee in January approved a statement of interest as well.

The council and school board had previously submitted statements of interest to the MSBA concerning the Squantum Elementary School in 2015 and 2016.

Mayor Thomas Koch, in introducing his capital plan during the April 3 meeting, said he expects the MSBA will not invite Quincy into the core program – which entails replacements or renovations of school buildings – for Squantum until work on the replacement for Sterling Middle School is well underway. The new Sterling is set to open in the fall of 2019, with construction starting this year.

No money for the Squantum School was included in the bond orders submitted to the council April 3 for consideration, though the capital plan did include an estimated project cost and timeline.

Construction of the new Squantum School is expected to cost between $30 and $40 million, based on 2016 estimates; the city could pay

BOLD GOLD

Gold prices may fluctuate, but the popularity of this precious metal never goes out of style. Those who recognize that gold's price reflects the value of one of the world's most treasured commodities will want to make a bold statement with their gold jewelry. Current trends call for dramatic designs featuring sculptural cuffs, articulate bib necklaces, and industrial-chic collars. These pieces attract attention and take confidence to wear. They evoke images of Cleopatra and may be modeled on ancient symbols that were believed to empower the wearer. Covering the wrists and upper arms in wide bands of gold, accompanied by large-link gold necklaces and stacked gold rings, announces the presence of the wearer without a word of introduction.

Carat is the measure of gold's purity. The higher the carat is, the more valuable the gold. The addition of other alloys to gold are used to increase its toughness and hardness, to change its color, and in the case of lower carat gold, to decrease the cost. To learn more about our jewelry selection, please call 617-773-3636 or see us at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. If we don't have what you're looking for in stock we will get it, usually within 72 hours with no obligation on the customer's part. Complete written appraisals are available.

Doggie Demographics

This week we're going to the dogs.

Call it a canine column.

Our focus: four-legged, tail-waging friends.

More on spot: we're all about doggie demographics in the City of Quincy.

Our bowl is full of dog statistics – like how many canines are registered in Quincy, popular breeds and prominent names.

Are you begging for more?

Thoughts so.

So let's unleash some of these stats. Our thanks to the City Clerk's office for providing this information.

For starters, there were 2,828 dogs licensed in Quincy during 2016. That was down slightly compared to 2015 when 2,936 canines were licensed. From 2012 to 2014 there was a steady increase in dog licenses issued – 2,168, 2,646 and 2,784 respectively for those three years.

When it comes to breeds, the top dog in Quincy is the Labrador Retriever with 225 licensed. Four other dog types/breeds break the 100 mark. They are lab mix (161), Shih Tzu (127), Chihuahua (125) and mixed breed (120).

Rounding out the top 10 most popular dogs in Quincy are the Golden Retriever (97), Yorkshire Terrier (92), Maltese (90), Terrier mix (85) and German Shepherd (79).

Some other prevalent pooches and how many of them licensed in Quincy are:

The Pug (70), Boxer (69), Beagle (69), Pomeranian (67), Dachshund (62), Jack Russell Terrier (57), Boston Terrier (49), Bichon Frise (44), Poodle (42), English Bulldog (42), Cocker Spaniel (41) and Pit Bull (40).

On the other end of the spectrum, according to city records as of last Friday, there are 27 "unique" dogs licensed in Quincy – meaning there are only one of the following types in the city:

Bloodhound, Black Russian Terrier, Aussie Cross, Bolognese, Finnish Spitz, Pinscher, Old English Sheepdog, Mountain Curr, Mexican Hairless, Kerry Blue Terrier, Keeshond, Sheapoodle, Heeler Mix, Gordon Setter, English Mastiff, Frenchton, Tibetan Terrier, Eurasier, Entleboucher Sennehund, Shih-Poo, English Bull Terrier, Soft Coat Terrier, Spitz Mix, Chinese Crested, Cavadoodle, Swiss Mountain and Golden Pyrenees.

All total, there are some 133 different breeds/types of dogs licensed in Quincy.

That's a lot of varied tails wagging.

And all these dogs need names, right?

So, care to venture a guess as to the most popular dog name in Quincy?

If you said "buddy" you would be . . . incorrect.

Apparently local dog owners love the name "Lucy."

By a vibrissa (whisker), Lucy is the most prevalent pooch moniker in Quincy with 37 dogs of this name. Next is Max (36 dogs), Bailey (35) and Bella (34). Rounding out the top nine dog names in Quincy are Daisy (32), Molly (31), Charlie (27), Lola (26) and Chloe (25). Five names are tied for 10th place with 24 each: Teddy, Lily, Cooper, Maggie and Buddy.

Only five other names reached 20 in popularity. They are: Jack (22), Sadie (22), Brady (21), Penny (21) and Abby (20).

Other interesting tidbits:

Seven dogs licensed in Quincy are named Quincy. There are no Hancocks but there's one Abigail and one Quincy Adams.

Besides Brady, other sports figures are on the list. There are nine Bruschi (in honor of retired New England Patriots linebacker Tedy Bruschi), six Tuukka (named after the Boston Bruins goalie Tuukka Rask) and four Neely (Bruins Hall of Famer Cam Neely.)

There are also seven dogs named "Fenway" and four "Wrigley." Both are also the names of the two oldest ballparks in Major League Baseball. Only one Gronk (New England Patriots tight end Rob Gronkowski) which some may find a little surprising.

The name "Rover" can move over . . . to the extinct list. No dogs licensed in Quincy are named Rover according to recent records. But other old-school canine names made the list including Rufus (5), Spike (4) and Snoopy (4). There are also two Roscoes and one Spot.

Libations also apparently help influence dog naming here.

There are three dogs named "Brewski", two "Guinness," one "Captain Morgan," a "Chardonnay" and one "Budweiser." Couldn't find a Pretzel, folks, but there are a few Peanuts.

Other food well served on the list: Fenway Frank, Hazel Nut, Hershey, Burger, Bagel, Cupcake, Chili Cheese Dog and Captain Crunch.

And literary characters and action figures also inspire local dog names. Among them: Wild Bill Hickok (2), Doc Holliday (2), Flash Gordon, Batman, Huckleberry Finn and Betty Boop.

Stars of sound and stage also make an appearance. There are dogs named Blue Eyes (Frank Sinatra fan?), Bogart and Dirty Harry (Clint Eastwood).

You get the picture.

Dog owners love their four-legged friends and are very creative in naming them.

There's also a little a history behind some of the dog licenses.

For instance, there is a dog named Teddy who has license number "9" in honor of Ted Williams, the late great Boston Red Sox Hall of Famer. The owner apparently wanted dog license 406 in honor of the Splendid Splinter's batting average in 1941. Seventy-five years later, it remains the last season that any major leaguer has finished with a batting average higher than .400.

So, when the owner inquired about license number 406, he was told it was already in circulation. But as luck would have it, number 9 was available. So Teddy has that magic numeral that was worn by Williams during his baseball career.

Dog License #1 belongs to "Zeus," a Chow Chow, in case you were wondering.

While statistics and names are fun to look at, dog licenses are taken seriously by the City of Quincy.

They are important for public safety and dog identification, says City Clerk Nicole Crispo.

"All licensed dogs are required to have their rabies shots. That's a public safety issue. You can't receive a dog license unless your dog is vaccinated," she notes.

Dogs can be vaccinated for rabies by a veterinarian or at a rabies clinic the city holds every year. Vets who vaccinate dogs who reside in Quincy send a copy of the vaccination form to the City Clerk.

The city's rabies clinic is held once a year. This year's clinic was held last Saturday, April 8.

Licenses can also help ID stray dogs. Each dog license issued is numbered. The number is recorded along with information about the dog's owner.

"If your dog gets lost and the dog is wearing the dog tag, the person who finds the dog can read the tag number. That information will help identify the dog's owner name and address and that information can help track down the owner," Crispo said.

Dog owners are reminded that 2017 licenses are available at the City Clerk's Office located on the second floor of the City Hall glass annex building, 1305 Hancock St. The cost is $10 through the end of April. On May 1, the cost to license a dog doubles to $20. So far, about 800 dogs have received their license this year.

Crispo anticipates that this year the city could reach 3,000 licensed dogs. The number is certainly within reach considering the multitude of new pet-friendly apartments that have popped up in Quincy.

The mayor's office is also keenly aware of pooch popularity in Quincy.

Mayor Thomas Koch has proposed a new $750,000 dog park on a 22-acre site off Quarry Street. Of that money, $500,000 would be financed by the city's hotel/motel tax. The other $250,000 would be funded by a grant.

The mayor has also proposed to spend $7.1 million on a new animal shelter also at the 22-acre site. That bond would be paid back by the city's general fund.

Crispo says she's heard from many dog owners who want such a dog park in Quincy.

The money to fund both the park and shelter needs City Council approval.

If dogs could vote, these proposals would pass.

Paws down.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1929 real photo postcard showing the Joseph F. Rogers Auto Company's new garage at 430 Hancock St. in Norfolk Downs. This view is from the end of Burgess Street. Before he built this garage Rogers, who lived on Elm Avenue, had a smaller garage on Greenwood Street in Wollaston where he sold both Nash and LaFayette cars in the early 1920s. The LaFayette brand was discontinued and here he sold only the Nash brand as seen in this photo. After Rogers passed away in 1935, the White Brothers Milk Company bought this property. They used it as a maintenance facility for their fast-growing home delivery truck fleet. They had over 300 trucks covering the South Shore. In 1971, The Whiting's Milk Company bought White Brothers and closed the garage. Today, this is home to the A.F. Murphy Die & Machine Company which makes custom metal stampings here. Supports New Quincy Animal Shelter, Dog Park

Readers Forum

I am Bob Ulchak; my wife and I have resided in Wollaston for 45 years as we raised our children.

During this time, we have been fortunate to have been guardians of several wonderful dogs and cats, as our children were growing up . . . and currently own a lovable, three-year-old Golden Retriever.

I support Mayor Koch's proposal to fund and build a new Quincy "No Kill" Animal Shelter and dog park on 22 acres of available land. I want to encourage a timely approval by the City Council as well as setting a high priority on an expedited construction time table. The cost associated with building a new Quincy Animal Shelter is relatively small, in comparison to many of the other capital proposals.

The need for a new state-of-the-art Quincy "No Kill" Animal Shelter is well overdue, as well as it is the "humane" decision to make. The current shelter is in deplorable condition with current space for animals not meeting national standards.

Our volunteers have done a wonderful job under these conditions, and through their efforts has facilitated the adoption of over 7,500 animals by the residents of Quincy since 1999.

The City of Quincy is a "First Class City," and we need a "First Class Animal Shelter."

I ask the residents to contact their city councillor and ask for their support. Please call the Council Office at 617-376-1341 or by emailing directly to your councillor (first name initial followed by last name) @ Quincyma.gov.

Abandon Public Buildings Department Proposal

Re: Temporary home for Public Buildings Department Sought (April 6, 2017)

In the same week that thousands of Wollaston residents are learning that their MBTA station will be closed for 20 months, the City of Quincy has announced a proposal to spend a minimum of $775,000 to purchase and update a structurally unsound, antiquated building for temporary office space for 9 employees. This proposal is not only tone deaf but also absurdly wasteful.

According to Commissioner Hines, Mayor Koch was very concerned about saving this property "from the wrecking ball." This is too ironic as he had no qualms about redirecting the Town Brook at unknown cost to that natural habitat. The City offers no substantial or compelling reasons for the architectural or historical importance of The George Barker Home to justify the cost to the taxpayers. In short, it was owned by a rich dead Yankee businessman. I need a better reason than that to keep this property off the tax rolls. Maybe a developer who has enriched himself in Quincy Center can be induced to make it his home?

Indeed, it is inefficient for the staff of the Public Buildings dept. to be separated in 3 locations as they are now. Why is it that they do not have offices in Coddington Hall which was refurbished only a few years ago? How is it that the Commissioner failed to advocate for himself and his own staff back when that project was designed? Is there really no room in that large building for nine more employees – even temporarily? Why not rent office space?

I urge the Mayor and all City officials concerned to abandon this proposal. Thank you.

Reardon: Develop Broad Meadows

Use of Broad Meadows' 115 acres of marshland for industrial development was urged by George D. Reardon of the Quincy-South Shore Development Corporation at Monday's City Council meeting.

He said it has tax possibility of $1.5 million per year for the citizens of Quincy.

Attending with Reardon was Robert M. Faxon also representing the Quincy-South Shore Development Corporation.

The marsh area between Sea Street and Southern Artery was sold several years ago for $80,800 to Mass Electric Co. for future development. They have held it for about 12 years.

Recently, Mayor James R. McIntyre secured approval of the area as the site for a community junior college.

Councillor John J. Quinn suggested that a junior college be built near an MBTA terminal for easy access.

MUSICAL CHAIRS GOES ON AT CITY HALL

The Quincy Sun "Sunbeams" column reported that a Summit Meeting was held at Quincy City Hall behind closed doors in the mayor's office.

Attending were Mayor-State Senator James McIntyre, Council President Arthur Tobin and Ward Five Councillor Walter Hannon.

The "Speculation Corps" has been kicking around a three-way move for three weeks. If McIntyre accepts a state position and retires from active politics, Hannon will run for mayor and Tobin for his honor's senate seat.

If McIntyre decides to seek term number four, Hannon and Tobin will have to wait.

(Editor's Note: The move happened.)

'Taste Of The South Shore' Raises $366,640 For YMCA

750 Support 21st Annual Event At Lombardo's

The South Shore YMCA's 21st annual "Taste of the South Shore" was a tremendous success, raising $366,640 which will provide kids access to the Y's life-changing youth programs and camps.

Some 750 guests attended the annual event at Lombardo's that was transformed into a living reminder of collective childhood memories featuring a great evening of food and drink from the South Shore's top restaurants, wineries and breweries.

Prior to the main event, the President's Club Reception honored Quincy Mutual Group's commitment to the South Shore community. South Shore YMCA President and CEO Paul Gorman conveyed Quincy Mutual's longstanding tradition of helping other local organizations, lending their time, talent and treasure to the Norwell Visiting Nurse Association, the Friendship Home, DOVE, South Shore Stars, Father Bills & Mainspring and many more.

Quincy Mayor Tom Koch joined Gorman in celebrating Quincy Mutual, thanking them for their determination to assist in the redesign of the downtown area, partnering with the City on its schools, and more. The President's Club is comprised of the top donors to the South Shore YMCA.

Following the President's Club Reception, all guests enjoyed tastings as well as an event program which included a live auction featuring amazing dining experiences and an appeal. Thanks to the generous support of our attendees, donors and sponsors, the Taste of the South Shore raised over $366,640 to help kids like Terrell, a beloved YMCA employee who shared his Y story at the event. "I grew up in Germantown," recounted Terrell, "with a single mom, a sister and a brother. When I was 16, my mother and sis-

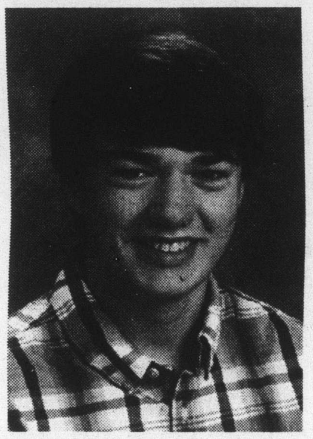
Matt Brandi Wins Latin Oratorical Contest

Matt Brandi of Quincy, a sophomore at Boston College High School, was the Latin I and Latin II winner on Exelauno Day, a Latin and Greek oratorical competition held recently in the Bulger Auditorium at BC High.

Brandi memorized and declaimed 13 lines of Gaius Valerius Catullus' love poem to Lesbia.

For this year's event, the school's many classics students filled the Bulger Performing Arts Center to watch their classmates participate in the daunting task of reciting passages in Latin and Greek from memory.



MATT BRANDI

The student competitors were chosen by their classroom peers to represent their classes in front of three faculty judges. Despite the intense pressure of performing in another language in front of the judges as well as their friends and teachers, the students delivered passages with an animated flair, often bringing the crowd to laughter and cheers – even if they didn't understand the language being spoken.

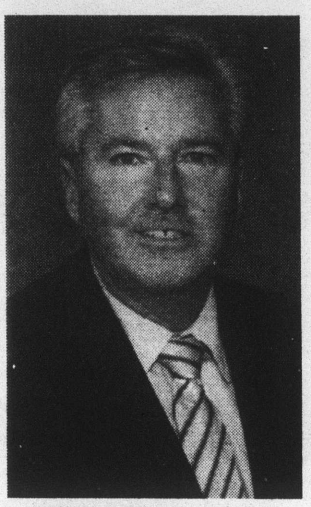
Bruce Ayers Receives Elks Distinguished Service Award

The Quincy Lodge of Elks #943 recently recognized state Rep. Bruce Ayers with the 2016-2017 Distinguished Service Award.

Exalted Ruler Frank Bertoni nominated Rep. Ayers for his work as chairman of the Elks scholarship committee, which he has chaired for over 25 years.

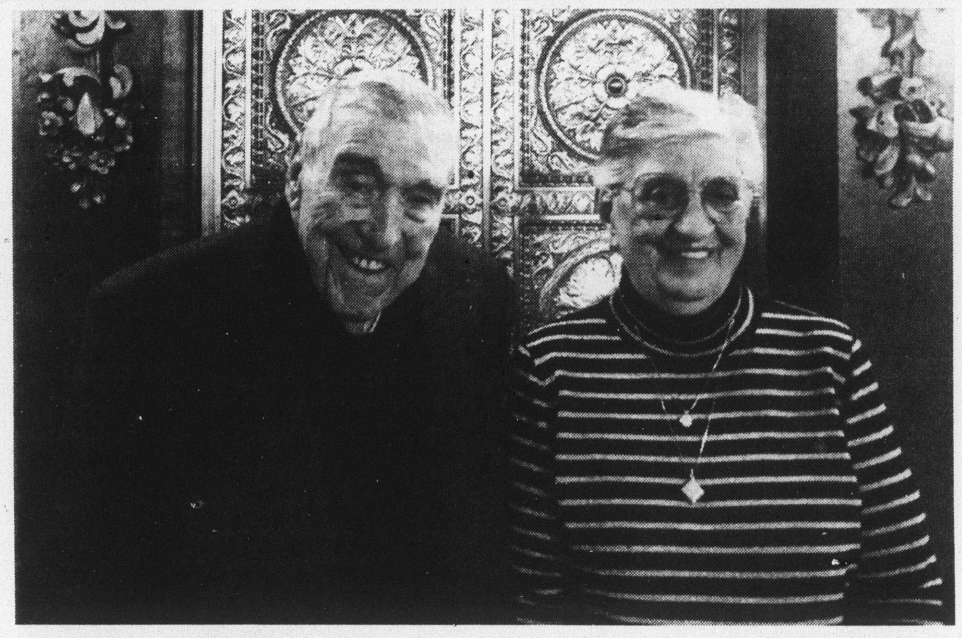
Ayers was also recognized for his work with the Quincy Helping Hand program, which he founded in 1991. Helping Hand provides free durable medical equipment donations to those in need.



REP. BRUCE AYERS

"Bruce is always there to volunteer his time and help the lodge and its members," Bertoni said.

"It's an honor to receive this award from Exalted Ruler Bertoni and from such a great organization," Ayers said. "I've been a member for 34 years, and have always admired how much the Elks give back to the community through their charitable endeavors."



WILLIAM AND MILDRED COX recently celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary. On April 25,1945, Corp. Mildred R. Moulton, USMC(WR) and William A. Cox, BM2/C, USN, were engaged. The couple had met in high school in 1939 and were married Jan. 25, 1947. They celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary Jan. 25th this year at the Omni Parker House, Boston, where they spent their honeymoon. Will and Mil had eight children, 17 grandchildren, and 16 "greats" so far. A family celebration was held April 30th at the Avalon Function Room, Quarry Street, Quincy. Register Of Deeds O'Donnell To Speak April 18 At HN Center

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell will speak at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., Quincy, Tuesday, April 18 at 7 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

The short speaking program will touch on the historical nature of the Registry and O'Donnell's efforts to modernize and computerize the vast number of Norfolk County real estate records. Following his remarks, O'Donnell will be available to answer individual questions.

Members of the Register's staff will also be available to assist in providing information about the Massachusetts Homestead Act. On-line work stations will be available to provide the status of a mortgage discharge, print a copy of your deed or provide a demonstration on how the Registry's On-Line Land Records Database works.

This is a community outreach initiative sponsored by the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds. It is O'Donnell's goal to provide a convenient way for residents to learn more about how the Registry serves Norfolk County. Although Registry staff cannot provide legal advice, they will be able to answer basic questions, provide general information, take a document for recording and assist in filling out a Declaration of Homestead form.

To learn more about these and other Registry of Deeds events and initiatives like us at facebook.com/NorfolkDeeds or follow us on twitter.com/NorfolkDeeds and instagram.com/NorfolkDeeds.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is located at 649 High St. in Dedham. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org. Residents in need of assistance can contact the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Center via telephone at (781) 461-6101, or email registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org.

Red Cross Appealing For Blood Donations

The American Red Cross will hold a Blood Drive Monday, April 24 from 1 to 7 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St., Quincy.

Eligible blood donors of all blood types are encouraged to give blood through the American Red Cross this spring to help ensure a sufficient supply for hospital patients.

Donated blood is perishable and must constantly be replenished to keep up with hospital patient need. Red blood cells are the blood component most frequently transfused by hospitals and must be used within 42 days of donation.

Eligible donors can give red blood cells through either a regular whole blood donation or a Power Red donation, where available. Power Red donors give a concentrated dose of red blood cells during a single donation, allowing them to maximize their impact. During this type of donation, red blood cells are separated from other blood components, and the plasma and platelets are safely and comfortably returned to the donor.

While donors of all blood types are encouraged to give blood, type O, A negative and B negative donors are urged to give Power Reds if they meet the additional eligibility criteria. Type O negative is the universal blood type and can be transfused to patients of any blood type in an emergency. Similarly, type O positive can be transfused to Rh-positive patients of any blood type. Types A negative and B negative can be transfused to Rh-positive or negative patients. Power Red donations help ensure a stable supply of these critical blood types.

Whole blood can be donated every 56 days, up to six times a year, and Power Red donations may be made every 112 days, up to three times per year.

Make an appointment to donate blood by downloading the free Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting redcrossblood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

Braintree Coop Bank Shred Day

Braintree Cooperative Bank will hold a Spring Shred Day Saturday, May 6 in the back parking lot at 1000 Washington St., Braintree, from 9 a.m. to noon.

IShred (a secure, onsite shredding company) and PC Trading (a computer recycling company) will be there to handle all shredding and computer equipment recycling needs.

Braintree Cooperative Bank offers this free service to residents of the community. The only charge is $15 to take a TV.

Neponset River Cleanup April 29

The Neponset River Watershed Association and the Department of Conservation and Recreation are seeking volunteers for the annual Neponset River Cleanup Saturday, April 29 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The river cleanup is part of DCR's Park Serve Day, a statewide volunteer service day.

Last year, over 200 people volunteered their time at the cleanup, and produced incredible results. According to the DCR Operations Coordinator, the 2016 cleanup culminated in 6 tons of debris and another 140 bags of trash being removed from the river.

Volunteers are encouraged to preregister at www.neponset.org/volunteer. While pre-registration is helpful for planning purposes, volunteers will not be turned away on the day of the event if they have not pre-registered.

The focus of the cleanup will be on three sites along the Neponset River Estuary, and volunteers may meet at the following locations:

Quincy RiverWalk: Meet at the Neponset Landing Pier, next to Neponset Landing Apartments at 2 Hancock Street. Park under the Neponset Bridge, between the Adams Inn and Neponset Landing Apartments.

Granite Ave. Marshes and Neponset Greenway Trail in Dorchester: Meet at the far end of the Shields MRI parking lot at 161 Granite Ave., near the Neponset Greenway Trail. Park in the Shields MRI parking lot, or across the street, at the Neponset II Park on Hill Top St.

Baker Dam/Small DCR Park/Boat Ramp/Neponset River Greenway Trail: Meet in the small park next to the Baker Square Condominiums on Adams Street. We will have groups focusing on the boat ramp at Central Avenue, the bank near the Baker Dam on the Milton side of the river, and the stretch of the Greenway between Central Avenue and Adams Street.

Volunteers should wear long pants and clothes that they won't mind getting dirty, along with appropriate closed toe footwear. Hats, work gloves, sunscreen, and water are also encouraged.

For more information contact Nancy Mahon at mahon@neponset.org or 781-575-0354 x304.

Carrot Cake

By MARIE

I don't think there are many people out there who have not had a delicious piece of the ever-popular carrot cake. And I certainly have had recipes for carrot cake in my column.

But today's recipe is one that my niece Jean made last week and it is a terrific recipe to bake for Easter. The addition of pecans and raisins make this cake a winner.

CAKE INGREDIENTS

2 cups all-purpose flour
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt (optional)
4 eggs
1-1/2 cup vegetable oil
3 cups grated carrots
1 cup of raisins
1-1/2 cups chopped pecans' (optional)

FROSTING
Two 8 ounce packages cream cheese (room temperature)
1 stick butter (room temperature)
One 16 ounce box powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 cup chopped pecans (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour two 9-inch or 10-inch pans, or you can use a 9 x 13 pan. Line bottom with parchment paper if possible.

In a large bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking soda, cinnamon, and salt. Add eggs and vegetable oil. Using a hand mixer, blend until combined. Add carrots, raisins and pecans if using pecans.

Pour into pans. Bake for approximately 40 minutes. Remove from oven and cool 5 minutes. Remove from pans, on cake rack and cool completely before frosting.

For the frosting, add all ingredients, except nuts into a medium bowl and beat until fluffy using a hand mixer. Stir in nuts. Spread frosting of bottom layer. Add top layer and frost top and sides.

Enjoy and Happy Easter!!

Cream Of Asparagus Soup
(With NO Cream)

By SUSIE

Asparagus is certainly in abundance!

I grew up with creamed asparagus on toast and have always loved the flavors mingling together on buttered toast. Here is a soup recipe for you that is a healthier version than most cream soups.

When I lived in Germany, many years ago, I would order cream of "spargal" soup. It was so delicious and served daily at a local cafe. Here is my version using cashew "cream" instead of dairy. Hope you enjoy!! (without the bloat!)

CREAM OF ASPARAGUS SOUP
(with NO cream)

- 2 pounds green asparagus, chopped
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 2 tablespoons ghee
- 5 cups organic vegetable broth
- ½ cup raw cashews, soaked in HOT water for 30 minutes (Boil the water and pour over cashews) RINSE and DRAIN
- ¼-1/2 teaspoon fresh lemon juice, or to taste

Fresh dill or parsley

1 garlic clove, minced
Sea salt, black pepper

In a large pot, heat ghee over medium-low heat, and cook the onion for a few minutes, until softened and lightly caramelized.

Add asparagus pieces, garlic and sea salt and pepper to taste, then cook, stirring, 5 minutes or so.

Add broth and simmer, covered, until asparagus is very tender, 15 minutes.

Now add soaked, drained, and rinsed cashews to a blender with JUST enough broth to cover and puree until creamy.

Add this to soup in pot and using an immersion blender blend until smooth and creamy.

Season with lemon juice, and more salt and pepper if desired. Sprinkle with FRESH dill or parsley and serve hot.

'Caring For Planet Earth' Festival

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program, the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Quincy Climate Action Network will host a free two-part environmental festival on April 18 and April 29.

The theme is "Caring for Planet Earth: Local Stories of Inspiration and Hope."

On April 18, the festival begins in the Community Room of the main library at 6:30 p.m. where local environmental groups and city departments will display their activities. Free tickets for door prizes will be distributed to everyone who arrives before 7 p.m. At 7 p.m. several elected officials and local environmental groups will speak briefly about their accomplishments.

A drawing for the winners of the door prizes including a rain barrel, an energy efficiency kit, t-shirts, a ride in a hybrid electric vehicle to view a home charging station, a personal guided tour of the Quincy coast with a naturalist, and much more will be held at 7:30 p.m. The evening will conclude with the screening of Ocean Frontiers III, a just released hour-long film about various groups working together to plan for potentially conflicting uses of the North Atlantic Ocean, from Virginia to Canada.

In addition to parking in the library lot, participants may also park at Coddington Hall, 34 Coddington St., across from the library that evening.

On Saturday, April 29 Steve Perdios and Maureen Mazrimas will lead a free guided walk around Marina Bay describing citizen efforts to preserve open space in Quincy from acquisitions with the hotel/motel tax to the Community Preservation Act. Participants should meet at 2 p.m. at the Kennedy Center parking lot, 440 E. Squantum St.

For more information and rain date rescheduling, call 617/472-0799.

Bank Of Canton Receives Victim Assistance 'Corporate Leadership Award'

During Victim Rights Month in April, Attorney General Maura Healey and the Massachusetts Office for Victim Assistance (MOVA) recognize individuals and agencies that have made significant contributions to victim rights and services.

Bank of Canton received this year's "Corporate Leadership Award" for its commitment to supporting law enforcement, social service agencies, and others to improve community responses around crime prevention and intervention services.

Bank of Canton serves the greater Neponset Valley and South Shore area. Established in 1835, the bank has a history of supporting organizations and institutions that make its communities stronger, better places to live and work.

The bank regularly offers free use of its 250-seat corporate auditorium and facilities to law enforcement agencies such as Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey's office and local police departments. Over the past two years, more than 10 different organizations have hosted 35 events including trainings on identifying and responding to victims of human trafficking, bullying, how schools can respond to the opiate addiction crisis, and how police departments can improve relationships within communities.

Bank of Canton has provided more than $1.75 million in financial support to local charities and nonprofit organizations since 2005. The bank's donations and sponsorships have helped fund financial literacy programs for children and seniors, educational workshops for first-time home buyers, and social services for victims and survivors.

Under the leadership of President and CEO Stephen P. Costello, Bank of Canton fosters a strong spirit of volunteerism – leading many employees to volunteer their time at civic and non-profit organizations that have benefited area schools, social services, and other charitable agencies.

"We're truly honored to receive the inaugural Corporate Leadership Award from the Massachusetts Office for Victim Assistance," said Bank of Canton President and CEO Stephen P. Costello. "We have an excellent working relationship with District Attorney Morrissey, and we're pleased to support the tremendous work of his office and MOVA that benefits victims and survivors in our communities."

"Community partners like the Bank of Canton are a force multiplier for the victim advocacy and law enforcement agencies they help," said Morrissey who nominated the Bank of Canton for the award. "Not having to pay for first-class training facilities means that, with the limited funds we have, we can offer more training and resources to those on the street, in the schools and in the courthouses working with victims and other vulnerable populations."

"During Victim Rights Month we have an opportunity to recognize those who help some of the most vulnerable and innocent among us. These individuals provide critical services to victims, and we are proud of the work they do in our communities," said Attorney General Maura Healey.

"We are excited to award Bank of Canton with our Corporate Leadership Award to recognize their long-standing support of law enforcement in the communities they serve," said Liam Lowney, MOVA's Executive Director.

"The bank serves as a critical resource by hosting joint trainings and networking opportunities that have led to more collaborative responses among systems addressing violence in the area. This private/public partnership is critical to improving public safety responses and building stronger communities and we are thrilled to recognize the bank for these efforts," Lowney added.

Mereditj Flaherty Participates In UDance at U. Of Delaware

Mereditj Flaherty of Quincy joined the fight against childhood cancer as a dancer with UDance at the University of Delaware.

UDance is the university's largest student-run philanthropy benefiting the Wilmington, Delaware based Andrew McDonough B+ Foundation. In March, the organization celebrated a year's worth of fundraising during its 11th annual twelve-hour dance marathon.

UDance is the fifth largest college dance marathon in the nation with over 2,000 student participants.

Hiccups: Triggers And Treatments

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

RUTH JONES

By RUTH JONES BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Hiccups occur when a spasm causes contractions of the diaphragm, the muscle that separates your chest from your abdomen and plays an important role in breathing. This spasm initiates an intake of breath that is suddenly impeded by the closure of the vocal cords (glottis). This closure generates the characteristic "hiccup" sound.

Hiccups may be the consequence of a large meal, alcoholic beverages or sudden excitement. In some cases, hiccups may be an indication of an underlying medical condition.

For the majority of people, a bout of hiccups typically lasts only a few minutes. Rarely, hiccups may persist for months. This can result in malnutrition and exhaustion. The distinctive sound of a hiccup is the only sign. Sometimes the only symptom is a trivial tightening sensation in your chest, abdomen or throat that precedes the sound. It is important to call your healthcare provider if your hiccups persist in excess of 48 hours or if they are so severe that they cause difficulties with eating, sleeping or breathing.

The most widespread triggers for hiccups that last less than 48 hours include:

- Drinking carbonated beverages
- Drinking too much alcohol/smoking
- Eating too much
- Excitement or emotional stress
- Sudden temperature changes such as drinking a hot beverage and then a cold beverage
- Swallowing too much air with chewing gum or sucking on candy

Hiccups that last more than 48 hours are referred to as persistent hiccups. While very rare, intractable hiccups may be caused by a number of factors, which are typically classified into the following categories:

Nerve damage or irritation - This refers to damage or irritation of the vagus nerves or phrenic nerves, which serve the diaphragm muscle. Factors that may cause damage or irritation to these nerves include:

- A hair or something else in your ear touching your eardrum
- A tumor, cyst or goiter in your neck
- Gastroesophageal reflux
- Sore throat or laryngitis

Central nervous system disorders - Conditions such as a tumor or infection in your central nervous system or damage to your central nervous system as a consequence of trauma can disrupt your body's normal control of the hiccup reflex.

Examples include:

- Encephalitis
- Meningitis
- Multiple sclerosis
- Stroke
- Traumatic brain injury
- Tumors

Metabolic disorders and drugs can trigger long-term hiccups including:

- Alcoholism
- Anesthesia
- Barbiturates
- Diabetes
- Electrolyte imbalance
- Kidney failure
- Steroids
- Tranquilizers

Hiccups occur in virtually every human being, including babies and older adults. However, men are much more likely to develop long-term hiccups than are women. Additional factors that may increase your risk of hiccups include:

- Mental or emotional issues. Anxiety, stress and exhilaration have been associated with some cases of short-term and long-term hiccups.
- Surgery. Certain people may acquire hiccups after undergoing general anesthesia or after procedures that involve abdominal organs.

Though prolonged hiccups are an annoyance, more seriously they may interfere with eating, sleeping, speech and wound healing after surgery. Initially you may consult your primary care physician regarding your persistent hiccups, but subsequently you may be referred to a doctor who specializes in neurological disorders.

Preceding your appointment, you may want to put together a list that includes: detailed descriptions of your symptoms, information about past and present medical conditions, data about the medical problems of your parents or siblings, all the medications and dietary supplements you take and questions you want to ask the doctor.

Your doctor may inquire:

- When did your hiccups start?
- How often do they occur?
- Is there anything that worsens or alleviates them?
- What medications are you taking?
- Have you had a sore throat or earache?
- Do you have indigestion symptoms or bloating?
- Have you had a sore throat or changes in your voice?
- Have you had chest pain, cough or difficulty breathing?

During the physical exam, your doctor may perform a neurological exam to check your:

- Balance and coordination
- Muscle strength and tone
- Reflexes
- Sight and sense of touch

If your doctor suspects an underlying medical condition may be causing your hiccups, he or she may recommend one or more of the following tests.

Samples of your blood may be checked for signs of:

- Infection
- Diabetes
- Kidney disease

Imaging tests that may be able to detect anatomical abnormalities affecting the vagus nerve, phrenic nerve or diaphragm may be ordered including a chest X-ray, Computerized tomography (CT) ,Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) . Additionally an endoscopic test utilizing a thin, flexible tube containing a tiny camera can be passed down your throat to check for problems in your esophagus or windpipe.

Most cases of hiccups subside on their own without medical treatment. When long-term hiccups don't respond to other remedies, alternative treatments, such as hypnosis and acupuncture, may be beneficial. If an underlying medical condition is triggering your hiccups, treatment of that illness may eliminate the hiccups.

Drugs commonly used to treat long-term hiccups include:

- Chlorpromazine
- Metoclopramide
- Baclofen

If less invasive treatments are ineffective, your health care provider may propose an injection of an anesthetic to block your phrenic nerve to stop hiccups.

Another option is to surgically implant a battery-operated device to deliver mild electrical stimulation to your vagus nerve. This procedure is most frequently used to treat epilepsy, but it has also assisted in controlling persistent hiccups.

Although there's no certain way to stop hiccups, if you have a bout of hiccups that lasts longer than a few minutes, the following home remedies may deliver relief, although they are unproven:

- Breathe into a paper bag
- Gargle with ice water / quickly drink a glass of cold water
- Hold your breath and counting slowly to 10
- Eating a teaspoon of sugar or honey.

Caring For Planet Earth: Local Stories Of Inspiration And Hope

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program, in collaboration with the Thomas Crane Library and Quincy Climate Action Network, will present "Caring for Planet Earth: Local Stories of Inspiration and Hope" Tuesday, April 18 from 6:30 to 8:45 p.m. at the library's Community Room, 40 Washington St.

The public is welcome to attend this free fun environmental event to celebrate Earth Day (month.)

On the agenda:

- Local environmental groups and City Departments will display their activities from 6:30 to 7 p.m.
- Free tickets for door prizes will be given to everyone who arrives before 7 p.m.
- At 7 p.m. several elected officials and local environmental groups will speak briefly about their inspiring accomplishments.
- A drawing for the winners of the door prizes including a rain barrel, an energy efficiency kit, t-shirts, a ride in a hybrid electric vehicle to view a home charging station, a personal guided tour of the Quincy coast with a naturalist, and much more will be held at 7:30 p.m.
- The evening will conclude with the showing of Ocean Frontiers III, a just released hour-long film about various groups working together to plan for potentially conflicting uses of the North Atlantic ocean, from Virginia to Canada.

In addition to parking in the Library lot, participants may also park at Coddington Hall, 34 Coddington St. across from the library that evening.

Friends Of Wollaston Beach Online Survey

The Friends of Wollaston Beach announce an online survey to help the organization better serve the community.

The Friends invite residents to complete the survey this month about what they like and what needs improvement. Those responding to the survey will be entered to win a free Friends of Wollaston Beach t-shirt.

To take the survey, visit: https.://www.surveymonkey.com/r/wollybeach

The input from residents will help FWP plan programs/priorities and better serve the community. The Friends also invite the public to stop by the Quincy Environmental Treasures event at the Thomas Crane Public Library Tuesday, April 18 for an opportunity to win a FWB membership and other beach-related items.

The Friends of Wollaston Beach is an organization promoting public use of Wollaston Beach, preserving and protecting the fragile ecosystems, and addressing quality of life issues relating to the beach.

Paragon Park History Topic

Christopher Haraden of Hanover grew up in the shadow of the giant 100-foot tall roller coaster, a dominant feature of Paragon Park in Hull.

Now Haraden is collecting photos and memories of "The Playground of New England" from patrons and workers alike for a coffee table book on the amusement park.

For many who grew up on the South Shore and beyond, no summer was complete without a trip to Paragon Park and rides like the "Congo Cruise," the "Kooky Castle," and "The Whip." It was where parents took their children, teens took their dates, and where many who grew up in Hull got their first job.

Join Chris Haraden for a trip down memory lane of Paragon Park on Sunday, April 30th at 1 p.m. at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy. There is no cost for this event however registration is required.

To register call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Social Security Matters

WEP - Substantial Earnings Test

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I turn 62 this June. I collect a State Teachers Retirement and have been told I face a windfall reduction in my SS benefits if I have less than 30 service years in SS. Social Security claims that the years listed below do not qualify as years worked because the income is too low. Having researched SS regulations it stated that prior to 1978, quarters were earned if you made $50 in a quarter. If this is correct can you tell me why these years listed below would not count? SS claims I am three years short of 30 because of these years: 1971 (earned $636); 1972 (earned $799); 1973 (earned $2175). Thank you for your help. Signed: Retired Teacher

Dear Retired: What you're referring to is Social Security's Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP) which applies when a person has a pension from an employer who did not withhold Social Security payroll tax, as well as income from an employer who did withhold Social Security payroll tax. In this case the question isn't really whether your income was enough to earn a "quarter credit" toward the required 40 credits to be eligible for Social Security benefits, but rather whether your income for those years met what Social Security calls their "substantial earnings" test. In order to qualify as substantial earnings in the formula for computing the Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP) your Social Security earnings each year must meet or exceed a substantial earnings test. Social Security's substantial earnings minimums for the years you wrote about were:

1971 - $1,950;
1972 - $2,250;
1973 - $2,700.

So as you can see, you did not meet or exceed their Substantial Earnings requirement for the years 1971 through 1973 because you only earned $675, $799 and $2175 respectively in those years. Those three years are what made the difference between having your Social Security benefit reduced because you have only 27 years of "substantial Social Security earnings", and being exempt from WEP because you have 30 or more years of Social Security income. What this means in terms of your benefit computation is that instead of applying a 90% factor to the first $885 ("first bend point") of your average indexed monthly earnings amount, they will instead apply a 75% factor. In terms of 2017 dollars, that means that instead of that first "bend point" contributing $796.50 to your Social Security benefit amount, it would contribute $663.75 or $132.50 less. But since for anyone first eligible for Social Security in 2017 the maximum WEP reduction for 27 years of substantial earnings is $128.40, that is the amount your Social Security benefit would be reduced as a result of the Windfall Elimination Provision.

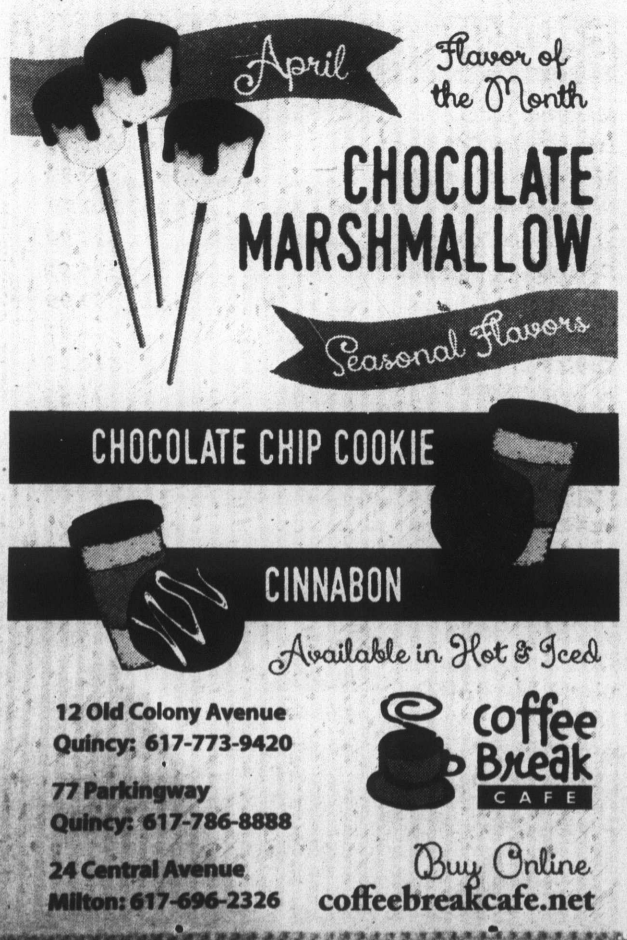
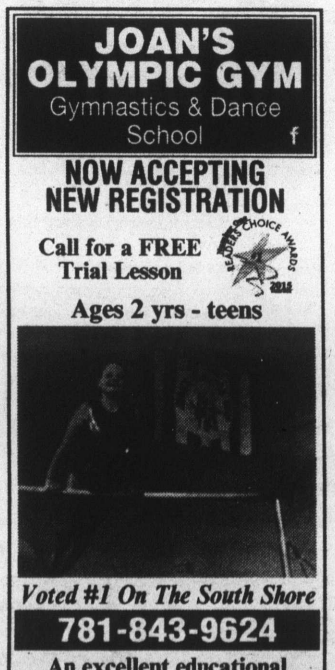
Applications must be completed and returned to the Squantum School on or before Friday, April 28th. Scholarship winners will be chosen by lottery drawing under the direction of the Squantum School PTO.





Fugitive Charged With Defrauding Investors Arrested In FL

By SCOTT JACKSON

A man accused of a fraudulent $1.5 million real estate investment scheme in Quincy and who had been a fugitive for 20 years in connection with an unrelated New York grand theft and larceny indictment was arrested in Delray Beach, Fla., on federal charges in connection with the Quincy scheme.

Scott J. Wolas, 67, who, according to court documents, also used the names Eugene J. Grathwohl, Allen L. Hengst, Drew Prescott, Frank Amolsch, Endicott Asquith, and Cameron Sturge, was charged by criminal complaint with wire fraud and aggravated identity theft in connection with the proposed development of the former Beachcomber Bar property and the adjoining lot in Quincy. He was arrested April 7.

Wolas appeared in the U.S. District Court in the Southern District of Florida in West Palm Beach that morning for his initial appearance. He is expected to return to Massachusetts at a later date to appear in federal court in Boston.

According to court documents, from at least 2009 through 2016, Wolas, using the name Eugene Grathwohl, operated a real estate business known as Increasing Fortune, Inc. and worked as a licensed real estate agent for Century 21 in Quincy. From 2014 through 2016, he solicited investments for the development of the Beachcomber Bar property located at 797 Quincy Shore Drive and for the construction of a single-family home on the adjacent property. He collected more than $1.5 million from at least 19 investors and promised each of them a significant return on their investments. He allegedly promised to pay out at least 125 percent of the profits related to the single-family home construction.

Wolas was scheduled to close on the Beachcomber property on Sept. 15, 2016. A week before, however, he left Quincy and ceased all contact with his then-girlfriend, his co-workers, and his investors. Law enforcement then discovered that Grathwohl was actually Wolas, a former lawyer who had been a fugitive since 1997 after being charged with fraud and grand larceny in New York. The real Eugene Grathwohl resides in Florida and is a friend of Wolas' ex-wife.

The court documents also indicate that the bank account into which Wolas deposited investor funds has been drained, and that Wolas used the money mostly for his personal expenses unrelated to development of the real estate projects.

The charge of wire fraud provides for a sentence of no greater than 20 years in prison, three years of supervised release and a fine of up to $250,000 or twice the gross gain or loss. Aggravated identity theft carries a minimum term of two years' imprisonment, which must be served consecutively to any term for the wire fraud, one year of supervised release and a fine of up to $250,000. Actual sentences for federal crimes are typically less than the maximum penalties. Sentences are imposed by a federal district court judge based upon the U.S. sentencing guidelines and other statutory factors.

Acting United States Attorney William D. Weinreb; Harold H. Shaw, special agent in charge of the FBI's Boston Field Division; and Joel P. Garland, special agent in charge of the IRS Criminal Investigation in Boston, announced the arrest April 7. Assistant U.S. Attorney Sandra S. Bower of Weinreb's Economic Crimes Unit is prosecuting the case.

Police Cracking Down On Distracted Drivers

The Quincy Police Department is conducting a series of patrols designed to reduce the number of crashes, fatalities, and injuries caused by distracted driving.

The effort is part of a statewide enforcement and education campaign by the Highway Safety Division (HSD) of the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security (EOPSS) to address a historic rise in fatal crashes fueled by driver distraction. The campaign is designed to raise awareness of the importance of attentive and engaged driving and will focus on the dangers distracted driving poses to everyone on the road including bicyclists and pedestrians.

Massachusetts law prohibits adult drivers from writing, sending, or reading electronic messages, interacting with apps or browsing the Internet while driving even if stopped at a light. Teen drivers under 18 are prohibited entirely from using mobile phones and other electronic devices while driving. Fines go as high as $500. Teen drivers can also lose their license for up to one year.

"Our goal is keeping all road users in our community safe. If you text, dial, or read a message on your phone while driving, you are endangering the lives of those around you, and you will be stopped," said Quincy Police Captain John Dougan. "Using our community's crash data, our officers will determine where the majority of crashes occur and focus their patrols in those areas."

Preliminary Massachusetts data shows a 13 percent increase in motor vehicle fatalities from 2015 to 2016 – more than double the national average according to the Fatality Analysis Reporting System (FARS).

Nationally in 2015, fatalities from crashes involving a distracted driver increased by 9 percent according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA).

In Massachusetts, distracted driving fatalities are highest among adults ages 18-34 and 75+ (FARS).

Pedestrian fatalities in Massachusetts increased by 26 percent in 2015 according to the Governors Highway Safety Association (GHSA).

Nationally, 1 out of 10 drivers between the ages of 15 and 19 years old involved in fatal crashes was distracted (NHTSA).

Ninety-four percent of all crashes are caused by driver error (NHTSA).

The Quincy Police Department offers these tips for motorists:

- Turn your phone off and put it where you can't reach it before driving;
- Let your friends and family know that you'll be driving and can't take their call/text;
- Pull over to a safe place if you have to make a call or send a text;
- Start GPS navigation or review maps before you start driving;
- Watch for pedestrians and bicyclists – especially at night; and
- Remember to buckle up. Seat belts are your best defense against a distracted driver.

MBTA Unveils Quincy Center Garage Demo Plan

ance which now it is not," said McCormack.

The improvements include a new, handicapped accessible walkway at the Burgin Parkway side leading to the commuter rail platform and a new elevator. A control room for the new elevator will be built at the back of the Red Line level.

McCormack said buses coming into the Burgin Parkway side will load and unload passengers in a new covered entrance.

"You won't be in the weather," he said.

Before demolition begins, a work zone will be created around the perimeter of the station necessitating some temporary shifting of the busway and parking.

On the Hancock Street side, the busway will be bumped out, taking over the existing taxi stand. A section of the parking lot will be converted for the new taxi stand.

"We will be shifting these over on a temporary basis," McCormack said.

The Burgin Parkway side work zone will be extended out to the sidewalk and the bus turn-in. All bus drop-offs will be directed to the Hancock Street entrance. The existing crosswalk will be shifted more toward Granite Street and the new handicapped accessible walkway will be built.

McCormack said there will be police details to help direct traffic.

On the inside, fire-resistant nylon netting will be placed under the ceiling to catch any falling debris during demolition work. A shielding enclosure will be installed around the garage.

"The shielding system is to protect the public, the trains and the employees and also keep access to important parts of the station surrounding the building," McCormack said.

Once the work zone and shielding have been set up, demolition and other work will begin.

McCormack said it would be up to the contractor how the demolition would be done, but he envisioned long-boom excavators with pulverisers that will chew the concrete. Also, small, robotic excavator machines would likely be used to access tight areas. He said there would be no wrecking ball or explosives used.

He also noted there would be no demolition overnight.

All debris will be collected and carted off site, McCormack explained, adding that this procedure would be done frequently.

After the demolition is completed, the second level will remain and be part of the T's Quincy Center Station Air Rights Redevelopment Project.

McCormack said the city has the final say of what type of development would go there, but some conceptual plans he has seen show a garage above retail, residential and office space.

Several residents at the meeting were critical of the plan to demolish the Quincy Center garage in conjunction with the Wollaston T station being shut down for a two-year renovation project.

"(The Quincy Center garage) has been sitting there as an eyesore forever and now you pick the same time as Wollaston…that makes no sense," said Peg Mansfield.

She and other residents also questioned the redevelopment plans, saying that more parking is needed.

"We don't need more retail, we need some place to park," said one man.

Colon said there are no definitive redevelopment plans at this time.

"There will be a collaborative effort between MassDOT and the city at some point to work and secure development," he said.

Some Quincy officials at the meeting assured the residents that they will keep the MBTA accountable for the project.

Sen. John Keenan explained the project is part of the MBTA's plan to upgrade the Red Line from Braintree to North Quincy that includes station improvements, new Red Line cars and track signals that will accommodate an additional 1,000 passengers a day.

"We are committed to making sure the T does what they have to do," he said. "It's quite an undertaking. The end product is we will have essentially a brand new Red Line from the Neponset Bridge all the way down to Braintree. The challenge is coordinating the work for us to get to that. We are committed to making sure mitigation is in place, that it is sufficient and that if it is not working, we have the ability to immediately respond to make changes."

Keenan noted legislation is in place that gives the city control over the Quincy Center Station redevelopment.

"We made sure that the city has a say in any development that occurs there," he said.

Keenan also said that he has been in contact with T officials about possibly adding more buses or additional trains from Braintree to North Quincy during the Wollaston and Quincy Center T projects.

Rep. Bruce Ayers said that the neighbors' input is being made into provisions of the project and that officials will work to "make sure those provisions are kept."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said that alternative transportation, such as ferry service, is a must to relieve the growing traffic issues facing Quincy and the South Shore.

"Alternative transportation needs to be further explored," she said.

Concerns Raised Over Wollaston T Station Closing

disembark there.

"We will still have service from Braintree all the way into Boston," he said.

For Wollaston T customers, Cheever said that dedicated shuttle buses will be used to take riders between the Wollaston and North Quincy stations. He said the buses would be timed in accordance of the train schedule.

"We will match the current headways," he said. "It will be a robust bus system to maintain that headway. The shuttle from Wollaston to North Quincy will run with the Red Line regular service hours."

Shuttle buses will also be employed on some weekend nights when construction on the tracks necessitates shutting down the train service.

According to Cheever, there will be two accessible bus stops – one on Woodbine Avenue and the other on Newport Avenue. The bus stops will have shelters and will be lit.

Since Wollaston passengers will be going to the North Quincy station, Cheever said plans are in the works to accommodate the additional riders. Since many Wollaston T users likely will drive directly to North Quincy, he said additional parking options are being looked at including both on and off site.

Rep. Bruce Ayers voiced concern that riders will be parking in neighborhoods around the T stations, clogging streets.

"We will work with the Quincy police department to assist the transit police to help enforce the parking in the neighborhoods," said Cheever.

Ayers said the addition traffic at the North Quincy station would likely have "a domino effect" at Neponset Circle and that police details would be needed there to keep traffic flowing. He suggested to T officials that they consider adding ferry service at Squantum Point to help siphon off some of the impact at the North Quincy station.

A few residents questioned whether the North Quincy station would be able to handle the extra capacity of riders and buses that will be going there. Cheever said that "there are concerns" about that, but plans are in place to handle it.

"We are on top of it and we will make sure it works," he said.

Relating her experience waiting for a shuttle bus on a winter day, another resident did not favor the shuttles, saying they are not reliable.

"I was standing in line for an hour-and-a-half in the cold waiting," she said. "It was completely inexcusable."

She and another resident asked if express trains could be employed.

Cheever said because the Red Line lacks a third track, the express train wouldn't be feasible.

"With the infrastructure we have, running an express train on our T would exacerbate problems," he said.

Another resident sked if an express bus could be used to bring passengers directly into Boston. Cheever said it could be an option.

The Wollaston project is beginning at the same time the Quincy Center T garage will be partially demolished. Three of the five top floors are being removed and the remaining second level will be redeveloped. The Quincy Center T Station will remain fully functional during that project.

The Quincy Adams and Braintree T station garages will also be renovated. These projects will start in September.

The Wollaston station project is part of the T's $911 million plan to upgrade the Red Line. Upgrades include making the system completely accessible for the physically challenge. The Wollaston station is now the only T station not fully accessible.

The upgrade plan for Wollaston calls for the installation of three new elevators, two escalators, a bridge over the tracks, structural repairs, replacing the entire platform and a placing a new canopy over the platform.

Cheever said that the station has experienced some flooding and that this will be corrected by upgrading the drainage system. Additionally, there will be other utility upgrades..

The Newport Avenue parking lot will be redone and accessible to new station. The existing lobby will be expanded. The new bridge will provide an option to go upstairs and cross over the tracks and back down another set of stairs to the north side of the platform, providing second set of egress as required by American Disabilities Act.

"If elevator goes out, the stairs and bridge provides another option to access the platform," Cheever said.

The lobby will be at same elevation as parking lot. There will be all go down covered ramp leading to lower section.

"All accessibility components to get you to the platform are now inside under cover," said Cheever.

RECESSION WORRIES

Receding gums, known as "gingival recession," is a common condition that occurs when the gum tissue that normally surrounds the tooth pulls back and exposes the tooth root. If the recession goes untreated and becomes severe, there is increased risk that the exposed tooth root will become decayed and/or infected. If gum recession is caused by physical wear of the gums by vigorous brushing or the use of a toothbrush with hard bristles, the dentist will recommend a softer brush and better brushing technique. If gum disease is at the root of the problem, the dentist will work to remove built-up plaque and tartar accumulations. Tooth-colored composite resins may also be recommended to cover exposed root surfaces.

Taking care of your teeth and gums is vital to maintaining a beautiful smile and staying healthy for life. If you are only mildly affected by receding gums, that's good! If you catch it early, you may not require professional treatment to fix it. Your dentist will help you identify the cause and will instruct you in how to address it. You may have to re-evaluate your flossing habits, get a mouth guard and buy a different toothbrush. To schedule an appointment, please call our office. We treat children of all ages. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Age is a leading risk factor for gum recession, with 88 percent of people over the age of 65 having receding gums in at least one tooth.

Lydon Retiring As QHA Director

By SCOTT JACKSON

James Lydon plans to step away from the Quincy Housing Authority next month after spending the last four years overseeing the agency.

Lydon, 67, plans to retire as executive director on May 26. He joined the Quincy Housing Authority as executive director in May 2013 on a one-year contract and signed a three-year contract, set to expire this June, the following year.

"My contract is up in the beginning of June and it became a question of do I really want to pursue another contract," Lydon said in a recent interview.

"Given my age – I'll be 68 in November – given the fact that I just went through treatment for throat cancer, and I've got 20 years into the public pension system with my three highest years' rates of pay being at the Quincy Housing Authority, it just seems as though it's time for me to bag it.

"We have an opportunity to sell our house in South Boston for a lot of money. We're thinking about downsizing to a condominium and we're talking Florida in wintertime and our Cape house in Falmouth in the summertime."

Lydon said he underwent seven weeks of treatment for throat cancer, including 35 radiation therapy treatments and seven treatments of chemotherapy. He continued working throughout that period, taking Wednesdays off for chemotherapy.

"My oncologist said she'd never seen anybody go through the treatment as well as I went through it," Lydon said. "I actually gained weight as I was going through it."

Lydon said his oncologist told him he is now 100 percent and that his throat appears as if he never had cancer. The experience gave him a new outlook on life.

"It gives you a little different perspective – you're not made of iron, you're not going to last forever and you might as well smell the roses for a little bit if you can," Lydon said.

Long before Lydon served as the executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, he worked for the Quincy Planning Department. He was there from June 1976 to December 1985, and succeeded Walter Hannon as the head of the department in April 1979. The six years Lydon served as planning director were a time of tremendous change in Quincy.

"I served in the capacity during one of Quincy's really large growth periods," he said. "I was there for the start of Marina Bay, the start of Crown Colony, the Burgin Parkway extension in from the Southeast Expressway, the extension of the Red Line, the NFPA building over on Blueberry Hill, the Stop & Shop building across the street here (from The Sun's headquarters) and I was here for Presidents Place.

JAMES LYDON

"I was here for a lot of stuff."

When he returned to Quincy in 2013 to oversee the housing authority – which operates independent of the city and is funded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) – Lydon said he was surprised to find that officials were looking into a maintenance deficiencies in state-funded housing units in Germantown.

"It was one of the toughest jobs I've had in my life," Lydon said of his time as QHA director. "I thought I was taking over a well-oiled machine. I was told by the board that the organization ran well. I arrived on the scene and I found, quite to the contrary, the place was in horrendous condition.

"The state was all over us."

The situation started in Germantown's family-housing units. Lydon said 20 toilets in those units had not had their wax seals replaced, which caused wastewater to seep into the floors.

"Because the wax seal hadn't been replaced, the toilets were all leaking and they were leaking onto floor joists and one unit I went into it was actually leaking onto the stove of the people down below them – they had sewage pouring all over their stove," Lydon said.

"It was absolutely unbelievable. We didn't have a smoke detector or carbon monoxide detector in the place."

"The work order system – there was no system for work orders," Lydon continued. "What would happen is they would get a call and the particular laborer or plumber was able to go into a pile of documents and select what work they wanted to do. There was no assignment. If you're a plumber, you'd clearly rather be working on a sink than a toilet, so the toilets never got fixed."

The agency also encountered problems with bed bugs, particularly at O'Brien Towers in Germantown.

"They had band-aided it for years and years and years. The bed bugs just got so entrenched in the building, it cost us a fortune to get rid of them – a fortune," Lydon said.

Lydon said the Quincy Housing Authority spent more than $1 million in his four years.

"Everything is back to normal, but unfortunately we had to spend an awful lot of money to get us there so our reserves are low," he said.

Lydon said he is proud of changes he made to the organization, including bringing in Grace McAuliffe as finance director and James Marathas, a former state housing official, to serve in the new position of director of facilities, which oversees maintenance, modernization and inspections.

"I got rid of my assistant director, I got rid of my finance director and I got rid of my director of maintenance," Lydon explained.

"I replaced them with a director of finance, Grace McAuliffe, who is a very, very talented lady and I hired the fellow that actually headed up the state inspection team that came out and inspected the DHCD units, James Marathas. He's now my director of facilities and he's an absolute crackerjack."

Lydon said he would not be involved in the search for his successor, but said both McAuliffe and Marathas would be well qualified for the post, which has a salary of about $140,000.

"I think Grace and James are certainly candidates for it," Lydon responded when asked if anyone inside the agency could be a candidate for his job.

"I think either one of them would be crazy if they didn't throw their hat in the ring."

One thing Lydon said he is disappointed in is that he didn't get to see fulfilled the plan to plant 3,000 trees in Germantown to improve the quality of life in the area.

"I was kind of hoping to get more plantings done, because I think that's really what Germantown is lacking," he stated. I know we have a state program that is coming along that is going to plant almost 3,000 trees down in Germantown.

"I would have liked to have been there for that, but I thought was going to take this spring; it's going to take place this summer and fall. I was there for the first 100 trees that the mayor gave us. We're trying to make the place look better."

Lydon remembered touring Germantown in 2013 when he interviewed for his job and was impressed by work done to improve the exterior of the housing units in the neighborhood, but felt landscape and streetscape improvements were needed.

"I was very impressed by the quality of the structures down there, but the place looked like the face of the moon," he said. "There was no streetscape improvements down there, no landscape improvements.

"I brought the Urban Land Institute in to do a one-day charette and one of the things they said was 'trees, trees, trees – just get the place looking better.'"

The Quincy Housing Authority oversees 1,600 units of housing for families, the elderly and disabled – about 3,000 individuals live in those units. The agency also manages 1,000 Section 8 certificates.

The waitlist to get into the family housing is about 10 years long, Lydon said, and is now closed. The waitlist for elderly and disabled housing is two or three years long, and remains open. Lydon said he was always frustrated more housing units weren't available and by a lack of funding from the state and federal governments.

"My two biggest frustrations are: I don't have enough housing to help everybody that really needs it, and they don't give me enough money to keep it at 100 percent," he said.

72nd Annual Caddy Day Memorial Ceremony April 30

Caddy Detachment Commandant Dan Dewey invites the public to attend the 72nd anniversary Caddy Day Memorial Ceremony Sunday, April 30th at noon at Caddy Memorial Park on Quincy Shore Drive at Wollaston Beach.

The purpose of this annual memorial ceremony is to honor the fighting men of Quincy who fought in one of the U. S. Marine Corps' most epic battles, Iwo Jima, during World War II. Tragically, four Quincy Marines were killed-in-action in what was the war's most costly battle for the Marine Corps. One of those Marines, PFC William R. Caddy, made the ultimate sacrifice for his comrades and was presented the Medal of Honor (posthumously) for his unselfish actions.

A collation at the William R. Caddy Detachment #124 will be held immediately following the memorial ceremony. The Caddy Detachment is located at 111 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

For more information, contact Detachment Adjutant, Marc Connolly at 617-842-0942 or the Detachment Quarters at 617-479-3505.

Momo Café Opening In Wollaston

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new bakery offering popular items from Japan and local favorites like coffee and donuts is set to open this spring on Hancock Street in Wollaston.

The Board of License on April 4 granted a common victualler license to Momo Café, which will open at 649 Hancock St. Zhijun Zhang, the manager, said the bakery would offer donuts, cakes and other desserts, coffee and other beverages, as well as popular Japanese items.

The site on Hancock Street was formerly home to a dog groomer, and was once Keene's Pharmacy. The retail space will undergo a complete build out – permits have been filed with the Health, Fire and Inspectional Services Departments.

Zhang plans to open the bakery in late May. Momo Café will be open 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. No seating will be offered inside the café, as it will be take-out only.

In other business April 4, the licensing board:

• Granted an extension of premise to Sully's, 28 Chestnut St., for its 83rd anniversary on June 10 from noon to midnight. The Quincy Center bar will have tables and chairs out front that day, with live music inside.

• Granted a permit to the Chris Smeglin Memorial Fund, which host the ninth annual Smeg's Legs Run on Oct. 10 from 9 a.m. to noon. The event – featuring a five-mile run and two-mile walk – starts and ends at the Broad Meadows Middle School.

• Granted a permit to the Montclair Elementary School for its 83rd annual May Festival on May 20 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The event will include a DJ, bouncy house, and food items like hot dogs. The Fire Department has in the past provided a truck for 'touch-a-truck.'

• Granted a permit to the Boston Chinatown Neighborhood Center for its Savor the Flavor fundraiser, set to take place from 1 to 3 p.m. on June 3 at Eastern Nazarene College. Some 200 people are expected to attend the fundraiser, which features food tasting with vendors from Quincy and Boston. No food will be available for sale that day.

Koch Could Divide Up $27M Park Request

open space or sea wall projects among other items, and 15 percent goes to tourism.

The request for the park bond is now under consideration by the council's finance committee. At Monday's committee meeting, several councillors expressed concern about having to take a single vote on the entire package and said they would prefer being able to consider each item individually.

"I think it should be broken out; it should be itemized," Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said. "I won't vote yea or nay on one appropriation for this amount…I'm not going to give a thumbs up or thumbs down to $27 million."

Palmucci added that some of the items in the package could be fast tracked while others would require further deliberations as the council considers other requests. Koch on April 3 also submitted a $25 million capital improvement bond, which would be paid for from the city's general fund revenue.

Palmucci was not alone in requesting the $27 million bond be changed to allow councillors a chance to vote on different items in the proposal. Finance committee chairman Brad Croall, Ian Cain, Noel DiBona, Joseph Finn and Nina Liang all echoed the same sentiment.

Cain said he preferred the approach taken last year, when the mayor submitted a $19.33 million capital bond request with each project separated out; not all of those were ultimately approved by the council.

"If this were in individual orders, if this were a little bit easier to digest, then I would probably be able to make a decision," Cain said. "A $27 million omnibus is very difficult."

DiBona said breaking up the request would help determine which projects would become a priority.

"I'd like to do them all, but is it a need or is it a want, and that's what we have to dissect here," he said.

More than half of the $27 million request would go towards the second phase of work on the Hancock-Adams Green between City Hall and the United First Parish Church.

The first phase, which started last year and will be completed this spring once the Walk of Names is finished, took place outside City Hall. The third and final phase, which has no timeline yet, would take place near the MBTA station and won't be designed until plans for the new station on site come into focus.

The second phase includes the promenade that will run along the section of Hancock Street that closed to vehicular traffic last June. That section of the park, which was temporarily landscaped last year, would include two new water features and trees. The area would also include new statues of John Adams and John Hancock, which have already been paid for using $500,000 from a $4.2 million state grant that financed construction of the first phase of the park.

Joseph Shea, a senior vice president with engineering firm Woodard & Curran, the project manager for the Hancock-Adams Green, said work on phase two would begin this spring after the council approves funding. The city hopes to finish the project by June 1, 2018, with a formal dedication on June 14, 2018 – Flag Day.

The city has already gone out to bid on the project – to avoid cost overruns like those associated with Creedon Field in North Quincy – and has selected WES Construction of Halifax to build the promenade. The $15.7 million includes $12.8 million for construction, $2.4 million for engineering and oversight, and $500,000 for contingencies.

The city had originally planned to use funds from the state's Infrastructure Investment Incentive (I-Cubed) program to pay for construction of Hancock-Adams Green. Quincy has been approved for up to $40 million from the program, under which the state would issues bonds for the construction that would be paid off using new state tax revenue generated by development in Quincy Center. That $40 million would have been used to pay for the new park and a bridge at Cliveden Street.

Walker, Koch's spokesman, said Monday the city is still approved for $40 million in I-Cubed funds, but the money won't be released until commercial development begins in the downtown. In the interim, the city will use hotel tax money for this phase of the Hancock-Adams Green and will seek transportation funds for the Cliveden Street bridge.

The city has designated FoxRock Properties the developer for a commercial project near the Parkingway and that project would enable the city to get the I-Cubed funds, which could be used for various improvements in Quincy Center, Walker said, including parking garages or other infrastructure.

Palmucci said he liked the plan for the promenade, but was concerned the city would be paying $2 million for the water features and $175,000 for interpretive elements that will encircle the new statues of Adams and Hancock.

Palmucci said some of those costs should be borne by developers in Quincy Center. The revitalization plan for the area requires developers to pay 1 percent of hard construction costs into a fund for public art, and Palmucci said none have done so to date.

"This could be spent on parks in each of the neighborhoods," he said. "Developers could be paying for that and it doesn't look like they are."

Koch's plans for Merrymount Park include a series of trails, boardwalks and pedestrian bridges connecting to places like Pine Island, Quincy Shore Drive, and Beechwood Knoll, said John Copley of the Copley Wolff Design Group. The project would also improve the view corridor from Hancock Street and features work on ball fields and sports courts in the park.

The $2.4 million sought for the project in the current request would pay for the design and permitting of the project. Extensive permitting is required because of the park's proximity to several waterways. The Merrymount Park work has an estimated $15 to $17 million price tag, and could be completed in 2021, according to projections in the capital plan.

Cain said the new trails and bridges would be beneficial to Quincy residents, but said the city should look to partner with the community to help raise funds for the project.

"I know that there are probably people who live around this perimeter who would very much care to see these improvements take place that you could actively engaged to get them to raise some money," he said.

Walker said the city would consider entering into such partnerships and using state grants or Quincy's community preservation funds to pay for the park improvements. But, he said, the city needs to complete the design and permitting before looking for outside funding.

Koch is hoping to construct a dog park on Quarry Street in a 22-acre parcel of land owned by the city next to Avalon Quincy. The $500,000 sought in the park bond would pay for a new roadway to the dog park and leveling the site for the new park. A $250,000 grant the city has received would pay for the park itself, which could be completed by 2019.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said she has heard from residents over the years that have asked why they need to drive outside Quincy to legally walk their dogs off leash.

"I'm thrilled to see this going forward," she said. "I think this is something the citizens have been looking for it takes pressure off parks in the neighborhood and I appreciate this being included in the hotel/motel tax so it's not coming out of the general fund."

Koch also plans to place a new animal shelter – which would also house the city animal control officer and the Quincy Police Department's K-9 unit – on the same site. The capital bond he submitted last week includes $7.1 million for that project, which could be completed in 2019 or the following year. Walker said the city could place the dog park on site without the new animal shelter there, but would not likely put the animal shelter there if the dog park weren't built.

Also highlighted Monday night was a proposal for $800,000 worth of upgrades at Faxon Park, which Park Director Paul Franz said would pay for a new, lit men's softball field and improvements to the park's trails.

Franz also discussed plans for Mound Street, where construction magnate Jay Cashman will pay for a new boathouse – to be used by a new crew program in the Quincy Public Schools as well as Thayer Academy – and related improvements. Koch's park bond includes $100,000 to permit and design the project, one of 20 items included under a $3.2 million item for miscellaneous park improvements.

Several items in the plan – including $2.75 million to acquire four parcels of land near the Houghs Neck Maritime Center – were not discussed Monday. Those will be discussed at a future committee meeting.

Residents were given the chance to speak at Monday's meeting, and more than a dozen did so with most expressing support for some or all of the items in the bond request.

Seven of those who spoke said they supported plans for the dog park on Quarry Street.

"A dog park is more than just room to roam," said Lynda Southerland. "It allows dogs to exercise socially safely and promotes responsible dog ownership."

Kevin Esdale, a member of the Park and Recreation Board and the president of Quincy Youth Soccer, was among several speakers who supported improvements to the city's parks and fields.

"I see on a week-to-week and night-to-night basis what open space and green space means to the city of Quincy and its residents," he said. "Most people think of parks as places to play a game or throw a ball around or kick a ball, but the reality is these are meeting places for our community."

Three Quincy Point residents expressed disappointment that funding for an inclusive playground at Fore River Field was not included in the bond. Koch's request includes $300,000 for Fore River Field, which would fund parking, paving, fencing and pickleball improvements.

"Quincy's first inclusive playground at Fore River Field has not been slated for funding," said Nancy Delisle, president of the Ward 2 Civic Association. "As an association we are extremely disappointed to see that this project is not included as part of the current bond bill."

Walker said the city is asking the Community Preservation Committee for $250,000 to pay for the inclusive playground.

"It's going to get done," he stated. "It may take a little bit longer than everyone hoped, but there is just no way that that project is not going to get done with that playground and with all the other amenities that are included in that facility."

Croall, the Ward 2 councillor, said he and his constituents had been told funding would be included in the bond request and were surprised to learn at a civic association meeting that would no longer be the case.

"I just don't think that's the right way to go about doing business," he said.

Council Approves $266,000 In Raises

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council unanimously approved $266,000 worth of raises for Quincy Public Employees Association workers and non-union administrative personnel.

The council approved the raises during its meeting April 3. The money for the raises comes from a reserve from appropriation line item in the budget for the current fiscal year, FY17; money was set aside in the budget with union contracts up for renegotiation.

The QPEA workers received a 1 percent raise for FY16 and a 2 percent raise in FY17 under their new pact with the city. Other unions have received the same raises.

Ten non-union administrative personnel will also receive the same raises as the QPEA employees as a result of the April 3 vote.

Auditor Susan O'Connor said the reserve for appropriation account has $454,000 remaining in it following the April 3 vote. Only two or three unions have yet to finalize deals with the city, she said.

Color Selections, Paint Swatches

BARBARA GRACEFFA

I could use your help with color selection. I want to refresh my bedroom with a new wall color and bed linens but I do not know where to start. Marlene

Ah, spring is here! Some want to spruce up the outdoors while others are recovering from cabin fever and decide to redecorate inside.

Since you can choose from 16 million defined paint colors (oops, I did not mean to intimidate you!), I would start with purchasing a colorful bedspread first. Although you can then choose the dominant color in the bedspread as your wall color, your room will have that "designer touch" if you choose the second or third dominant color in the linens.

If you prefer to choose the paint color first, House Beautiful poses these questions to help you define your color personality.What color was your favorite crayon as a child? What color was your prom gown? What color do you wear the most? What color gets you the most compliments? What color is your car? What color is your favorite flower or gemstone? What color calms you? And here is my favorite: What color make you the happiest?

When I choose a paint swatch at the store, it looks different at my home. What's up with that? Michelle

A few things can account for the disparity. First, you are most likely looking at the swatch under fluorescent lights at the store. For more true color, take the swatches toward the door or windows to view them in the natural light. Second, stay in that location and hold the swatch vertically if you are painting a vertical surface like walls, doors, trim, or kitchen cabinets. You may only notice a slight difference in the hue, but this tip too will give you a truer color.

Registry of Deeds Computer Seminar May 11

For Professionals, General Public

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds will hold a free informational computer seminar on land records research at the Registry, 649 High St. in Dedham Thursday, May 11 from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The seminar is geared for both real estate professionals and the general public.

Register of Deeds William O'Donnell said the program will include a brief introductory presentation followed by a series of hands-on computer exercises. There will also be opportunities to ask both basic and advanced questions. Computer assisted land records are currently available both at the Registry and on the Internet at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

"These services have proven to be invaluable tools for our customers. We hope that this seminar will be both helpful and informative," O'Donnell said.

There is no charge for the seminar, but anyone planning to attend is asked to register by calling Alicia Gardner at 781-461-6104 or by email to agardner@norfolkdeeds.org. Include your name, address, email and a daytime phone number when you register.

"This seminar is filling up quickly, so I urge residents to sign up as soon as possible," O'Donnell added.

To learn more about this and other Registry of Deeds events and initiatives, "like" us on facebook.com/norfolkdeeds, follow us on twitter and instagram @norfolkdeeds.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is located at 649 High St. in Dedham. It is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County, amassing approximately a half of million land records, dating back to 1793.

The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Residents in need of assistance can contact the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Center via telephone at (781) 461-6101, or email registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, April 2, at approximately midnight, Officers Christopher Fish and Jeff Bossart were dispatched to the area of Glendale Road and Bedford Street for a report of a possible robbery.

Quincy communications updated responding units that the caller observed three or four teens fleeing towards the train station with one of the teens wearing a gray hoodie. Officer Bossart proceeded to the area of the Quincy Center MBTA station while Officer Fish went directly to Glendale Road. Upon arrival, Officer Fish observed several individuals on Glendale Road, with a victim on his knees holding his left hand. The officer exited his cruiser and inspected the victim's hand, which had a small laceration with blood protruding from the wound. Brewster Ambulance was summoned to the area and examined the wound briefly, but the victim declined medical assistance.

Officer Fish attempted to learn from the victim what occurred however there was a moderate language barrier. The victim contacted his wife to come to the scene to translate. The victim was able to gesture and state that a knife had been used to rob him of his bag.

The officer then interviewed other individuals at the scene. The first witness stated she heard some yelling outside of her second floor residence on Glendale Road, so she looked out her window and observed three males shouting and grabbing the victim. She then saw a passing vehicle on Glendale Road come to a stop and the three suspects ran up the nearby stairs in the direction of Dixwell Avenue. She added that one of those males ran back down the stairs towards the victim a short time later and retrieved a cell phone that was on the ground. A second witness, who also lived in the area, said he also heard a commotion and confirmed the first witness's account. Officer Fish broadcasted the limited information to other Police units in the area.

The victim's wife arrived on scene and translated for her husband. The victim stated he was riding the MBTA Red Line from Downtown Crossing in Boston to the Quincy Center stop. He got off the train and started to walk home. As he reached the bottom of the stairs at Glendale Road, he was approached by three male teens. One male, described as wearing a white colored shirt, brandished a knife (described as partial black in color) and yelled, "Give me all your money - Give me your bag." The victim said the other two males, one wearing a red top and the other wearing a black top, grabbed the victim from behind and ripped at his bag and his pockets. The bag was described as a brown/beige bag (similar to a laptop bag) with a strap.

LT. DAN MINTON

The victim, attempting to defend himself, went for the knife being held by one of the males and cut his left hand. The struggle was brief and was interrupted when a vehicle approached the area, causing the three males to run up the stairs. The victim stated that within his bag was approximately $40-$60 in loose US currency in unknown denominations. When asked if he would be able to positively identify the suspects, the victim said he could. The victim added that he first observed the suspects on the Red Line train from Downtown Crossing because they were "singing loudly."

At this time, Officers Ron McKim and Ken Wood (with K-9 partner Major) joined Sergeant David Pacino on scene to assist. Soon after, Officer Bossart observed three males, one with a gray hoodie in the area of the Quincy Center MBTA station. He conducted an inquiry of the individuals and informed other officers of his situation. Sergeant Pacino coordinated the show up ID with Officer Bossart, with the assistance of Officers Dabilis and Fitzgerald at the Quincy MBTA stations. The victim was transported by cruiser to the MBTA station where each suspect was separated from another in a well lit area. The victim positively identified each individual separately with the statement, "That's him - that's him!" He specifically identified the first suspect as the individual holding the knife on him.

Sergeant Pacino contacted BCI regarding blood evidence on Glendale Road while Officer McKim secured the scene, took photographs of the evidence (blood droplets and a back portion of a plastic cell phone case), and awaited the arrival of BCI Detective Karvelis. Officers Bossart, Fitzgerald and Dabilis each handcuffed one of the suspects and transported them to headquarters where they were booked by Sergeant O'Donoghue. During booking inventory, a small amount of marijuana was confiscated from the knife wielding suspect and placed in the drug locker for destruction. This same suspect also had in his possession a cell phone with a missing rear plastic case and a gray hooded sweatshirt with blood evidence on it. Both were confiscated for evidence by Detective Karvelis. A knife recovered from this suspect during a pat frisk by Officer Bossart at the train station was also placed in evidence. Officer Wood and his K-9 partner Major also located a brown/beige type bag in a nearby yard.

The knife wielding suspect, an 18-year-old Weymouth resident, was charged with armed robbery and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon – knife. The other two suspects, a 16-year-old Boston resident and a 14-year-old Weymouth resident, were charged with armed robbery.

The Quincy Police Department will host a "Night of Bowling" fundraiser Saturday, April 22 from 7 to 11 p.m. at Olindy's Bowling Alley, 170 Quincy Ave., Quincy. Proceeds from this event will be donated to the Autism Law Enforcement Coalition, more commonly known as ALEC.

ALEC began in 2003 as a collaborative effort of The Arc of South Norfolk Family Autism Center and the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office. Training is provided to police officers, firefighters, and courtroom personnel, using curriculum and videos specific to each group. Presenters are first responders with direct knowledge of Autism Spectrum Disorders through a family member.

The goal of ALEC training is to complement, but not replace, previous training and to provide additional tools to use in assessing the risk of a situation. To date, ALEC has trained over 36,000 law enforcement and first response agencies, including members of the Quincy Police Department.

"The Y and Kathy Quigley always made sure that my family had enough, and at the end of the year, when we had nothing, the Y provided Christmas." From the beginning, Terrell paid it forward. When the Y asked its employees to donate to its annual fundraising campaign each year, he did, knowing the impact the Y's programs had on kids like himself. "Your donation changes lives," he said. "Together, if we all give, we will continue to change the lives of other kids."

RMV Services Now Available At AAA's Adams St. Office

By TOM GORMAN

AAA (American Automobile Association) members can now renew their driver's licenses and vehicle registrations at the AAA's 650 Adams Street service center through a partnership with Mass. Department Transportation's Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV).

Local and state officials gathered on April 6 in the AAA office for a ribbon-cutting to launch select RMV services there. The Adams Street location is the 23rd AAA Northeast office to offer license and registration renewals in the Bay State.

"This is a wonderful partnership with AAA," said MassDOT Transportation Secretary and CEO Stephanie Pollack. She explained that her agency is carrying out a "war on wait times" at Registry offices and by offering select services at AAA locations will help reduce lines and waiting times at the Registry.

"For over a year, the Registry has made solid gains in reducing wait times and improving the overall customer service experience." Pollack said. "Identifying and building public-private partnerships such as this is the result of our commitment to a continuous process of improvements for our customers."

AAA ASSOCIATE Giovanni Gonsalves assists Edilma Marcs with renewing her license at the AAA Adams Street office that now offers Registry of Motor Vehicles services.

Quincy Sun photos/Tom Gorman

A counter in the AAA office is dedicated to Registry services where customers can renew their driver's license, identification card or vehicle registration. Additionally, customers can also get duplicate licenses, IDs, titles and registrations. The Registry service is available weekdays and also on Saturdays.

AAA Senior Vice President of Public and Government Affairs Lloyd Albert said offering Registry transaction services at his offices started as a pilot program after a discussion a few years ago with then Registrar Rachel Kaprielian. After legislation was approved allowing the public-private venture, the program was launched at two AAA branches.

"It went to six, then to ten," he said.

CUTTING THE RIBBON at AAA Adams Street office's RMV services are AAA Adams Street manager Katie Nolan, Sen. John Keenan, Rep. Bruce Ayers. MassDOT Transportation Secretary Stephanie Pollack, AAA Senior Vice President Lloyd Albert and Mayor Thomas Koch.

Last year it was decided to expand the program to other AAA branches.

"We've gone from 10 to 23 offices," said Albert. "There are a total of 34 AAA offices in the Commonwealth. Our goal by the end of this year is…to have (Registry services) at every AAA office."

Albert added the program has been met with enthusiasm by AAA members and that there are no added fees to members for the Registry services.

"We hope to shorten the lines at the Registry," he said. "It's a win-win for the consumer."

State Sen. John Keenan said having Registry services at such an accessible location as the AAA office is a benefit to the state's drivers and to AAA members.

"This is truly a great program that's in place here," he said.

Keenan noted that he and Rep. Bruce Ayers have been working with MassDOT on a $60 million bond bill to upgrade the Registry's technology infrastructure.

"That will change how the Registry operates," he said. "It will change their core function (and) give them a greater ability to serve the consumer."

Ayers said the venture gives Registry customers a convenient option.

"To be able to have this extra service to provide to our constituents and their busy lifestyles whether they're re-registering their car or whether they're getting their license renewed or taking advantage of the road service. . . is great to see being offered at this branch, even on a Saturday," he said.

QUINCY'S SARAH AINSLEY lines up a pitch for a base hit against Silver Lake on Monday. The Presidents dropped their season opener to the Lakers, 18-0.

QUINCY'S REBECCA BRENNAN heads for second base against Silver Lake.

Quincy Softball Eyes Tourney Berth

By JOE REARDON

Maybe it's best that Quincy played South softball power Silver Lake in the first game of the season. Better to get an 18-0, five-inning loss out of the way in the infant stage of the schedule instead of possibly interrupting a winning streak when the team is peaking around tournament time.

The Presidents' season opener wasn't a pretty one as the high-powered Lakers battered Quincy with 14 hits and put the contest away with 13 runs after two innings Monday at McCoy-Mitchell Field.

Quincy head coach Greg Sommers, now in his sixth season at the helm, knew the Presidents would have a tough time with the Lakers regardless how well his squad played. "They're the best team we face - definitely," said Sommers. "It's tough that was the game to open up with. Hopefully we can rebound and come back tomorrow. They're one of the best teams in the state. They're the team to beat (in the South) and everybody knows that. They've been like that for a while. Even graduating what they did they still have girls who play almost all year round. They have a ton of experience up

Tournament Goal For Quincy Girls Lacrosse

By JOE REARDON

With a city-wide youth league and a freshman squad playing a full schedule, the building blocks are certainly in place to develop a strong girls' lacrosse program at Quincy High.

But the Presidents will inevitably go through their fair share of growing pains, especially in a Patriot League that affords no down time for any squad. Growing pains or not, Quincy will have to take the field ready to play every time out this spring.

Alisa Arakelian's squad struggled against a very good Belmont squad from the Middlesex League in a preseason scrimmage and the Presidents had their hands full once again on Saturday as they fell to the Marauders 17-2 Saturday at breezy Veterans' Memorial Stadium in a nonleague tilt.

Belmont got four tallies apiece from Sophie Pollock and AnneMarie Havelow and had little difficulty putting quality shots on Quincy goalie Julia Silverman.

"I think what it comes down to is that we haven't quite clicked as a defensive unit yet, but we're getting there," said Arakelian, now in her fourth year as head coach. "I'm trying to move things around a bit. There were some good moments and definitely room for improvement. We'll definitely sit down and work on that. We struggle with the little details and I think that ended up hurting us because they became bigger mistakes than they needed to be."

Arakelian, though, has seen constant improvement from the first year and the seniors flourish into leaders on the squad and this season should be a pivotal one with an experienced senior crew that wants to make a mark in its final season on the pitch. "I'm starting to feel things I instilled in the first year," she said. "I've had the seniors for four years so I'm starting to see them help coach the younger players, which is great to see. They know how I work and how I operate. I'm part of the team too and I'm the biggest leader on the team. You really have to stay positive the whole time. This year we're really working on positivitiy."

The Presidents were able to put together some offense and managed a pair of goals in the first half. They weren't able, though, to penetrate Belmont's stingy defense over the final 25 minutes. Quincy was trailing 5-0 before Maeve Hernon found the back of the net, sliding out from behind the twine and rifling a shot past Marauder goaltender Ciara Murphy with 12:44 left in the first half.

The Presidents have an enormous talent in sophomore Maggie Tierney, who has impressed Arakelian so far this spring with her speed and her end-to-end play. "She's one of those players who, end-to-end she's always there," said Arakelian. "She's the work horse on the team."

Belmont went up 8-1 before Megan Bailey drove to the goal with 1:55 remaining in the first to give the Presidents their second tally and cut the lead to 8-2. That was all the offense the Presidents could put together and Belmont exploded for eight more tallies in the second to push Quincy's record to 0-3.

Quincy had its share of chances to cut into the Marauders' lead in the second half. Hernon very nearly had her second goal on a point-blank shot that Murphy was able to get her stick on after robbing Grace Stone on a laser in the final minute before the break.

Arakelian was pleased with the team's play and, despite the lopsided score, called it the best game they've had so far in this young season. The tournament is the squad's ultimate goal and she is confident it can make a strong run at a berth in the postseason. Playing the Hinghams and Duxburys of the world will only make the Presidents tougher in the long run.

"We have a tough season," said Arakelian. "We play some really good teams. It's pretty rugged out there. There's been more established teams (in the Patriot League) than Quincy. Our program is growing and it's great to see we have a freshman team this year. The numbers are growing and the talent is getting there. They youth program is picking up, which is really great to see. I have some newbies and it's really great to see the young and old players come together."

and down the lineup."

The Presidents finished 4-16 last season and Sommers is confident his senior-laden squad can squeeze out six more wins to earn a berth in the postseason. "Absolutely," he said. "The tournament is always the goal. I hope we can do better than last year. We can circle at least ten games on the schedule and say these are the ones we should win. Some of them are going to be hard to win and we want to be ready for them."

It was apparent early that the Presidents were tight with opening-day jitters and it didn't help that the Lakers, who improved to 2-0, were aggressive at the plate out of the blocks.

Quincy's two hits came in the fourth inning when Kate McGahey and Madison Synan laced singles, but were stranded when Silver Lake pitcher Jill Richards retired the next two batters on a fielder's choice and a strikeout. The hard-throwing righty went the distance for the Lakers, finishing with seven strikeouts.

Junior shortstop Rosheline Molina Jr., said after the game that the Presidents have plenty to play for this year after last year's sub .500 campaign. "Our main games are the ones against North Quincy," she said. "We just want to have good games and make plays all season. We're looking forward to winning those ten games (to make the tournament)."

Quincy's starting pitcher Camryn Burgio wasn't hit hard in the first inning, allowing three infield hits, but the Lakers were able to send eight batters to the plate and go up 5-0 before the sophomore hurler struck out Ari Sylvester.

Sommers believes those infield hits will turn into outs as the season progresses. "Everything they hit (in the first inning) was in the infield and that's something we'll correct with experience and repetition," he said.

A pair of errors in the field didn't help the Presidents in the second inning as the Lakers continued the scoring spree with eight runs to go up 13-0. Freshman Juliana Tracey relieved Burgio starting the third inning and settled down to retire the side in the fifth inning with three ground ball outs.

Thankfully, the Presidents could put the loss behind them with road games slated this week against Patriot League opponents Pembroke and Hingham. "We want to make the plays when we can make them and stick together as a group," said Sommers. "Hopefully we'll grow and be competitive. I don't want this (loss) all the time. Obviously we want to do better than last year. We have a lot of senior leadership so hopefully they can pick us up and lead by example."

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Tryouts April 29-30, May 5-6

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth will hold tryouts on April 29 and April 30; and May 5 and May 6 at O'Rourke Field.

Tryouts will start at 2 p.m. and are open to all Quincy residents between the ages of 16 and 19.

To be eligible to try out, a player must have been born on or after Jan. 1, 1998.

The season starts in early June and ends in late July. Wollaston participates in the Senior Babe Ruth South Shore League and plays against teams from South Boston, Dorchester, Norwood, Tritown, Dedham, Braintree and Milton.

Kenny Sorensen Collects 2nd Conference Rookie Of Week Honors In Volleyball

Quincy's Kenny Sorensen, a junior on the Eastern Nazarene College men's volleyball team, collected his second New England Collegiate Conference Rookie of the Week honor, the league office announced Monday.

Sorensen finished with 11 kills while committing no attacking errors to lead the Lions to a 3-0 victory at Lesley in the regular-season finale. He also dealt 10 aces in the match and registered six digs.

This season, Sorensen paces the team with 215 kills, 189 digs, and 37 aces while also adding 16 assists and nine blocks.

OUT OF SIGHT AND MIND

According to the National Headache Foundation, four out of five migraine sufferers experience sensitivity to light during a migraine. This phenomenon may be explained by the fact that the group of nerves called the "superior cervical sympathetic ganglion" (SCSG), which is located opposite the second and third cervical vertebrae, directly affects the face, eyes, ears, and blood vessels throughout the head. If a misalignment in the cervical vertebrae results in pressure on nerves leading from the SCSG, it will likely cause vasoconstriction of the blood vessels in the head and dilation of the pupils. Relieving pressure on the nerves that cause these symptoms may help bring relief to migraine sufferers who experience changes in vision and light sensitivity.

There are many different types of headaches and a thorough chiropractic evaluation can help determine which type of headache you suffer from. To schedule an appointment for chiropractic care, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. We are located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. One of the many techniques we use is called Koren Specific Technique or KST. This technique is very gentle, yet very powerful. Quite often improvement is noticed after the first few adjustments.

P.S. Migraine, which is the twelfth most disabling disorder in the United States, permanently alters brain structure.

Boys Lacrosse Notches First Win

Quincy-North Quincy Co-Op Defeats Middleboro, 13-6

By TOM JOYCE

An older squad featuring the city's top blend of talent hopes to lead the Quincy/North Quincy boys' lacrosse team this season under a new coach, who is a familiar face.

The co-op, led by head coach Matt Gibbons, who is also the head coach of the North Quincy boys hockey team, has nine seniors and six juniors on the roster. Now, Gibbons has the pleasure of coaching some of his hockey players two seasons out of the year.

"It's definitely fun to have these guys for multiple seasons," he said. "It's cool. It's a new experience for me too and I'm kind of learning as I go, but it's fun. It's definitely fun."

Speaking of familiar faces, Gibbons is also now coaching a handful of guys he coached against in the winter.

"There's definitely a couple good guys in that locker room that we played against who beat us in hockey a couple times," he said. "It's fun to have them all together. I didn't know how it was going to go, but I love it. I think having these guys together is the way to do it.

"I love having these guys together. You would never even know they're from different schools either. It's pretty cool how they come together and forget all that other stuff."

On Monday, QNQ got their first win of the season, beating the Middleboro Sachems, 13-6, at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

After one quarter, the co-op was down 3-1 but for most of the contest, they were dominant. From about midway through the first quarter to midway through the third quarter, the team did not let up a goal. In that same span, however, they put up nine unanswered goals.

At the end of three quarters, QNQ led 10-4. With the lead, the team was less aggressive in the final quarter and yet, they still outscored their opponent by a goal in that span.

"I thought the first quarter was like how we played in the first two games," Gibbons said. "It was a little sloppy. But in those middle two quarters, that was pretty fun to watch. You could see it all coming together. You could see the confidence in them growing a bit."

Seniors Austin Lee and Eoin Tierney have been key on the attack while their classmates Tom Koch, Ryan Aducci, Shamus McBride and Josh Rodriguez have led the team defensively. Junior John Norton has also played well on the attack, and the same could be said for junior midfielders Chris Donaghey and Connor Donaghey.

For underclassmen, sophomore Ben Nutting is excelling defensively while fellow sophomore Kevin Finn is sound in net. And freshman midfielder Brendan Bailey has seen been a major contributor as well.

During the week prior leading up to their first win, the co-op worked on their offensive sets in hopes of creating more scoring opportunities.

"In the first two games, we weren't moving the ball well and had guys standing around," Gibbons said. "I think that's what killed us the first couple games. The first game we had about 15 attempts and the next games, we had about 10 attempts, which is awful. I today we were trying to move without the ball and get shots on net."

Gibbons said he is pleased with his team's work ethic thus far and is optimistic with his team's play as the season progresses.

"The guys have worked real hard at practice," he said. "The first couple games you could tell everyone was a little nervous. They didn't want to make mistakes. When you play like that, you usually lose. I think we did that because we played a couple teams I thought we had a chance of competing a little harder than we did."

Quincycles 'Discovering Quincy' Ride Saturday

Quincycles will host its first Discovering Quincy ride on Saturday, April 15 at 9 a.m.

The ride is free and open to the public.

Participants are invited to meet prior to the start time at the North Quincy MBTA Station's West Squantum Street entrance. This relaxed, short-distance ride will explore the back roads between the North Quincy MBTA and Marina Bay.

After the ride, participants are welcome to gather for coffee. The ride kicks off Quincycles' series of "Discovering Quincy Rides," designed to highlight easy routes through the city.

Quincycles is a group of Quincy residents advocating for bicycle infrastructure on our city streets and promoting responsible bicycling as a means of transportation, recreation, and exercise in Quincy. More information about the group and the full schedule of rides can be found on their website at www.Quincycles.org.

Review the ride guidelines posted on the site before participating.

Quincy To Celebrate Community Development Week With Events

Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Planning Director James J. Fatseas announce the City of Quincy will join other communities across the nation in celebrating "National Community Development Week" (CD Week) which begins on April 17.

This weeklong celebration provides the opportunity for Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) communities across the nation to showcase CDBG-funded projects and programs, and to educate residents, community groups, and legislators about the block grant programs administered by the city's Department of Planning and Community Development.

The CDBG program is a flexible program, overseen by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development's (HUD's) Office of Community Planning & Development, that provides communities, such as Quincy, with resources to address a wide range of unique community development needs.

Locally, these HUD block grants are used to support activities and services such as community center programs; emergency food centers; housing rehabilitation activities; code inspections; the creation of affordable housing units; and also supports economic activities such as public works projects and assistance to small businesses for jobs creation.

Since 1975, the CDBG program has provided over $86 million to the City of Quincy for community development programs.

Fifteen community center events and two special events will be held this year to celebrate CD Week.

The first special event will be the reveal of the substantial renovations recently completed at Manet Community Health Center's Snug Harbor site, located at 9 Bicknell St. The reveal will take place at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, April 18, and will include an award presentation, as well as a speaking program.

During this event, Kathy Sullivan of Manet Community Health Center, will be presented with the Mayor's Annual Community Service Award. This award is given each year to an individual who gives tirelessly of themselves in providing a better quality of life for Quincy residents.

Ms. Sullivan is a founding employee of Manet, and has been with the organization since its inception in 1979.

The other highlight event of the week will be the ribbon-cutting of a veterans housing project, located at 741 Main St. (Route 18) in Weymouth. The project sponsor is NeighborWorks Southern Mass, which has used federal "HOME" funds to develop the project in partnership with the Town of Weymouth.

The City of Quincy, as the lead agency of the regional HOME consortium, assisted in the coordination of this project. The ribbon-cutting will take place at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, April 19.

The full calendar of events may be found at the Planning and Community Development department's webpage at www.quincyma.gov. All events are free of charge and open to the public.

Interfaith Social Services Walk, Race April 29

Depression. Addiction. Anxiety. These illnesses affect one in five adults every year.

On April 29, participants in Interfaith Social Services' South Shore Walk & 5K race will lace up to challenge the stereotypes of these illnesses as they run and walk to raise funds for Interfaith's New Directions Counseling Center.

Registration is open for the race, a scenic and challenging 5K course through Quincy's Squantum and Marina Bay neighborhoods. The Boston skyline and Dorchester Bay serve as a picturesque backdrop on this sometimes hilly but well-paved course, which starts at The Kennedy Center in Quincy.

Families are encouraged to join runners and walkers after the race for a Family Fun Celebration at The Kennedy Center. The celebration will include a kids' Fun Run, music, a bounce house, face painting and more.

All race proceeds benefit Interfaith's New Directions Counseling Center, which is in its 70th year of offering compassionate and skilled counseling to the South Shore. New Directions is a safety net for the community, ensuring that anyone can receive care, regardless of health insurance status or income. The South Shore Walk & 5K Race is supported by many local businesses.

For more information contact Interfaith's Director of Development Paula Daniels at 617-773-6203 ext. 28 or pdaniels@interfaithsocialservices.org.

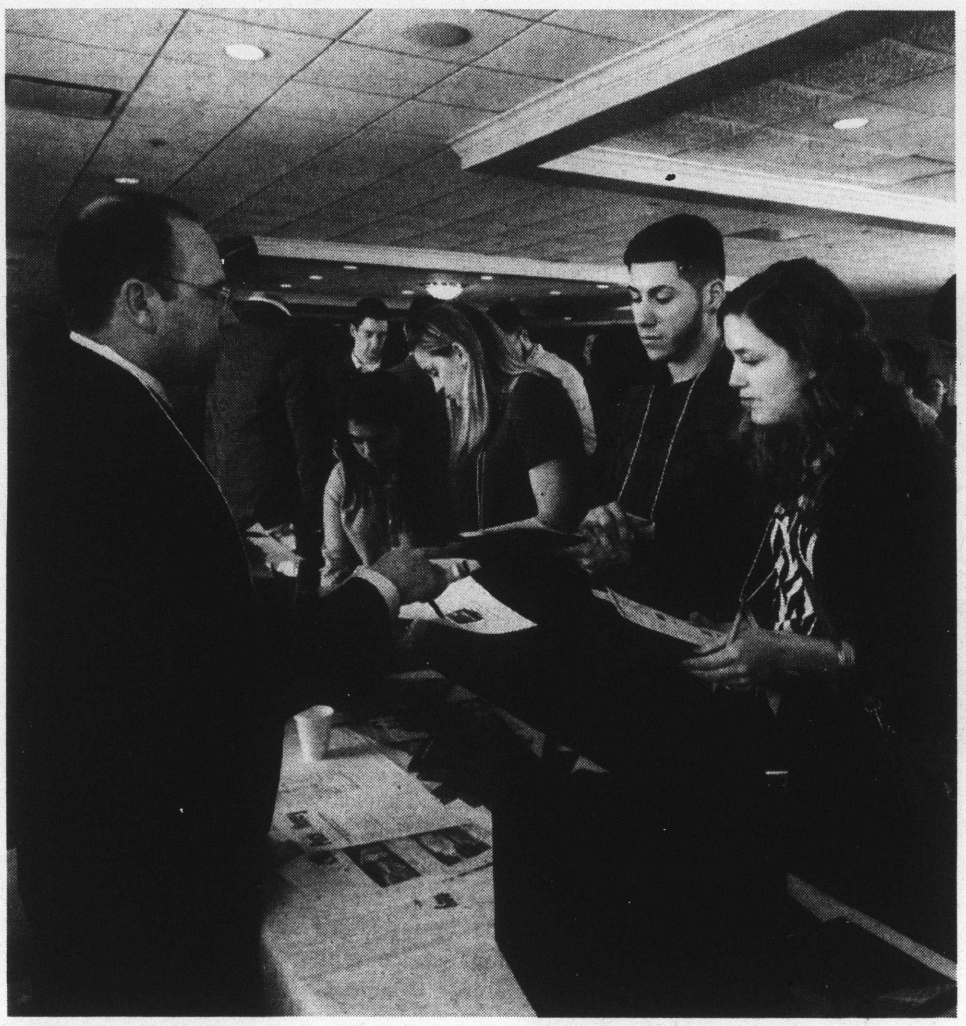
Quincy Public Schools Host Ninth Annual 'Credit For Life Fair'

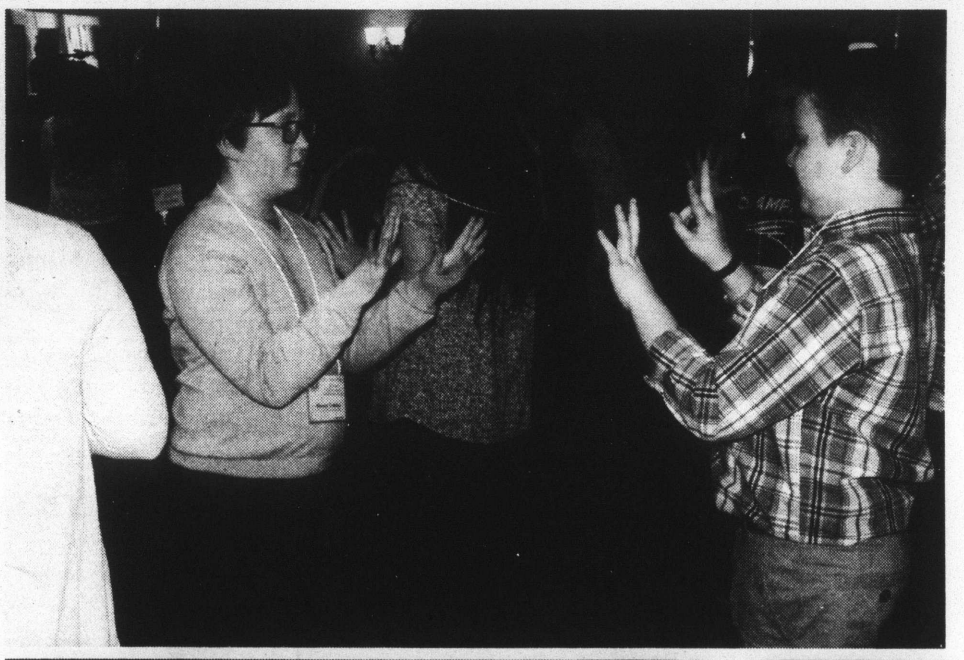
Quincy Public Schools recently hosted its ninth annual "Credit for Life Fair" at the Tirrell Room in Quincy.

This highly active one-day seminar was designed to instruct high school seniors about the basics of credit and the role credit plays in all aspects of personal finance. Students learned to set financial priorities, developed a savings plan, and made spending decisions based on their needs and other purchases.

Approximately 200 seniors from both North Quincy High and Quincy High were in attendance. They were provided a lifestyle scenario that described their life at age 24, including job title, income, health status, assets, debt, and credit profile. Students then circulated among various booths, representing major spending categories to complete a one-month spending plan.

The booths were hosted by members of the Quincy School Community Partnership who generously gave of their time, funding, and expertise. Volunteers brought "real life" to this day of financial literacy.





HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Quincy Community Holy Week Services Planned

The Quincy Evangelical Clergy Association invites the entire Quincy community to join together for special Holy Week services.

On Good Friday, April 14, at noon, a worship service will be held at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Quincy. Local pastors and church musicians will take part in leading the worship which commemorates the death of Jesus Christ on the cross.

On Easter Sunday, April 16, the annual Easter Sunrise Worship Service will be held at Wollaston Beach near the Wollaston Yacht Club, on Quincy Shore Drive. In case of rain the service will be held inside the Squantum Yacht Club.

The service will begin at 6:30 a.m. and will be led by members of the Clergy Association with music from the brass band of the Quincy Corps of The Salvation Army.

All are welcome to attend both of these services.

HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Easter Vigil Service At Community United Methodist Church

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate the Easter Vigil Saturday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m.

"With the exception of the Episcopalians, very few Protestants have had the opportunity to experience the Easter Vigil," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, church pastor. "I think this is really unfortunate. The vigil is one of the most ancient and certainly one of the most dramatic celebrations of the church year. It's my very favorite worship service."

Dating from the earliest years of the Christian Church, the vigil literally leads the congregation from Lent to Easter. It does so through word, song, and most importantly, symbols that refer to Scripture. Because many people today are unfamiliar with symbolic interpretation, explanatory notes are provided in the text of the Vigil service.

"I hope people will take the time to read the explanations," said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden. "The vigil is a rich, wonderful service on its own, but when a person understands the meaning behind the ritual, it becomes even richer."

Everyone planning to attend the Easter Vigil is asked to bring a flashlight and wear comfortable walking shoes.

"I realize that a flashlight sounds like an odd thing to bring to a worship service," said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden, "but believe me, a flashlight is pretty essential. It's simply a modern version of the traditional candles.

"Quincy Community United Methodist Church has chosen to use flashlights for safety reasons," the pastor continued. "There will be some available in case anyone forgets to bring one. Comfortable shoes are also important, because of walking is involved – a short staircase. People who have the option of continuing with the traditional Vigil, which includes more walking and stair climbing, or the non-traditional in which people remain seated in one place.

"Both groups then together for the major portion of the service."

The Easter Vigil is very much a participatory worship experience and the more a person puts into the Vigil, the more that person will get out of it, said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden.

The church building is handicapped accessible through the front door located nearest the flag pole.

St. John The Baptist

St. John the Baptist Parish, 44 School St., announces its schedule for Holy Week and Easter Sunday.

Sacrament of Reconciliation on Wednesday, April 12, from 6:30-8 p.m.

On Holy Thursday, April 13, morning prayer is at 8 a.m., Mass of the Lord's Supper at 7 p.m., and night prayer at 10 p.m.

On Good Friday, April 14, morning prayer is at 8 a.m., Stations of the Cross at 3 p.m., and Celebration of the Lord's Passion at 7 p.m.

On Holy Saturday, April 15, morning prayer is at 8 a.m. and Easter Vigil at 7:30 p.m.

On Easter Sunday, April 16, Resurrection of the Lord at 7:30, 9, and 11 a.m. There is no 5:30 p.m. Mass on Easter Sunday.

Wollaston Church Of The Nazarene

Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, 37 E. Elm Ave., announces its Holy Week and Easter services.

Maundy Thursday service will take place at 7 p.m. on April 13.

On Easter Sunday, April 16, "Word and Table" service is at 8 a.m. Worship and baptism service is at 10 a.m. There are no weekly small groups on Easter Sunday.

Pot Luck Supper, Movie To Commemorate Holocaust

In commemoration of the Holocaust, Quincy Community United Methodist Church will show the movie "Paperclips," Saturday, April 29.

The church is located at 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. with a Pot Luck Supper. Bring an appetizer, main course, salad or dessert to share. The movie will follow.

The event is free and sponsored by the Quincy Community United Methodist Church's Youth Group.

"Paperclips" is a powerful film that tells the story of a middle school class in Whitwell, TN, and how they learned about the Holocaust. Their method of learning about diversity an inclusion began with the symbol of a paper clip, invented in Norway, during World War II. Norwegians used paper clips as a symbol of solidarity against the Nazis. The students Paper Clip Project culminated in a memorial that touched and changed many people's lives.

The church building is handicapped accessible on Beale Street. Follow the path nearest the flag pole to the handicapped entrance.

'Camp Sunday' April 23 At United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual "Camp Sunday" service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, April 23.

"Yes, Camp Sunday is unusual," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor, Quincy Community United Methodist Church. "The first one was held 12 years ago, and has changed over the years from experiencing God in nature to focusing on the church's Girl Scout and Brownie troops."

The church's Worship Committee developed a recyclable program for the service, which includes information about the United Methodist Church's three camps in New England, as well as favorite camp songs. Participants are asked to call out the name of their favorite camp song, and it is then sung during the worship service. Among the songs sung at the service is "On Top of Spaghetti."

The service will be held in the church's Fellowship Hall, which is on the basement level, and people are encouraged to dress in camp gear.

The church building is handicapped accessible through the front door behind the flag pole.

For more information call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Two Service Projects At Beth Shalom-Blue Hills

As part of its Third Thursday Community Service Mitzvah Program, Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills will be featuring two projects with a "Spice 'n' Fashion" theme this month.

One project is "Gowns on the Town," for which the synagogue will be collecting Prom and Bridesmaid's dresses on Thursday, April 20th, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 8:45 p.m., and then 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. from April 24-27. It is being conducted in partnership with Tammi's Closet in Amesbury, an organization that provides prom dresses for young ladies who may not be able to purchase one.

Gently used prom and bridesmaid's dresses can be brought to Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton, and all donations from the community are greatly appreciated.

The second project, called "Seeds of Lovingkindness," invites volunteers to gather at the synagogue on April 20th between 7-8:30 pm to plant herbs and prepare for the planting of vegetables for future delivery to the Milton Food Pantry. It is suggested that volunteers BYO tools and gardening gloves.

The synagogue's Mitzvah Program, operating under the Jewish tenet that "performing good deeds is an obligation," hopefully will provide service to the community by both congregants and wider community members, and will include and involve others, including schools, houses of worship and organizations.

For more information about the synagogue's "Third Thursday Community Service Mitzvah Program," please call 617-698-3394, email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org, or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

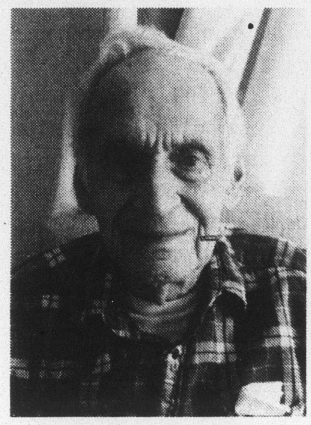
OBITUARIES

Ralph A. DePaulo, 97



RALPH A. DEPAULO

Funeral services for Ralph A. DePaulo, age 97, a lifelong Quincy resident, were held April 8 in Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Mr. DePaulo died peacefully April 6 at the John Scott House in Braintree, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born in Quincy on April 30, 1919, to the late Michael and Colomba (Naclerio) DePaulo. He was raised in Quincy and was a graduate of Quincy High School.

Mr. DePaulo was employed for over sixty years as a technician for the former Globe Automatic Vending Company of Quincy and had been retired many years. During World War II he had worked at the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy.

Mr. DePaulo enjoyed harness racing and visits to Foxwoods with family and friends. He was also known as "Mr. Fixit" for his generosity in helping those in need. He was dedicated to his family and especially to his cherished grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Beloved husband for fifty-nine years of the late E. Anne (Griffin) DePaulo. Devoted father of Ralph DePaulo and his wife Donna of Braintree, Donald DePaulo and his wife Linda of Quincy, Glenn DePaulo and Ida of Quincy, Eleanor Gibbons and her husband Richard of Quincy, Carol Folk and her husband James of Quincy. Loving grandfather of twelve grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mr. DePaulo was the last of eight siblings and was uncle of Paul McKeaggan and his wife Joan of Plymouth. He is also survived by many other nieces and nephews.

Interment Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to Saint Jude's Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105.

The DePaulo family would like to thank the dedicated staff at the John Scott House for the excellent care and compassion that Mr. DePaulo received during his illness.

Mark S. MacDonald, Sr.

MARK S. MACDONALD, SR.

A funeral Mass for Mark S. "Noopy" MacDonald Sr. of Quincy and formerly Boston was celebrated Tuesday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. MacDonald died April 5.

He loved his family and spending time with his grandchildren. Mr. MacDonald grew up in Boston and graduated from Charlestown High School and WTI Trade School. He worked for indoor electrical sales for many years. Mr. MacDonald had a big heart and was a very generous man. He was a character who will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Beloved husband of 38 years to Jeannine "Nina" (Perkins) MacDonald of Quincy. Loving father of Mark MacDonald and his wife Kimberly of Moultonborough, NH, Sean MacDonald and his fiancée Deanna of Rockland, and Angela MacDonald and her fiancé Joe of Quincy. Cherished brother of Stephanie Fleming of Plymouth. Devoted Grandpa of Kaleigh, Markie, and Savannah MacDonald. Loving brother in law to Anita, Terri, Val, James, Vinny, Joey, and Eddie. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to American Diabetes Assoc., 10 Speen St., 2nd Floor, Framingham, MA 01701 or to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, P.O. Box 849168, Boston, MA 02284-9168.

John C. Kohut

A Mass of Christian Burial for John C. Kohut of Houghs Neck in Quincy was celebrated April 8 in Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Quincy.

Mr. Kohut died April 4.

He was a U.S. Army veteran during the Korean Conflict. He enjoyed being a member of the Jacob Jones VFW in Dedham and a member of the Quincy Art Association.

Loving husband of Mary Ann (Nichol) of Quincy. Devoted father of Julie Fawcett of Hyannis, Edward Kohut of PA, Laurie Bourgeois of Quincy and Dennis Kohut of Concord. Dedicated grandfather of nine grandchildren. Brother of Earnest Kohut of Arkansas.

Arrangements by Lydon Chapel for Funerals, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Marie E. Flaherty, 77

MARIE E. FLAHERTY

A funeral Mass for Marie E. (McAuliffe) Flaherty, 77, of Rochester, N.H., and originally from Quincy, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Flaherty died April 7, surrounded by the family she cherished.

The beloved wife of the late Dennis F. Flaherty. Loving mother of Denise Flaherty of Rochester, N.H., Kevin Flaherty and his wife Lissa of Brewster, and the late Timothy Flaherty. Sister of the late Francis "Sonny" McAuliffe. Devoted grandmother of Lisa, Jennifer, Shayla and Andrew. Great grandmother of Mia Anderson.

Mrs. Flaherty was born and raised in Quincy. She graduated from Quincy High School and raised her family in Braintree. She enjoyed bingo and spending time with the family she cherished. She had a very special place in her heart for her two dogs Pedro and Chico. She will be sadly missed by all those who had the pleasure of knowing her.

Interment at Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Ruth L. Pannella

A funeral Mass for Ruth L. "Ruff" (Deschenes) Pannella of Randolph, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Mary's Church, Randolph.

Mrs. Pannella died April 7.

She adored her family, especially her grandchildren. She loved to travel all over the world, including Disney, Australia, and Italy, but could enjoy a simple cup of coffee on Wollaston Beach as well. Mrs. Pannella graduated from Quincy High School and after getting her RN, worked as a nurse at Quincy City Hospital where she served on the bargaining unit for the Massachusetts Nursing Association.

Mrs. Pannella was a vivacious and upbeat woman. She was determined, strong, and a hard worker. She will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Beloved wife of the late Robert F. Pannella of Randolph. Loving mother of Laurie Pannella and her husband Michael LaBonte of Taunton, Lisa Pannella and her husband David Tancredi of Wakefield, and William Pannella and his wife Rebecca Nash Pannella of Portsmouth, NH. Dear sister of Edward Deschenes of NH and the late George Deschenes. Cherished Nana to Ryan and Norah Nash Pannella.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Lupus Research Alliance, 275 Madison Ave., 10th Floor, New York, NY 10016.

Gertrude C. Keefe, 93

A funeral Mass for Gertrude C. (Stokinger) Keefe, age 93, of Quincy, formerly of South Boston, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Brigid Parish, South Boston.

Mrs. Keefe died peacefully April 6 at Hancock Park Rehabilitation and Nursing Center in Quincy.

She was born in South Boston to the late Albert J. and Louisa V. (Barter) Stokinger. Mrs. Keefe was raised and educated in South Boston and was a graduate of the former Nazareth High School in South Boston. As a lifelong parishioner of St. Brigid Parish, she was devoted to her Catholic faith. She had lived in Quincy for seventeen years, previously living all of her life in South Boston where she enjoyed many friends and time spent at Castle Island.

Mrs. Keefe was a homemaker but had also worked at the Stevens Arnold Company in Boston for many years.

She enjoyed sewing, knitting, and crocheting and there was nothing that she would not attempt or could not accomplish. She was a very independent and self-reliant woman. Mrs. Keefe's life revolved around her family and faith, always doing for others.

Beloved wife of the late Thomas L. Keefe, Boston Police Department, Retired. Devoted mother of Elaine Cochrane and her husband Edward of Quincy, Thomas P. Keefe and his wife Arlan of Niantic, CT, and the late Marie Hartnett and her husband Ted of Quincy.

GERTRUDE C. KEEFE

Loving grandmother of nine grandchildren, eighteen great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandson. She was the grandmother of the late James M. "Jamie" Cochrane, QPD. She was predeceased by her seven siblings and is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

In lieu of flowers, please consider doing an act of kindness in Mrs. Keefe's memory.

Memorial donations may be made to the Officer Jamie Cochrane Memorial Scholarship Fund for deserving Quincy students, c/o Eastern Bank, 731 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02170.

Richard H. Buckley

Gasoline Prices Climb Five Cents

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are up five cents this week, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA's April 10 survey of prices in Massachusetts finds self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $2.24 per gallon. The Massachusetts price is fifteen cents below the national average for regular unleaded of $2.39. A year ago at this time, the average price in Massachusetts was 24 cents lower at $2.00.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 31 cents, from a low of $2.13 to a high of $2.44. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every time.

Council Support For LED Streetlights

overseeing streetlights and traffic, said initial work could take place in May if the council approves the bond next week. The replacement project will hit full stride in late May or early June because it could take about a month for purchased items to arrive. The conversion to LEDs could be finished by December or January.

Clint Schuckel, an account manager with Siemens, previously told the council the city stands to save about $424,000 in energy and maintenance costs annually by switching to LEDs. That is on top of the $350,000 in maintenance costs the city is already saving annually after purchasing all the streetlights in Quincy, save for those owned by the state, from National Grid for a total of $1 in 2014.

The deal with Siemens includes a 10-year warranty on parts and labor and a 10-year performance contract. During that performance contract, Siemens would have to reimburse the city if energy savings fell short of projections. The company has entered into 35 similar agreements with communities across Massachusetts, and not once has it had to reimburse a municipality, Coffey said.

The city is using a contract drafted by the state – and not Siemens – which Coffey said would protect the city.

"We're not using Siemens' contract," he said. "We're using the state Department of Energy Resources contract template where they've used it all around the state already. It's kind of a tried and proven contract that really protects the city."

Coffey estimated total savings over 25 years – the projected lifespan of the LEDs – would be about $15 million.

"Investments like these are few and far between," he said.

Councillor Joseph Finn said he supported financing the switch to LEDs. He also suggested the city put at least some of the savings into a capital account that could pay for streetlight repairs – or new LEDs – down the road.

"This is a type of financing for making capital improvements I think is very, very good," Finn said. "I really, at the same time, strongly urge thinking about ways of creating those capital accounts moving forward."

Coffey supported the suggestion of the capital account, and said he would discuss ways to set it up with Susan O'Connor, the city's auditor.

Councillor Noel DiBona said the $3.62 million would be an investment by the city.

"I like the savings, I like the warranty, I like the fact that you're looking to piggyback grant money, which is important. When I look at this, I don't look at this as an expense. I look at it as an investment for the city," he said.

"I think, to be honest, we're a little bit behind and probably should have done this a few years ago."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci voted against the bond request. He said the conversion to LEDs should take a backseat to more pressing needs such as road repairs and traffic, issues he hears about from residents regularly.

"I don't hear anybody saying to me that we need to upgrade the streetlights – constituent-wise, no one says 'we need to go to LED, Brian, that's my main issue,'" Palmucci said.

"It's paving roads. It's traffic right now. Those are the top concerns that we're hearing and my vote will reflect that."

Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain in response said the savings on energy costs could be used on items like streets and sidewalks.

"We're going to see $15 million worth of savings. That's actual stuff we can put to good use, like streets and sidewalks," he said.

RMV Services At AAA's Adams St. Office

Mayor Thomas Koch said the AAA-Registry venture is a perfect match.

"AAA is a great organization that provides tremendous service and coupled with the needs of residents dealing with the Registry just seems so perfect," he said. "It's a great day for our residents."

Registrar Erin Deveney, who was unable to attend the ribbon cutting, said in a statement that the Adams Street location is opening just in time for the April rush.

"April is one of the busiest months at our service centers," she said. "We're forecasting an increased number of customers who have to renew their driver's license in person this month."

AAA Northeast President and CEO Mark Shaw noted that the Quincy service center will provide AAA members an added convenience.

"The launch of the Quincy AAA/Registry location marks yet another milestone in enhanced choice and convenience for AAA members and consumers across the Commonwealth," he said. "AAA northeast sincerely values its partnership with the RMV and hopes to expand services into additional AAA offices in 2017."

Lt. John Sullivan Retires From Quincy Police Dept.

By LT. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Dept.

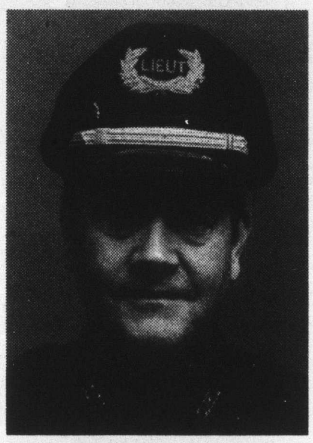
Jack started his career with the Quincy Police Department in August 1983 after working as a police officer at the UMass Boston campus. Jack was assigned to the patrol division for his first 15 years, working in many positions such as walking beats and sector car response.

He was one of the first officers to be on the Mounted Patrol Unit. One of the highlights for Jack was to ride his horse as part of the police mounted unit in the President's Inauguration parade.

In 1998, Jack was appointed sergeant and worked in patrol. He also assisted in the background investigations of new police officers. In 2003, Jack was appointed lieutenant, in charge of Communications and in 2005 was assigned to the Chief's Office as part of the Professional Standards Unit.

Throughout his career, Lt. Sullivan was truly committed to police work and going the extra step to help people. Although he loved police work, he always put his family first.



JOHN SULLIVAN

Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan said, "Jack will be missed. He is a real people person. He held almost every job within the department and gave his all. He has a great sense of humor and his work ethic is to be admired. It was a pleasure working with Lieutenant Sullivan during his tenure."

As for retirement, Jack looks forward to time with his family, especially his grandchildren William and Catherine. Jack plans to work in the field of academia during his retirement from the Quincy Police Department.

Congratulations on a job well done!

COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN PAYMENT RESOLUTION PANEL ON WITHHELD PAYMENTS

You are being contacted today because you have not received your awarded funds and we want to advise you on the status of your funds payment case. Recently there was a court decision that favored you in getting your funds back from international banks withholding your funds. Although you are hearing from us for the first time, we have been working very hard for beneficiaries and making progress on our research on why international banks had failed to completely credit funds to international beneficiaries account. We have also taken time to review unsuccessful transactions with most international inheritance/contract insurance companies and other foreign banks especially in Africa, Asia and the United Kingdom. We wish to let you know that we have communicated with most of these foreign banking institutions withholding most international payments to individuals and companies so as to find out why these funds were withheld, the source of the funds and a final solution to this problem.

Conclusively, we discovered that most withheld and unpaid funds originating from lottery organizations, international trading, company's awarded contract funds and deceased persons where not properly filed for international funds payment to its intended beneficiary. As such, transfer suspension was placed on these funds because majority of these international funds remittance/transfer were not properly recorded by the paying institution for future file reference/assessment by the International Monetary Fund and the Financial Services Authority. Presently, your ongoing transaction in which you will gain full assistance from us to monitor your case and make sure you receive your awarded funds on compliance will be on full effect in your favor as long as you have complied with the Order of Court Dialogue in which we are presently trying to obtain favor on your funds payment case. In joint alliance with the Financial Services Authority to resolve this issue, we wish to let you know that we have been approved to assist you in receiving your awarded funds but only the total sum of Nineteen Million, Five Hundred Thousand United States Dollars ($19,500,000.00 USD). We have gone through the security manifest booklet of all international outstanding transactions and our extensive investigation confirmed that you are the beneficiary of this fund through the assistance of the International Criminal Police Organization (ICPO) to investigate and release suspended withheld funds to its beneficiaries account abroad, we were able to gain an Approval Authorization Letter from the International Monetary Fund (IMF) which stated that your funds will be paid to you on proper confirmation of its claim.

We wish to inform you once again that there is an existing arrangement with United Nations Federal Credit Union (UNFCU) in New York to process and pay you the outstanding debt of $19,500,000.00 USD as soon as you provide the complete requirements needed for them to process your fund payment case. This was resolved in a meeting held between the International Financial Auditors in Europe and our American representatives. Contact:

Your nominated Bank Account information shall be requested for transfer of your funds after confirmation of your funds claims file by the processing officer.

By the virtue of the provision of the law which confer on us powers to advocate, adjudicate, suspend and authorize an immediate transfer of funds internationally, we hereby state emphatically and without prejudice that should there be any information that may succeed your application for unclaimed awarded funds release that are currently deposited in most foreign banks in Europe, Asia and in Africa, please do not hesitate to provide the information so that we can help you in receiving your funds.

Also note that failure to properly apply for the funds payment will nullify your chances of receiving your unclaimed funds and funds will be diverted into the government treasury.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A sudden change of plans could lead to a misunderstanding with a friend or family member. Be ready to offer a full explanation of your decision. A past favor is returned.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Expect pressure from those who want you to change your position on a matter of importance. However, the determined Bovine will be able to withstand the bullying and win out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's time to stop dwelling on past disappointments and move on to other possibilities. By week's end, you'll be meeting new people and making new plans for the future.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A long-simmering situation between co-workers threatens to heat up and could create problems with your work schedule. Best advice: Consult a supervisor on how to proceed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might have just learned that someone close to you is keeping a secret. And, of course, the Cat's curiosity has gone into overdrive. But be patient. All is revealed soon enough.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Don't give up. The recognition citing the good work you recently did will come through. Meanwhile, an opportunity opens up that can lead to a lot of traveling later on.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A financial crunch eases, but it's still a good idea to keep a tight rein on what you spend for nonessentials. Education becomes a major focus as the week winds down.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Recent encounters with stressful situations could require some restorative measures to get your energy levels back up. Talk to your doctor about a diet and exercise program.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) New connections follow changes on the job or in your personal life. But keep your feelings reined in until these relationships have a chance to develop.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Pay more attention to your aches and pains, but avoid self-diagnoses. Seek professional advice to make sure these problems won't lead to something more serious.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You love doing research and learning new things, so you'll be happy to know that education becomes a big part of your life at this time, and for some time to come.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your Piscean penchant for doing things logically could be challenged by an equally strong emotional reaction to a new situation. Best advice: Keep the two factors in balance.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love music and nature. You would be an excellent environmentalist, as well as a fine singer or musician.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Glenn Close -- currently re-creating her award-winning portrayal of Norma Desmond in the Andrew Lloyd Webber musical "Sunset Boulevard" on Broadway -- has six films in the pipeline. First up is "Guardians of the Galaxy 2," opening May 5, followed by the comedy "Bastards," with Owen Wilson, Ed Helms and Oscar-winner J.K. Simmons, on Dec. 22; the sci-fi thriller "What Happened to Monday," with Willem Dafoe; the romantic comedy "Wilde Wedding," with John Malkovich, Patrick Stewart and Minnie Driver; "Crooked House," with Max Irons, Gillian Anderson and Christina Hendricks; and "The Wife," with Jonathan Price, Christian Slater, Max Irons and Elizabeth McGovern, which started filming Nov. 21 in Glasgow. Six films in one year, and Close just turned 70.

After the success of "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane," Bette Davis was Oscar-nominated and Joan Crawford wasn't. But Crawford went to the four other nominees and offered to accept their award if they couldn't attend. When Anne Bancroft won for "The Miracle Worker," Crawford accepted her award and Davis fumed. When Robert Aldrich signed her to star in "Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," he waited for the ink to dry before telling her she'd be starring with Joan Crawford again. Davis was furious and said, "The best time I ever had with Joan Crawford was when I pushed her down the stairs in 'Whatever Happened to Baby Jane'!"

Many years later, Davis told me, "I saw a scene in the script for "Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," where I had to douse her with water. I asked Aldrich to shoot that first because it was complicated, and I was right, I couldn't get it right from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., and by the end of the day, Crawford was taken to the hospital with pneumonia. I called my friend Olivia de Havilland and told her I was sending her a script. She replaced Crawford."

I told Bette I'd seen Crawford when she made her first public appearance in the lobby of a theater. She posed for us for 15 minutes using a pay phone as a prop, saying, "Hello, Hello?" When she saw we were done she said, "Why, it's Bette Davis" and slammed the phone down. Davis was furious and asked, "Was that when she looked like 'Clarabelle the Clown' in that gold lame outfit? I nodded, "Yes," and she said, "She thinks she's had the last word!"

Bruce Willis is taking on the reboot of the Charles Bronson "Death Wish" (1974) franchise, with Sylvester Stallone as one of the producers. The original spawned four sequels, as did Willis' "Die Hard." It certainly helps if you have a "Death Wish" to be able to "Die Hard"!

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Q: I have two train sets in their original boxes from the 1950s. One is a Lionel Berkshire 2-8-4 die-cast steam locomotive and die-cast tender, number 8-8215; the other is a Lionel train nickel-plated extended caboose, number 6-6905. Can you recommend a good reference book for these items? -- Victoria, Rio Rancho, New Mexico

A: There are several excellent references, but my personal favorite is "The Standard Catalogue of Lionel Trains 1945-1969," by David Doyle and published by Krause Books. This excellent guide is the most complete book of its kind and features more than 1,100 photos, detailed descriptions and accurate current-market values. This helpful reference should keep you on track.

Q: I found a St. Christopher medal in a Goodwill store that is unusual in that it has an image of Mary embossed on its back. It is made from a gray metal, perhaps pewter. Does this feature make this medal unique? -- Cheryll, Saratoga, Fla.

A: St. Christopher is the patron saint of travelers. Millions of his medals have been distributed throughout the years. Although your medal has a less common design, it still has very little value to collectors unless it is made of silver, gold or a precious metal. I suspect your medal is, indeed, made of pewter.

Q: When I was in London during the 1960s, I purchased a biography of Beardsley, the illustrator, by Stanley Weintraub. It is a first edition in near mint condition. I can't remember how much I paid for it, but am curious to know if it has increased much in value. -- Bill, San Angelo, Texas

A: Your biography was published by W.H. Allen in 1967. I contacted several rare-book dealers, and they seem to agree that it is probably worth about $100.

Q: I have a collection of World War II gasoline ration stamps issued two days before the end of the war. I would like to sell them. -- Lucien, Warren, Rhode Island

A: Even though gasoline and sugar ration stamps are less common than many of the others issued, there are still fairly plentiful. I have seen them sell at shows for a couple of dollars per sheet.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was Founding Father and renowned polymath Benjamin Franklin who made the following sage observation: "Patriotism is supporting your country all the time, and your government when it deserves it."

* Those looking for a new, somewhat more relaxing line of work might want to consider becoming air farmers. Yes, that is an actual job title. Since 2015, the British company Aethaer has employed air farmers to "harvest" air in jars at locations all over the British Isles -- largely in rural areas, away from roads and their attendant pollution. This pure British air is then sold for $115 per bottle, mostly to consumers in China, where cities are plagued by unprecedented levels of pollution.

* Everyone, it seems, has a patron saint -- even those oft-reviled professionals, dentists. Images of Saint Apollonia show her holding a molar in one hand and an enormous pair of pliers in the other.

* If you're both a lover of books and a travel junkie, then the Tolstoy Train is just the holiday for you. On this luxuriously appointed train -- complete with a library -- you can take a 14-hour overnight journey between Moscow and Helsinki, Finland, traveling through pine forests, rolling hills and quaint Russian villages.

* Pepsi-Cola was introduced originally in 1898 with the far less appetizing name "Brad's Drink."

* Those who study such things say that when a woman's husband dies, the length of her remaining life does not seem to be affected. When a man loses his wife, though, his lifespan decreases -- unless he marries again.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "Safety-pin fitted sheets and mattress pads together on the edges when washing and drying. It keeps other items from balling up inside." -- M.W. in Iowa

* Here's a great (and super simple) tactic for making a cool, delicious treat, from L.O. in New Mexico: "Purchase a six-pack of single-serve yogurt tubs with a paper or foil lid. Poke a wooden ice-pop stick into each on and put the whole thing in the freezer. The next day you have a pack of yummy yogurt pops, which have nutrition and taste great."

* Great grapes! This tip will be a hit at your next outdoor barbecue: Serve wine (and punch, too) with frozen grapes as ice cubes. Wash and rinse a bunch of grapes and stick them in the freezer. They make a tasty snack all alone, but will keep a glass of white wine chilled while not watering it down."

* "To charge your phone a bit quicker, try putting it in airplane mode. It really does help." -- W.E. in Mississippi

* Get all the tomato paste out of the can with this kitchen hack: Open up one side of the can, then run a butter knife around the inside perimeter to separate the paste from the can. Finally, flip it upside down on a plate and open the other side of the can. Remove the can with a bit of a shake, and it should slip out just like cranberry jelly!

* Don't remember how long you've had those eggs? Here's a handy tip to check any egg: Submerge in a glass of water. Fresh eggs lay flat on the bottom. Aging but still good eggs stand up, but remain submerged. If your egg floats, better not chance it.

Send your tips to Now Here's a Tip, 628 Virginia Drive, Orlando, FL 32803.

Council Backs Request For New Squantum School

between $15 and $25 million of that total depending on the ultimate cost and MSBA reimbursement rates.

A feasibility study for the new building could begin as early as 2018, followed by engineering and schematic design in 2019. The council could be asked to approve financing for the school project in 2020, and construction would start the following year.

Squantum Elementary School, located at 50 Huckins Ave., first opened in 1919. The building was originally a four-room school and two major additions were later undertaken.

"The Squantum School has a lot of issues and a lot of challenges," Koch said. "It was added on on a couple occasions. They're not really quality, those additions."

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris said the community he represents is swiftly outgrowing the building.

"As most of you know, Squantum School is in dire need – as was mentioned tonight by the mayor – of replacement. Squantum School was built in 1919, and the neighborhood and its families are quickly outgrowing this facility," Harris said.

"Spot improvements have kept the building functioning for some time, but as we continue to upgrade our schools citywide there is no doubt that Squantum School needs to continue to be a priority."

Koch's capital plan also includes a second elementary school, a new one that would be located at the site of the former St. Mary School on Crescent Street in West Quincy.

The bond orders submitted to the council April 3 includes $2.4 million to purchase the former school from the Archdiocese of Boston. The estimated price for the new school – including the land acquisition – is $35 to $45 million.

Koch anticipates filing a notice of intent with the MSBA to construct the new school next year, according to information he submitted in the capital plan. A feasibility study would begin in 2019 with schematic design and a funding request submitted to the council in 2020. Construction of the new West Quincy school would also start in 2021.

North Quincy Man Thanks Firefighters For Saving His Life

By TOM GORMAN

When Brendan Gavaghan was a small boy, he would keep a firefighter's jacket, boots and toy ax beside his bed, pray each night to God to keep firefighters safe, and couldn't walk by a fire station without stopping in to take a glimpse of a firetruck and say hello to the on-duty firefighters.

On Monday, the 28-year-old stopped by the North Quincy fire station, not just to say hello to the firefighters, but to thank them – for saving his life.

"I'm sure when they saw me that day they never thought I'd be back in the place where I am today," Brendan said of the firefighters he and his family credits for keeping him alive after he sustained life-threatening injuries from a fall.

On Feb. 7, Brendan fell down a flight of stairs in his Tirrell Street home. Hearing a commotion, his father, Al, found him at the bottom of the stairs unconscious with a traumatic head injury. Al called 911 and within a few

Legalized Pot Concerns School Officials

By TOM GORMAN

Some school officials say the legalization of recreational marijuana use in the Bay State will add to their challenge of dealing with substance abuse and addiction prevention efforts.

The issue arose at the April 12 school committee meeting during a presentation of the district's student support initiatives. The officials voiced concern that the approval by Massachusetts voters last November allowing those ages 21 and over to use marijuana sends a mixed message to both students and parents.

"I'm very concerned about the mixed message of the marijuana legislation," committee member Emily Lebo said. "It's such a scary thing. The message has changed."

Maura Papile, Quincy Public Schools director of Student Support Services, concurred.

"It's new territory," she said. "I think what people saw as harmless is not harmless…just the impact on the developing brain and the substance and what it does at such a crucial time."

Committee member Anne Mahoney said that "edibles" – marijuana infused candies and pastries – is also a concern because "kids are so impressionable."

"Having (marijuana) in an edible format makes or suggests that there's nothing wrong with it or that it's safe," she said "What really scares me about that is that can go through every grade. Edible is something that can be ingested by anybody. I hear it all the time from kids that it's safe because it's legal."

Mahoney said that edibles come in all forms and can be difficult for parents or school officials to detect. She also said that the issue of legalized marijuana is a challenge for parents to deal

Dunford Speaker At Vietnam Remembrance April 27

By SCOTT JACKSON

The United States' highest-ranking military officer will be the keynote speaker at the 30th annual wreath-laying ceremony to honor Quincy residents who served in the Vietnam War.

The ceremony, organized by the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces Quincy Chapter, is set for 2 p.m. on Thursday, April 27, at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower at 500 Victory Rd. in Marina Bay. Dedicated in 1987, the clock tower is inscribed with the names of the 48 Quincy residents who died as a result of injuries sustained in the war.

Gen. Joseph F. Dunford, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will be the keynote speaker at the event. Dunford, who grew up in Quincy, was the commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps prior to his appointment as the chairman of the Joint Chiefs in 2015.

Gov. Charlie Baker, Mayor Thomas Koch and U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch are also expected to speak at the 2 p.m. ceremony.

Massachusetts State Police Sgt. Daniel Clark – known as the 'Singing Trooper' – will sing the national anthem, followed by a fly-over by the Massachusetts Air National Guard's 104th Fighter Wing, in the Missing Man formation.

At least eight prisoners of war are expected to attend, as well as two Medal of Honor recipients, one Medal of Honor nominee and three recipients of the Distinguished Service Cross. The Medal of Honor nominee – Army medic James McCloughan – will sing "Proud To Be An American."

Retired Quincy police officers Richard Churchill and Gerard Nichol will lay a wreath at the base of the clock tower and read the memorial roll call. Retired Quincy police Lt. Thomas Bolinder, a retired Marine Corps sergeant, will introduce veterans and their families.

Robert LaFleur, commander of the Disabled American Veterans Chapter 79, will sound "Taps" and the Second Marine Division will provide a firing detail.

Lawrence Norton, the president of the Quincy Chapter of the VCVCAF, said he hopes more than 1,000 people attend the ceremony. Norton, 73, has organized the past 26 annual ceremonies held at the clock tower. He said this one will be the last major ceremony; smaller ceremonies with wreath layings will VIETNAM WAR MEMORIAL CLOCK TOWER at Marina Bay was dedicated 30 years ago this October. The 30th anniversary Vietnam Veterans ceremony will take place at the clock tower Thursday, April 27 at 2 p.m.

Remembering The Fallen & Families

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

It's all about the families.

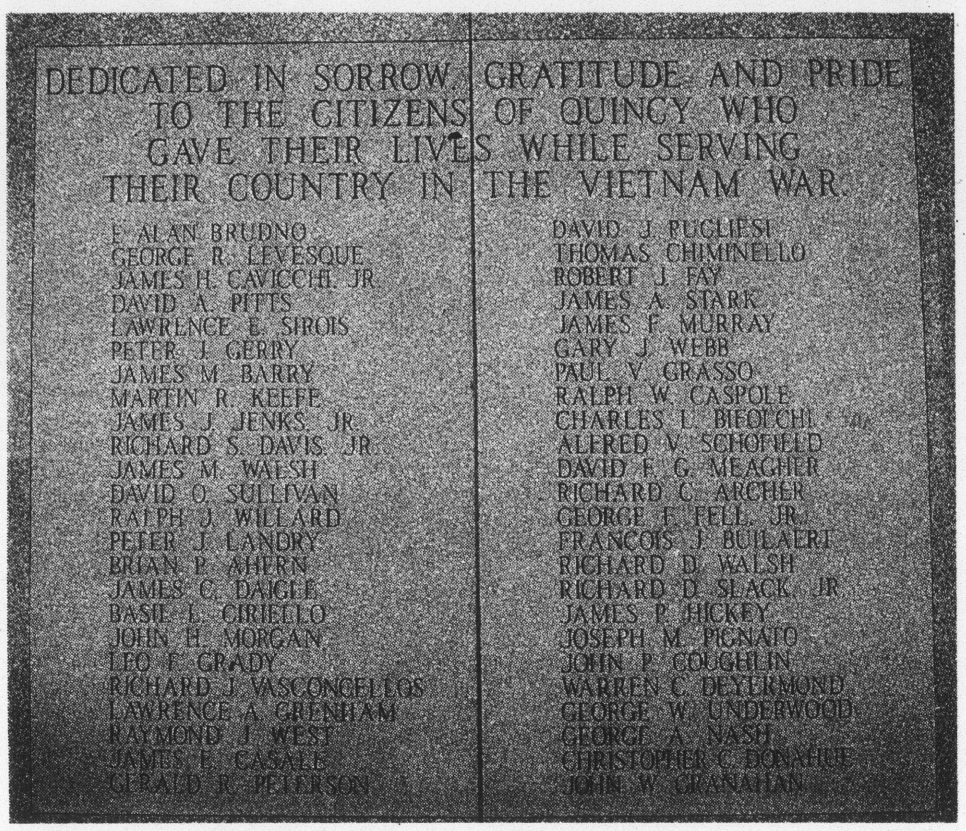
That's what Larry Norton, president of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces Quincy chapter says when asked about the importance of Vietnam Veterans Day in Quincy.

The families are the relatives of the 48 men listed on the Vietnam War Memorial Clock Tower at Marina Bay. All casualties of a war in a far away place more than a generation ago.

But those local men who died while serving their country fighting in the Vietnam War have not been forgotten by their comrades here in Quincy. All 48 have had squares, playgrounds and other public spaces dedicated in their memory.

And each April their fellow Vietnam veterans gather at the clock tower to remember those who were lost and to celebrate their valor and sacrifice while defending freedom and democracy.

This year – the 30th annual Vietnam Veterans Day observance – will take place at 2 p.m. Thursday, April 27th at the Clock Tower. Keynote speaker will be Quincy's own Joseph Dunford, a four-star Marine Corps general and chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the chief military advisor to President Trump.



THE NAMES of 48 Quincy men who died as a result of the Vietnam War are engraved in granite on one side of the Vietnam War Memorial Clock Tower at Marina Bay.

Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

The ceremony will also feature a memorial wreath laying at the base of the tower and an Air Force flyover with F-15 jets at the conclusion of the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Dan Clark, the "Singing Trooper."

Times have certainly changed since the first ceremony and clock tower dedication in 1987. But the one constant has been the focus on the families of those Quincy men who lost their lives because of the Vietnam War.

Norton says the VCV-CAF Quincy chapter's mission can be summed up in six words:

"Through us, they will live forever."

They remember, Norton says, because many did not.

"These 48 guys – nobody remembered them, nobody cared about them," Norton says bluntly. "When it happens in your own family, it's a tragedy. When it happens

Koch Won't OK Hotel Amendment

By SCOTT JACKSON

A home rule petition set to be introduced Tuesday by a pair of ward councillors that would allow the city to use hotel tax money on street and sidewalk repairs would not advance past the council since Mayor Thomas Koch does not support the legislation.

Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain and Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall were to introduce the home rule petition, which would add street and sidewalk improvements to the items on which hotel and motel tax receipts can be appropriated, at Tuesday night's City Council meeting, after The Sun went to press for the week. Mayoral spokesman Chris Walker told The Sun prior to the meeting Koch would reject the home rule petition if the council passes it.

"The mayor will not sign anything that alters the original intent of the legislation," Walker said.

The current legislation allows Quincy to use 85 percent of hotel and motel tax receipts – the tax charged to those staying in a hotel or motel in the city – on parks and other open space projects. The remaining 15 percent of that revenue stream goes to tourism.

The money was dedicated to parks and open space because the city had difficulty finding funds for those projects, Walker said. He noted Koch served 12 years as the park director – a position once held by his father, Richard Koch, Sr.

"The mayor remembers how hard it was to secure funding for park improvements before this legislation," Walker said. "If you look at the improvements to the park system in the last 10 or 15 years, they would not have happened without this funding source."

Walker said the mayor understands the sentiment behind the proposal by Cain and Croall, adding that Koch is committed to street and sidewalk repair.

"The sentiment in the proposal by the councillors is certainly a valid one," he stated. "We are doing more work today (on roads) than we were at any time before, but there is a huge amount to be done and the mayor is committed to getting us there."

As a home rule petition, the amendment by Cain and Croall would require ap-

HARD, BUT NOT TOUGH

Many people mistakenly believe that their diamonds are indestructible. While diamond is the hardest substance found in nature, it is not necessarily tough. "Hardness" is a measure of the gemstone's resistance to being scratched, and the only thing that can scratch a diamond is another diamond. "Toughness" is the gemstone's ability to resist breakage. The fact that a diamond is so tough is the precise reason why it is also so "brittle." In this respect, because diamond can be cleaved in four directions relatively easily, it can be damaged by a hard blow. With this in mind, take care to protect your diamond jewelry from the hard knocks to which it may be subjected with everyday wear.

The finest quality diamonds and precious stones have been a hallmark of the Piette family tradition. Vietnam Vets Remember Fallen, Families next door, it's unfortunate. If it happens two doors down, what was that young man's name?

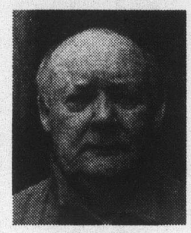
"That's the way it is today. That's the way it was back then."



NORTON

Many of the families of those 48 men lost have attended the ceremony over the years. Those who do generally take the time to say thank you to the city and veterans who have carried on this tradition for the last 30 years.

"The ceremony is a comfort to them," Norton says. Some share photos and news clippings of the day's events with family and fellow veterans throughout the country.

"It's all about the healing," Norton says, adding he hopes at least 1,000 people gather for the 30th annual ceremony a week from today.

If that crowd materializes, it will match the attendance at the first dedication back in 1987.

It was a day those who attended will never forget.

On a blustery October day in 1987, a standing-room-only crowd watched from the boardwalk as retired U.S. General William Westmoreland dedicated the tower. He offered kind, noble sentiments to the men and women who served and sacrificed their lives during the Vietnam War.

His words then still resonate today.

"This is a time to remember, a time to understand. This is a time to appreciate. It's not a wake, it's not a time for mourning.

"It's a time to express our pride in those who served their country and paid the full price of freedom that sometimes has to be paid," the retired general said.

Westmoreland, who was 73 years old at the time of the dedication, served as commander of American forces in Vietnam from 1964 to 1968.

The 90-minute ceremony featured a long procession of dignitaries, members from all Armed Services color guards, veterans groups, and Gold Star families, relatives of deceased or missing servicemen and women.

Others who attended included Quincy firefighters and police officers, local elected officials and Bernard Cardinal Law who arrived by helicopter minutes before the 11 a.m. ceremony and delivered the invocation.

Westmoreland had been invited to be the keynote speaker by Peter O'Connell, one of the key organizers of the effort to build the $500,000 privately-funded memorial.

"We made the right contacts and we let the general know the scale of the memorial which had interested his people a lot because at the time he said outside of Washington, D.C., it was the nicest memorial to the Vietnam veterans in existence," O'Connell said back when the 25th anniversary was observed five years ago.

"Today, the memorial remains a very impressive structure and honors the young men who gave their lives and who served in Vietnam. It recognizes that the Vietnam War carried such a human price. Look at our city – 48 were killed," O'Connell added.

With an overflow crowd gathered near the memorial at the 1987 dedication, there was a palpable anticipation of Westmoreland's remarks. Here – in the City of Quincy – was one of America's most iconic figures in its military history. The U.S. Army 4-Star General had commanded U.S. military operations in the Vietnam War at its peak. The highly decorated general had also served as U.S. Army Chief of Staff from 1968 to 1972.

But before he spoke, the memorial was dedicated.

Westmoreland and Thomas O'Connell of the O'Connell Development Company unveiled the 46 names (now 48) who were killed serving in Vietnam. The names are engraved on one side of the 110-foot tower.

Then, it was Westmoreland's time to speak.

And everyone listened.

Describing the Vietnam veterans as "gallant," Westmoreland said history may judge American aid to South Vietnam as one of its most "noble causes."

Westmoreland said the U.S. was a "strong nation helping an inspiring nation to reach a point where it had some reasonable chance to achieve and keep a degree of freedom and human condition."

"At last," Westmoreland said, "America and the world are beginning to realize that America was not defeated militarily on the battlefield in Vietnam. When the North Vietnamese came down with 16 divisions and overran South Vietnam, we had no American troops on the battlefield. They had been gone for two years.

"The American military," Westmoreland emphasized, "did not lose a battle of any consequence in Vietnam. They American military was not defeated."

Westmoreland, who served during World War II, Korea and Vietnam, said he personally believed the Vietnam veteran deserves more praise than "his veteran father and grandfather" of World War II and Korea because he fought a war without public support.

Westmoreland concluded by saying Quincy residents who died during Vietnam made the ultimate sacrifice for freedom.

"The names on this monument tell a story of our freedom," he told the hushed gathering. "The fathers and grandfathers and the men whose name are inscribed on this monument came from many places, from many societies.

"They came here to America to build a nation, and to create a free society. And they have succeeded," Westmoreland said. "They have also demonstrated their love for freedom. They have fought for it, and they have died for it.

"They, as their forebearers, as America at its best. They are truly the champions of freedom."

After the names were unveiled, Westmoreland also helped place a yellow and red flowered wreath at the foot of the memorial. Taps played followed by a 17-gun salute.

The retired general also presented roses to Gold Star women in attendance.

Westmoreland died in 2005. And many of those proud veterans of all wars who attended the dedication 30 years ago are no longer with us, either.

But the memory of those 48 names on the clock tower – and the important words spoken at that dedication 30 years ago – should live on forever.

This year's ceremony will mark the final formal observance of Vietnam Veterans Day in Quincy. Norton says starting next year, the ceremony will be more low-key.

There will still be a wreath laying and those attending can offer some remarks.

But Norton says next Thursday is the last major observance because those involved in planning the ceremony are getting up in years and others have health issues. The ranks have thinned and are getting thinner.

"It's the same thing that's happening to every veterans organization in every state throughout the country," Norton says. "A drop in numbers like it's going out in style."

As an example, Norton noted that when he took over as adjutant of the Morrisette American Legion Post in 1990, the Post boasted a membership of 1,600 members. Today, the group is down to about 250.

"People have moved away. Some are ill and some have passed away," he says.

Even the number of family members who attend the Vietnam Veterans Day observance has fallen in recent years as folks have moved away or passed on.

But as long as they are able, the veterans will still remember their fallen and fellow Vietnam veterans at the clock tower the last Thursday of April.

"We will never forget them," Norton says. "We will always remember the families and these 48."

QCAP Welcomes Police Officer To Family Fun Week

Quincy Braintree Family Network-CFCE, a program of Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP), invites parents and children to a morning of activities on Thursday, April 27th.

The "Healthy Bodies, Healthy Minds" event is free to the public and will take place from 10 a.m. to noon at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd. in Quincy.

Officer Lauren Lambert from the City of Quincy's Police Department will spend the morning with children and parents to offer the department's child fingerprinting program. Families that participate will walk away with a special card imprinted with their children's unique set of fingerprints.

The event is geared toward children four years of age and younger, but siblings are welcome. Community agencies will be on-hand with their own make and take activity for the kids, and resources for parents. InSync Center for the Performing Arts will get us up and moving with music, dance and parachute fun.

The "Healthy Bodies, Healthy Minds", event is part of QBFN's celebration of Brain Building in Progress Week, April 23rd through April 29th.

Throughout the week, QBFN will host a variety of family activities designed to promote healthy brain development, such as "The Color of Literacy" at Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., Quincy on Tuesday, April 25th from 10 to 11:15 a.m., and children's performer, Jeff Jam at the Thayer Public Library on Friday, April 28th at 10:30 a.m. in Braintree.

Other events at the program's main site, Learning Links, 1511 Hancock St. Quincy will take place during the week.

For more information contact Joan Rodeck at jrodeck@qcap.org or 617-479-8181 x369.

THIS IS A 1920s postcard view of the Baker Yacht Basin on the Town River in Quincy Point. This well protected deepwater anchorage was used to store excursion steamboats during the winter. Lorenzo D. Baker, Jr. had an extensive yacht building and repair business there for many years. His father was a sea captain from Wellfleet on Cape Cod and was well known as one of the founders of the United Fruit Company in Boston. Captain Baker had brought the land here in Quincy to build a shipping facility for his fleet of freighters that brought bananas from Central America. He had planned to build a railroad from here across Washington Street to connect with the Fore River Shipyard for shipping the fruit throughout the Northeast. He died before the facility was built. Today, this is the site of the Bay Pointe Marina. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Citizens Await Return Of Smelt Along Town Brook

By PAT ARTIS

Since mid-March, citizen-scientist volunteers have been monitoring the Town Brook for the return of the smelt – no smelt have been seen yet.

Under the leadership of QEN and Conservation Committee members of the Wollaston Garden Club, volunteers monitor the brook each day at six different locations.

The temperatures in the brook have been rising given the warmer day temperatures. The average water temperature during the month of March was below 40 degrees – too cold for smelt to return to the brook to spawn.

The City had hired URS Corporation of Boston to monitor for the past three years, the water quality and water flow requirements during the spawning season until June 1, 2016; so data exists for those years from 2013 – 2016. Citizens should be able to find information at http://www.quincyma.gov/Government/PLANNING/townbrookproject.cfm.

To track the seasons, many human cultures have given names to the full moon throughout the year. According to the coastal New England Native American tribes, the full moon in April was called the Fish Moon. Historically this has been the time the fish (smelt, herring, and alewife) return to rivers and streams to spawn.

The Fish Moon this spring occurred on April 11 with high tides along the coast and in the estuaries of the rivers and brooks. Smelt, not being strong swimmers, prefer high tides to aid in their travel upstream. Town Brook Stream Team volunteers hope to see fish during high tides during April and May.

Besides the two pocket parks at Mechanic Street, other public viewing places include the upstream side of the bridge at Elm Street and McGrath highway (near Yellow Cab); the upstream side of the bridge at lower Bigelow Street; the downstream side of the bridge at Miller Stile Road; and the upstream side of the bridge at upper Bigelow Street.

During last year's 2016 spawning season, volunteers saw large numbers of spawning smelt at the upper Mechanic Street Park, at the downstream side of the Miller Stile Road Bridge and at the bend of the brook south of Miller Stile Road bridge.

The spawning fish prefer shady areas for cover and protection and with a lot of tree cut in the area the fish have had to become more selective. Local knowledge says "when the forsythia bloom look for spawning fish in the Town Brook." The forsythia are in full bloom in Quincy now!

City Looking Into Punch Card Voting

The future of voting in Quincy may be by punch card if City Clerk John M. Gillis has his way.

The punch card voting machines that were being demonstrated, said Gillis, could cost the city as little a $75,000 or as much as $150,000 and trim as much as six hours off the time needed to count ballots.

"It is about time," said Gillis, who was up until 4 a.m. with the presidential primary election last March 13. "After 27 years I'd like to see some improvements in voting procedures."

Brian Crawley, vice-president of Electronic Voting Machines, Inc. of Newton, said the voting unit of the machine costs $150 each, and the unit with a stand and light cost $300 each.

Gillis said that he would make a pitch for them at the next city council meeting.

WILLARD SCHOOL SOLD FOR $916,500

The city closed a deal for the sale of the old Willard School in West Quincy to Furnace Brook Associates for $916,500 for conversion into an office building. Conversion is expected to be completed in the fall of 1984.

Furnace Brook Associates is made up of Dickinson Development and Grossman and Company, both of Braintree.

The old school will be converted into between 40,000 and 45,000 square feet of rental office space.
